FRENCH FINANCIAL WORRIES OVER FOR SEVERAL MONTHS

Paris, April 1.—The French budget has been finally balanced after two years of efforts in which four cabinets and six finance ministers have fallen. The Chamber of Deputies concluded an all night session by voting new resources sufficient to wipe out the budget deficit and establish a surplus of between thirty and sixty million for several months at least. The vote on the combined measures was 236 to 159, a majority of 77 with 190 deputies abstaining. The Senate is expected to pass the bills promptly.

CHICAGO SEES ONE STORM GO AND PREPARES TO MEET NEXT

Chicago, April 1.—This country bade farewell to-day to one of the severest March storms in recent weather history, saw it enter Canada and continue its devastating way eastward after taking a score of lives and then prepared to face new a disturbance brewing in the Rocky Mountains. The "great storm", so described in weather bulletins, swept out of the Rockies several days ago, cut a circular swath through the south-west and middle west, and then moved north-easterly. Wednesday night, through the lower Michigan peninsular into Canada. The weather bureau said no settled weather is yet in prospect.

LANSINGS OF WATERTOWN ARE IMPROVING FACILITIES TO HOLD L.Y.R.A. EVENTS

Although the ice has not left the lake and the yachtsmen in this vicinity are already making plans for summer activities.

The Lake Yacht Racing Association Regatta will be held at Henderson Harbor, a pretty inlet of Lake Ontario, a few miles from Watertown. When interviewed last week Commodore Edward Lansing of Sunset Club said he did not think plans are being laid for the accommodation of one hundred boats.

The Yankees have added a new mast line railway to their equipment and are now capable of dry-docking boats with a maximum weight of forty tons. The club house is being renovated and other improvements made.

The genial Mr. Lansing made a host of friends on this side of the Lake who will invade American waters with a large fleet. The majority of the clubs have added one or two boats to their present fleet.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICES

Good Friday will be observed in the churches of the city by special services. At St. Thomas Church a three hour service from twelve to three o'clock will be held when eight addresses will be given with the seven sayings from the Cross, the first three of which were addressed to the people in the world and the last four to the Heavenly Father. The first three "Father forgive them, they know not what they do." "Today shalt thou be with Me in Paradise" and "Woman behold Thy Son; Behold thy Mother" and the last four "My God; My God why hast thou forsaken Me?" "I thirst" "It is finished" and "Father into Thy Hands I commend My Spirit".

All attending this service may come and go as they wish.

At Bridge Street United Church, Dr. Aikens will speak at the 11 o'clock service and Stainer's Crucifixion will be sung by Bridge St Choir at 8 p.m.

BIG DEMAND FOR LILIES TO HELP WITH EASTER FLORISTS BOAST OF RUSH

About five hundred Easter lillies have to date been ordered from the local florists, one by noon to-day alone having booked orders for near by four hundred plants. These supply the demands not only of the homes in and about the city, but the churches in Belleville, practically every church in the city having ordered many of these symbolic flowers for Sunday.

Other Spring flowers which have asserted their right to popular second place and mingle their fragrance with the lily, are tulips, first in demand after the lily, daffodils, sweet pear, lillies of valley, and roses, the latter for the most part however are imported in Belleville, though the local florists have succeeded in producing some very fine rose blooms.

The greatest of care has been tendered to the blooms which go on sale during Easter week. Greenhouse keepers have timed their blooming plants so that they will all be at their greatest perfection on Easter Sunday. Lillies this year have never been finer. One drug of international flower growers ship their cut flowers so that they can be kept in transit up to 36 hours without any great depreciation.

J. D. MacMillan Feted by Officials And Men of Canadian National As He Completes 50 Years' Service

The Superintendent of the Belleville Division of the Canadian National Railways—that is his title—today he is the happiest man in the Dominion of Canada and he has every right to be.

For last evening John Donald MacMillan—he's known everywhere in this region as "Dan"—was feted by the officials and employees of the territory from Toronto to Brockville and north to Midland and on top of that there was the President of the road Sir Henry Thornton—and two Vice Presidents, S. J. Hungerford and E. E. Dalrymple and General Superintendent F.L.C. Bond of the Montreal District. And they gave Mr. MacMillan a magnificent testimonial to the esteem and indeed affection in which he is everywhere held in the shape of a gold watch and chain and fraternal insignia and an illuminated address and thousands of compliments ary words and cheers upon cheers and absolutely unlimited good wishes and there has been much mirth in just like it here or indeed upon the Canadian National Railways.

The affair was under the management of committee of officials here with Mr. Morley Duff as secretary and they made and saw carried out most perfect arrangements, starting with a turkey dinner and all the fixings and a programme of music and speechmaking that was full of interest without even the hint of a dull moment.

THE COMMITTEE

The Committee in charge were:

Chairman—N. P. North, Asst. Supt. Belleville.

R. E. Orr, Asst. Supt., Lindsay.

M. P. Duff—Secretary.

T. H. Coppin—Treasurer.

THE CHAIRMAN

Major Bond the genial Irish Canadian who is Mr. MacMillan's next senior was the capable chairman, fluent and witty of speech. Sir Henry made one of the breezy extemporaneous addresses for which the famous across the Dominion and indeed internationally and Mr. MacMillan's reply was capital in every way. It was shewing the proper gratitude and pride that he must have felt at this demonstration from his officials and senior officials and his fellow officials and his employees on the Canadian National Railways.

The dinner began at eight or short ly after. It was nearly ten before the speechmaking began and it was all over by a quarter past eleven.

There were over a score of high officials of the road present and many of these from headquarters of the company and from other divisional points. A sheaf of regrets were read by Major Bond, one in particular from General Manager Warren and another from an old friend of Mr. MacMillan's and a Belleville man, Mr. H. B. Neely, of Toronto, who is out west at this time and could not be here.

BANNER DISPLAY

Major Bond in his opening remarks said Belleville division had the honor to be the banner division of the road with drew cheers. It's motto was, "We lead; let those who can follow." Belleville had been closely related to the road, the old Grand Trunk for years. "Long may it continue to lead the way under the capable guidance of our good friend who is the recipient of honor tonight —Dan MacMillan." More cheers. He has completed fifty years of honest and honorable endeavor in the public service. What a wealth of reminiscences he must be able to relate! Many of those years he has helped build this Dominion and which helped to give it its wealth and happiness. Belleville division might well be envied by any other nation. Belleville division has set an example for the whole Empire. One fact I must emphasize and that is that the operating ratio for the Belleville division is the best of the system and Dan MacMillan is the one who did it. Cheers. But the men who worked with him are also deserving of the highest praise and one of the reasons of that remarkable cooperation is that Mr. MacMillan was able to inspire his employee with the spirit of service so that they smiled over their work and did it all the better for that. They also know how to play and he plays with them. On the whole system there is no better spirit and it is not found in dry statistics. Cheers and laughter. "Whether the statistics be dry or wet" Major Bond went on, "it is here and there is nothing finer." He knows the men who work under him and he trusts them. In all great accomplishments we must look to the top to find the reason and here we have good fellowship personified in the shape of Dan MacMillan himself." Cheers.

SIR HENRY THORNTON

The President of the Canadian National Railways, Sir Henry Thornton, K.B.E., was the next speaker. He declared it to be a real pleasure to him to be present to do honor "to the presentation to Mr. J. D. MacMillan and Dan MacMillan on behalf of the employees of to represent the company in official the local division.

HOUSE DEBATES 10 PER CENT BEER BILL WITHDRAWN

Merits of Government Control Also Up For Discussion

Toronto—(By Mail)—The Ontario Temperance Act once more obtruded itself in the Legislature yesterday when the bills of J. A. Pinard (Liberal, East Ottawa), calling for ten per cent. beer, and of Col. E. C. Carrie, calling for a system of Government control, were considered at second reading and were spoken of by a large number of members from both sides of the House. Discussion on the Pinard bill was not ended during the day, Premier Ferguson moving the adjournment of the debate on that particular subject, but Col. Carrie withdrew his bill, which was out of order, as affecting the revenues of the Province. During discussion of the two measures Premier Ferguson reiterated his intention of canvassing the situation thoroughly and accepting responsibility when he returned to the people. There would be no more plebiscites or referenda, he declared.

REV. JAS. HUTTON INDUCTED RECTOR AT SHANNONVILLE

The Ven. Archdeacon Beamish Officiated and Impressive Ceremony

At Shannonville last evening Venerable Archdeacon Beamish officiated at the induction of Rev. James Hutton as rector of Holy Trinity Church, Shannonville, St. John's Church, Point Anne, and St. Luke Church, Thurlow, at the service being held in Holy Trinity Church.

The Bible lesson was read and the mandate for induction followed after which the keys of the Church were presents by the Church Wardens, Mr. Horace Wright.

The rector was then taken to the Font, the Prayer Desk, the Lectern, the pulpit, and the Altar, and the admonitions for each with the scripture recited. Then followed the admonition to the congregation, and to the people after which a stirring sermon was preached by Ven. Archdeacon Beamish on the duty of the Priest to the people and the duty of the people to the Priest. The church was filled almost to capacity in spite of the bad roads which made many impassable roads.

NO BEAUTIFUL WOMEN IN CHORAL SOCIETIES?

Toronto Mail Critic is Asking For Reprisal in Making Statement.

Toronto, April 1—The dramatic critic of the Mail and Empire has been considering beauty or the lack of it as revealed in choral societies. He maintains that a choral society, massed on the banked seats of a stage, is not a pretty sight. To us," he says, "it has always seemed that the white frocks and the lights reb

LOCAL CAGERS FACE TORONTO

In Semi-Finals With Central "Y" On Saturday Next

The local intermediate basketball team will leave for Toronto Saturday to play the Centre "Y" their return game in the semi-finals of the Intermediate O.A.B.A. Toronto have a lead of five points but if the local quintet play like they did in the last half of the game here they should capture the series.

Fogus the manager of the Toronto squad has an idea that Belleville will be lost on Toronto's big floor but the Local boys have been holding practices in the Armouries where they have been working their long passes and shots down to uncering accuracy. Playing on a larger court changes the game considerably, passes and shots are more difficult and it is harder to keep possession of the ball. If Cole and Armstrong turn in another game such as they have been playing and Faulkner makes his shots count, Toronto will get a big surprise.

The winners of this series will play off with Peterboro and the Western league for the Intermediate championship.

the women or beauty. Here is a point that has always puzzled us. There must be pretty women in every choral society, but for some reason you do not think so when you see them in the mass. Also there must be homely women in a ballet, but somehow massed effect makes for an impression of beauty The editor of the Musical Times, London, England, holds a very different view. He thinks that nothing more beautiful can be seen in the halls of entertainment than the women of a choral society in their pretty white dresses. It may seem ungallant to continue the dispute, but after gazing very hard at three different choral societies inside of six weeks we are still unable to get a thrill from the loveliness like that which the Londoner enjoys. The bobbed heads do not help much either. They give you the impression that the Jack of Clubs and the Jack of Diamonds are present in very large numbers."

ALL DRUGGISTS TO REMAIN OPEN EVENINGS

At a meeting of the Local Druggists Association held this morning it was decided that commencing today and henceforth throughout the Spring and Summer all druggists would remain open every evening. During the past two months the Association tried the system of having two drug stores open evenings and the system has worked out satisfactorily to all concerned. It was adopted originally, however, for the winter months, and all druggists will be open evenings in the future.

MEMORIAL TO MISSING AROUND CITY OF YPRES

London, Apr. 1—Sites have now been selected in France and Belgium for the erection of memorials to the "missing" soldiers of the Great War, who have no known graves. "The memorial at the Menin Gate, Ypres," writes Major-General Sir Fabian Ware, "is now building, and on it will be inscribed in stone the names of 60,000 missing Englishmen, Scots, Welsh, Irish, Canadians, Australians, South Africans, Indians and Colonials, who fell in the Ypres Salient but have no known graves.

"It was designed by Sir Reginald Blomfield and occupies a position at the town end of the causway across the moat leading to the Menin road, over which passed, never to return, those who will be commemorated there. It takes the form of an arch or gateway, and is surmounted in the centre by the figure of a lion in pose. It bears the following inscription:

"MEDICINAL BEER"

They haven't got any 4.4 beer in the United States. That is a distinctive Ontario brew. But our neighbors are going to have "something just as good," if not better. They are going to have "medicinal beer." So the prohibition enforcement authorities at Washington have decreed.

This "medicinal" beer is to be of 3.75 alcoholic content by volume, and its tonic quality is to be unusually great because of an unusually large proportion of solid matter contents. Two large brewing firms have received permits to supply druggists with this beverage in limited quantities and those who want it will be privileged to buy it without any doctor's certificate. All they have to do is to declare that they need it for medicinal purposes—as a tonic.

Of course the motive for this arrangement is the same as the motive for introducing the 4.4 beer. It is hoped that the new beer will satisfy those who demand the sale of real beer, and not alarm the prohibitionists. Really it will prove to be a step towards a general relaxation of the prohibitory law.

MR. DAOUST'S INDISCRETION

It is reported from Ottawa that the King government may reconsider its appointment of Mr. Joseph Daoust of Montreal as a member of the advisory board because of his frank talk on the subject of tariff policy. Mr. Daoust admitted that he believed in moderate protection to industries that need it, and remarked that he saw no reason for scaling down the tariff at present. Evidently this statement has rettled the government's Progressive supporters and they may be demanding the head fo poor Daoust on a charger. If they persist, of course, Mr. King will have to decapitate him, for he does not defy the men without whose support the government could not exist a day.

Mr. Daoust may have been guilty of an indiscretion, but after all, his offence is not important. Everybody knows who knows him at all that he is a believer in tariff protection, and that he was appointed for that very reason—to allay the fears of the Quebec protectionists that was all well known as is the fact that Mr. Mackenzie, secretary of the United Farmers of Manitoba, was appointed because he is a free trader or at least a low tariff man. The one was appointed to balance the other, with Mr. Graham—moderate-minded Mr. Graham with a genius for conciliation and compromise—to hold the balance between them. If Mr. Mackenzie had publicly stated that he thought the present tariff could be lowered in spots to good advantage, does anyone suppose that protectionists would be howling for his scalp? They would know that, even if he had kept silent on the subject he would be fixed the less a low-tariff man.

And the Progressives should take the sensible view that Mr. Daoust is no more in favor of moderate protection than he would have been had he kept silent on the subject. If he were replaced by a free trader or a high tariff man, the new board would be a joke. If, as is more probable, he were to be succeeded by a man with opinions on the tariff not different from his own, how would the situation be improved from the Progressive standpoint? Better overlook his little indiscretion.

TIME AND TALK

Do the lawyers talk more than they used to, or do they make the same number of statements in less time so they can go golfing?

Mr. William S. Heller, president of the National Shorthand Reporters' Association, says they talk faster, and he has counted the words and held the stop watch on them, so he ought to know.

Mr. Heller says that 40 years ago the speed average for speech makers was 121 words a minute. Now it is 170 words a minute and some go better than that. He thinks it is due to the rapidity and commercialism of the present age.

"It may be so. But all ages have been as commercial as they knew how to be, so that part of the explanation hardly explains. There are differences in habit, however, that may have more to do with it.

Forty years ago the successful lawyer was a regular all-round arguer, bewildering juries, upsetting decisions, spell-binding the judgment of judges. He was careful, deliberate, exact in what he had to say, with a cultivated habit of delivering himself in beautiful diction and rounded, not to say orotund, periods. He talked like a text book on rhetoric and built his climaxes with the care of a dramatist.

Old arts pass, and it is probable that eloquence is less effective with judges that have cooler heads. The law schools have botanized the lay into its essential parts and dissected out its meaning and courts attach less value to figures of speech.

Outside the highway and the links are calling. Inside time is measured not by the wall clock, but the wrist watch—and shortened too. Justice is cloven to suit the demand the same number of statements, mental habit may shorten their form, the wrist watch speed them up. The old oratory was beautiful, but it seems to have had its day.

Not a Laxative

"The continued use of laxatives and cathartics only aggravates constipation," says a prominent medical authority.

Nujol is an internal lubricant, not a laxative, so cannot gripe. Take Nujol regularly and you will prevent the absorption into the blood of poisons from the constipated bowel.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of mineral content in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

HOUSE REVEALS SYMPATHY FOR PRISON REFORM

Government gives Approval to Miss Macphail's Resolution

WAGES FOR LABOR

Prisoners Should Do Productive Work—Part of Proceeds to Dependents

Ottawa, (By Mail)—At Ottawa as parental there is considerable sympathy on the part of public men for some reasonable measure of prison reform. At any rate, the House of Commons, with no dissenting voice and with the decided approval of the Minister of Justice, has adopted Miss Agnes Macphail's resolution to provide that under the administration of penitentiaries there should be sufficient productive work to keep the inmates employed and that a share of the proceeds of their labor go to their dependents or, if there are no dependents, that it be held in trust for the prisoners on their release.

The question has been before the Commons on other occasions. Last session Miss Macphail moved a similar resolution, but although a measure of sympathy with it was voiced in various quarters of the House, it was killed by being talked out. On Wednesday Miss Macphail requested that the members be not content with expressing sympathy with her proposal, but that it pass decision on it. This request was granted and the resolution carried unanimously after Hon. J. W. Edwards and Hon. Ernest Lapointe had endorsed the views and purpose of the lady member. The Minister of Justice went further than the proposer of the motion and expressed the hope that a plan would be worked out in prison administration for the segregation of young convicts from hardened criminals.

Earlier in the day Premier King declared that he was still unable to table the order-in-council appointing his tariff advisory board. He said it would be given to the House immediately after the Easter recess.

After the disposal of the penitentiary reform resolution, the House spent the balance of the day in a tariff discussion brought on by a resolution presented by W. K. Esling, Conservative member for West Kootenay, favoring a duty against United States eggs equal to the 8-cent tariff against Canadian eggs entering the United States. The discussion covered much ground that has already been gone over on new House rose at six o'clock. several occasions during the session and Most of the members leave Ot- was eventually adjourned when the tawa for their homes or Easter holi- day trips. On Tuesday of next week the Commons and the Senate will convene again.

PORT ARTHUR'S ALLAN CUP; OSHAWA DEFINITELY OUT OF CENTRAL ONTARIO BALL LEAGUE

PORT ARTHUR RETAINS CUP IN 4th GAME

Toronto, April 1.—By Port Arthur's Allan Cup skate. They retained the cup and the honor after playing four games with the University of Toronto, two in Montreal and two in Toronto. All were close and the last two went overtime.

The last hockey game was almost a repetition of the famous grind of last week when they played a 30-minute overtime tie.

Port Arthur won 3-2 in 20 minutes overtime.

The Ports were favored to win by many experts after being able to win things previously with Varsity. But last night again the students stepped out ahead and were leading at every time 4-0. But Ports had the power to finish strongly and they deserve the honor and glory of the result.

Sport Notes

Sport followers in the city are indeed lucky, to be able to witness the calibre of indoor baseball that is being served up in the league which resumed operations at the armory, on Tuesday night. The games were run off in snappy fashion and although the class of ball was mediocre for the opening it can be easily seen that it will improve. Point Anne fielded a well-balanced team and will, from appearances, cut a figure in the race. Those teams which are weak will be hindered by it will give the leaders some stiff battles. A crowd estimated at two or three hundred, watched the initial games, and when those fans who were absent, realise what is in store for them, the armory will be packed. This popular form of athletics fills in that period between hockey and baseball, and gives the followers of sport, food for gossip.

The passing of George Vezina, one of the greatest goalies who ever donned the pads, removes from hockey one of its most colorful figures. Cool in the steady under fire he cut a niche for himself in the realm of sport.

Bushy Graham of Utica, N.Y., one of the leading contenders for the bantamweight championship, was awarded a draw in his bout with Johnny Lynch at Toronto Coliseum on Tuesday night. Followers of the ring in northern New York State, hope to see the Utica kid matched for the championship of his class in the near future.

Kingston accorded their fast Junior team a royal welcome on their return home from conquests in foreign fields. Queen's students took a prominent part in the reception and the Limestone City have reason to feel proud of the first championship hockey team in fifteen years.

Nelson Stewart voted the most valuable player in the professional loop has corralled the honours in the matter of goals scored. The Maroon defence man led the parade with a total of thirty-four tallies.

Babe Ruth is not setting the world afire with his free-hitting activities in the southern training camp of the Yankees. He spent a rigorous winter in reducing his waistline and has succeeded to some extent.

Golf fiends are already preparing for a busy summer. With a little warm weather, the links should be in good shape in two or three weeks' time.

Operations to smuggle Canadian soccer stars into the United States have been made in the bud. A New York promoter was recently arrested at St. Albans, Vermont, charged with aiding players to enter the country illegally.

Peterboro have contrived a unique method of honouring the fast Senior O.H.A. team. A contest is being conducted to ascertain the most popular member, and each day one of the players polishes horns in the sport sheet.

OSHAWA QUITS C.O.B. LEAGUE TOO EXPENSIVE

Oshawa seniors have severed their connection with the C.O.B.L. It was found impossible to continue in this league on account of the heavy expenses caused by long jumps. Morley Jewett has been appointed and has accepted the managership of the General Motors senior baseball team entered in the Lake Shore Baseball League. With his inside knowledge of the game and his ability as a player, the officials of the club are satisfied that their entry in the new senior circuit will make a good showing.

The Oshawa team will consist largely on only Oshawa players, everything will be done to encourage local material and every Oshawa player will be given an opportunity to make good.

It is too bad in one way that Oshawa found it necessary to leave the O.O.B.L. While Kingston, Peterboro, Oshawa and Belleville in this league is made a well balanced loop. If Ottawa or Brockville enter the C.O.B.L., Peterboro and Belleville will be in the same position as Oshawa as far as travelling is concerned.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT GRIFFIN'S

Eleanor Boardman is again appearing in a picture directed by Hobart Henley, the man who has probably done more toward bringing to light the ability of this talented young actress than any other director. It is

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair dry, brittle, and ruins it.

PRISCILLA DEAN
Whose hair has been in the limelight for years, is a firm believer in Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out very easily, removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fluffy, free from any excess oil, and has a fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Mulsified on the package.

CLOCK-LIKE REGULARITY HIS REWARD

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN relieved constipation of long standing

Mr. Charles R. Pollard, of Walworth, Wisconsin, will testify that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN relieves constipation more than useless in relieving his constipation.

"I am writing to tell you of the great benefit I have derived from eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Before I commenced using ALL-BRAN I had a bad habit of taking a laxative every night, and taking enemas. I was constipated for a long time and used a lot of patent medicines. Since I have used ALL-BRAN I have had all my laxative medicine and pills away and my bowels are as regular as a clock."

Don't let constipation get you down, and don't become a slave to pills—fight-forming pills and drugs. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, eaten regularly, is guaranteed to relieve constipation or your money is returned. Serving is 1/3 cup. Two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Use it in cooking, with the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg in London, Canada. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Director Henley's direction, Miss Boardman made "The Turmoil," "Sinners in Silk," and "So This is Marriage."

In "So This Is Marriage" she played the young wife who could not settle down to being just that. Henley brought out unsuspected depths of feeling and perfect control of her expression. This Miss Boardman attributes to the confidence which she has inspire his actors and actresses.

"Under the direction of Mr. Henley, I never feel the least bit nervous or self-conscious in front of the camera," Miss Boardman says. "I feel that he has confidence in my ability, and that if I don't get what he wants the first time, he will simply do the scene until the proper result is obtained, no matter how long we have to work. He never loses his temper."

So when the opportunity came to play in "Exchange of Wives" at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Eleanor was glad to take it. The part offered greater possibilities for comedy than any she had hitherto characterized, and she proved herself an excellent trouper at this type of part.

AT THE BELLE

John Strung, the role played by Hous Peters in "The Storm Breaker," Universal-Jewel production to be screened at the Belle theatre commencing tomorrow is a strong, forceful man, just as powerful as one would expect from the bearer of a name that indicates strength. Powerful physically, he was also powerful mentally in that his will brooked no obstacles. Self-sufficient and arrogant, he strode through his log village life with the same self-assurance as he plotted his fishing smack through calm and storm. Nowhere in fiction there was no greater power than John Strung.

Nell Strong, his brother, the character assumed by Ray Hanford, was just the reverse. Nell is in striking contrast to the things about him. He is a slighter and a dreamer. One might call him frail and frail he is, for to John had been given all the strength and to Nell the soul and understanding of a poet. To Nell his world was built of thumbed books, and the delight he gets from reading them, hold the same relation as does the fishing smack and the daily battle with the elements to John. The brothers are as different as ever two brothers were. Yet they had one mother. To Nell, John meant everything—brother, father, Serp—and this worship of the younger man was returned by a deep seated awe and trust.

Into the lives of these two on their primitive island home came Lysetta DeJon, a girl from the mainland. She is dainty and her youthful beauty shows as fragile as old china.

Mrs. Kempton Cookson, Hantsport, Blomidon Co., Kings Co., N.S. writes:—"My husband suffered from kidney and liver complaint and 'sluggish' blood. He got several bottles of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and he tried them. By the time he had taken two boxes he was quite well again.

St. Adolphe, Manitoba.—"I was very weak and had great pains during my periods and I could not sweep the floor. The pains were in the right side and extended to the left and then over to my wrists. It seemed as if the body was heavy and upside down. I took the three troubles I had to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I saw where it in a paper and the man prevailed on me to take it. It has helped me in every way. The pains are less, and I have more appetite. It is a pleasure to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to others."—Mrs. Delorme, St. Adolphe, Manitoba.

BANQUET FOR Mr. MacMILLAN

capacity at this gathering.

"As the youngest employee of the company, it gives me great pleasure to rise in this presentation. I am one of the oldest, to join in this testimonial of esteem.

"The Belleville division has been a fine example to the other fine divisions of this great railway stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, declared Sir Henry. "There is a healthy rivalry among the divisions in the achieving of good work and the accomplishment of fine records. It will be a very good division that will challenge the supremacy of Belleville under our good friend." Cheers.

"Dan MacMillan must take great pride in his division and in the splendid support he is receiving from his fellow workers. He has reached the remarkable record of fifty years with the company", and turning smilingly to Mr. MacMillan, "and I would say that from present appearances he is still going strong and may last out another fifty years." Laughter and cheers.

"He started at the bottom as a brakesman and history does not state just what kind of a brakesman "he was but he must have been a good one for he was soon promoted to be conductor and then to instructor and he has been instructing in one capacity or another ever since. We are all happy here in recognizing this half century of fine service to the company."

A GRAND TRUNK

Here Sir Henry related the flippant remark of a friend recently who in making an observation about the railway had said: "The Canadian National may be a white elephant, but it certainly has a Grand Trunk." At which there were roars of laughter and applause.

After more complimentary remarks to Mr. MacMillan he presented him on behalf of the officers and employees of the Belleville division with a gold watch and chain and fraternal insignia.

"It gives the directors and myself great pleasure to join in wishing you many more years of health and happiness and of service to the company," said Sir Henry. "Examples are useful things, and I know of no more useful example than you, Dan, and in presenting this testimonial I offer you my congratulations and best wishes."

Mr. Robert McConachie then read an address on behalf of the retired conductors which was presented, framed and illuminated to Mr. MacMillan.

There were some minutes of cheering and applause before Mr. MacMillan could begin his reply.

MR. MacMILLAN

"I cannot find words with which to say all that I feel at this time," he began. "I shall say this: "I would not change places with the greatest man in the country." He remarked that previous to his fifty years railway service, he was for eighteen months a member of a section gang and was told then that he knew how properly to drive a spike. With respect to the question of finance and the oft repeated remark that officials did not earn their salary, he said that fifty years spent in territory now embraced by the Belleville division was administered by six divisional superintendents. If they earned their pay, he thought the present officials did. References to the old Grand Trunk brought cheers and when he remarked that he did not think he had an enemy in the division, a voice shouted, "No sir."

His policy had been to work with his men and to play with them and he was proud of his staff and workmen.

"I have frequently been asked: 'What has Sir Henry Thornton done?' I have, I am afraid, lost my temper over that question. If he has done nothing else he has done this: He has cemented the staffs of the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk into one great harmonious railway, an achievement I think no one else could have done." Cheers.

"If I had another fifty years to live I should be glad to travel over the same path," said Mr. MacMillan. "I have no regrets and thank God I have enjoyed good health."

On behalf of Mrs. MacMillan and himself, he extended his most sincere and heartfelt thanks for the honor done him and for the magnificent testimonial of the esteem of local divisions.

Vice Presidents Hungerford and Dalrymple both added their testimony to the good work Mr. MacMillan had done for the road and spoke of the pleasure it gave them to be present. Both had known him for many years.

Mayor Graham, on behalf of the city, spoke of Mr. MacMillan as a citizen of whom all were proud. He gave a hearty welcome to the many distinguished guests present and hoped their stay would be pleasant.

Music was supplied by Prof. Wheatley at the piano and by the Radio quartette who sang among other things, "Lucky Dan," the words of which run:

Dan and I as children played together,
Best of chums for many years were we
If, alas, was always most unlucky,
Dan was always lucky as could be.
Years rolled by; Dan worked upon the railway,
He kept climbing higher up each year,
Till at last he topped the long long ladder
And became Division manager.

A grand old record fifty years today,
And may he live another half a century,
To try and make the Canadian National PAY.

And that as the saying is brought down the house. Sir Henry and the other high ranking officials present leaned back and laughed loud and long.

Community singing was led by Mr. A. F. Stillman, Division Supt. Canadian National Express. Among the stunts was making separate "Pirate" song from the Rotary Minstrels.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"Constance, if ever a woman's face mirrored her soul, yours does. And I read the soul of a true woman in those eyes. Tell me, would you dare all, more than you can guess, for the man you loved? Would you—ah, no! I cannot ask you! I am tempted too heavily! I will not ask you! Not tonight. To-morrow! Go, Constance! Oh, my love! my love!"

In the passion which shook his soul, he almost flung her hand from him, and strode away from her.

"Go! Ah, go! Leave me to myself and the devils that hold me!"

Constance staggered slightly, and put her hands to her face, and, turning, slowly left him.

She groped her way up stairs, and gained her own room, more like a somnambulist than a conscious being.

Had she been dreaming? She opened her hand and looked at the locket; but it was not the locket which impressed her with the reality of the scene she had gone through so much as the red mark upon her arm in the place where the marquis' hand had grasped her.

No, no, no, no! It was no vision, no nightmare, but a reality! With a cry of exhaustion and bewilderment she sank down on the bed and tried to think, to marshal the incidents of the night in proper order and realize what had happened.

What fearful mystery hung over the marquis that he, apparently the proudest of dukes, should permit a man to enter the castle at midnight and bribe him? It was a bribe, for he had admitted as much to her in the course of his wild, mad speech. Could it be possible that he had been guilty of some crime the knowledge of which placed him in the man's power?

It was impossible! It was impossible that he could be capable of a mean action, and crime—all crime, was mean. But she was not in a condition to argue the point with herself, for ringing in her ears and echoing in her heart were the passionate words in which he had avowed his love for her.

She remembered every word, every look which accompanied it, and the remembrance thrilled her with a strange mixture of pain and joy that was indescribable and ineffable.

Only once before in her life had she ever heard words of love addressed to her. And that had been when Rawson Fenton had declared his passion for her in the hut. She had shrunk from him, had overwhelmed and indebted him with her coldness and her contempt.

She had shrunk from the marquis, but with surprise and not fear; she had not treated him with scorn as she had treated Fenton.

Why was she so?

As she asked herself the question she felt her face, her neck burn with a red den flame, and she put her hand before her eyes to shut out the answer which her soul suggested.

Was it possible that if he had insisted upon her replying, if he had insisted upon her responding to his question: "Do you love me, Constance?" that she would have been compelled to answer "Yes."

"Oh, no, no!" she breathed, aloud.

How could it possibly be. She had known him for only a few days, had seen him so few times.

Then there flashed upon her the consequences of the truth that love does not require a long apprenticeship; that offence than not a spring into full life and vigor at first sight.

STORM PARTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR HIGHWAY TRAGEDY

OTTAWA SENATE GRANTS DIVORCE TO G. A. WICKETT

W. C. Mikel, K.C., Counsel For Husband — Wife's Whereabouts Unknown

Ottawa, April 3.—Before the adjournment of Parliament for the Easter vacation, the Divorce Committee of the Senate passed a report today still granting George Alison Wickett of Belleville a divorce from his wife Cecelia Marie Wickett.

The case is peculiar in that it was not shown that the wife knew that the divorce proceedings were being taken, she not having been served, as her present whereabouts were unknown. It was pointed out by the Committee that granting a divorce against a person without her knowledge was a dangerous precedent.

W. C. Mikel K.C., acting for the husband contended that the Canadian Parliament has the same divorce jurisdiction at that exercised by the British Parliament before the Divorce was established in England in 1857 when the British Parliament had unlimited power to pass a Divorce Bill. Therefore the Canadian Parliament can grant a divorce to a husband or wife without any cause being shown and without the other party having any notice of the proceedings.

He also contended that when a husband or wife leaves his or her home under suspicious circumstances and remains away for a considerable time without making known his or her whereabouts to the family it is circumstantial evidence from which guilt may be presumed.

The Bill came up last session but as the Respondent was not served it was laid over to the present session when the Committee decided to grant the divorce.

Jury Heard Evidence as To How Explosive Was Placed There

At Madoc village on Thursday night a coroner's jury investigated the death of William R. Cowlin, of Peterboro' who died as the result of a mine explosion at Moira Lake on March 23rd. Dr. Harper, coroner, presided over the deliberations and Mr. H. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney, conducted the examination of witnesses.

Evidence was conclusive that the explosion of the unexploded dynamite charge was caused by deceased hitting it with a pick while exploring about the mine. Adam Cassibo who was with Cowlin at the time was fatally injured dying at Peterboro two days after the unfortunate affair. It was intimated that the one inquest would suffice for an enquiry into both deaths.

Mr. E. J. Cowlin, father of the victim in his evidence said he did not know whether the Department of Mines had been notified that the mine was operating or about the accident. There were no warning notices displayed. Any responsibility for determining whether the charges had exploded devolved upon the men who set them, and he would do it only by examining the holes.

Harold Doverman and Thomas Edwards were also witnesses. Edwards in the mine and fired the charges, said it would be safer for the men who set off the charges to check up, but in this case the men should have known where the charges were exploded, because they were all in the same place.

Owing to a number of cases of smallpox the schools at Marmora and Deloro are closed and the Board of Health has ordered that no public meetings be held. Hundreds of residents are crowding the doctors to be vaccinated and instructions have been given that no unvaccinated children shall be admitted to school after the 5th inst. under penalty of attendance. Several cases are affected, but there are other exposures known. Church services are included in the order.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE INSPECTS ST. AGNES AS COLLEGIATE SITE

A committee of the Board of Education inspected the grounds of St. Agnes School including the large block adjoining Queen Alexandra School on Thursday afternoon and were favorably impressed. A choice of this site, if it could be secured at a reasonable figure, would spare not merely a splendid situation but also the moving of the present High School and grounds for public city purposes, or to help for part for the new collegiate.

CHURCHES OF CITY OBSERVED DAY OF CRUCIFIXION

Good Friday Occasion of Services Morning, Noon and Night

Good Friday was reverently observed throughout the city, most of the Churches having special services commemorating the Great Sacrifice. At St. Michael's Church the regular services for the Day were conducted and at St. Thomas Church the ante-Communion service was conducted by the Rector at 8.0 o'clock. The three hours' service from 12 till 3 o'clock was well attended and the sermons by the rector on the seven sayings of Our Lord Christ, heard with profound interest.

At Christ Church, Rev. C. E. Clarke, the rector, conducted a service at 10 a.m. at which he preached an eloquent sermon, also at the shortened "three-hours" service from 2 to 3 o'clock. In the evening St. Faith Hall of Christ Church, Rev. R. G. Stewart gave an interesting address.

In the United Churches of the city the day was observed. At Bridge Street Church at 11 o'clock the Rev. Dr. Aikens preached a brilliant sermon on "The Ludrous Cross." which was heard by an appreciative congregation, and in the evening the Church was thronged when Stainers' "Crucifixion" was sung by the Choir and prominent soloists of the city. At Holloway Street Church Saunder's sacred cantata "Olivet to Calvary" was rendered by the Belleville Glee Singers conducted by Mr. T. Goodchild. During the cantata, between the episodes the organist Mr. Alex Gordon played the Funeral March which added greatly to the effect of the Cantata, Rev. L. S. Wight, acted as chairman of the evening.

THIS LITTLE PIG WAS MADE THE HERO OF SHIP AND STORY

Vancouver, B. C., April 3. — Pigs may be pigs, but ask a member of the crew of the steamship Glamorganshire, which reached here recently from South America, and he will tell you that pigs have individuality and that there is no other pig like Dennis.

A few months ago Dennis was an enormous little black porker grunting in the backyard of a sleepy Central American village. Now he is the lord of all he surveys as a result of his astounding rise to idol of an admiring crew.

Commander J. Rutherford Collins, who walks the bridge of the Glamorganshire, likes pork, and when he landed at the Central American port to purchase supplies he made enquiries of the butchers concerning pork. But somehow nothing that he saw in the shops appealed to him. He left the shops empty-handed, but when he saw Dennis playfully wallowing in the mud behind a villager's fence an idea blossomed. He approached the villager, drove a bargain and sent two of his men ashore to bring the little pig aboard alive.

Dennis was marked for death, but he proceeded to evade the issue. He responded to kindness; displayed intelligence and soon was the pet of the crew. Death no longer lurks in the chef's eye when Dennis strolls into the galley to pare little bits of food. The pig is free to the decks and lies across the saloon doorway like a dog. He enters the saloon and walks on the chairs as obedient and as friendly as any other pet could be. Members of the crew say he begs his bail, but in any event, pork appears to be off the Glamorganshire's menu for good.

Ruth Helm, Aged 17, Killed When Struck by Heavy Bus Tragedy Stirs Whole District

A blinding snow storm raging on the afternoon of Thursday was the same extent responsible for the tragic death of Ruth Helm, aged 17 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Helm residing at Avondale, Sidney Township, a short distance west of the city limits.

RAN IN FRONT OF BUS

The unfortunate affair occurred on the Provincial highway, and in front of the home of the victim. Miss Helm was a pupil of Belleville High School and in company with other students, was enroute home when she was struck by an auto-bus which plies between Belleville and Foxboro, owned and driven by Mr. John E. Rathbun of Trenton. It appears that Ruth had alighted from a motor truck when her home was reached and made a dash across the highway, apparently unaware of the close proximity of the Trenton-Belleville motor bus which was coming eastward to this city.

TRIED TO AVOID TRAGEDY

Mr. Rathbun who was at the wheel made every effort to avoid hitting the girl and almost put the bus into the ditch.

This proved unavailing as Ruth was hit with considerable force and her body was thrown violently to the pavement. Willing hands picked up the prostrate form and carried her into house. It was apparent that the victim had sustained worst of a fatal nature and she passed away in short twenty minutes. Concussion of the brain was given as the cause of death.

AN INVESTIGATION

Provincial police were notified of the affair and Sergt. Ray was soon upon the scene starting his investigation. Dr. Boyce, coroner of this city was also called and it was decided that an inquest was necessary. This was opened on Thursday evening and an adjournment was made until Thursday evening next, after evidence had been given by Mr. F. Potter as to identification. This was done in order that the body might be prepared for burial.

POPULAR AT B. H. S.

The victim of the deplorable accident was well known in the neighborhood where her parents resided and she was a general favorite. Ruth was also exceedingly popular with the pupils of the High School. She was especially clever and most affable and her untimely death has caused widespread sympathy to be extended to the members of the family.

A CAREFUL DRIVER

The concensus of opinion is that the deplorable affair was purely an accident which under the circumstances could not have been avoided. It is said that the bus at the time was by no means travelling at an excessive speed. Mr. Rathbun has the reputation of being a most careful and capable driver.

Dr. W. W. Boyce, coroner, will preside over the deliberation and Mr. H. C. Donnan, County Attorney, will conduct the examination of witnesses. The personnel of the jury is as follows:

Messrs. Chas. B. Meyers, foreman; Leonard Reid, Harry Ketchesen, Douglas Holton, Glenn Myers, Chester Hogle, J. C. Bell, J. J. Mallard, and Fred W. Marmer.

On Thursday the day Miss Helm met her death, she had successfully passed her Easter examination and was promoted as one of the brightest pupils of the High School.

In addition to the parents, four sisters survive. They are Grace, Edith, Jean and Marie.

COMPLETES WEEK OF FINE SERVICES ON GOOD FRIDAY

Rev. Dr. Aikens Paints Oral Picture of "Wondrous Cross

The Reverend J. W. Aikens, D.D., of Toronto completed his week of Evangelism at Bridge St., Church, by preaching at yesterday morning's service.

He chose as his topic, "The Wondrous Cross," and said in part: "I see a crowd of white, with humanity the dark spots. His conception of the Cross, upon which Jesus was crucified, was that it was a symbol of love and sacrifice. Dr. Aikens declared that Our Saviour had died a dignified death, and was actually within his own powers, and that those who put Him to death were a helpless mob.

Dr. Aikens pointed out, that Christ won an outstanding victory on His crucifixion, "where sin did its worst. Jesus gave His best."

He then told brighteners of God's glory, a sacrifice laid before the eyes of sinners. The Cross is to Our Lord what the wings are to a bird, and results to a ship, an aid to Him in sending His Word to the far corners of the earth.

It brings to us a new burden, and people to-day who desire to begin a new life must seek him and His for, aforesaid for former sins.

Dr. Aikens declared that if "The Bible were closed to the Resurrection, then nothing else in the whole Book was promised forgiveness." The present-day laws promise no forgiveness once a crime has been committed.

"We no longer look to Solomon for wisdom, and to John for love, and to Paul for zeal, but to Jesus of Nazareth," said the Reverend gentleman. "He stands where we stand, and fought for His character as well as for the sins of others, and was made perfect through unmerited suffering."

Dr. Aikens closed by appealing to the conversation to take the stand beside Christ at Calvary's Cross.

LECTURE AND PRESENTATION AT THE BELLEVILLE LODGE

At the regular meeting of the Belleville Lodge A.F. & A.M. 123 this evening Very Wor. Bro. J. O. Herity the guest of the evening spoke on a very appropriate subject to the day, his subject being "Fools—by One of Them". He touched on the three types of fools, the silly fool, the medium fool and the wise fool. Pointing out that if you didn't have the silly fool you wouldn't have the wise fool, the errors of the silly fool made the wise fool wise and the nations in general benefited by him. Bro. Herity recited Abraham Lincoln's version of quotation "You can fool some people all the time, you can fool all the people some time but you can't fool all the people all the time. He complimented the Lodge on their attendance, quite a number having responded to the invitation of the Wor. Master C. A. W. Thompson.

A BIRTHDAY PRESENT

Right Wor. Bro. H. J. Clapp celebrated his 79th birthday in the craft and to his surprise Rt. Wor. Bro. W. O. Adams presented him with a large birthday cake decorated with 79 candles in honor of the occasion. Bro. Adams in presenting the cake spoke on Mr. Clark's interest in the lodge. Bro. Clark had missed few meetings and is hale and is still the pillar and backbone of the lodge. Bro. Clark in speaking said that he was more deeply indebted to the lodge for the inspiration and benefit he had derived from it than it could be to him for the time and work he had given to it. Bro. Graves proposed a toast to the visiting brethren and Rt. Wor. Bro. Barlow responded.

WOMAN CLEVERLY BUILDS A TABLE AT NIGHT SCHOOL

Every Board Planed, Every Nail Driven by Mrs. Varley

SCHOOL TERM ENDS

Pupils Numbering 350 Have Shown Progress in Studies

Six hundred interested parents, relatives and friends attended the annual exhibition of work done by the three hundred and fifty pupils of the night school of classes at the High School on Thursday night, and six hundred persons were not only delighted but surprised at the wonderful result gained by the ambitious pupils by a few months' training. From eight o'clock until the hour of closing the halls of the High School were thronged by the visitors who took a most intelligent interest in all the work of the pupils.

WOMAN CAN DRIVE NAILS

Over on John Street in the wood working building a wonderful display of craftsmanship proved a centre of great interest and one of the chief attractions was a complete cosy corner, every stick and nail, every piece of which was planed, every nail driven, in fact every bit of work of which was done by the skilful hands of a woman, Mrs. Varley, who previous to her night school attendance had probably limited her carpentry and cabinet work to small house hold tasks. A tea wagon, made by Mr. Arthur Burton was just as complete and finely finished in any to be had from any high-class furniture store. The motor boat remodelled by the 1925-26 class was very interesting, also a doll's house, built on a scale of one inch to the foot by the class. Electric lamp standards, some containing one hundred and sixty pieces of wood, clothes racks, piano lamps, a desk and many other household articles completed this remarkable display.

DRESSMAKING AND MILLINERY

In the department of particular interest to the women, some smart dresses, some very dainty evening dresses, some practical house dresses and a brilliant display of millinery attracted much attention and while it was considered that these neat and attractive creations were done by the instructress, Miss Mary Orr, herself, in the aire, the results were most surprising.

BUSINESS TRAINING

The business section was very interesting and the work remarkable, showing surprising development on the part of the students. Mr. Henry was particularly proud of the advance made by his writing pupils, one of whom drove ten miles each school night to and from his writing and the copy shown by Mr. Henry was most proof of what had been accomplished. An interesting hand book had been compiled into textile business writing. The bookkeeping and arithmetic, typewriting and show card-writing all indicated a good part of the year's work and skilful training on the part of the instructors.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Every one was interested in the household science exhibition, Miss Baker's department, and nearly all the guests dropped in for a cup of tea at the buffet, where many proud mothers viewed the delicious cooking done by their children and friends. The chemistry exhibit was most interesting and the different branches explained by Mr. K. S. Hill, B.A.

The instructors at the night school were:

ONTARIO HOUSE ENDS TUESDAY 90 BILLS PASSED

Will Discuss Agricultural Inquiry Report After Easter Recess

Toronto, April 3.—Intensive application to the work of legislation failed to slow the Ontario Legislature to reach an adjournment Thursday evening. By means of a sitting which lasted through the morning, afternoon and late in the evening, the Chamber managed to complete its legislative program, but it did not succeed in staging the discussion which is had planned upon the report of the Agricultural Inquiry Committee. A recess for Easter until Tuesday was, therefore, adopted.

Thursday work of the House was most impressive from a legislative viewpoint. Almost 90 bills were given third reading and a great number of them went in the one day through the second reading, committee and third reading stage. A number of them were of purely legal importance, relating to the revision of the statutes which is in progress. Several others, however, were of considerable interest. Amongst them were the Church Union Bill, the Hoor Street Widening Bill, the bill allotting $5,000,000 to the development of Northern Ontario, and the bill authorizing the provincial loan of $40,000,000. There was also the amendments to the Hospitals and Charitable Institutions Act which enables city hospitals to enforce payment for patients received from bordering municipalities.

Some contentious legislative proposals were withdrawn from the Chamber during the course of the day. Notable amongst them was the bill of J. A. Pinard (Liberal, East Ottawa) for 10 per cent. beer; also the bill of Harold Fisher (Liberal, West Ottawa) to compel a married man to make adequate provision for his wife in his will, and the bill of Karl Homuth (Labor, South Waterloo) to make the Lemieux Act effective in Ontario.

TO MEET ON TUESDAY

With this work accomplished the Chamber adjourned until Tuesday, Hon. Dr. Jamieson paving the way for the discussion of the Agricultural Inquiry Committee report by moving a resolution expressing appreciation of the House of the work of the committee.

When it holds this discussion on Tuesday and adjourns, the Legislature will have closed the shortest session in several years. It convened on February 16th and has been assembled, accordingly, slightly in excess of seven weeks. It deserves to go down in provincial history as an O.T.A. session as this subject has been the prevalent one in the discussion and debates of the Chamber. Three legislative propositions, the Brackin amendment, the Currie Government Control Bill and the Pinard Stronger Beer Bill, have all been discussed, the first of them being voted down and the last two withdrawn after being considerably thrashed out.

SCIENTIST COMES OUT IN SUPPORT THEORY IN PSYCHIC MATTERS

Montreal, Que., April 3.—(By Canadian Press).—Complete indifference to anybody's belief in psychic matters was expressed here by Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, Ph. D, M.D., of the Boston Society for Psychic Research, Dr. Prince, however, said he had ample proof from actual facts to satisfy himself that powerful forces were in operation.

In lecturing on the subject of "The Trends and the Gains of Psychic Research," Dr. Prince dealt with hypnotism, clairvoyance, faculty development, telepathy of thought, hallucinations, dreams, crystal gazing, psychogenetic centres, mediumistic performances, and so forth. It took eighteen years of study before he reached his first conclusions regarding the undoubted verisimilitude of many of the matters, and he appealed against premade opinions and the prejudices of the ignorant and of the learned alike.

Psychic research, which he characterized as the youngest of the sciences had now established beyond a shadow of doubt certain types of phenomena, he claimed. Thus hypnotism, first seriously envisaged in the early eighties, aroused great opposition which had been brought about by charlatanry. Today, however, there was a scientist who dared doubt hypnotism. The same applied, he said, to dual personality and mental association. Not the mental association of a family thinking of how nice the boiled beef looks on the dinner table; but real mental fetishpathy of thought.

In going about his research work, Dr. Prince had always spurned the platform performances and the sentimentalities of other people's beliefs, but had invariably gone to the root of the matter for actual personal proof of the phenomena which he assured his audience that he had encountered on many occasions.

Platform performances of telepathy, he declared were always frauds, and the charlatan and the exploiter had flourished greatly at seances where the mysteries of semi-darkness, holding of hands and impressive draperies have been employed. Dr. Prince said he doubted the existence of ectoplasm, spirit photographs and plate writing.

March construction contracts reached a very high total for a month so early in the year, according to MacLean Building reports limited, $19,779,900 worth of new work was awarded, compared with $138,477,600 in February and with $13,-392,900 in March 1925. This was an increase of 46% over the previous month and 47% over the corresponding month of a year ago. The total to date, $45,-925,000, is an increase of 37% over the same period of 1925.

HUDSON-ESSEX COME COMPLETE

"AT-YOUR-DOOR" COST

It reduces the "spread" in price between producer and consumer.

It simplifies automobile prices so all may understand them immediately.

It builds confidence and good will between buyer and seller.

The a.y.d. or at-your-door system of pricing and selling motor cars performs all these functions of modern and progressive merchandising, according to an analysis made of it by J. H. Boyce, Hudson-Essex distributor for Belleville. Because of these advantages, declared Mr. Boyce, the a.y.d. plan is sure to displace the f.o.b. system and already has been warmly endorsed by Better Business Bureaus in several cities. Mr. Boyce said:

"Once upon a time only a few men could design an automobile that would run. That was the engineering era of the industry. Then with the growing popularity of the car, the great problem with factories was how to produce enough automobiles to fill the demand. That was the production era. But now, there are a considerable number of good cars and the industry is amply able to make all cars needed. We are in the merchandising era of the business, and the motor car buyer is demanding that the same progressiveness and courage which went into design and production shall now go into the selling process. He wants to see all possible economies introduced into getting the car from the factory to him.

"The a.y.d. plan fills this demand by simplifying the whole pricing system. There is no handling charge under Hudson-Essex car. There are no 'extras'. The equipment desired by motorists has been bought economically by the factory and is ready installed for the buyer. Freight and federal taxes are still separate charges—but with Hudson-Essex and several other makes the tax item has been reduced.

"Under this a.y.d. plan, therefore, all the economies and savings possible have been effected. In the manufacture of Hudson-Essex cars, our owners has the volume advantage of the biggest six-cylinder business in the world. In selling it has gone on the same basis. That is why the best Hudson-Essex cars ever manufactured are now sold on the lowest price basis this line of cars has ever known."

Indian Saints' Penance

One of the most remarkable sights presented to travellers on the world cruise, now under way, of the Canadian Pacific Liner Empress of Scotland, was the Indian fakir shown in above illustration. He is completely unbraced and is shown seated on a bed studded with four long nails whose sharp points pierce his body. He has been doing this as a penance for the past few months and will continue to do it until his vow is fulfilled. Note the extreme emaciation of his limbs and the western aspect of the face. The resemblance of the face to that of Charles Dickens was pointed out by some of the passengers on the world cruise.

CHURCH UNION BILL IS PASSED SIX NEW VOTES

Legislature on Thursday OK'd Amendments To Measure

Toronto, April 3.—Following agreement between the interested parties in the bill amending the United Church of Canada Act at the Private Bills Committee meeting of the Legislature yesterday afternoon, the measure was reported to the House later in the day and approved in principle, despite a resolution introduced by Mr. M. Macbride asking that the charter of Knox College should be given to the continuing Presbyterian Church which threatened for a time to break up the spirit of harmony that had prevailed. Col. J. A. Currie seconded the resolution but following speeches from Attorney-General Nickle, Major A. C. Lewis, sponsor of the bill and the Premier, the motion was withdrawn.

Besides the preamble and formal clauses there are only two sections to the bill. The first reads: "Section 8 of the Act is amended by adding thereto the following clause: 'No action or other proceedings questioning the validity or effect of any such vote shall be brought after March 31, 1925.'"

TO TAKE NEW VOTES

A new section 3, provides that notwithstanding anything contained in the Act of 1925 a new vote shall be taken by the following congregations: Dalhousie Mills, South Lancaster, Coun. Richmond Hill, Burlington and Maple Valley, upon a list of persons entitled to vote, to be settled by a judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario, such judge to be appointed by the Attorney-General. Notwithstanding anything done or determined heretofore, the said judge shall have exclusive power to declare who shall be entitled to vote. In the case of Burlington, a new vote shall not be taken if within 60 days from coming into force of this Act the parties concerned shall enter into an agreement whereby the United Church shall receive $13,500 with the amount paid by the United Church congregation on account of indebtedness of the church or for repairs since October 21, 1925, being approximately $1,200. The new vote shall not be taken by any of the congregations mentioned in the event of act thereof being made by the parties concerned and the terms thereto being communicated to the judge.

The "Crucifixion Beautifully Sung At Bridge Street

The Crucifixion has been done here a number of times, but one has no hesitation in saying never more beautifully nor impressively than last even ing at Bridge Street Church by an augmented choir under the direction of Mr. Hunt, the musical director of the church.

The one thing the choral numbers were very finely done, sung and rendered and alternately with the solo numbers were of the highest order of competent people. Mrs. Stobbs and Mrs. MacKinnon, soprano and contralto soloists of the Bridge Street choir, approached in this part of the country either in solo or duet, numbers very brilliant and satisfying as they always are. Mr. Jack Deacon, a student at Varsity and soloist in Knox Presbyterian Church, Toronto, who is home for the holidays took the tenor solos and pleased the large audience present with his very rare rendering and interpretation of the Stainer numbers. Mr. Deacon's voice shows marked development, a circumstance that bears out what his many friends expected for him. Master Alfred Evans in his solo was found exceedingly pleasing while solos for base were competently rendered by Mr. Fred Sprague and Mr. Stanley Rabbitt.

CONSTANT WAVING AND CURLING RUINS HAIR

Girls just must curl and wave bobbed hair to appear their prettiest. But constant curling and waving burn and dry the hair, making it lifeless and very life from the hair.

To offset these bad effects, just get a 25-cent bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug store or toilet counter and just see for yourself how quickly it revives dry, brittle, lifeless, and fading hair. "Danderine" is a dependable tonic and will do wonders for any girl's hair. It nourishes, stimulates and strengthens each single hair, bringing back that youthful gleam, glint and vigorous luxuriance. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears. "Danderine" is pleasant and easy to use.

The Prince of Wales' Community Club held one of their first concerts since the quarantine, on Thursday evening, April 1st, under the management of Vice-Presidents, Mrs. Tom Ramsay, Miss Hilda Turner, Mr. P. INTOLERANCE

Sir Oliver Lodge, whose name is prominent in the news just now because of his invention for taking the "shouts" out of radio reception, is getting additional publicity of another kind. He is being repudiated by the Royal society—that very distinguished body of scientists which in the shades in its membership the greatest thinkers and the most learned professors of the British nation. Sir Oliver tells the facts himself in a letter he has contributed to a scientific journal. It is not that fellow-members of the society question his technical qualifications, for they are undoubted and recognized by all. His contributions to physics are acknowledged with great respect and gratitude; but the scientists are unable to accept his excursions into the realms of the spiritual and the occult. It seems Sir Oliver must either abandon these speculations or withdraw himself from the august society of gentlemen who, in materialistic mood, are engaged in precisely the same research as himself. It is rather disconcerting for the ordinary man in the street to discover that these scientific investigators, with all their learning and wisdom, are in many more blatant than other people when it comes to keeping an open mind on questions not immediately connected with their daily job. It is naturally disturbing to have this profitable and highly scoring forward with his theories of spirit communication, for he cannot be pooh-poohed as an ignorant charlatan and his sincerity is beyond question. The scientists, evidently, are just not able to see any one else.

Sir Oliver Lodge, talking what he conceives to be the truth about everything else, will probably take the hint and resign from the Royal society, but that will not prevent him from continuing his investigations and proving the results of his labors to the world. He must be a bit strong, deluded in his beliefs and imposed upon by clever fakers, but the action of the Royal society does not prove it. More discredit is brought upon the society than upon Sir Oliver Lodge. What is scientific progress, after all, but the continual pushing forward into the unknown, the challenging of accepted theories, the new and startling inspiration, followed by the demonstration of its truth, if it be true? And if it be false, it will surely perish before it has got very far. "A lie cannot endure." The best way to expose the error of any particular line of thought or action, honestly embarked upon, is to increase the number of investigators, not to bank it up as something absurd merely because it transcends the existing bounds of intelligence. The action of the scientists in this instance would seem to be the very opposite of scientific.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

The Session of the Ontario Legislature which will close on Tuesday, after consideration of the Agricultural Committee's report but which virtually ended the session on Thursday last after giving its o.k. to some thing like ninety bills, will go down in history as remarkable for a number of things. Perhaps chief of the interesting subjects before it was the Ontario Temperance Act. Short ly after the session opened the province was intrigued by the announcement that a number of gentlemen members of the House proposed to test the most talked of measure on the statutes with proposals for strong er beer and for out-and-out Government control and other proposals and ideas and suggestions. These gentlemen were not confined to one side of the House politically and as the result finally showed the old line parties were not absolutely solidly for or against the O.T.Act but the preponderance of the vote however was behind Premier Ferguson and the wise counsel was followed in the matter. His declaration that there were to be no more referenda or plebiscites but that before another election the Government's policy would be announced and if he found indications of any great need of change in the regulations of the distribution of liquor he would provide then, but not till then, for that change and this satisfied all reasonably minded members, who happily are in the vast majority in the house and it satisfied the country also.

The Session also has been notable for the investigation of the charges of alleged illegal dealings with the Government while a member of the Cabinet, against the Hon. James Lyons, former Minister of Lands and Forests.

Mr. Lyons resigned and the Public Accounts committee went very thoroughly into the whole matter. Messrs. Sinclair and Raney, using combined intelligence and the full force of their combined powers to insinuate where they could not detect, and anything wrong found themselves up against nothing but fair and square dealings by Mr. Lyons whose firm was shown by solicitors had made less money after he became a Minister than before. Mr. Lyons emerges spotless as he was always been and his opponents have only served to make themselves and their charges ridiculous before the public.

And the Government if anything, is stronger than before the Session commenced. It should have a great many years of useful service before it, for this great province.

Wash Poison From The Liver

Keeps Kidneys, Head, Bowels and Bladder Clean.

Every ounce of food and drink taken in the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste and poison must be carried out of the body. The blood carries these poisons to all parts of the body attacking the weakest organ first. It may be the stomach, bladder, liver, kidneys, etc., causing all sort of aches or pains, as headaches, indigestion, foul breath, kidney pain, rheumatism, constipation, etc. Start today to clean, sweeten and refresh your whole system just like it was in days of childhood by taking one Tasti Cathomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime. The secret of the success of these tablets is because Calomel is the only drug that acts upon the liver, no calts nor griddits are needed, does not nauseate or upset stomach. Get a few Tasti Calomel tablets from McKeown's Drug Store, Belleville, and they will sure make you feel 100% better.

FOREST WEEK

By royal proclamation the week of April 19-24 has been designated Save-the-Forest week for the Dominion. The protection and perpetuation of the forests are described as being "vital to the continued industrial welfare and national strength of Canada and to the health, comfort and prosperity of our people." That is a truth which is not properly realized by the majority of citizens. Every individual bears a responsibility in this matter and all are affected by the tremendous losses resulting annually from destructive forest fires. It is only with "the full sympathy, assistance and active support of all the people, practically expressed by increased individual care and fire in the woods, and an insistent demand for proper precaution against fire on the part of all workers or travelers in or adjacent to the forest," that these ruinous holocausts can be held in check. It is recognized that it is, in the majority of cases, only through ignorance that offenses are committed, but the consequences are none the less deplorable. No one in his right sense would deliberately start a forest fire, or wilfully do anything which might lead to a conflagration. The object of the official Save-the-Forest week is to educate the public to the seriousness of the situation and to the responsibility of the citizen in the matter. The movement is, moreover continent-wide.

NEW BLOOD NEEDED IN THE SPRING TIME

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a Blood Improving, Health-Restoring Tonic

Every man, woman and child needs new, rich, red blood at this time of the year. That is a scientific fact. Doctors know it. The blood grows thin and poor in the winter; there is not enough of it, and spring shows the effect. Tube bodies and are how many people are pale and sallow at this time of the year. They complain of being easily tired, that's appetite is poor and they are often troubled with bad headaches. That is Mother Nature urging them to improve their blood supply; but often their diseases are weakened so that they cannot turn food into blood without help. Here is where modern medical science comes to the rescue. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have a direct action on the blood and enable you to get full use of the blood-making elements in your meals. You soon feel the effect—your appetite improves, your nerves are steadier, color returns to the cheeks and lips, you have new vim and energy and can work with less fatigue.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who are in what is known as a run-down condition of health is proved by the experience of Mrs. Alex. McKenzie, Schumacher, Ont., who says:—"I was in a completely run-down condition. Nervousness, sleeplessness, and loss of vitality were all taking their toll. I felt miserable all the time and began to fear that my case was hopeless, as I had taken a number of remedies with little or no relief. I had often read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and finally decided to try them. I got a half dozen boxes, and by the time I had taken about half of them, there was no doubt that as fast found the weakness I needed to restore my health. I continued the use of the pills, gaining strength day by day, until I was soon enjoying good health and happiness. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to every man, woman and child who is in a run-down condition, feeling sure that the pills will soon restore them to health and strength."

Whether you are seriously ill or merely feel easily tired and out-of-sorts, you should try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring. They are sold by medicine dealers everywhere, or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MINISTERS VIEW KEENEST SORROW IN THIS WORLD

Rev. Dr. Aikens In Lecture Tells of His Work In Canada

Dr. J. W. Aiken's lecture on "Church Pews and People Who Sit in Them" drew a fair-sized audience to Bridge Street Church auditorium, on Thursday night. His wide and varied experience as a minister of the gospel, having travelled from coast to coast, fits him as a rare personage to deal with such a subject.

Dr. Aikens has preached to blacks and whites, Indians and convicts, rich and poor alike, and these trips have taken him into some of the most uttermost regions of the Dominion.

"The greatest crimes committed are divided between the idle rich and the idle poor," said the pastor "and not by the workers," the average man."

"The child is the most beautiful being we have, pure and fresh and unadulterated when it comes into this world."

Dr. Aikens cited several clever illustrations of truths, he has encountered, where good was being done without the knowledge of the doer.

The minister has access to people's homes, their hearts, secrets and troubles, in the highest and purest joys and their deepest sorrows. Kipling once said that the soldier saw more sorrow in the world than any other human, but later changed his opinion and selected the minister as the individual sharing the most. The parson's wife was given an honored place by Dr. Aikens. He is the who works untiringly, has no stationary home and helps to bear the burdens and is in all truth a martyr to the cause of Christ. Every church must work together in a spirit of hospitality, new members shown a warm reception on their advent into God's House;

"The Minister cannot drag people to the church if a certain element are driving them away," said Dr. Aikens. "The Divine Doctor spent some time among the prisoners at Stoney Mountain, the penitentiary near Winnipeg. His ministrations there, taught him that human nature, no matter how low it sinks, is always redeemable for the service of God. The great majority of convicts never knew a mother's love, religious training, or home, and in reality it is no fault of theirs that they sink to the depths. The world does not give convicts a chance when they emerge from confinement and public sentiment must change as these men are oftentimes desirous of making good and beginning life anew.

"The higher a form of life may be, when it sinks to corruption, goes the deepest.

Dr. Aikens is a very interesting speaker, rich in experience and anecdotes and has drawn large audiences during his stay in this city.

DR. John. W. S. McCullough M.D., D.P.H. Chief Officer of Health for Province of Ontario has written the following letter to the Manager of the Citizen's Dairy Limited, Belleville, which is of vital interest to every citizen;

Department of Health
Spadina House, Toronto, Feb. 8, 1926

Sir,—

In answer to your enquiry of the 6th instant regarding the use of pasteurized milk, I beg to say:

(1) That the use of RAW MILK IS DANGEROUS TO THE HEALTH OF THE USERS for the reason that it may and often does spread diseases such as TUBERCULOSIS, SCARLET FEVER, DIPHTHERIA, SEPTIC SORE THROAT and SUMMER COMPLAINT OF CHILDREN.

(2) That where pasteurized milk is universally used the incidence of these diseases is greatly lessened. This is particularly true of the infant diarrhoea so prevalent among users of raw milk.

(3) Milk from a tuberculin tested herd, if the herd is properly and frequently enough tested, affords protection against tuberculosis only, and not against the other diseases mentioned.

(4) That considering the increased safety in the use of pasteurized milk the slight additional cost is trivial. Besides, pure milk is the cheapest and best food coming into the home.

(5) THAT PERSONALLY, I WOULD NOT USE NOR ALLOW MY OWN CHILDREN TO USE, RAW MILK.

Recently the Health Department of the City of New York concluded a three-years' research into the value of pasteurization in the sterilization of disease in milk. In 5374 tests made, tuberculosis, typhoid, paratyphoid, septic sore throat and other germs were used, typhoid germs being grown in milk until it contained two millions of bacilli per drop and tubercle bacilli until they existed in samples at the rate of 30 millions to the teaspoonful. The contaminated milk specimens were then pasteurized in accordance with the rules of the New York Health Department and all the germs were found to have been killed.

I enclose herewith the Infant Mortality rates, 1924, of Belleville and a number of other cities similar in size. From this you will see that YOURS is MUCH THE WORST.

I regret that I have no other literature on pasteurized milk, but perhaps what I have given you here will be useful.

Yours truly,
W. S. McCULLOUGH,
Chief Officer of Health.

AUSTRALIA PLAN LIKE NOVA SCOTIA

One State There Trying to Abolish Upper Legislative Body

REMARKABLE UPSET

Defection of Several Labor Members Blow to Party

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 1 (By the Australian Correspondent of the Canadian Press).—Australia, like politics the world over, is not, as a rule, of very great interest to the rest of the world; but when a State government sets out to do what the whole constitution is an endeavor to abolish a legislative body, the matter at once takes on an Empire significance and is looked under a direct parallel in what is happening in Nova Scotia.

X X X

The position in the State of New South Wales is interesting. There is a Labor Government in power, with a majority of seats in the lower House—the Legislative Assembly. In the upper House—the Legislative Council—which is a nominee, and not an elected Chamber, opposition is in power.

Appointments to this House are in the hands of the Government of the day, and adherence to the Governor of the State. The State premier, J. T. Lang, recently appointed 22 names to the Governor for nomination to the Council and, after considerable negotiation and discussion, the appointments were made.

It was stated at the time that the Governor exacted a promise from the Premier that the appointees would not be used to abolish the upper House—which can only be done by a vote of that House.

X X X

However, as soon as they had been sworn in as members, the Premier announced his intention of abolishing the Legislative Council and its 88 members. Every Labor man had, when appointed, signed a pledge to vote for the extinction of the Chamber, so soon as a bill for that purpose was brought down. A section part of the Labor Party's platform is that the upper House should be abolished, but they also promised, as a substitution, the "initiative, referendum and recall," which was not advanced in this instance.

Last night the measure by which the Council was called upon to commit political hari-kari was brought before the Council, in the form of a request by the Government's spokesman, A. C. Willis, for "leave to introduce" the measure.

Without any preliminary argument the House at once proceeded to a division and rejected the proposal by 47 votes to 41.

X X X

This remarkable defeat was brought about by the defection of several Labor members, who voted against the Government and against their pledges. Among them were even some of the 25 appointed and pledged only a few months go.

The reasons for their defection have not yet been given. No pay is attached to the office, but there is the title of "Honorable" and a gold pass entitling members to travel free on all government railways and tramways for life. There is also a comfortable club room and a social invitations to many functions and a complacency and sense of importance attached to the job. Many of the members find it difficult to give up all this.

X X X

Premier Lang, however, is insistent, and will now submit new names to the Governor for appointment to the Council in a further effort to induce the House to abolish itself.

In the State of Queensland, the Legislative Council abolished itself, about four years ago at the instance of the Labor government, which would suffer no interference with or revision of its measures advanced in the Lower House.

The total coal production of Alberta inches during 1925, amounted to 6,883,204 tons, an increase of 679,481 tons over the preceding year. The figures were as follows: Domestic coal, 3,156,459 tons; subbituminous, 881,835; bituminous, 2,845,200.

A corps of young guides who will show visiting skiers the best locations, hills and runs for the sport was formed at Mont Ballaud, Quebec, in the Laurentian Mountains recently. About twenty young fellows were enrolled. For the summer a corps of guides will probably be formed to show visitors the best fishing, bathing and boating locations.

Twenty-three seconds was clipped off the Canadian record for women's indoor 220 yards swim at the Crystal Gardens, Victoria, B.C., when Marie-Chen Wesslaus, famous Hawaiian mermaid, Olympic champion and holder of 50 yard and 100 meter world records, met Audrey Griffin, well-known Canadian girl swimmer of Vancouver. The time was 2.23 2-5.

The Chateau Frontenac at Quebec will have been reconstructed and the entire building of 120 rooms will have been rendered fire-proof by June 1st, according to information from head offices of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Montreal. The burnt part of the Chateau has been rebuilt up to the fourth floor while the steel for the roof is in process of erection.

Major F. J. Ney, executive secretary of the Canadian Council of Education, arrived in Halifax on board the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm after a tour of Palestine, Cyprus and Egypt where he held foundations for the organization of the Mediterranean branch of the Overseas League. Sir Frederick Loyd, High Commissioner for Egypt and Field Marshall Lord Plumer, Commissioner in Palestine, have both consented to become honorary vice-presidents of the League.

When Lord and Lady Allenby were in Vancouver recently, a group of women whose husbands and sweethearts had been cared for by Lady Allenby during the war days in Cairo, thanked her "Lady of Mercy" for her care and attention. These husbands and sweethearts are now happily settled in First Aid efficiency camps of British Columbia and have banded in a unique organization known as the Jaffa Club, every member having passed through the Jaffa Gate into Jerusalem.

According to figures for 1925 the growth of interest in First Aid efficiency is attested by the fact that 1,668 men and women were successfully examined on the whole Canadian Pacific system during the year. In all, approximately 25,000 Canadian Pacific Railway employees are now holders of First Aid certificates, while a large proportion have vouchers, medallions or labels indicating that they are far above the certificate standard, as were as that test of knowledge is.

R. E. Larmour, general freight agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has announced that westbound lake and rail freight from eastern points will be accepted for shipment on the Great Lakes, subject to delay by reason of ice conditions, to Fort William and Port McNicoll. The outlook for package freight, both east and west bound, is considered to be as good as last year when returns from this source were about equal to those from the carriage of grain.

ANOTHER MANSION BURNS

Scotland Yard to Get Reports on All Such Fires

LONDON, April 3.—The reported fire today at Closes Hall, near Clitheroe, the residence of Captain B. Hesketh, master of the Pendle Forest Hunt, came an announcement that Scotland Yard had made arrangements for the details of all fires at country mansions to be sent in with a view to discovering if an incendiary is responsible.

Today's fire was the thirteenth in four months to ravage country mansions. Owing to the efforts of servants and other employees on the estate it was extinguished, before much damage was done. Closes Hall is a large Georgian house built about a century ago.

LORD SOMERS GETS HIGH POST

Formerly Farmer Near Pickering, Ont., and Joined the Masons

TORONTO, April 1.—(By Canadian Press).—Lord Somers' appointment as Governor of Victoria, Australia, in succession to the Earl of Stradbroke, which was recently announced from London, is of special interest to the people of Pickering, Ont., as Lord Somers was engaged in farming operations about two miles from Pickering village in 1912 on the farm owned by his brother-in-law, George Herbert Hyde Villiers, who in 1911 succeeded to his father's title of the Earl of Clarendon. Lord Somers came to Ontario to learn farming on his brother-an-law's farm, and he did real work as an agriculturist.

Lord Somers joined the Masonic Lodge at Pickering and for a while was the lodge organist. He accompanied the lodge on a number of fraternal visits to neighboring centres, and was known as Brother Lord Somers. He was very democratic and was popular with the villagers. He was a regular attendant at the Church of England in Pickering and was appointed a sidesman of the church.

It is said that Lord Somers ditched and fenced the 207 acres of his brother-in-law's farm in the spring of 1912 and not only made a good job of it, but appeared to enjoy the work.

Lord Somers, in 1921, married Miss Daisy Finsh Meeking, daughter of the late Captain Bertram Meeking. They have a daughter Violet Elizabeth Virginia, who is three years old.

Lord Somers, who is now in his thirty-ninth year, was a page at the coronation of King Edward and since November, 1924, has been a bond-in-waiting to the King. He was a lieutenant-colonel of First Life Guards and during the war he was attached to the Tanks Corps, where he served with distinction, winning the Military Cross and the Distinguished Service Order.

The Earl of Clarendon is comptroller-secretary of state for dominion affairs in the Baldwin Government. He married Adeline Nerena Iahlee Cocks, sister of Lord Somers, in 1905.

"A noble calling" said the judge at Clerkenwell County Court when a witness was said to be a street sweeper.

BOBBED HEADS BARRED FROM PETERS FILM

A picture play without a bobbed head in it!

It is "The Storm Breaker", Universal-Jewel production now being screened at the Belle Theatre and starring House Peters. "The Storm Breaker" is the screen version of Harold Bindloss' dramatic story of the sea and its followers. It was directed by Edward Sloman and for a time Sloman thought that he might have to give up the picture the change the feminine characters in the story.

Sloman's difficulty arose out of the prevalent fashion in which women wear their hair—namely, bobbed. There are but three feminine characters in "The Storm Breaker", none of which permit-

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT GRIFFINS

In "The Gold Rush" called Charlie Chaplin's greatest comedy and coming next week to Griffins under a United Artists Corporation release, the world's most famous comedian is seen as a pathetic tradefoot struggling alone with hundreds of others who are in search of gold in the Klondike.

Poetic pathos and whimsical comedy are cleverly blended in this film. There is one scene in which Charlie, a lonely-gold bit of humanity finds a sympathetic and sweetheart—a girl in a dance hall. She dances with the little tramp and he leans over her, shoulder into the eyes of his rival, a wealthy miner.

There is Jim McKay, a giant as large as an ox. McKay is enraged and Charlie trembles as the big man menaces him. The little man thinks after all that death is better than the loss of the queen of the dance hall.

To have the right types in Truckee, in Northern California, where many of the picture scenes were produced Chaplin took out a special trainload of hoboes with weather-stained countenances and tattered clothes.

In several sequences it seems as children have of regard humanity that is crossing the Chilkoot Pass.

ted bobbed hair. Judith Nyte and Elspeth Strong were simple women living out their lives in a rough fishing island off the coast of Nova Scotia. They had never heard of bobbed hair but like their women folk who had gone before them, wore it long. Lynette De Jon had been re-red in the quiet seclusion of her father's old books and the marshland and was as quiet and harmless as the fisher books. She had never heard of a flapper.

Sloman's task was no easy one. For five weeks before production began, Hollywood's beauties paused before the director. For all their long hair, neither up to the standard he required, they seemed to look in acting ability while those who could act had the bobbed hair of their hair in the beauty parlor. True, wigs could have been used, but Sloman wanted realism. Finally there just a week before production was to start the director was rewarded. He found Nina Romano, in private life Mrs. Jose Tellegen, Ruth Clifford and Gertrude Claire. Not only was their hair not bobbed, but in other physical respects they filled the bill and a half for each act. That is how Miss Romano came to play Judith Nyte, Miss Clifford, Lynette Dolon and Miss Claire, Elspeth Strong.

If House Peters has been given a great supporting cast. In fact in the way he sees mentioned, it contains Ray Hallor, Jere Austin, Emmett King, Lionel Belmore, Lon Poff, Ed. Brown, Mark Fenton and William J. Colvin.

ALEMITE, JUNIORS WINNING TEAMS IN INDOOR LOOP

B.H.S. and Christ Church Will Both Yet Be Heard From

Ball Basketball entertainment for a goodly number of fans at the Armouries last night. The games are interesting and hard fought and are worthy of a larger patronage. Huddled in excellent style and run off in snappy fashion they are a rare treat.

B. H. S. 19 — ALEMITE 17

The curtain-raiser introduced the Alemites and the High School teams with the fabulous coming out on the long end of the score. It developed into a slug-fest and the students were not so handy with the willow, coupled with this the students committed several costly errors and were especially erratic in the opening stages but finally settled away and threw a scare into the Alemites when they scored a quartette of counters in the seventh frame. Johnny Kerr pitched pretty ball for the winners and was accorded fair support. Monty Knox on the receiving end played, long of ball. Faulkner was given ragged support at times, his team-mates tendency to throw the ball to all corners of the diamond and allowed several runs to cross the plate, which, with a little more spiritual could have been easy outs. Ket cheson's work in the outfield featured this game. Twig Woodley and Van Devoorde acted as umpires in a satisfactory manner.

JUNIORS 12 — CHRIST CHURCH 7

The second game was the bitter of the two. Ken Colling's Juniors had no easy task with the newly-formed Christ Church team, with a little practice the latter will count some trouble in the loop. They possess several boys who are handy with the willow and gave the veteran "Cap" Smith some anxious moments.

The Juniors trotted out a well-balanced nine and Ken Colling's hopes are walking through the group. Smith and Latchford as battery-mates work well together.

In the second frame the Juniors got to Knott for an avalanche of hits and parlied six runs over which gave them a considerable advantage. Tuesday's spear of a bout line was one of the high

STANLEY TROPHY IS MAROON'S AIM IN TILT TONIGHT

Montreal, April 3.—Montreal Maroons and the Victoria Cougars will meet in the third and final tilt expected to tie the last Stanley Cup match at the Forum tonight, the contest to be waged under eastern rules. Victors in the first two games by three-goal margins, shut outs each time, the Maroons are favored to clinch in title of world's professional hockey championships in the tussle tonight, the most that the local fans conceede Vickies in the way of a chance for a win being a break at the start—a couple of goals which may give them an incentive to battle through in front.

But the westerners' chances are not highly regarded. Despite the fact that the Montrealers are winding up a campaign which has kept the team in three games a week for the past five weeks—a tremendous strain on a hockey club—they are big favorites to clinch the title in the third game and to do something not often accomplished, win the Stanley Cup in three straight contests.

WOMEN BOWLERS SHOW RARE SKILL ONE GAME OF 815

The Lucky 7 and the Quisties played their final game in the C.N.R. Ladies' League at the Recreation Alleys Thursday, the Lucky 7 winning the three points. In the second game the Lucky 7 rolled an 815 score which is the highest for this league. Mrs. Dut for the winners was high bowler with 512 and Mrs. Hallam was high for the Quisties.

In the Ladies' League the High School won four points from the Claco, Faulkner and Lancaster rolling the highest scores.

In the Industrial League the Claco and the Carthage broke even, each team winning two points. Johns and Vera were the two highest bowlers.

In the C.N.R. League the Road Dept. won two points from the Car Dept. Hoey and Gartner rolled the highest scores for their teams.

FRIDAY'S GAMES

Two Section Ladies' League games were on the card at the Recreation Alleys Friday night. In the first game the Orchids won all four points from the Poppies, the first game being the only one that was close, the Poppies losing this game by 31 pins. In the second they lost out by 102 pins and by 137 in the third. Miss Gorer for the Orchids and Mrs. Domenico for the Poppies were high bowlers for their respective teams.

In the second game the teams had a merry old battle, the Breezes winning the first game by 2 pins, but lost the second by 250 pins to the Rombiers. In the third game the Breezes won out but lost out on the total, each team rolling 2 strings. Miss H. Bland and Mrs. Orne were the two highest bowlers.

Sport Notes

The Ottawa Journal blooms forth with the announcement that "Dick" Dawson is the prime mover in a scheme to form an "outlaw" baseball league with Ottawa, Peterboro, Brockville and Kingston comprising the loop. But why leave Belleville out in the cold? The Central Ontario League has been a flourishing organization for some years and any efforts to disrupt it would no doubt result in a failure.

The usual gossip regarding these University stars fighting place on graduation is going the rounds. Several teams are already bargaining for the services of Harry Batstone, the sorrel-topped half-back from the erstwhile Queen's team. London and Montreal are both in the field for "Red" and the authorities at the college say he will remain there another year. When all's said and done he will probably return to his old team-mates, Toronto Argos.

The battered and historic Allan Cup has once again found a resting place at the head of the lakes, the home of the Fort Arthur team. The Westerners were successful in their efforts to retain the ancient and time-worn trophy, emblematic of the Senior championship of the Dominion. It was only after a series of stubborn battles that the Westerners emerged victorious. Varsity have been heralded as whirlwind finishers but the Forts overshadowed the students' brilliant work by a demonstration of sheer gameness under adverse conditions. Danny Cox—substitute forward carved his name in bright red letters and his name will go down in history as the "hero of the series." "Cy" will be considerably weakened by the loss of four players, namely, Hudson, Sullivan, Flaxton and Portar. Dame rumor has it that a quartette of the champions will be found in the ranks of the salaried hockeyists. Plans are already under way for the erection of the new artificial rink where the University teams will pastime in 1927.

Oak Hall

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

But she put the thought from her almost fiercely. Who was she that she should listen, even for a moment, to such an avowal. She, poor and of no rank or position, a governess and dependent, to be loved by, and love, a nobleman of such rank and place as the great Marquis of Scarborough!

She cried laughed—a harsh, hysterical laugh—at the idea. And yet—and yet—the bared her arm and looked at the red mark, the impression of his fingers, and as she looked a dreamy feeling stole over her, and scarcely knowing what she did she bent her head and touched the red marks with her lips.

After that she lost the power of thought, and her mind drifted helplessly on a sea of doubt and confusion. Worn out mentally and physically—age, and spiritually—she sank back and fell asleep.

She was awakened by the sound of speaking at her door, a knock distinct and imperative, but yet somewhat subdued—the rose, thinking it was the night, but she was it was little more than dawn, and listening with her head resumed to her head, which seemed giddy and bewildered still, could hear no sounds of life in the house.

The knocking came again, and she went to the door and asked who it was.

"It is I," came the answer in Lady Ruth's voice. "Let me in, please; I wish to speak to you."

Constance hesitated a moment to collect herself, then opened the door.

Lady Ruth entered and turned the key, then confronted Constance and fixed her sharp eyes upon her. She was well dressed, but looked as if she had either not been to bed or had spent a sleepless night. Her face was pale to the lips and there were dark marks under her eyes, which glittered with suppressed passion.

Poems Old And New

THE WAKENER

(By Arthur Guiterman)

Though the March wind blares and the streams are mute,

And he shapes a pipe of an alder-shoot,

Oh, it's pipe, pipe, pipe; and it's peep, peep, peep!

And it's toot, toot, toot; and it's trill, trill, trill;

And the tree-sap runs, and the bare boughs thrill,

And the crocus blooms, and the daffodil.

And the sun grows warm, and the brown bees hum,

And the buds will blow on the pear and plum,

And the birds will flock, and the Spring will come.

—In Youth's Companion.

THE TWO UNTAMED

You may conquer the plain with plough and drain,
And the forest with axe and saw,
You may pierce the hills with powder-drills
And shatter the mountain's awe,
But there are two you will not subdue,
Though you curb however you can,
They will brave the test of your worst and best—
The sea and the heart of man.

The desert may yield as a watered field,
And the wind may grind your brain,
The rivers might may be yoked in light
Or tug at a factory chain.
But muscle nor mind those two can bind
By cunningest plot or plan,
They shall both have free play to the Judgment Day—
The sea and the heart of man.

You may note their deeds and guess at the creeds
That govern their ebb and flow,
There are tales to tell why their passions swell,
But the secret you never will know.
Will willing or loath, you must love them both,
Though Heaven alone may span,
And fathom the breast of their deep unrest—
The sea and the heart of man.

—Charles Wharton Stork in the "Forum".

AN EASTER PRAYER

And every tulip is a cup
Filled with the wine of Thy great love,
Let me not fear the darkness now,
Since Life and Light break through Thy tomb;
Teach me that doubts no more oppress,
No more consume.

Show me that Thou art April Lord,
And Thou the flowers and the grass,
Then, when awake the soft Spring winds,
I'll hear Thee pass!

—Charles Hanson Towne

"Earth wakes her sing-birds,
Puts on her flowers,
Leads out her lambkins,
Builds up her bowers.
This is man's appoint day—
Christ's day and ours".

—Rossetti.

The Countess Cathcart

As the Countess of Cathcart has been so much in the public eye, it is right that the "dear public" hear the whole story. Hector Charles-worth, whose recent publication "Candid Chronicles" has been receiving such flattering attention, is a Canadian of whom we are justly proud. He was in New York recently and unearthed the following story for the Saturday Night of Toronto. It is worth re-pitching if only to show to what length yellow journalism will go to gain publicity:

Twenty blocks or more uptown, the names of two women were on everyone's lips; the young prima donna, Marion Talley, a dainty and wholesome Missouri lass, of whom I shall write anon; and a less whole some being, Countess Cathcart, nick named "The Countess Cathartic" She was already drifting from the front pages of the newspapers; but was holding her own as more than a nine days wonder. Those who have had most to do with the way-ward English girl frankly vote her a nuisance; most of all to the British authorities who, as a matter of duty, have had to protect her interests. I have the best of authority for saying that her case was at the outset as fake, to which she herself was a party. She came to America not only to produce her play "Ashes" but to write a series of articles for the Hearst syndicate on social problems. Her free-love experiences apparently had elevated her to a position of an authority on such matters. It occurred to her new employers that some extra publicity might be obtained for their fair contributor. If she were detained by the immigration authorities as an undesirable, The Countess could have come into the United States without more than formal questioning. If the Hearst Syndicate had not been at pains to notify the administration of her past with a view to publicity. It was assumed that the detention would be brief, and that she would in a day or two drive to her hotel amid the acclaim of her admiring sisterhood. This was taken for granted because neither in Great Britain, nor Canada, is adultery a criminal offence. It is the custom of the promoters of the fake a curious legal kink and—

South Africa, where the offences are classed as criminal conviction, is the only part of the British Empire which still keeps on its statute books a law against adultery. It is a relic of the old Dutch regime that has never been repealed. Therefore an episode designed only to create news and sell papers in the United States suddenly became a question of international law; and the basic problem was whether the Dutch statute, based on the earlier Roman law, was still valid. Some years ago the ex-Empress Eugenie, Comtesse de Villiers, made a decision declaring it obsolete, on the ground that though there had been hundreds of divorce cases in South Africa in which the offence was proven, criminal prosecution had never ensued. For the first time in its history, American judges have been asked to pass upon the validity of a South African legal finding.

The brunt of these complications fell on the British authorities in the United States, who were obliged to maintain the interests of the Countess as a British subject; and her case, started as a stroke of yellow journalism, has taken up a good deal of the time of the Consulate at New York. When bail was obtained for her, she used it to go to a party given in her honor by Earl Carroll, in which a nude young woman took a bath in what was alleged to be champagne, but possibly ginger ale; and thus further prejudiced the Countess' case. That the nerves of British officials were exacerbated over the conduct of this "ward" of the Empire is to put it mildly. And the matters were made worse by the fact that in the course of duty they were obliged to actually read her play "Ashes"—the last straw! According to what I heard from those who have seen the manuscript nothing more fearful and wonderful has been witnessed since Theda Bara's drama, "The Purple Flame." It is said to excel the Countess' most "The Woman Tempted", in vulgar stupidity. But "The Countess Cathartic" has had her day of limelit glory; for a brief span the heroine of all the sympathetic women and champions of liberty in the United States and Great Britain.

"There is no Death! What seems so is transition:
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian, Whose portal we call—Death!"

—Longfellow.

Rise, heart; thy Lord is risen. Sing
His praise without delays,
Who takes thee by the hand, that then likewise
With Him may rise:
That, as His death calcined thee to dust,
His life may make thee gold, and much more, just.

THIS CHURCH LACKED SENSE OF HUMOR

Not long ago fixed bayonets were carried in procession before Mass in an English church. After the procession the congregation sang:—

"Sufficient is Thine Arm alone,
And our defence is sure".

"AMERICAN WOMEN live too soft lives' says Madame Shumann-Heink". When a baby comes in this country, hospital bills and nurses salaries make the event a catastrophe. In the old country, maternity is regarded as a natural phenomenon and not a cataclysm. The cost of babies is not prohibitive there."

SIR OLIVER LODGE SAYS;

"It is the deadly monotony of the ordinary life of the multitude that constitutes a civic, a national danger The deadly monotony quash be broken, daily life must be made more interesting, work more joyous, human nature must be given a fair chance of equable development. To the nation which first realizes the magnitude of the opportunity offered by earth-existence, will belong, not by military conquest but by divine right, the supremacy of the future and the gratitude of the human race."

This great scientist has just completed an invention which is said to eliminate static. The mechanism of this device is said to be very delicate, and it is not known yet whether it can be attached to the ordinary radio sets, but if so, he will have earned the "gratitude of the human race" at least of the radio fans.

ARE YOU A SLAVE ?

There is a woman I know who all her life has been a slave to her housework.((Not from necessity either). There are certain tasks to be done on certain days, and done they are. Even if she is feeling ill, she cannot depart from her own hard and-fast rules. It never occurs to her that the washing or ironing or cleaning or baking could be done another day; he has made a fetish of her household work and slaves far harder than anyone I ever knew.

Now, who is the better or happier for this slavery? Not her visitors, for she exhausts herself cleaning her already spotless house in preparation for them and she is too tired to entertain or be entertained. Not her family either, for when an outing is suggested, she rushes around doing all sorts of things, and she hasn't much energy left to enjoy herself when she does go out. In short she is a slave to her housework.

But let me tell you of another woman I know. Her house is not immaculate at all times. Sometimes there is dust—sometimes the washing and ironing is done towards the end of the week! Sometimes she buys a "cake an' things" because on baking-day her husband has suggested an outing, or the children want her to go pussy-willowing or fishing Her husband doesn't give a brass farthing whether the silver is cleaned today or tomorrow, but he DOES like his wife to know something of the current events, and he likes her discuss it with her. So this friend to read what he reads so that he can of mine takes time to read and the household gods get neglected for an hour or two! In short, she does not make a fetish of routine in her work.

Ask any man in which household he would rather live!

Donald had been warned about his health and a too great fondness for the bottle. "No more whisky," the doctor said with solemnity, and Donald reached the door of the room "in a brown study". Happy Though Married

In the course of an article in "The World Today" on "Feet and Marriage," Dr. Harold Deutsch writes:—

"Women—and incredibly enough men—have certain faults of thought and action, rare and precious to them, their own lambs. 'He' whistles about the house, we will say, or coughs in the bathroom in an offensive baritone in the morning. Or 'he' stirs his teacup with annoeeamay violence, or stares for hours at a book with a pipe. These are maddening activities without a doubt; but they are not, in their naked loathsomeness, entirely inconsistent with the assumption that he loves you. He has probably believed in his way at all times, and only your special privileges now expose him thus before you. Bear gently, in your delicacy, with these ewe lambs of the male and as you are strong and essential feature is to convert it, on most occasions, into a fit subject for merriment. When all is said and done, the role of a man in marriage is so much easier than a woman's that he should at all times receive the obligations which his privileges involve. For her, marriage means a new world, where she must grapple, with untnvored powers with the problems of a house, and servants, and a man. Add to this the volcanic experience of her whole sexual life, and you have a task which might well appal the stoutest masculine heart. If you are a man then, remember always that it is you who have brought to this new world of change and readjustment that brave little adventurer you have married and if, by the greatest self-sacrifice, you can remove one single thorn along her path it should be your pleasure and your privilege to do so."

HON. MR. LYONS WAS VINDICATED BY LEGISLATURE

"Beyond Reproach" is Finding of Public Accounts Committee

Toronto—(by Mail)—By a vote of 22 to 8, the Public Accounts Committee of the Ontario Legislature characterized Hon. James Lyons in its final report on Wednesday as having been "beyond reproach" in his Crown Mastery. The clearance was made unequivocal and emphatic as a result of the attempt of Hon. W. E. Raney, K.C., leader of the Provincial Opposition to secure endorsation instead for a finding which would give a most unsatisfactory impression of the ex-Minister's dealings.

The acquittal of Hon. Mr. Lyons was the feature of the report which the committee renders to the Legislature as a result of its investigation during the present session. In the form first proposed by Chairman Alex. Lewis, the report was non-contentious and simply as this evidence which the committee had heard—leaving it to others to draw the comment, however, Hon. Mr. Raney moved and declared with regard to the Lyons' Not satisfied with this impartial treatment of the investigation that the examination of the Glucose auditing firm had shown that there was nothing suspicious in connection with any of the ex-minister's transactions and that the committee "confirmed this view." Regarding the contract of George Oakley upon the new cast wing of the Parliament Build ing it was declared that the entire transaction had been found "quite regular, and the contract well carried out to the benefit of the Province."

With respect to other matters mentioned in the minority report, Mr. Finlayson said that Hon. Frank Ieg had never been mentioned before the committee and could not be referred to. The most startling matter disclosed was the $350 paid to Rev. Edgar Wilson, P.P., which would have disqualified him from his seat in the Legislature.

Hon. Mr. Raney in reply, said that he was a director of the Copeland-Chatterson Company in 1920, but that when his attention was drawn to the fact that the company was dealing with the Government he had resigned his director ship.

WAS STILL DIRECTOR

Mr. Finlayson pointed out that Mr Raney was still a director in 1921 as to this Mr. Raney replied that the record was probably because the elections were early in the year before he resigned.

Col J. A. Currie in view of Mr. Raney's amendment moved another amendment, "that the committee felt that Hon. James Lyons is entitled to a complete and unqualified exoneration of any breach of the Legislative Assembly Act and that his company's business record with relation to the Government or any member having business relations with the Government is beyond reproach."

When the chairman put Mr Raney's amendment to the meeting it was lost by a vote of 22 in favor, those in support being Messrs. Raney, Sinclair, Willfield, Kemp and Faber.

COMPARE U.S. TO BRITISH METHODS

Deputation From Old Land Completes Survey of Industries in Republic

Washington, April 1.—"An amazing tribute to America's industrial and commercial genius, and the prediction that United States will hold up its present large rivalling that of Great Britain, was contained in the official report stating the mission of British industrial mission to this country.

The report was compiled by Col. P. Vernon Willey and Capt Leacock, of London, following a tour of the United States.

"Everyone knows of the wealth and unexampled prosperity of the United States, but it is doubtful if Great Britain realizes how overwhelmingly real that wealth is today," the report declared.

EMPHASIZES FIVE POINTS

Outstanding in the report were the following statements:

1. America's unbounded prosperity shows every sign of continuing.

2. Increased efficiency in production indicates the competition Great Britain must expect from United States in world markets.

3. Higher standards of living will not result in higher cost of living.

4. Regrettable misapprehension exists in American mind that Great Britain is "down and out."

5. Prohibition benefits may not be worth the cost.

MUST CONSIDER PROHIBITION

"One cannot examine the causes of American efficiency without mentioning the question of prohibition, although we are aware that it is a debatable subject," the report stated.

"Several of the most prominent business leaders in America stated that prohibition had been a considerable influence in industrial efficiency.

"It is only fair to add, however, that many of them qualified this statement by saying that the price paid was too high and that the social evils and the open contempt of the law, which have been evident since prohibition came in the land was cost, which the paltry material advantages to which it has contributed.

"American capital will continue to flow abroad provided the present feeling of uneasiness as to the political future of the world, especially Europe, can be overcome," according to the report.

Commenting on the French debt settlers the report said: "In our belief France will find it very difficult to raise credits in the United States unless she is prepared to come to a definite settlement.

"As things are at present French issues, governmental or private, would not appeal to Wall street or to the American investor."

Willey predicted that the "long time trend" of prices in this country may be slightly downward. He said that financial interests and the government itself opposes higher price levels.

"In some quarters of Great Britain there is a tendency to make light of American competition," Willey said. "We consider that those who hold these views labor under a profound and dangerous delusion.

"Industrial organization has attained a pitch in United States which has never been equalled, excepting possibly in Germany."

1926 Dr. Pierce's Discovery

Why He Succeeded

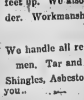

From hard work on a farm to the study of medicine in Cincinnati, where he was graduated in 1862, was the course which Dr. R. V. Pierce took.

In his younger days he practiced medicine over a large district. It was then the new oil fields near Titusville, Pa. Finally he determined to put up some of his prescriptions in ready-to-use form in order to reach a larger number of families.

He thus early moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established the World's Dispensary, where he put up Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood as well as the Favorite Prescription for women, carefully preparing them from roots, barks and herbs and placed them with druggists everywhere.

During the last sixty years Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold in larger quantities by druggists than any other medicine. It is a tonic in its effects on the stomach and digestive apparatus; an alterative in its action on the blood, liver and skin. It increases the appetite, purifies the digestion, enriches the blood, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and care free.

Ask your druggist for Dr. Pierce's Discovery in tablet or liquid form, or send 10c for trial pkg. of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory, at Bridgeburg, Ont.

HUGE C.N.R. VIADUCT UNDER REPAIR
BRIDGE HAS INTERESTING HISTORY

Workmen Replacing Defective Rivets in Colossal Structure Built in 1887 at Port Hope —Foxboro Quarry Supplied Stone.

The Port Hope Times says:

A gang of men under the supervision of Mr. William Locke, superintendent with headquarters in the Canadian National yards, where rusty and defective rivets are being removed and replaced.

Altogether it is anticipated that some two thousand rivets will be removed and the workmen expect to be engaged on the task for some months. Each individual rivet is cut out by means of cold chisel and sledge, wielded by husky steel workers, standing in perilous positions on narrow scaffolding being beneath the bridge. The work, done from every conceivable angle, is extremely difficult and but slow progress can be made even by the most experienced men.

When the work has well begun, a second squad of riveters will arrive on the scene to put in the new rivets, and already the air compression machine, used to supply the pressure for the pneumatic hammers has been erected on the west bank of the creek, beneath the viaduct.

INTERESTING HISTORY

The late Fiddler, which is believed to be one of the largest of it's kind in Canada has an extremely interesting history. Railways were first thought of in Port Hope, as a mode of transportation, as early as 1833, when a general agitation for a proposed tram line from Port Hope to Rice Lake was raised. In the following year, Postmaster David Smart laid before the legislature a request for authority to build such a line the although permission was granted, the plan was dropped.

Twelve years later, the Kingston, Toronto railway line appeared to be becoming a reality and the people of Port Hope became considerably interested in the project. In 1841, the Town council granted £20 to aid in the survey which was being made, and in the following year, the line was absorbed by the Grand Trunk Railway Company.

By the first of 1856, the line was complete from Portland to Darlington with the exception of a few gaps between Toronto and Kingston. Contracts were let to John Fowler for the construction of the line from Grafton to Port Hope, to Messrs. Humphrey and Harris for the section from Port Hope to the western limits of Hope township and to Mr. Betts for the building of the huge viaduct.

"GIANT" VIADUCT

In May, 1856, Contractor Betts commenced work on the big bridge and by August had all the supports in place. There were built of white brick on stone foundations averaging thirty feet in height. By dint of much hard work, the bridge was rushed to completion and on October 14th, the first train passed over it, amid great rejoicing and celebration by the people of the town. On October 29th, the first through train from Toronto to Montreal passed through Port Hope and the engines and coaches were of the most ancient pattern.

A strange coincident in connection with the structure was that it was built in the year 1856, and was exactly 1856 feet in length. In addition there were just fifty-six piers in the bridge. It was named in honour of Albert, the Prince Consort.

THE PRESENT BRIDGE

In the years which followed the entire road underwent many changes; the railway itself was moved farther north in many sections because of the inroads made by the lake, and chief of all, the Albert viaduct was demolished and replaced by the present bridge, a double-deck structure which at that time was one of the greatest pieces of engineering work in Ontario.

The present viaduct was built by the Grand Trunk Company themselves and seven summers, from 1887 to 1893 were required to complete it. Mr. Thomas White of Port Hope, was foreman of the work and general superintendent of construction. When the bridge was first begun, the plans called for a single track, and several gaps had been erected according to this specification before countermand ing orders were received.

THIRTY TWO PIERS

There are thirty-two piers in the bridge constructed of stone quarried at Foxboro, near Belleville, and are built upon stone bed at a depth of fifteen and even twenty feet. As interesting fact in connection with the bridge is that it was built on a slight curve which made engineering difficult.

FARM REPORTS

The following extracts are from reports of the Agricultural Representatives made to the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

DUFFERIN—Up to date snow is still covering the ground in practically all sections of the county so the injury from heaving should be at the minimum this time of the year.

Very little hay is being offered for sale; prices, however, range from $12 to $17 per ton according to kind and quality. The potato prices have been somewhat stronger during the week; the producers are receiving $2.90 per bag F.O.B. Orangeville which is considered possibly the best shipping point in the province.

ELGIN—Fall Wheat has come through the winter very well, a few spots covered with ice but apparently no serious damage. Clover also is looking well where there was a good catch last year, although there was a great deal of poor catches last spring. Considerable damage to orchards by mice and rabbits.

Seeding will be later this year than a year ago although the frost is pretty well out of the fields now and a few warm days would dry the high land so that seeding could be started. Prospects point to a large acreage of tobacco.

FRONTENAC—A large number of the cheese factories will be in operation the first week in April. The general tendency has been to do more extensive repairing to cheese factories. This should have an effect on the quality of cheese that will be turned out.

HASTINGS—The snow is practically all gone but many fields are practically covered with ice leaving the fall wheat and alfalfa in a very uncertain condition. Maple trees are now being tapped and some maple syrup is already on the market. All kinds of live stock have wintered well and the supply of feed has been sufficient. Milch cows are being sold this spring than usual by at least 25%.

KENT—Fall wheat in general is looking exceptionally well. The late snow wheat had very little top and the next two weeks will be the critical period for all such fields. The ice apparently has not done much damage. There is however, water on many low lying fields which will cause considerable damage.

LAMBTON—Fall wheat has come through the winter in good shape. The ice did not do any appreciable damage. The wheat has never looked better for after the snow has all gone. Providing we do not get too many cold winds fall wheat looks good.

LINCOLN—The mild spell of the past week has melted snow and the accumulation of water on meadows and wheat fields is rather menacing if these crops, especially in the south western part of the county. The ice is not yet out of the ditches and this is holding the water back. Some of the fruit men have their pruning operations completed while others have quite considerable to do yet.

NORTHUMBERLAND—Fall wheat has come through the winter well so far. The same applies to clovers, orchards and small fruit.

PRESCOTT & RUSSELL—Red clover seed No. 1, government inspected still selling at around 30c per lb. f.o.b. shipping station. Some of our home grown clover seed has been shipped to the United States, to New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Northern Ontario and British Columbia.

PLAIN TALES FOR AND OF WOMEN

Hamilton.—The Hamilton Spectator says editorially:—Mrs. Evaleen Stein-son, Andover Canadian fish to be "made known to the continent," and she is to write the book. She also said that even More Scots fish were obtainable in the United States, by reason of the fact that no other place could do the curing so well as the provinces. Yes Canadians, for the most part, neglect this source of healthful food, in favor of the "Eat More Fish" campaigns and other governmental efforts. Why isn't Mrs. Spencer given some reasons, and they are most interesting. One is that the strange Canadian housewife does not know how to cook fish properly. It is an art that has been mastered by Scandinavia and Austria, and that is why fish is so much more popular with those people. And men always insist on the proper "tools for cooking." Mrs. Spencer remarks signifi-cantly.

Toronto.—Picturesquely attired in quaint black bonnet and silk shawl, one of the most interesting guests at the luncheon to honor Sir Vincent and Lady Allenby at the Hotel Vancouver, was Mrs. Charlotte Ollis, who has passed her 98th birthday but who has played no small part in patriotic endeavors. And no other guest listened with more enthusiasm to the stories told by the distinguished visitor. Following the luncheon and during the reception in the palm room, Viscount Allenby said that he wished to meet Mrs. Ollis. When asked why she was, Mrs. Ollis replied: "Well, I am the great-grandmother of you all. I have been through the Crimean and down through the Boer and Great War, but never have I been afforded greater pleasure than the honor of meeting such a war hero as yourself." "And I feel honored in meeting you and knowing of the wonderful things you have done for the Empire," said Lord Allenby.

Toronto.—Picturesque contributor to Anne Merriman page in the Mail and Empire suggests that the following pledge might be signed by Canadian women: "I promise on my honor, as a subject, not to purchase knowingly, any article during the next twelve months, that has not been either Canadian or British made and of these two giving preference to the Canadian article." Miss Adler—And then the allies magazines. If there are few Canadian magazines now, there is a big demand. We have the talent and there will soon be good magazines made in Canada. I look on every purchase I make for the Made-in-Canada mark and all that implies it. If a story cannot give me a Canadian or British made article, I do not buy at all but go to another store. The price does not concern with me. I want to see our own people working and if it costs a little more, I believe in the long run it is cheapest.

Ottawa.—Now may one translate the word "Flapper" into French? This problem recently engaged the minds of Government and commercial translators at a meeting of the Terminological Institute of Canada. They failed to find a suitable French equivalent. However, the unbonneted gallant, who in the absence of, or as a part of the flapper were shown to be already French in name. Other words discussed during the meeting were: Cable company, examination in chief, one-man factory, surety company, society, seating bus, bird house, timber wolf, stopher, patronage and patronage system, one-sided proposition, testing, valet service, insurance adjuster, decoder, banks, industries, atlas, revolving and tilting chair, corn sealing officer, natural resources.

Toronto.—The Local Council of Women has a new committee—that on "Fine and Applied Arts," with Mrs. W. H. Becker for convener. The Council will support the licensing of boarding houses when the survey is completed. The prison reform bill which Miss Agnes Macphail, M.P., will introduce during the session will receive the support of the Toronto Local Council. It will ask for additional police women for the city, and will furnish a room in the Edith Cavell Memorial Home for Nurses, Toronto Western Hospital.

Ottawa.—Mrs. Eric Brown has delivered a series of half hour talks on Canadian Art in the National Gallery this winter, with constantly increasing attendance. In defending the work of artists who have sampling now in say and insist in saying it in their own way, Mrs. Brown said one must not come to the conclusion that all demand is great art. She mentioned art which is queer and difficult to understand, but added that the fact that in 1924 the British Government was invited to send 100 pictures to the International Exhibition at Ghent. They chose 25 Canadian pictures from the Wembley Exhibition and sent them along with 75 British. Mrs. Brown considered this a very practical proof of their appreciation of Canada's art. The Canadian pictures had been sent on exhibition in the larger English towns. None of the other Dominions were invited to send their pictures. This year for the first time there was a Canadian section at the important International Art Exhibition at Pittsburgh.

Toronto.—Mrs. Adelade M. Plumptre, member of the Board of Education, speaking at a mother and child banquet, said that so far as she knew for the first time in Canada pupils in some of the High Schools of Toronto sat in their class-rooms one afternoon recently and heard the radio delivered its messages to them. She thought it an epochal event, not only in the history of this country, but in an age when so many remarkable things were being achieved.

Toronto.—Commenting in Women's Court on a case of fraud extending over a length of time, where conviction was registered, Magistrate Talbot said:—"Department stores have evidently come to the end of their very long patience. As an old employee of the department store the accused had knowledge of good ways of defrauding it. She had obtained goods under about 100 names, only two or three of which were even in the directory." The stores maintain that allowing convicted people to go on condition that they do not enter store establishments again means that this special kind of crime is too easily attempted.

Toronto.—Mrs. Emily G. Mahood, President of the American Rhode Island Red Club, is generally recognized as one of the brightest minds in the American Poultry Association. This is probably not to be wondered at when it is pointed out that she is the wife of an American college professor and the daughter of a Canadian clergyman. In a recently published letter she says: "Evidently our (the fanciers) great mistake in the past was caused by our zeal in producing things of beauty. In itself such zeal is laudable, but we should not have forgotten that the only excuse for the existence of fancy poultry, as we are concerned with it, lies in its usefulness in producing meat and eggs."

Edmonton.—Speaking at the eleventh annual conference of the Alberta Division of the Canadian Red Cross society, Mrs. J. W. Wallace said: "The Red Cross has reached a critical stage in its growth. We need more money and we must have popular support to secure this." Referring to the immigration service report she said that its importance was becoming more and more apparent. To carry on this work the British Red Cross had placed the sum of £1,000 at the disposal of the Canadian Red Cross for the purpose of assisting such British families who come out to Canada under British land settlement scheme and through no fault of their own have met with reverses during the first few months in this country.

Montreal.—"We should be proud of the work that our Government is doing toward the conservation of wild life in Canada," said Miss Louise Murphy in addressing the Montreal Gazette Nurses' Association on Canadian birds. "No wild life of the world is more beautiful, but we have eleven national parks which are really succeeding in conserving ours." Illustrating her remarks with lantern slides and original songs from her book, "Sweet Canada," Miss Murphy said its title came from the call of the white-throated sparrow of the Laurentians.

"In the garden of her Montreal residence on Summerhill avenue, the speaker herself had twenty-four different species of birds nesting last summer.

Where is the Car that Equals it?

Before buying an automobile in the $1500—$2000 field ask yourself these questions:

1. Is it as comfortable and smart in appearance as the New Oakland Six?
2. Does it boast such advanced mechanical features as Air Cleaner, Oil Filter, Full Pressure Oiling, Harmonic Balancer?
3. Has it mechanical four-wheel brakes?
4. Can it duplicate Oakland's speed, power, acceleration, flexibility and year-in-year-out dependability?

Because no car in the field can answer these questions satisfactorily—because no other car combines these features at anywhere near Oakland prices—this is the car for you.

FURIOUS RIOTING IN CALCUTTA; POLICE FIRE ON MOB

BOMBS DROPPED ON PEKIN CROWD NO CASUALTIES

Beginning of Proper Seige Of Chinese Capital by Manchurians

Pekin, April 5.—Two Manchurian aeroplanes dropped 12 bombs to-day near a crowd which had gathered for the Arbor Day ceremony. No casualties occurred. The explosion of bombs created great panic.

To-day's bombardment, following that of yesterday, is viewed as the commencement of the real seige of the city by the armies of Chang Tso Lin, the Manchurian war lord, and his ally Marshal Wu Pai Fu.

It is reported on good authority that the representative of Wu Pei Fu has arrived in Peking with full power to negotiate with the Kuominchin leaders. Marshal Wu's forces have advanced to within eighty miles of Pekin. There are reports however that Wu is inclined to receive overtures from Kuominchin, who still controls Pekin, though surrounded by enemies.

EASTER'S BRILLIANT SUN ENTICES ANNUAL PARADE; ALL CHURCHES THRONGED

New Hats On Display But Day Was Scarcly Warm Enough For All to Discard Fur Coats--Brilliant Musical Service Heard at All Services

Easter's bright sun, notwithstanding the foot of snow under foot, and wind-chest, emitted the traditional parade of Easter bonnets and the services in every Church were marked by the largest congregations ever, recorded in the observances of this Holy Day. From earliest morning the Churches were thronged by rejoicing congregations and the special Easter sermons and music were heard with great interest.

AT BRIDGE STREET

At Bridge Street Church in the morning a carol "O, Easter Morn" was specially rendered and the solo by Mr. Sandford Burrows heard with great pleasure. The carol by the Junior Choir was also very fine. In the evening the choir was accompanied by the organ, violin, cello and cornet and the orchestral prelude "The Largo", an unusually meritorious offering. Miss Irene Baker sang very sweetly and the quartette composed of Mrs. Gribble, Mrs. McKinnon, Messrs. Carson and Sprague, sang in a most talented manner. The pastor, Rev. R. G. Stewart, preached two very impressive sermons, the morning subject being "Resurrection and Life" and the evening subject "The Garments of God". The morning music was very fine and the anthem "Awake Thou That Sleepest" particularly splendid, the solo "Open Ye the Gates of the Temple" by A. F. Sullman was sung with great feeling and the evening was heard with much interest and pleasure and the solo "The Holy City" by Mrs. W. H. Bell was heard with great pleasure and Professor Earnest Wheatley's organ selections were particularly interesting.

AT CHRIST CHURCH

At Christ Church the special Easter sermons and music were very fine and capacity congregations attended each service. The Easter anthems were all sung very beautifully and the solos taken in a most talented manner.

AT EMMANUEL CHURCH

At Emmanuel Church the Rev. George Marshall preached two force ful sermons, appropriate to the day, and the Easter music was of a very high order.

TABERNACLE CHURCH

Rev. H. B. Kenny, pastor of the Tabernacle Church preached exceedingly interesting and instructive sermons, the morning theme being "Resurrection from the Dead" and the evening "The Land of Hope". Mrs. Duff, organist and choirmaster had prepared some Easter music of outstanding merit. In the morning the anthem "The Glorious Work is Done" with soprano solo by Mrs. Brown was a musical achievement and the chorus "Worthy is the Lamb", excellent. Porter's Easter anthem was done by the choir very finely and the chorus and solos rendered much talent and careful train ing. The soloists were Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Nicholson, Mr. Stillman, Dr. Haffner, Mr. Moorman, Mr. Thompson.

AT VICTORIA AVENUE

At Victoria Avenue Baptist Church the Rev. T. S. McKechnie, B.A., B.Th., preached very helpful Easter sermons. The music sustained the enviable reputation the choir and organist, Miss Lavoie have made in the city.

AT ST. THOMAS

The three communion services at 7, 8 and 11 o'clock at St. Thomas Church were attended by a very large number of communicants. The morning Choral Communion service with Easter Anthems and Hymns was celebrated and sung by Miss Wilmot, Miss Sleeker and Master Alfred Evans at both services were enjoyed.

MRS. ACKERMAN DIES IN TORONTO IN HER 81ST YEAR

Mr. H. W. Ackerman Informed of Death Via The Radio

Following a short illness the death occurred on Saturday night of Mrs. Mary E. Ackerman in her 81st year. Mrs. Ackerman, who was the widow of Jacob Ackerman, of Milford, Ont., was born on Wesupcose Island in Prince Edward County, Ont., in 1844. After her marriage she was for some years a resident of Milford, later moving to Toronto to live with her daughter, Mrs. A. A. Minaker, of 1822 Gerrard street. She is survived by two sons, H. W. Ackerman, former mayor of Belleville; D. E. Ackerman, of Picton, Ont., and three daughters, Mrs. Bruce Minaker, of Milford, Ont.; Mrs. Arthur Thompson, of Wellington, Ont., and Mrs. A. A. Minaker of Toronto. A short service was held last night at the funeral parlors of N. B. Cubbidrick, Toronto, while the remains were to be taken to-day to Picton where the funeralwill take place on Tuesday.

Owing to the prevailing storm on Saturday night, ex-Mayor H. W. Ackerman of this city could not be reached by telegraphic communication. The sudden death of the mother was sent out by radio and in a short time Mr. Ackerman had the sad news from his mother's own phone informing him of his mothers death. One message was from Ottawa where a resident heard of her death, Ackerman's dealer over the radio and phoned to Belleville to enquire if Mr. H. W. Ackerman resided here. In this case the radio proved to be of great service.

RIFFS PARLEYING YET SHOW FIGHT

Paris Doubts Whether They Are Sincere in Peace Move

Paris, April 5.—The newspaper "Leourres", well-informed in diplomatic circles, says conversations now going on between accredited representatives of Abd El Krim and the French and Spanish governments are important and likely to have a favorable outcome.

The Petit Parisien, however, warns that the last news from Morocco indicates the beginning of a new Riff offensive and that it is not clear whether this action is designed as a diplomatic gesture or is forstaste of larger operations to come which the present overtures are masking.

AT ST. PAUL'S, PETERBORO

Rev. W. Allen was inducted at St. Paul's Church, Peterboro last week. Rev. V. Walker of Janetville acting as Moderator, presided. The sermon was preached by Rev. R. Merchant of Bowmanville and the charge to the minister was made by Rev. James Greer of Campbellford and Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings gave the charge to the congregation.

32 ARE DEAD IN CAIRO FIRE

Cairo, Egypt, April 5.—Thirty-two persons are dead and four thousand homeless through a great fire which raged in the Tantah district Saturday and Sunday. Over six hundred dwellings were destroyed. Recurrence of the fire is causing concern. The Government is sending instructions to local authorities of preventive measures.

Ruth Helm Buried Mourned by Students Who Attend in Body

Despite the inclement weather on Saturday afternoon there was a large number in attendance at the funeral of the late Ruth Helm, whose young life was sacrificed on Thursday afternoon last when she was stricken down by an auto bus. Ilith School pupils were present to pay the last tribute of respect to one who was a popular figure around the school.

Rev. L. S. Wight, pastor of Holloway Street United Church, conducted an impressive service at the home, Avondale, referring in a feeling manner to the tragic death.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful in design. At Belleville cemetery the body was laid at rest. Pallbearers were Dan Brown, Jack Bell, Fred Reid, Harold Blakley, Chester and Howard Calnan.

SCARLET FEVER CALLED BEATEN BY NEW SERUM

Dr. William Park Praises Cure Developed by Chicago Physician

Albany, April 5.—Dr. William H. Park, director of the Vaccine Laboratory of the city of New York, told physicians attending a joint meeting of bacteriologists and pathologists that discovery of the germ of scarlet fever and development of a cure by Dr. George Dick, of Chicago, assisted by his wife, Dr. Gladys H. Dick, had virtually conquered the disease in the last two years.

Steps have been taken by Dr. Park to organize a group of laboratories that will cooperate to standardize the Dick methods of preparing and testing serum for fever antitoxin. One of the physicians discussing the serum estimated that in one year in New York it saved more lives than most physicians do in a life time.

In the opinion of the eminent physicians attending the local meeting, the Nobel prize in Medicine, if it had been awarded this year, would probably have gone to Dr. Dick. Among the group were several of the 100 men whose votes determine to whom the award usually is made. All agreed that his work was the most distinguished service to medicine in several years.

HUNTING FOR BODY

Madoc, April 5.—The body of little Raymond Manderville, who was drowned in Black Creek, Queensboro, on Tuesday last, has not been found. Another fifty men are at work blasting and cutting the ice, and every possible means is being used for th erecovery of the child.

Kiddies Mark Easter Sunday By Gifts of Eggs to Shelter

In order to make the Easter season the more memorable to Sunday School pupils at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church the minister, the Rev. R. G. Stewart, instituted what he called the Easter nest—a large wicker basket, purple lined, with little chicks perched on the edges—and at the morning service yesterday announced that the children were invited to bring contributions of "perfectly fresh hen's eggs" of not less than one egg and not more than one dozen eggs. He said the result would go to the Children's Shelter for the kiddies there.

The children brought the eggs. How many? Well figure it out yourself, but at the evening service Mr. Stewart said the result in round numbers was forty-five and a half dozen!

The eggs were delivered safely with one single exception to the Shelter, and The Intelligencer was called up this morning on the telephone by the Matron who asked this paper to announce this most acceptable gift and to say two months could not be more timely or more appreciated.

One youngster contributed half a dozen chocolate eggs in addition and there was a money contribution totalling just under a dollar, all of which went forward with the real eggs.

And not one in St. Andrew's Sunday School it is safe to say but will remember Easter 1926 for many a day.

RELIGIOUS SECTS INJURE OR KILL OPPOSED FACTION

Police and Troops Have Drawn Cordon Round Disturbed Area

London, April 5.—Furious rioting between Hindus and Moslems which has lasted for three days in Northern Calcutta resulted up to late last night in 23 deaths, and a great many wounded.

It is reported the police fired on the struggling mobs on one occasion. Rival religionists refused to be controlled by the leaders. The worst of the outbreak was quelled Saturday by the strengthening of police and soldiers.

Despatches from Calcutta show it is difficult to get details of the disturbances. The disturbed area is enclosed by police and troops. The religious antagonists started the fracas by obstructing a procession of Hindus and were joined by roughs and several mosques and temples were attacked and desecrated.

Unofficial reports estimate the casualties much greater.

The situation between rioting Hindus and Moslems was later greatly improved today, the presence of many police and soldiers having a salutary effect. The arrest of forty-four Moslems for assaulting Assistant Police Chief Saunders brings the total Moslems in custody to three hundred.

TWO POLICEMEN KILLED IN N.Y.C.

New York, April 5.—Two policemen have been murdered here within three days. Charles H. Reilly was shot down last night in Harlem. Peter Hosler, suffering from bullet wounds, is under arrest and four other men are held. Out vension of the shooting was that Reilly was killed when he attempted to prevent a holdup. Louis J. Keith, traffic policeman, was murdered Friday night as he was entering his apartments. No arrests have been made.

NO DEEP PLOT SAYS DANDURAND

Montreal, April 5.—There was no deep plot at the bottom of the difficulties between Germany and Brazil and other members of the League of Nations at the council session recently difficulties into which efforts have Raoul Dandurand just back from Geneva.

The primary abosne of this and other difficulties nto which efforts have been made to read plots, was the friendship, Senator said, in the necessity of the delegates and those behind them satisfying demands of public opinion in their own countries.

TELLS ROMANCE OF THE YUKON AND THE R.C.M.P.

Major R. Y. Douglas Spent Seven Years In Dawson City

NEW ROTARY CHIEFS

Chas. Dolan Succeeds Rev. D. C. Ramsay as President

Rotary heard first hand today something of the stirring tale of the Scarlet Riders of the Plains, the called Royal Canadian Mounted Police and how they kept law and order in and administered the official business of the Yukon in the days of "The Gold Rush."

The story told, modestly as becomes one of that great force, from the lips of one who spent seven years in the Yukon, was given Rotary by Major R. Y. Douglas, R.C.M.P., who was introduced to the Club by Mr. W. S. Scott, his son-in-law.

News of the strike on Bonanza Creek by Carmack and his two Indian companions having reached the outside world the Klondyke drew the scum of the entire Pacific Coast, a host of undesirables which the police had first to corral and then hold satisfied. The tale of the rush via Skagway, the Chilkkoot Pass, White Horse, and the passage down river of thousands was lightly touched on. Murder, cold-blooded, and sudden death in the harsh country were police problems and these, Major Douglass sketched briefly. "We had to take stern measures," he said significantly. "Life was not safe if you had any money."

And he described the case where two men shot and killed three companions to get their money, all they got being $134.00. Another man was murdered for $20.00.

Finally every one going in had to pass the police detachment at White Horse and to report at all detachments on the way in.

They were all known. Each man had to have a year's supply of food, and must put his gun away. This resulted in the handing of all the undesirables.

Major Douglass referring to the multiple duties of the police in civil affairs said humorously the only time they had trouble was, he thought, was grant a divorce.

He touched on the romance of mining and mentioned briefly several incidents of the enormous sums made. At one famous spot every shovelful of dirt paid $500.00 in gold.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. A. F. Stillman.

DOUG AND MARY TO TOUR WORLD FOR TWO YEARS

Famous Screen Stars Sail from New York for Genoa—Will Visit Russia

New York, April 5.—Mary Pickford told what an ordeal it was to face a battery of news-reel and still cameras, just before she and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, sailed on the Lloyd Sabaudo liner, Conte Biancamano, for Genoa. They started on a trip which Miss Pickford said might take them around the world. They may not get back home for two years. THEY WILL VISIT RUSSIA.

News photographers who shift their open-air studios from deck to deck of arriving and sailing steamships caused Mary Pickford to spend one of the most uncomfortable half-hours of her life. After she had, fated the lean alone and with her husband on deck, on the railing, on the railing, on stairs and hatches, she explained why it was so hard to pose for the news cameras.

"In the light of a brilliant sun on the open deck of a ship the photographers get as a great disadvantage," said Miss Pickford. "The white paint on the cabin walls heightens the terrific glare which makes you look old.

"Why, what chance have you in such a glare in the open light to control your expression? Think of having to look merry with the sunlight in your eyes. You see, it's a different thing from being filmed in the studios. The lights are all correctly placed to give the proper effect and all we are concerned about is being just natural."

BEST STOCK FEED OF ALL

ALFALFA SHOULD BE MORE EXTENSIVELY GROWN

Only Rarely Need Should Be Used and Plenty Is Now Available—Important Points to Consider.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

One of the valuable features of alfalfa is its richness in the expensive proteins. When cut at six or eight inches in height, we have found it to contain 25 per cent. of nitrogenous matter, that is, one-quarter of the dry matter of the crop was crude protein. The amount naturally decreases as the plants matured, due to the development of the fibre, but in the early blossoming stage we found alfalfa contained on the average 14.4 per cent. of crude protein, or 11.3 per cent. of digestible crude protein, calculated to water free basis. In the hay condition of grasses, Henry and Morrison in "Feeds and Feeding" give the per cent. of digestible protein in some of the common fodders as follows: Alfalfa, 10.6; red clover hay, 7.4; timothy hay, 3.5; corn silage, 1.1; and among the grains, oats, 9.7; corn, 7.5; barley, 9.0; and wheat bran, 12.5. It will thus be seen why it is not necessary to feed as much grain or concentrates when alfalfa is used as the fodder.

Furthermore, the alfalfa is valuable for its A and B vitamines and its ash content. It may not be better in these respects than the clovers, but it has a recognized value when fed with concentrates.

The Ontario farmer's feed problem is best solved through the production and use of the greatest possible quantities of high-class home-grown roughage, which obviates the necessity of using a large proportion of expensive concentrates in his rations. Most home-grown concentrates, and many of the roughages, are carbonaceous feeds which, in themselves, even in mixtures, do not tend to form properly balanced rations and, consequently there is always a big demand for protein-rich feeds such as bran, shorts, middlings, oilcake meal, cottonseed meal, gluten meal and other similar feeds. These feeds are always more or less expensive and it is sound farm economics to attempt to produce substitutes for them in so far as possible. The farmer understands the situation and naturally turns to leguminous crops, particularly the clovers, to cut down his feed bills and, at the same time, enrich his soil. He realizes that his home-grown grains and his corn and roots are low in protein. He knows that protein-rich concentrates are high in price. Therefore, he is interested more and more in increased supply of home-produced feed high in protein. It is also a fact that these leguminous feeds are high in mineral matter so necessary to production, reproduction and general health in herds and flocks, and a best of them is alfalfa. It is the most palatable of all.

Alfalfa Hay.

Alfalfa hay stands at the head of the hay list in value for dairy cows, sheep and lambs, beef cows, growing young cattle, breeding bulls, and may be used with care for horses, especially when they are idle or comparatively so. Of course, the hay should be well cured, preferably by the cell method, and generally speaking the second cutting is of finer quality than the first. Good alfalfa hay is just under wheat bran in digestible crude protein, but shows about three times as much fibre. It is a roughage, but some feeders forget that it is a rich roughage and throw too much of it to their stock. A small forkful of good alfalfa hay contains more real feed value than a big bundle of the average timothy or mixed hay and so it should be fed with more care to prevent waste or danger of overfeeding. Alfalfa hay, corn silage and a few roots make an ideal roughage ration for all classes of cattle and sheep and many feeders have cut down, or cut out, their corn acreage where alfalfa does well. For dairy and beef cattle, from one-half to one pound per day per hundred pounds of live weight, according to other feeds fed, proves very valuable in mixed rations. For sheep, either fattening lambs or breeding ewes, from two to four pounds per day will be relished. For horses, not over one-half pound per hundred pounds live weight, preferably mixed with other hay or straw, is safer than too much. And for the old sows, it may also be used as part of the winter ration.

Alfalfa Silage.

As a silage crop nothing excels alfalfa. It grows rapidly and produces several crops in a season. Green alfalfa cut and cured to all stock kept stabled during the summer provides protein-rich succulence in the most palatable form. The crop will produce more feed cut and fed as a silage crop than in any other form. Mature cattle may be fed up to fifty or sixty pounds per day of this green feed along with other feeds. Calves and younger stock do exceedingly well on alfalfa as green feed. Even fattening sheep can get no better feed, and it is among the very best feeds for all classes of sows, from the youngest pigs to older breeding stock. Green alfalfa is not every satisfactory feed for the working horse because it has a tendency to cause weakness.

Alfalfa, in such form, provides in itself a narrow ration, being very high in protein, and should be fed, along with home-grown grains, a little hay or corn silage to cattle. Sheep will handle it without much difficulty and, of course, it naturally is only a supplement to the grain ration for hogs but, such, it will cut down the cost of pork production very materially. If fed green to horses, it should only comprise a part of the ration and with some dry hay and grain. When feeding to cattle and sheep it is well to start with a small amount and that dry, as there is some danger of bloat if large quantities are fed wet in the beginning.

Ask for Circular 43, on Hardy Alfalfa and get the rest of the story of this wonder crop.

END LEGISLATURE LIKELY TUESDAY

Burst of Oratory Coming on Work of Agriculture Committee

Toronto, April 5.—A burst of oratory over the report of the agricultural enquiry committee will likely feature the concluding sittings tomorrow of the current session of the Ontario Legislature. A night session may be necessary to finish the debate. The committee report was tabled in the legislature recently and Aurel Belanger (Russell) the only Liberal member of the committee, has a minority report before the house. He will address the house concerning this aspect, and will object to the committee dealing with subjects over which, in his opinion, it has no jurisdiction such as the Canadian trade treaty, the tariff and other subjects.

WALL STREET CLOSING FIRM

New York, April 5.—Trading underwent an appreciable change when the several rate for call loans was established at 4 1-2 percent. with subsequent transactions at four percent. Much of the early selling had been due to belief that the $34,159,500 deficit in Saturday's bank reserves pointed to higher figures for renumeration today.

An outbreak of buying in the public utility group caused the shorts a notable stroke to buy freely to retire their commitments, resulting in many stocks recovering their early losses and putting a number substantially above Saturday's closing. All American rubber advanced 4 12 U.S. Cast Iron Pipe and Coca Cola four and Marine Preferred, United Railways Investment Preferred, Atlantic Coast Line and Philadelphia Co. were up 3 to 3 1-2 points.

CHICAGO FIGHTS HARD FOR STEAL

Lakes-to-Gulf Channel and All American Canal Topics

Washington, April 5.—Finishing touches will likely be put on the river and harbor bill authorizing the Lakes to Gulf channe when the house rivers and harbors committee renew its sessions here tomorrow. The Bill also contains provisions for a survey of the All-American Canal route through New York State, the efforts of congressional members from Illinois to sway the committee into authorizing its bill for the diversion by Chicago of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan having already been defeated. The majority of the committee members favored leaving the diversion question as it stands, in the hands of the secretary of war. When the bill is brought up in the congressional chamber, a lively fight by Illinois representatives over the 10,000 cubic foot diversion angle is expected.

MADE GALLANT RESCUE AT "SUGAR LOAF" CLIFF

Saint John, Newfoundland, April 5.—A thrilling chapter was added to the romance of Newfoundland fishermen when three battery men on Saturday night were drawn up over the steep face of Sugar Loaf Cliff from a narrow ledge just above water where for more than twenty-four hours they had clung to a forlorn hope of rescue after their motor boat had overturned, unmanageable and dashed itself to pieces on rocks at the base of the cliff.

HOLLOWAY STREET S.S.
(Contributed)

The spirit of Easter was very befittingly observed at Holloway St. United S.S. yesterday afternoon, when the long and splendid Lenten period in Sunday School work was brought to a close. The Rector, Rev. Canon Bedford-Jones, was unable to be present on the part of each scholar. The second part of the program was put on by girls of the C.G.I.T. of which Miss T. Mason is counsellor. She was assisted in the preparation of the work by Mrs. J. Jordan. This part was a musical monologue of which the talented director entitled "Madelaine's Easter Story". This number was very instructive and was highly commented on by all. The Easter lesson was taught by Gordon Brown, a member of Mr. M. Morrison's group of Trail Rangers. After the above program the rite of baptism was observed, the great grandmother and grand parents as well as the father and mother of the child being present. By an unanimous standing vote, the secretary of the school was instructed to send a letter to the family of the late Ruth Helen who was a member of Avondale S.S. which is under the supervision of Holloway St. United Church, and who met with an untimely death last Thursday afternoon, a letter of condolence expressing to the bereaved parents and sisters, the sincerest sympathy of the members of Holloway St. S. EASTER SUNDAY JUNIORS UNDER NEW MANAGER?

Ken Collings Anxious That Someone Else Handle 1926 Team

Nothing has been done regarding a Junior Baseball team to represent the city this summer.

After such a splendid start of the past two seasons it is to be hoped that some interested party will take over the reins and Belleville will have a team.

Messrs. Robert and Ken Collins are anxious to relinquish the management duties in favor of someone else. The kids hung up a notable record on the diamond and with plenty of paraphernalia and uniforms on hand, all that is lacking is a little interest and enthusiasm.

For this worthy purpose a meeting has been called for Thursday evening at the Y.M.C.A., and efforts will be made to determine successors to Ken Collins. The Juniors have served as a "feeder" for the Grand Trunk team and with no dearth of young material and a little backing Belleville should be represented in the O.B.A.A. series.

A number of last year's players have graduated from Junior ranks, and it will be necessary to recruit a few new players.

CUSTOMER OWNERSHIP

Can anything be simpler—the ownership of a Public Utility Company by its customers? The people, who pay the gas bills own the Company. Therefore they make the revenues possible, profit by their own bills. Those who own shares practically get their bills marked "paid." It is estimated that the cash dividends paid on $500.00 worth of stock will pay the average gas bill.

At present there are more than 1,300,000 individual stockholders in public utility companies on this continent.

BELLEVILLE'S GAS AFFAIRS

What is to be the outcome of this business over the Belleville gas plant? The last two issues of "Saturday Night", Toronto, have had articles calling attention to the delayed selling and stock distribution activities of the men in charge. There has rightly or wrongly been cast a sort of shadow on the affair which seems to The Intelligencer to call for a statement from those in control which will clear up the situation.

"Saturday Night" says that it can only blame the people of Belleville for supporting the issue as the polls as they did. The agreement on which they voted was seemingly a favorable one. Since that time doubts have been cast as to the fitness in its entirety up to the promoters of the scheme to take the public further into their confidence and tell them what the facts really are, if there are things which are not known.

As far as the stock selling goes it is everyone's right if they feel so minded not to buy stock in this project. And The Intelligencer mentioned that very thing when proposition to the vote it referred to the proposition.

It would be a good thing for all concerned if a detailed statement were issued disclosing the present real position.

MALT TONIC

The treasury department of the United States having given permission to two breweries to "market medicinal 3.75 malt extract," through the drug stores and groceries of the nation, the act can only be interpreted as an insertion of the thin edge of the wedge into Mr. Volstead's 18th amendment. The jubilation of wets is, in itself, warrant for the concern that is being felt by the dry, and the announcement of the chief chemist of the government prohibition force that "the new malt is not a beer and is not intoxicating" has not relieved the minds of the reformers. If, as is explained, the product is "a heavy preparation of malt barley, containing 25 per cent. solids, with a bit tarish taste, something of a cross between beer and molasses," and nauseating if taken in quantity in excess of a small wineglassful, and if dilution by water to make it palatable makes it insipid as a beverage there will be conjecture as to why the brewers have engaged in such strenuous competition for right to manufacture and market it. When prohibition was inaugurated in the United States, the druggists did a rushing business in tonics of alcohol. It contains until the government discouraged their use as a beverage by the imposition of definite restrictions. The granting of permission to sell medicinal malt is not compliance with an insistent demand by the invalids of the nation. The only conclusion that can be drawn is that this tonic is to be marketed to the well, which will make sick, thereby a policy of "Drink it as a beverage if you must, but at your own risk."

"FUTURE LIES THERE"

The determination of the provincial government to do everything in its power to promote the development of "New Ontario" is one which will meet with the approval of all intelligent citizens. The prosperity of Northern Ontario means the increased prosperity of the older portion of the province. "Our future lies there," declares the premier. "It is a land of popularity, a great place for young men. Any government which is not sympathetic to Northern Ontario will be a great disaster of this province." As a consequence of recent gold discoveries, this territory has been brought prominently before public attention. The policy of the government however, right from the beginning of its regime, has been to concentrate effort on this rich and comparatively unexploited region. The reward for such effort has already been great. The spectacular returns for the amount of energy and capital which has been invested in Northern Ontario are a guarantee that much more capital and enterprise will follow. The government has voted two million dollars towards further development work, and private interests all parts of the civilized world are keeping an envious eye on this favored quarter of the Dominion. It is certain that immense activity will result, which will justify the prediction of the premier that in time "old Ontario would find that she was overshadowed by Northern Ontario."

HOMEMADE VS. FOREIGN-MADE

For some time past Great Britain has been making every effort to reduce the American-made film quota and to replace the foreign-made picture productions by those of British origin.

Several European countries now are following this lead, as they, too, are feeling the need of reducing the number of the foreign-made by the homemade article.

Th countries in question are Australia and Hungary. In Austria, the Government has decided that for every twenty American pictures exhibited one must have been produced in Austria or Austrian firms.

In Hungary the terms are even more liberal—that is, for every thirty American films imported, one film must, as in Austria, have been actually made in Hungary. If the American interests cannot see their way to compliance with this decree, a complete embargo will be placed on the United States films.

On application of the American representatives for other terms, the American Government offers the alternative of a compromise in the form of a money payment—that is to say, the Government is willing to waive the above decision for the consideration of a sum of about $7,500 for every thirty American-made films. However, the Government's offer was rejected by the American firms.

It is evident that the position taken by both Austria and Hungary is one of self-protection in the desire to encourage the home film industry as well as the extension of the employment of the numbers of people who would be engaged in the making of the above-mentioned number of films in either country.

The justification of these countries in desiring to build up the home film industry is, from every point of view, clearly obvious.

LABOR'S LEGISLATIVE DEMANDS

Many things were demanded of the federal government by the deputation from the Dominion Trades and Labor congress which waited upon cabinet ministers. Of these several called for large additions to the public land grant. For instance the Labor men urged that the federal government assume the whole responsibility of paying old-age pensions instead of sharing it with the provincial governments on a fifty-fifty basis; that the pension be paid to everybody over 65 years instead of to those over 70 and that the minimum pension be $30 a month instead of $20. If this demand were granted, the old folks at home would cost the country as much as the annual deficit of the C.N.R. Another demand, now quite familiar, was abolition of the senate. But the Labor men are growing somewhat more moderate than they used to be. For years they have been clamoring for the unconditional abolition of the "senate." Now they demand merely the abolition of the unelected senate. Evidently they would not be averse to a senate elected by popular vote. Perhaps they realize at last that the senate exists by virtue of a solemn compact between the provinces and cannot be killed without the consent of the parties to that contract.

Why He Was Wanted

The experienced motorist was crawling carefully through a well-known "trap," when he saw the village constable making imperative signs to him to stop.

"Look here," said the annoyed motorist, "I wasn't exceeding the speed limit."

"I know that, sir," said the policeman, with a cough, "but, you see, I've got three chaps in the jail for reckless driving, and they sent me out to look for a fourth for a game of bridge."

Marvelous beyond conception inspiring dreams to the genius of Canada's Rockies. To be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip to one's self into this ultramarine, fog-for-flavor paradise—resorts, to many persons quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird, of Montreal Collegiate experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipeggers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain resort; by automobile for 101 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Doukhobor country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake; and to Vancouver, three days' sojourn at Victoria.

Returning the trip will be by the south line of the Canadian Pacific, through the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks and Rockies, affording scenery such as can be found nowhere else on earth; "ake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world's fairest day at Banff, Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devil's Gap Camp, on the edge of the Bad Lands near Kenora, thence to Fort William, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific steamships will be met across Lake Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Everything is included in the price of $330.00, from Toronto: transportation sleeping cars, accommodation in Hotels and Bungalow camps, meals in these hotels and on steamers, and all sightseeing tours at points visited.

The trip is open to all, and applications for accommodation, are being received.

Letters to the Editor

REGARDING PULPWOOD

To the Editor of Daily Intelligencer.

Dear Sir:—I would like permission to answer an editorial in your paper of March 26th, headed, "Pulpwood Export" in which you quote an article from the Vancouver Province. I pre. sume it is your desire to serve the best interests of the Province of Ontario in general and Hastings County in particular. To commence with there are many statements which we have copied from the Western papers that are misleading. Accepting the number of cords exported as correct viz 1425360 with a value of $14,162,159 Now the wage sheet at a big pulp mill to convert this amount of wood into pulp would be the value of the news print would go into the pockets of the millionaire paper manufacturers most of whom are United States citizens, so you will easily see that it requires considerable stretch of one's imagination to make this fit into the Dominion $150,000,000 as stated in your paper, and which figures I believe you were quoting from the Vancouver Province. Surely so far it would look as if the only loss were actually sustaining would be the $150,000 which would be the value of the wages but I would like to point out to you that we are not even losing that. Supposing there were no embargo on pulpwood what would be the result? Do you suppose there would be fourteen million cords of pulpwood manufactured in Canada? Certainly not as the mills are now manufacturing right up to their capacity so that there would not be one dollar more sold out in wages, but, and here is the granddaddy of an embargo, the big paper manufacturers would be able to buy the pulpwood at their own price and they would be thereby enabled to leave just that much more standing in their own limits, they would no doubt be able to buy this wood at less money than they could take out their own for so it is quite plain who would benefit by an embargo, not the people of Canada, but the paper manufacturers. Now, let us see what is the alternate scheme mentioned in your article, they are the farmers and settlers in the County of Hastings who are able to cut a few cords of pulpwood on their farms and sell to the best market they can get which at present is no export market. I might just say there has been as many as five hundred cars of pulpwood shipped out of this County in one year. While I mention Hastings County other Counties in Ontario whose farmers have pulpwood to dispose of would be affected in the same way, but, if there were no embargo they would have to take just whatever price would be offered and the end part of it is that an embargo would not benefit the people of Canada but only a few who might be fortunate enough to own a paper mill. Of course it is quite right that when our forests are cut down that they demand that it be manufactured in Ontario but it would be better if such prices materials is given. Thanking you for your valuable space, I am yours truly,

JOHN S. MARSHALL.

AT SHANNONVILLE

The Easter Thanksoffering of the W.M.S. of the former Methodist Church of Shannonville was held in the frame church on Sunday evening, March 28th, Mrs. W. S. Dies, the President, in the chair. Mrs. W. D. Robertson gave the Bible reading—Matthew 23th chapter. A very pretty sacred pageant "Easter Gates" was given by the Junior League, under the leadership of Mrs. Robt. Sills, Superintendent, assisted by Misses Plouse and Ruby Little, Mrs. Ellis and Miss Sarah Stanek. Very pleasing solos were rendered by Miss Thelma Liddle, Miss Beatrice Liddle and little Miss Ruby Little's trio. Miss Rosa gave very interesting reading. A sacred drama "The Triumph of the Cross" was given by the following ladies, Mrs. Chas. Liddle, Mrs. Kenneth Vivian and the Misses Mildred Stone, Frona Fuller, Beatrice Liddle, Ina Liddle and Laura Farnsworth. Accompanying music was furnished by Miss Bernice McDonald and Miss Rev. H. Seymour (pianists) assisted by a splendid choir. The congregation of about 300 were enthusiastic in their praise of the commendable manner in which all those assisting rendered their parts, making this last meeting a decided success.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished by internal medicine; therefore cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the cause and called his prescription HEMROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside application. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McKeown's drug store today. It has given satisfaction and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

BLACKHEADS

Blackheads go quickly by a simple method that just dissolves them. Get two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist, rub this with a hot, wet cloth briskly over the blackheads —and you will wonder where they have gone.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF REDNERSVILLE W. I.

We were favored with an ideal moonlight night on March 15th, for our fifth annual banquet at Albury church. Four tables accommodated as many white, with flowers and greens and shamrock serviettes, were laden with most palatable "eats". Our president, Mrs. Lena Brickman, welcomed our guests, who included our husbands and families and several from Belleville who assisted in the programme. Mrs. W. Cole very graciously acted as toast mistress. Responding to the toast to Our King, all joined in "God Save the King" and Mr. Herman Montgomery in a few appropriate words responded to "Our Country". Rev. Mr. Dunn, in responding to the toast to "Our Guests" referred to the present broadcasting out activities of the W. I. as also half of all thanked the Ladies. The usual toast to "The Farmer" was responded to by Mr. Dun. Speaker who in turn proposed a toast to "The Ladies". This was ably responded to by Mr. Dann.

The president of Our Community Club, Mr. Gerald Anderson, with very appropriate references to the scope of clubs activities, responded to "Our Community Club".

We are greatly indebted to those assisting in the programme. Mrs. Grant, Miss Hawken and Miss Bryce in musical numbers, while Miss Lafferty and Mrs. Macfadden gave vocal humorous readings. The orchestra composed of four sons of our members, Sherman Baldwin, Lloyd Spencer, Keith Bedner and Ralph Bedner, furnished music during the evening.

TOWNSHIP BOARD SCHEME WAITS YEAR AT LEAST

Rural Sentiment Still Too Heavily Against Proposed Change

AIM TO SAVE 25%

Resume of Final Week Of Legislature—New Election Rules

Toronto, April 3 (By Mail).—With two morning sittings of the House, and as many as three committees at work at the same time, the legislature handled a great amount of business in the final week. Not a great deal of legislation proved contentious, and the Opposition appeared to have no serious objections to Government measures. Such discussion as there was took place on public and private bills. The prime minister's intimation a few days ago that the government had no objection to staying on, and continuing the session after Easter adjournment, appears to have had the effect of inspiring private members to expedite business. In addition, the Progressive group has not been very heavily represented, and during most of one evening session every seat in that section of the House was vacant.

WOULD CUT EXPENSES

The Township School Boards Bill was discussed on Tuesday by the prime minister, Dr. J. D. Monteith (Con. North Perth); A. P. Mewhinney, (Lib. West Grenville); Sam Clarke (Lib. Northumberland); A. J. Fallis (Con. East Durham); J. W. Sangster (Lib. Glengarry); D. J. Taylor, (Prog. North York); D. M. Ross, (Prog. North Oxford) and A. Delaney, (Lib. Russell). The bill, as previously intimated by the premier, was submitted only for discussion and of getting in opposition to the suggestion, and was then withdrawn for the present year. Mr. Ferguson said that the surroundings the little red school house, the other is the reluctance of local school trustees to lose autonomy in the handling of local affairs. I think it only requires a little education to show them that we can greatly improve the situation. Officials of the department who have worked out this problem from a financial standpoint assure me that in five or six years the cost of education under such a plan would be reduced 25 to 30 per cent., and this would certainly be a great relief to rural people."

AID FOR UNIVERSITIES

When the House was passing supplementary estimates on Tuesday, Premier Ferguson called attention to an impression given by some newspaper headings that the government proposed to cut off entirely and at once all contribution to Queens and Western Universities at Kingston and London. He explained that while he had given the authorities of these institutions warning that they must look about for endowments in order to augment their revenue and carry their own financing, yet he recognized that both were doing good work, and there was no idea of terminating sharply and entirely all provincial assistance during such period as they were arranging to finance themselves. His contention, however, was that Toronto was the only university, and it was not reasonable to ask the province indefinitely to finance two others.

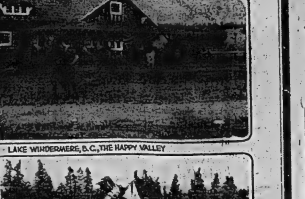

TWO MONTHS' RESIDENCE

Although the special committee on the Election laws threw out Mr. Hanley's bill to prohibit campaign contributions from brewers, government contractors, etc., several important changes were approved. Advance polls will be held on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, immediately preceding election day, for railway men and commercial travellers. The three months' residence qualification is reduced to two, with a view to relief of farm laborers and others who take employment in a new place in the Spring. Elections in this province commence come 1st, Nov. The time is also to be extended an hour in the evening. Provision is to be made whereby persons in rural constituencies who find their names left off the list may vote by making an affidavit and obtaining the affidavit of one well-known person.

Uncrowned King of a Happy Valley

ONE OF LIEUT. GOV. BRUCE'S INDIAN FRIENDS.

LAKE WINDERMERE, B.C., THE HAPPY VALLEY

BRUCE (SEATED RIGHT) BEING MADE AN INDIAN CHIEF

Robert Randolph Bruce has recently been appointed Lieut.-Governor of British Columbia, as the representative of King George in that province of Canada. Like many another successful Canadian, he came from Scotland, about thirty years ago, bringing with him a frock coat, a tall hat, and a bundle of introductory letters. He was the son of the minister of the parish from which George Stephen later Lord Mountstephen, then President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, had come, and so the first office where he presented himself was that of T. G. Shaughnessy, then general manager. In a very few minutes he was given a job, but as he was going out the door, T. G." called after him, "Young man, if you want to get on in this country, shed that coat."

Mr. Bruce must have obeyed instructions, for he has been "getting on" until his recent appointment seems to be as near the top as any Canadian could ever be. And, of incident with his own development, has come about the development of the Windermere Valley in British Columbia, where he has made his home for some years. Having interests first took him, back in 1889, to the upper reaches of the Columbia River, where he commenced operations on the Silver Bird claim on Boulder Creek, a tributary of Horse Thief Creek, near the spectacular Lake of the Hanging Glaciers. Later he left this for a new claim called Paradise, from which has sprung the appellation Happy Valley. The village at Windermere, on the western side of Lake Windermere, was the first to take root, and here Mr. Bruce settled. He built a bungalow, and planted a garden, a garden which today is a riot of exquisite flowers. A regular flower show about the time visitors at the Canadian Pacific Bungalow camp opened a year or so ago a short distance along the lake shore from the Bruce estate.

Not only did the indefatigable gardener plant lovely flowers in his garden, but realizing the difficulties of keeping miners at their jobs, he planted fresh vegetables in sufficient quantities for his men to have a diet of fresh vegetables instead of a diet of tin cans. His ores are mined with never a strike.

Enormous Changes in Contemplation to Provide Electric Energy

Ottawa, April 5.—(By Canadian Press).—The salient features of the Gatineau River, Quebec, development for the international Paper Company as described by James B. Brace, Engineer are:

1.—A dam across the Gatineau River, 35 miles above Maniwaki, Que., which will create a storage lake of 64,000 acres—over 60 miles long and several miles wide in places —a lake that will drain an area of 6,200 square miles.

2.—A dam at Chelsea 109 feet high, which will hold back the water of the Gatineau River 12½ miles, wiping out all the falls and rapids and creating a lake as far north as Wakefield. Many acres of the lower lands will be flooded. This dam will make available at all times 74,300 horse-power. During the coming summer the section between Chelsea and Wakefield will be denuded of standing timber and underbrush, but its barren appearance will be softened by the rising of the waters next fall.

3.—The removal to a higher level of some five miles between Chelsea and Wakefield of the Gatineau branch of the C.P.R. tracks together with the highway.

5.—A mill near East Templeton opposite Kettle Island, on the Ottawa River, with an initial capacity of 500 tons of newsprint per day, and buildings covering 470,000 square feet. The mill will use 225,000 cords of wood annually.

During the coming summer there will be employed at each of these four points about 1,200 men who will be housed and fed on the jobs.

Of the 125,000 horse-power developed, 35,000 horse-power will be required for driving the machinery of the mill. The balance will be used for producing steam, for drying paper and for other heat purposes until there is a demand for it from the outside for the ordinary use of hydro electric power.

TORONTO Y.M.C.A. TEAM TOO GOOD AND WON 37-21

Practice of Locals on Larger Floor Not Extensive Enough

The local Association basket ball team journeyed to Toronto on Saturday for the return game with the Central intermediates who played here the previous week, and managed to obtain a fire point lead for the return game.

Although the locals played good basketball they did not prove equal to the task of conquering the College St. aggregation who were very much at home on the larger playing space and the more open style of game. At half time the score stood 15-9 for Toronto Central. The second half started out well for Belleville but this session had progressed only a few minutes when the services of Cole were lost owing to the personal foul rule. Although they worked hard all the way, Armstrong, Weir & Co. were not able to get the lead on the Central squad who appeared able to get baskets from every position on the floor. When the local defence held them out they scored on long shots, while on the other hand if the defence went out to meet the oncoming forwards they only invited disaster. The final score was 37-21 for Central and registered as follows:

Belleville—Forwards, Armstrong 5; Herity; Barlow 4. Centre, Faulkner 2. Guards, Morrison; Weir 8; Cole 2; Buchanan. Total 21.

ATLANTIC CITY EASTER PARADE WAS COLORFUL

Moving Mass of 200,000 Persons in Brilliant Colors—Weather Perfect

Atlantic City, April 5.—A monster throng, forming a moving mass of brilliant colors, and with numbers estimated at well over 200,000, wound back and forth along the boardwalk staging one of the greatest Easter Sunday fashion parades in the history of the resort.

The extraordinary success of the famous annual event was due, primarily, to literally perfect weather. The sky was cloudless and the air balmy. Furs and coats were largely discarded, giving unimpeded view of the display of feminine finery.

PASTEL SHADES

The bright colors of feminine dress including every pastel shade but with green and grey predominating, were particularly striking. Coats were knee length and with but little for trimming, although many for neck pieces were worn. There were countless numbers of bright hued scarfs.

Despite reports to the contrary, skirts continued short, many extending barely to the knee, with sheer silk hose, usually matching the shirt in color. Several of the fair promenaders were their silk stockings rolled just above the knee, care legs being glimpsed as they strode or sat in chairs, while brilliant garters and other flowers were embroidered on their hose immediately below the knee line.

COLORFUL HEELS

Others were golden bracelets about their ankles. The footwear was extremely attractive, golden embroidered, stiff neck or sore muscles just get, slippers being prevalent. There were a few of Rowla-Red Peppers Rub, made heels of every shade, while many of them red peppers at any drug store. You the fancy foot coverings were practic- will have the quickest relief known.

Toronto, April 5.—Dolly Martin, two and a half years old was burned to death when fire broke out in a house occupied by her parents on Queen street west, early today. Her parents, Albert Martin and his wife, are in hospital suffering from severe burns. The blaze is thought to have originated from a defective wiring.

Lucky Counter for Victoria Starts Them Toward Victory

Montreal, April 5.—After having the Stanley Cup and world's pro hockey hon ors practically clinched, the Montreal Maroons cracked in the third game of the third game of the series at the Forum Saturday night and Victoria Cougars, defending champions battled to a 3-2 win. The victory coming under cast ern rules and with the fourth game to tomorrow night to be played under the western code has brought the westerners from rank outsiders to almost even favorite with the Maroons as probable winners of the series.

SIEBERT STARTED

Despite the mental hazard of having dropped the first two goals a-la being one goal down early in the third timely, after Siebert had scored on his own rebound little more than three minutes after the start of the ball Saturday night the Cougars, far fro m being tamed, fought like the wild cats after which they are named. They evened the score in the last minute of the first session on a soft goal by Bliss Hadderon, who shot from the blue fire. Benedict deci ded his head as the disc went whistling over the top of the net. The puck struck the wire netting in front of Goal Umpire Dave Ritchie and bounded back to the top of the netting on the Maroon end. It balanced there for a moment and as Benedict was tursily around to look for the puck the rubber took a slow fall into the goal.

WON THE GAME

Right there Victoria won the game. The break in their favor gave them the start for which they had been searching since the beginning of the series. It was their first tally and gave them heart. They opened up in the second period with rushes that were irritable for the Marcons were taken aback by the reverse. Tired after a strenuous five-week campaign, the Montreal ers could no re gain their true stride. They became disorganized defensively and before the could tighten up Clem Loughlin, leader of the coast team, had come in unmolested in the second period to bat in the rebound on a shot from Frederick son.

VICTORIA TOOK LEAD

For the fin ttime in three games Victoria were in the lead. There was no holding them. They outskated the jad ed Maroons until half way through the final session, when Fosterickson speedy centre of the visiting team, clinched the game by completely tricking the Maroon defense and outpassing Benedict fo r a counter.

Montreal fought back. The Cougars went on a strictly defensive game to hold their margin. They tied up one Montreal rush after another with a stubborn guerilla like barrier that could not be beaten. Five minutes before the end of the game the Maroons got back to within one goal of the cup defenders. Stewart taking a back pass from Siebert to shoot from outside the defence. The final five minutes was a procession around the Victoria goal, but the tying counter would not come and the game ended with Benedict being forced to make a brilliant eye to prevent Ruwel Ostman from adding to the counters margin.

O.B.A.A. MEETING ELECTS OFFICERS

Jack Knott Only Representative For Central Ontario

Toronto, April 5.—W. J. Soldier, of Hamilton, was re-elected president of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association at the conclusion of the annual meeting held in the Carls-Rite Hotel.

President, W. J. Soldier, Hamilton.

Secretary, A. J. Walshe, of Toronto.

A.A.U. of C. governor, P. M. Kennedy, of Toronto.

Executive, W. Wiley of Ottawa; W. A. Smith, of Galt; J. G. Nott, of Oshawa; A. Hillmer, of Oakville. Two more to be appointed by the president.

Sport Notes

Port Arthur fans recorded the Allan Cup winners a wonderful reception on their return from the east after a successful series with the Varsity. The demonstration was practically an all-night affair and resulted on a nuisance scale the all fair which followed the winning of the world series in Washington in 1924. The players have been offered tempting offers by "pro" teams but in all probability the team will remain intact and endeavor to repeat this year's performance and represent Canada in the 1928 Olympic games.

The Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association held their annual meeting on Good Friday and indications point to the most successful season in the history of the association. By the way what about the promising revival of the ancient Indian pastime game which started in Belleville some two years ago? Is it a dead issue? Are there not enough public spirited citizens here to push the project and establish a team here? If the right party takes the helm there is an abundance of young material here to enjoy a team in the O.A.L.A. in either the junior or juvenile series.

Tex Rickard is anxious to build an open-air stadium on Long Island and play summer hockey. It has always been a winter sport and rounds rather ridiculous. It is entirely too strenuous a game to be played under the blasting rays of "old sol." What hockey player wants to skate at a furious clip for sixty minutes with a temperature of ninety or a hundred degrees in the shade?

Joe Kelly who was sold to the Chicago Cubs by the Toronto Leafs may return to his old love. He is not doing as well as anticipated with Wrigley's team. Failure to hit big-league pitching is proving his down fall.

The Stanley Cup series is viewed from an entirely new aspect after Saturday night's game when the Cougars fumbled the mighty Marcoons. All indications had pointed to another victory for the National League champs, but Lester Patrick and Company with a burst of speed remained in the running by almost over a 2-2 tie which will accentuate at least one more game before a champion is returned. The next game under western rules favors the Victoria team who may duplicate Saturday night's performance.

Lionel Conacher has been signed by Dan Howley of the Toronto Leafs. The "big train" expects to make a hitch on his home town team. Conacy was expected to join the team at Augusta but preferred to remain with the Pittsburgh "yellow Jackets" and accompany them on their bera-storming tour.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants is in for another bang-up season if reports from the southern training camps can be true. Billy Evans in his tours through the southland states that Mugsy's team will figure strongly in the pennant chase. Jackson, brilliant short-stop, has not showed up any and with the signing of the youthful Lindstrom and the versatile Kelly at first base together with Frankl Frisch rounds out his infield.

ONTARIO LABOR TO USE "FORCE" TO GET REFORMS

Constitutional Means should Be Pursued Only while Effective

London, Ont., April 3. — Radicals again triumphed in today's session of the Ontario section of the Canadian Labor party, in annual convention here, when on motion of Jack MacDonald of Toronto, majority support was given to a resolution declaring that constitutional means should be pursued only while effective and that force should be then an accepted policy of pursuing social reforms.

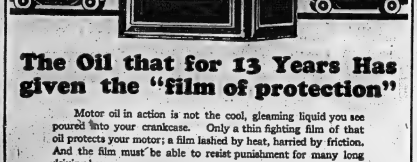

John F. Thomson of London, assailed MacDonald declaring that the Communists wanted the unity of the labor movement only in matters in which they were securing the enforcement of their own policies. He declared that the Canadian Labor party is modeled after the British labor movement which has always held that force is not justified while any progress can be made by constitutional means. MacDonald has at first proposed a straight resolution declaring an immediate resort to force and asserting that constitutional action had already failed. Later he consented to the amendment of his resolution.

The contingent which dominated the convention is the most avowedly radical group ever seen in a labor conference in western Ontario according to the defeatees of the right wing, who are in a minority.

The Oil that for 13 Years Has given the "film of protection"

Motor oil in action is not the cool, gleaming liquid you see poured into your crankcase. Only a thin fighting film of that oil protects your motor; a film lashed by heat, harried by friction. And the film must be able to resist punishment for many long driving hours.

Far too often the ordinary oil fails. The film breaks, curls up, burns. Through the shattered film metal chafes against metal. Vital parts are bared directly to destructive heat and friction. The result? A slow march to a repair shop.

Tide Water Engineers spent years in studying not oils alone, but OIL FILMS. After thousands of tests, they perfected in Veedol an oil that gives the "film of protection," thin as tissue smooth as silk, tough as steel More than 3,000 laboratory tests a month at the Tide Water refinery insure a "film of protection"—always uniform, always trustworthy.

Any dealer displaying the orange and black Veedol sign will gladly drain your crankcase and refill it with the correct Veedol oil for your car. Have this done today and be sure to ask for Veedol by name.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

James Crane now boasts of the most costly motion picture plant in Hollywood. It is used in "Mannequin", which he produced for Paramount.

And it is only a room 30 by 40 feet! Instead of being a vast and lavish display of splendor, it is simply an austere room. The objects which fill it are almost priceless.

One five-piece set of antique French furniture alone is valued at a figure more than the usual Lavish set costs an eatery.

There is a French grandfather clock, made by the famous old French clockmaker, Simoner, of Paris. And there is an English clock, operated by a flow of water, once the property of Thomas Hall-ard, of London that bore the date of 1604. On it is Holland's motto: "Tyme Waxe Aweye". There are also several Dutch clocks and a French clock by Bubl; two Cloisonire Japanese vases, five feet tall; a remarkable Belgian tapestry; an unusual Japanese tapestry and a number of several other curio articles too numerous to mention and of tremendous value.

THE GOLD RUSH

That Charlie Chaplin has made in "The Gold Rush," his greatest comedy is the claim advanced by those who have seen it in its completed form.

The little comedian in his famous character of old has created, in one episode alone, more laughs than are usually shown in feature comedies of many thousands of feet. But laughs alone are not relied upon to make this United Artists' corporation release, Charlie's greatest. The story and dramatics of the production are powerful, too.

"The Gold Rush" is really Charlie's screened autobiography, symbolized against the background of Alaskan gold rush days. The stirring days of the Klondike rushes, the hardships endured by the pioneers who journeyed in the northernmost country are depicted with intense realism of one who in his early life, has had to live through the tragedy of hunger and misery.

"Chilkoot Pass," that famous gateway to the great Klondike cut through the snows over a precipitous mountain side, the pass which struck terror in the heart of the bravest and where many passed, has been duplicated and its hardships re-enacted by

The gal and the riches that Bushy come to the "successful" prospector in "The Gold Rush" do not bring him happiness—as the materist success that is Charlie Chaplin's at-last has never satisfied his soul.

Ancient Bogey Laid to Rest

Canadian Pacific President Outlines His Company's Attitude to Railway Situation in Important Statement—Believes Improvement in National Conditions Will Provide Best Solutions of Railway Problems.

E. W. Beatty, K.C.

In an address to the Montreal Canadian Club here recently, E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific, made an important contribution to public understanding of the Canadian railway situation. Mr. Beatty briefly outlined railway history from the earliest days of Canada and Canadian institutions, the action of the Government was vastly viewed. Some opposed it fearing the consequences to the extension of the government into business; others approved because they regarded Government ownership as a panacea for most of our transportation and economic ills.

Never Wanted C. N. R.

The successive steps towards government acquisition of these properties was justified by some who favored it by the theory of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. When the absorption of the Canadian Northern was proposed the people were told that the Canadian Pacific had actually made a very favorable bid for them. "The Canadian Pacific," said Mr. Beatty, "were not anxious to acquire and have never made no offer of any kind for them. Parliament was later urged to support government acquisition of the Grand Trunk partly on the ground that otherwise those roads would be gobbled up by the C. P. R."

"There existed objections that rendered that possibility almost ridiculously remote. Legislation by statute absolute prohibition against any arrangement of amalgamation, Duplication by the Grand Trunk of their existing Canadian facilities rendered its acquisition unnecessary and unwise. The Grand Trunk could not be divorced from the Grand Trunk Pacific with its enormous liabilities, which, I recognize, no corporation in Canada could think of assuming even if able to do so. Lastly, the acquisition of the Grand Trunk had never been considered to the Canadian Pacific or by the Canadian Pacific. It had never been considered or contemplated in any way or by any means, direct or indirect. It was the old familiar bogey, namely, that of securing an imaginary secondary purchaser in order to make the purchase more attractive to those who had some doubt as to whether or not they wished to make the purchase at all.

"Methods have not changed and periodically come rumors of economy to take over or in some way injure the property of our competitors and that these are circulated by those friendly to the Canadian Pacific. So long as there is government ownership that class of operations will be involved, and where there are politics it is inevitable that there are many rumours and much propaganda. The Canadian Pacific changes which have reduced Canada's standing of railway systems, one governmentally and the other privately owned and operated, have been subjected to a greater extent politically and consequently to a greater administration. They naturally involved a change in policy and by reporters, the former providing the necessary funds and the latter paying the bills.

Private Initiative Lauded.

"The Canadian Pacific pays to Federal taxes $5,479 per day for the privilege of operating in railway competition with the Government in this country. The things upon which the Canadian Pacific pays taxes were before depended upon those upon which the Government will likewise depend. Private initiative and the efforts of the numerous groups of men and individuals are what will make for Canada's industrial prosperity and economic stability. I believe that the Canadian Pacific realizes that there should be less government in business and more business in government, and that it will not turn your minds to this railway problem if a member of the management is often misinformed because the Pacific Railway has a new president who advocates one theory or another. We are simply here to run our houses and not enough guests to fill them. We are here to run our trains not due to duplication of facilities; that is impossible in case of competition but each must preserve and expand its business else it fails. Rates and the need for competition is good provided the minimum of waste is secured by economical administration.

"The burdens of the country are heavy and they should be reduced as far as reasonable and with expedition. The Canadian Pacific has ceased trying to give the best service possible, and has no show in fairness to the country reasonable expression of its facilities and the service required of them.

"Nothing is more important to the successful development of this country than fair rate schedules. Prosperity is partially brought to bear by the granting of rate concessions on a sound or national or local basis, and the Canadian Pacific admits feel that a difference in the character of ownership of these railways involves a difference in attitude towards the matter of adequate revenues. The only existing problem respecting rates is their reasonableness and freedom from unjust discrimination. Those fundamentals do not change with the character of the ownership of the railways operating in Canada.

"I hope I will not live to see the day when Canadian railways are nationalized because I would regard nationalization of these huge properties, without competition and politically influenced in their administration, as would inevitably be the case, as probably the greatest political and commercial menace this country could possibly experience. As conditions are, there is no soundness after principle than a direct link down in the letter and spirit of the railway's duty to provide proper reasonable rates and prohibits unjust discrimination and the proper level of service and its costs as a factor in determining what a shipper should pay.

Spur of Competition Needed.

"A year ago a careful, unbiased enquiry was conducted by the senate into the personal views of nine of our acknowledged authority on financial transportation and business in service's discussion in respect of a possible solution of our transportation problems. Asked if I believed in a competitive company for the government railway I answered that while no one should attempt to forecast conditions for the next few years with that certainly which would justify a definite and unchangeable view, I did not believe in such competition. I said I thought a merger would involve difficulties in administration which were scarcely considered and that it would in time affect the character of the service rendered. I did not know how it would be possible for an enterprise with a monopoly to be as economical and ably thousand employees to be maintained at the present state of efficiency without the spur of competition.

"These two systems are strongly competitive and the people of Canada are obtaining excellent transportation service. Neither of them are encharged in any other country in the world. Both systems of the two systems get along in as complete harmony as you would expect or I would want. We both realize that our future prosperity is inextricably linked with that of the country.

"We gain little by living in a world of criticism of our past railway mistakes—serious though they have turned out to be. It would, I think, be more profitable to devote ourminds to methods of improving our present service and to the problems revolve around the necessity for more people, lower taxation and defensical policies national in their purpose and their scope. We will remedy these conditions we can from our railway problem with the Canadian people and from whom our perspective is clearer because our knowledge is more precise, and when we see our railways respond to the impetus which the country alone can give to them. Railway re-arrangements can save money but they cannot create new traffic and in the last analysis traffic volume, which means the country's economic and commercial prosperity, will determine the extent of the transportation burdens.

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"You did well to let me in," said Lady Ruth, in a slow, constrained voice, as if struggling hard to retain her self possession. "If you had not I would have forced the door. What have you to say?"

"What have I to say!" echoed Constance dully, and still staring at her.

"Yes. Do not repeat my words; there is no time to be lost. I have not come to bandy words with you it be a degradation to me to have to speak to you at all."

"Once for all, Miss Grahame, let us tell you that you cannot play the part of injured innocence. Realize that; it will save time to both of us and save pain to you. It will be better for me to speak plainly."

She pointed to the bed and then to Constance's dressing gown.

"You have not been to bed; you are still dressed. Why?"

Constance's face grew crimson, then white. She tried to speak. Then, as it flashed into her mind that one word, one unguarded word, might lead to the discovery of the marquis' secret interview with the man, he had bribed, she closed her lips firmly and stood silent.

"I see," almost hissed Lady Ruth. "You are wise; the most elaborate lie would not avail you. You shame long girl!"

A shudder ran through Constance's frame.

"Yes, shameless!" repeated Lady Ruth venomously. "No one but the most shameless would be guilty of such conduct as yours. Did you consider it probable that you could arrange this interview without a chance of discovery? You forget that my room," she pointed over her room," she pointed over her shoulder, "is only separated by a door, still keeping her eyes fixed upon Constance's face as the serpent keeps its eyes upon the helpless bird it is fascinating to its destruction, "that my room is directly over the drawing room in which your meeting was to take place, ?"

Lady Ruth laughed mockingly.

"Oh, you are a capital actress; I saw it from the first. But spare me your theatricals; they do not deceive as you may think him, Lord Brakespeare is not fool enough to marry me. You have not a farewell man to deal with now, Miss Grahame, but a woman who knows and — hates you."

The last two words escaped her unwittingly, but they seemed to relieve her.

Constance's breath came in short quick gasps.

"You have nothing to say? Well, I think you are wise. Yes no doubt you would deny the fact that you left your room—at such an hour!—to meet the marquis."

Lady Ruth smiled scornfully and furiously.

"No use," she said. "I heard his voice and yours. I saw you coming up the stairs!"

Constance hid her face in her hands. Lady Ruth stood beating her foot upon the carpet in a mad frenzy.

"I saw you—I saw you! You have nothing to say. There is the hard fact, and I have come to deal with you. If you can utter one word of truth, if there is one speck of remorse in your bosom, tell me exactly me what passed between you!"

Constance drooped her hands and looked the infuriated woman in the face, her eyes blazing, her lips set.

"I—I would rather die!" she said changing instantly into passionate defiance.

Lady Ruth breathed hard, and looked at her in silence for a moment and if a look could have killed, Constance would have fallen at her feet.

"You are right!" she hissed. "It was too much to ask you. Even you are not so shameless as to repeat to an honest woman— May I ask what you intend to do? What are your plans?"

Constance stood upright and trembling no longer.

"My plans?" she repeated in a low, distinct voice.

"Yes. They have succeeded marvelously well—up to this point. But now—now that you have succeeded in ensnaring your prey, what do you intend to do? I suppose you imagine that there is no obstacle between you and the Brakespeare coronet. You fool!"

The words were uttered with such malignant scorn that Constance involuntarily recoiled.

"Oh, I read you as easily as a book," continued Lady Ruth, with a laugh. "But, like most women of your stamp, you are too clever and too self-confident.! You think the marquis will marry you!" she laughed, mockingly. "Miss Grahame, you do not know him quite well enough. You marry him! You!" She looked Constance from head to foot with infinite contempt. "Fool that you are, you are a capital actress; I saw it from the first. But spare me your theatricals; they do not deceive as you may think him, Lord Brakespeare is not fool enough to marry me. You have not a farewell man to deal with now, Miss Grahame, but a woman who knows and — hates you."

She looked Constance from head to foot with infinite contempt. "Fool that you are, you shall not marry him!"

"That you promise to tell the marquis nothing of this. Give him what reason you like for my going but do not let him for one that you heard him or saw me last night, or that you have accused me as you have done."

Lady Ruth thought swiftly.

"I agree," she said. "I've no doubt you consider that I have acted as I have done from sheer hatred for you."

Constance waved her words aside.

"It does not matter."

"Well, I hate you, but I consider that even in my hatred I have been your best friend. You will think so when you come to your senses. I tell you once again that he would never have married you; never, never!"

"Will you go, please?" broke from Constance's white lips.

"I am going; there is no more to be said. A carriage will be ready in three-quarters of an hour. I will account for your sudden disappearance."

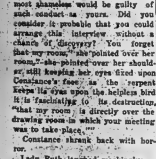

She halted a minute.

"You will want money; here is some."

She went and laid it on the dressing table. Constance took it up and flung it at her feet. Lady Ruth laughed scornfully.

"I understand. In three-quarters of an hour?"

EXPECTANT MOTHERS

Read Mrs. Menard's Letter. Her Experience May Help

Chatham, Ontario. — "I want to tell you how much good your medicine has done me. Before my baby came I felt so weak and run down that I could hardly do my work. My head ached continually and I was so discouraged that I didn't care from morning till night. I had another baby just over four and a half old and it gave me a lot. So I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I had read so much about it in the little books. I found a difference right away as my head was relieved and my tired feelings gone. My sister had been doing my washing and she continued doing it, as she said it might set me back if I started to do it again. I have did help me and I had taken just two bottles when my baby came. He is a fine big boy now nearly five months old. I am taking your medicine again and I am able to do my work, all by myself now. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to women, and especially to expectant mothers as I believe they need help at those times."— Mrs. OLIVER MENARD, 54 Conter St., Chatham, Ontario.

DIED

Adam Cassibo

(Contributed)

The funeral of the late Adam Cassibo was held from his late residence at the Noyes Mines, 12th Con. Hastingdon, to White Lake Cemetery on Monday, 29th March, 1926. The minister of Ivanhoe Charge spoke from Eccl. 11:1, "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not." The hymns were, "What a Friend we have in Jesus," "Jesus, Lover of my Soul", and "A few more years, shall roll."

The pall bearers Messrs. Wesley Wiggins, Wm. Ashe, J. A. Ashe, Jas. McGuire, Alf. Holland, S. Kernohan.

Thus there is closed a chapter in life book. As a plucked rose to the ground so the ministrations of a bread winner ceased, the silvery notes of sympathy and praise are silent to that tongue and his mortal crown no longer shields the mystic power of prayer and contemplation. While to a home bereft, the Eternal takes on a new relation in that He becomes to them the God of the faithless and of the widow.

Mr. Cassibo was born in Sheffield, Yorkshire, England, nearly 59 years ago. His father's name was Wm. Cassibo and his mother's Betsy Crevier. He is survived by two brothers William and Simon (Sam) and three sisters, Ella., Mrs. Thompson of Napanee, Fanny, Mrs. Thompson of Brantford and Belinda (Mrs. Durocher of Hungerford). Also by his widow, nee Miss Clark, and two sons Edward and William.

The deceased met his death as a result of the accidental discharge of a blast in a nearby mine. The last circumstances call forth wide sympathy.

HANG CHAPMAN FOR THE MURDER OF A POLICEMAN

Connecticut State Board Of Pardons Refused Fourth Appeal

ROBBERY AND KILLING

High Spots in Life of Crime Reviewed—His Name A By-word

Wethersfield Prison, Conn., April 6.—Gerald Chapman, notorious for twenty years of sensational crimes, ended his life on the gallows of Connecticut state prison as a murderer at four minutes past midnight.

Calm and showing little emotion, he stepped under the noose of the States new hanging machine and paid for penalty for the murder of Policeman James Skelly at New Britain, Conn., in October 1924.

Eleven ministers later doctors pronounced him dead after a life of crime that began when he was 16, led him through jails and penitentiaries and made his name a byword in every police station in the country.

The robber's body was claimed by Father Barry, prison chaplain, who buried it today.

The sensational $1,454,000 mail truck robbery in New York and the equally sensational escape from Atlanta penitentiary to which he was sentenced for 25 years for the crime, were the high spots of his criminal career. Three times had Chapman been reprieved in last minute efforts to save his life.

Chapman said the penalty after a greatly eventful day. He had personally appeared before the board of pardons to make his own plea for mercy to the extent of commutation to life imprisonment.

The Board spent much deliberation refused the pardon.

CHAPMAN'S BURIAL

Hartford, Conn., April 6.—In a plot of ground in Mount St. Benedicts cemetery, just over the Bloomfield line this today the body of Gerald Chapman, who was hanged at Wethersfield Prison in the early morning. Gathered about the grave as the body was lowered into the grave were Frederick Gruehl, the bandit's chief counsel, an assistant defence attorney, and the sister of Chapman who arrived in the city yesterday. Her identity was kept secret.

CITY AND COUNTY LOSE A FRIEND IN HIS DEATH

Mr. Burnham Mallory, County Treasurer 21 Years, Passes

WAS MODEL FARMER

Official For Quarter of Century of Holstein-Friesian Assn.

At an early hour this morning a well-known and respected citizen of Belleville and Hastings County passed away in the person of Mr. Burnham Mallory.

For some months he had been ill at his late home, 257 John street, and his demise was not altogether unexpected.

WIDELY KNOWN

As a farmer and breeder of high class stock, County treasurer and other important offices held for many years, he was esteemed by all with whom he came in contact and his demise will be widely regretted.

He was born on the 9th day of April, 1854 in the Township of Sidney so that he would have been 72 had he lived until Friday next.

SON OF PIONEERS

Deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Mallory, one of the pioneer settlers of the Township. For a number of years Mr. Mallory was a successful farmer and always took an interest in farm work even after he had made his home in Belleville. Deceased was at one time Deputy Reeve of Sidney Town. He was also a representative from that municipality in the County when the business was conducted by Commissioners.

TREASURER 21 YEARS

Some twenty-one years ago while he was a member of the County Council a vacancy occurred in the treasurership of the County and Mr. Mallory was appointed to the position. He fulfilled the duties in a manner that was most creditable to the County and to himself while he held the office up to the time he was compelled to relinquish these duties. The County Council did not declare the position vacant but appointed Mr. James Haggerty treasurer pro tem.

If there was one association above another that Mr. Mallory took a deep interest in it was the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada. He was one of the first members, having united with it over 50 years ago. For twenty-five years he was auditor of the Association and was still a member at the time of his death.

A FRATERNAL MAN

Mr. Mallory was a member of the I.O.F. and A.O.U.W. Societies and for years was a member of the Presbyterian Church. When Union was consummated he joined John Street United Church and was one of its elders.

THE FAMILY

The greater portion of his life was spent in Sidney Township where he had a happy home with deceased. Mallory died about two years ago. Surviving is a family of three sons and three daughters. The sons are Edward of Beaverton, Fred R. of Sidney, and Lorne of Belleville. The daughters are Mrs. H. Wren of Midland, Mrs. J. Denham of Montreal, and Miss Maude at home. To those called upon to mourn the loss of a loving father will be extended in heartfelt sympathy of many friends.

THE WEATHER

Increasing easterly winds, snow or rain tonight and on Wednesday.

JUVENILE COURT DOES GOOD WORK KIWANIS IS TOLD

HAS FAITH IN BOYS

Current Edition No Worse Than Those of 25 Years Ago

An interesting an address as any to which Kiwanians of this city have ever had the pleasure of listening was delivered to the Organization this afternoon at the Club had as its guest Judge D. B. Harkness, formerly Judge of the Juvenile Court in Winnipeg, and in the course of his most interesting address, gave Kiwanians valuable suggestions to help them in their special work—the welfare of the boy.

HE HAS EXPERIENCE

Judge Harkness spoke from a wealth of experience and a wide knowledge of his subject when he dealt with "Juvenile delinquency in Canada and what we are doing about it." He made clear to his listeners in the first place the legal meaning of the term "delinquent"—a youth who violates a law or by-law for which a penalty may be imposed, as contrasted with the ordinary sense of the word signifying any misdemeanour. In the legal sense, then, all juvenile infractions of the law in places where a Juvenile Court has been established—come under the Juvenile Delinquents Act. of 1908. Thus, if youths were to break a law in the city of Belleville his might be regarded as a criminal, whereas in a locality where there is an established Juvenile Court, he would be regarded merely as a delinquent, dealt with in a Separate Court room in an informal manner, made to see the error of his ways by kind and fatherly treatment. All of which would be events leading to the correction of a boy who broke the law was treated as a criminal, thrown into jail, made to regard himself as a vicious and injurious to society; the natural reaction made him resent the treatment and produced a hardened criminal. Fortunately, to day there are more cases of delinquency but the increase is easily explained by the ever increasing opportunities which have offered them in the variety of possible infractions of the law, such as have resulted from the introduction of the automobile.

SOCIETY'S RESPONSIBILITY

Juvenile Courts, Judge Harkness explained, may be established in cities, but the law provides that where they are established, such cases must be tried in a separate court room and a proper detention home provided; no Juvenile Court would be a success more or less if it did not have the support of citizens and be conducted with a proper understanding of the needs of the needs of the boys on the part of those in charge. All the people must assist in the correction and education aimed at; for only in this way could we ensure our proper care and attention boone, for "No child will be a failure if society does its part in giving him his chance to make something of himself."

RED LEADER HATES SWISS

Makes Light of Powers' Move Toward Disarmament

Moscow, April 6.—In the course of a long statement sent to newspapers George Tchitcherin, Soviet Foreign Minister, reiterated Russia's intention not to participate in the proposed disarmament conference because of Switzerland's "obstinate refusal to meet the minimum legitimate demands of the Soviet government in connection with Vorovsky's assassination. Vorovsky was shot and killed by a Swiss citizen who was later acquitted.

Tchitcherin states that the powers have not the slightest intention of bringing about actual disarmament, declaring that the meeting of the preliminary disarmament commission would be futile comedy. He charges that Sir Austen Chamberlain attempted to unite all the powers against Russia at the recent meeting of the League.

RIFFS FIGHTING ON TWO FRONTS

Paris, April 6.—A tacit armistice along the eastern extremity of Franco-Hittian front was the only indication relating toward peace in the Moroccan situation today. At Taza, however, Riffians attacked today and were driven off after a sharp engagement. An offensive against the Spanish in the direction of Larache is also reported.

DONALD KENNEDY CANNOT RESIGN SEAT IN HOUSE

Protest Cannot Be Proceeded With Until Session Ends

WILL EXPLAIN TO-DAY

Conservatives Suggest He Should Not Participate In Decisions

Ottawa, April 6.—When the House of Commons meets to-day after its Easter recess, Donald M. Kennedy, Progressive member for Peace River, will make a statement explaining his attitude regarding the election in Peace River and subsequent revelations. An Alberta court has found that ballots in the Peace River constituency were so manipulated as to deprive the Conservative candidate, J. A. Collins, of election, and the deputy returning officer responsible has been sentenced to the penitentiary for five years.

The situation resulting from the court finding is interesting in view of the legal restrictions, which limit action looking to rectification of ballots. Mr. Kennedy holds his seat in Parliament, although he secured only the second largest number of votes polled; the ballots which "Baldy" Robb, the deputy returning officer, was charged with switching from Colin Laing defeated the Conservative candidate. Nevertheless Kennedy, according to parliamentary authorities, cannot resign his seat if he would, nor can action be taken at the present time to unseat him and fill his place, in conformity with the will of the electors of Peace River. The law prevents the prosecution of protests against election while Parliament is in session and at the same time, since a protest against the election of a sitting member Kennedy is unable under the law to give up his seat.

The Liberals filed a protest against Kennedy's election sometime ago at the instigation, it is charged of C. W. Cross, member for Athabaska whose election the Progressives also protested. This protest cannot be proceeded with until the session is concluded, as the finding provides that a member cannot be required to leave his duties in Parliament to defend his seat. As Kennedy is one of the Progressive supporters the Government it is anticipated that the Liberals will not proceed with their protest, when the session is over. If they rop it the Conservatives would be free to enter another protest.

The success of any protest that was carried to a conclusion would, it is believed, result in the unseating of Kennedy and the bringing on of a by-election in Peace River.

BIG GOLD FIELD FIND IN PANAMA IN BRITISH HANDS

Discovery by Expedition Is Bigger Than Rand

Surprise in Few Days

London, April 6—A great gold field—bigger than the Rand gold field of South Africa—apparently, has been located by a British expedition in Panama, according to Henry Mond, son of Sir Alfred Mond. Sir Alfred Mond, Sally Joel and Henry Mond are the chief men in the venture to exploit this new goldfield.

As a result of tales of gold present in Panama in immense quantities an expedition under a London mining engineer, was sent out two years ago and guided by natives—so the story goes—found a great undeveloped land rich in gold, great reefs of goldbearing rock stretching to the horizon.

Henry Mond, interviewed on the subject, said: "The discoveries have been extraordinary. None of us makes claims, we can only say by what actually has been seen, but I have no hesitation in saying we think we have found a great gold field, bigger in area than the Rand gold field."

He added that concessions had been secured and already a syndicate formed to work them. A member of the syndicate described the undertaking as a national one which "would appreciably affect the prosperity of Great Britain," in connection with which he said: "In a few days the world will know and the world will be surprised." The syndicate is being backed by British land colonial capital, it is stated.

A VERITABLE RESURRECTION

Brought About By Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

"I didn't 'Go West' in France, but I came home to Canada carrying my death warrant, the doctor declared. I weighed exactly 120 pounds—not much for a six-footer. Look at me now! Just 185, and as hard as nails."

The speaker (name if requested), a young Canadian from Victoria, B.C., who had served overseas with the Royal Flying Corps, had returned in 1918 a mere shadow of a man. His mother despaired of his life and he, himself, felt that he had come home to die.

His uncle, a prominent doctor, suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and he decided to give it a trial. In one month he felt better. He persevered, and in three months was back at his position, healthy and happy.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will relieve constipation permanently if used regularly. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls in any form — in chronic cases with every meal. Only ALL-BRAN can conquer constipation.

Made in London, Canada, and sold by all dealers.

Cape Gris Nez, France, April 6.—The busiest season in cross-channel swimming looms up for 1926. Burgess, veteran trainer and second man to swim the channel, has established headquarters for training competitors.

Two Canadians are expected to be in the event. These are Omer Prevault, husky Frenchi-Canadian, and Eva Morrison, of Pictou, N.S., who recently demonstrated her indifference to cold.

Others who will try the channel will be Iobal Helmy, gigantic Egyptian; Miss Isabelle Le Gras, Miss Georges Polley, of France; Madame Jade Sion, of Dunkirk; Mlle. Suzanne Waria, former French champion; and the Misses Helen Wainwright, Gertrude Ederle and Ethel Cannon, of the United States.

DR. E. RYAN GAVE EXPERT EVIDENCE

Called in Kilfoyle Murder Trial Recently Heard At Ottawa

Ottawa, April 6— Evidence of two mental experts featured the trial of Louis Napoleon Pelletier in the Supreme Court of Ontario here.

The two alienists who gave evidence were Dr. Edward Ryan, superintendent of Rockwood Hospital for the Insane, at Rockwood Hospital for the Insane, at Kingston, and Dr. Harry Dover, local practitioner, and also alienist for the Pensions Board and D.S.C.R.

While both experts were in agreement on most of the details of their examination they disagreed as to final conclusions. Dr. Dover was positive.

"My conclusion is that the man is insane," he said at one time, and later: "He is irresponsible and his action would be out of all proportion to the size of the impulse."

At another point in his evidence Dr. Dover was asked by Phillippe Dubois, counsel for the defence:

"Assuming that he killed this woman did he know what he was doing?"

"I would say no," was the reply.

DR. RYAN'S EVIDENCE

On the other hand, Dr. Ryan was not nearly so positive in his conclusions. Dr. Ryan did not think that Pelletier was suffering from hallucinations although he has delusions.

"I would say that he was mentally sub normal to a degree that it is difficult to classify," stated Dr. Ryan. That the man was a defective was a more scientific way of putting it than to say he was a high-grade imbecile.

Dr. Ryan told His Lordship Mr. Justice Lennox that he considered that Pelletier was aware of the difference between right and wrong and understood the import of his acts.

Dr. Ryan stated that he had examined Pelletier twice, the first occasion being on March 10 and the second occasion on Tuesday last. Both examinations occupied about three hours in all. Dr. Ryan submitted a detailed report dealing with every angle of the prisoner's mental condition.

The witness was positive that Pelletier was not suffering from hallucinations. Pelletier had told him about hearing noises in his cell and in the adjoining cells. During their conversation the prisoner lost interest frequently and his mind appeared to ramble to other subjects.

Pelletier's sense of fear was exaggerated and he frequently indulged in senseless laughter, even when he spoke of killing the old lady. It was extremely easy to anger him.

DIFFICULT TO CLASSIFY

Pelletier appeared to have a good memory regarding events of the past, but his recollection of what had transpired more recently was was not really so clear. The examination disclosed many defects in judgement.

Dr. Ryan generalized his evidence by saying that Pelletier was subnormal to a degree difficult to classify.

DR. RYAN CONGRATULATED

At the conclusion of Dr. Ryan's evidence, His Lordship paid the witness a high compliment. In the many years he had been on the bench he had only encountered two cases in which he was not disappointed with medical evidence. Once was when a Quebec doctor was the witness, and the second time was with the witness who had just been heard.

Engineers' Dance Was Jolly Affair

The forty-sixth annual dance under the auspices of Challenge Lodge No. 66 Brotherhood of Locomotive Firmen and Engineers was held at Johnston's Academy last evening and proved an unqualified success both from a social and financial standpoint.

Over two hundred couples "tripped the light fantastic" to the strains of the latest dance music supplied by the Bon Ton Orchestra of this city.

The spacious hall was prettily decorated with various colored streamers and ribbons and presented an unusually lovely appearance.

The programmes were especially original and novel in design being in the form of a railway time- table with each dance dedicated to a train number and certain branches of the service.

Several novelty dances were introduced and these created a great deal of added interest to the affair.

Refreshments were served at the midnight hour after which dancing was resumed.

The committee spared no efforts to make the dance a success and from comments expressed it was one of the finest in the history of the organization.

Officers of the lodge: Mr. W. M. Adams, chairman; Mr. J. H. Cochrane, secretary, and Robt. J. Holmes, treasurer. They were assisted by the following committee: Harvey Lerman, J. R. Dibblefield, Brock Bailey, Geo. Gulliver, W. E. Carr, Art. Jackson, A. G. Cooper, W. Coleman and A. R. Newman who were in charge of the dance.

The prize-winners were:

Ladies' Novelty Prize—Miss Bluford and Miss Isabel Orae.

Balloon Prize—Miss Sopher.

Mr. Jack Mulhall and Mr. McMahon won the gentlemen's prizes.

The committee desire to thank the public for their generous patronage which helped to make the occasion so complete a success.

CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, April 6.—Influenced by unexpected strength of Liverpool wheat quotations and by firmness of security values at New York, the wheat market here took an early upward swing today. Crop experts pointed out that the late seeded spring wheat is more subject to subsequent injury as a result of rust and that consequently delayed seeding causes apprehension. Corn up opening prices 1-8 cent to 1 1-4 cent higher, May $1.38 1-2 to $1.39 and July $1.30 to $1.26 1-2 were followed by moderate reaction. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength.

VERA'S GONE HOME

Vera, Countess of Cathcart, who had all the immigration officials around New York fumbling over themselves a week ago, walked across a gangplank and took a boat for England.

Before that she had to borrow enough money to buy the ticket that would keep her out of an argument with the purser on the boat.

So that was the end of the trip to America that set the whole country by the ears for weeks.

The Countess was on alternating days to be deported, tried, admitted and suspended. Then she landed and apparently cut loose in an orgy of publicity that was so patently stupid that it revealed any chance she had of impression the American stage.

Her play, "Ashes of Love," was as much of a wreck as the fitful part ran into a cement post, and the Countess and her trouble was people got the impression the play was a recital of her own life. If her surmise were correct then there must be a certain amount of discernment left in the minds of the American public.

Where Vera gets home she says she is going to make money writing to the British papers about her experiences in America. Well, the British have been hardened by repeated taxation in recent years and ought to be able to stand the outpourings of Vera.

AGGRESSIVE COMMUNISTS

Last year the Red wing of the Ontario section of the Canadian Labor Party, consisting largely of Toronto Communists, managed to get control of the machinery of the party at the annual convention held in Toronto. This year's convention, held in London was likewise dominated by the Communist element, which remained in control and block ed a movement to expel it from the party.

The Communists form but a slight minority of the Ontario section of the C.L.P. At last year's convention 43 trades union organizations were represented, with a membership of 4815, and only 10 Communist bodies with a total membership of 700. But the tail succeeded in wagging the dog, mainly because of the aggressiveness and tenacity and superior tactical skill of the tail and the apathy and indifference of the dog. At the last convention the conditions were very much the same, and so was the result. The Communist minority celebrated its victory over the moderate element by singing "The Red Flag," the hymn of the revolutionary Third International, in five languages.

The Communist leader, Jack Macdonald of Toronto, boasted that the Communists form the spearhead of the Labor army in Canada. If he means that they are far in advance of the Labor army, he is right. But the army does not acknowledge their leadership and does not follow them. Organized Labor in this province is really represented by the Independent Labor party, which also had its convention. This party has repudiated the Canadian Labor party and severed affiliation with it because it has come under the control of the small Red minority.

PSYCHOLOGY OF BOBBING

In the days before the emancipation of woman, there was a common saying, not at all complimentary to long-haired men and short-haired women. The long-haired man was deemed effeminate or a crank. Short hair on a woman was evidence of masculinity; the short-haired woman was looked upon askance as "strong-minded." And even in this quarters, the feminine head that is bobbed or shingled is condemned as an indication of frivolity. Thus does the fashion in prejudices change.

For some strange reason, it is assumed by the authorities in some hospitals that for the nurses in training are forbidden to get their hair assemly and undignified. Apparently this is in line with the prevailing notion that bobbed hair is a sign of frivolous character, which is wholly ing to wear their hair short is undesirable in one who has embraced the profession of nursing. So in some hospitals the nurses in training are forbidden to get their hair bobbed. Such decree was issued at the Holy Cross hospital in Calgary, and two of the young ladies of the nursing staff were dismissed because they disobeyed the decree. Then the whole staff revolted. Thirty nurses, to express their sympathy with their dismissed sisters and their protest against the injustice which had been done, had their hair cut too, then packed their trunks, and declared their willingness to quit. But they were taken at their word. Their services were dispensed with, and although some of them weakened and asked to be taken back the management was adamant.

The Calgary hospital authorities are not reasonably be blamed for maintaining discipline; but they were unreasonable in the first place in forbidding the young ladies to have their hair cut. There is no good reason why student nurses should be restrained from following a fashion which is now all but universal, which is sanitary, and more comfortable and convenient than the old style of wearing the hair "done up." In most cases it is a improvement so far as appearance goes, and the assumption that it does not comport with the dignity of the nursing profession is nonsensical. That is a mere whim. As we have said, not many years ago the short-haired woman, so far from being regarded as frivolous, was sure to be set down as strong-minded and unduly masculine.

In most of the great hospitals the nurses are now allowed to wear their hair long or short, as they please. In at least one great institution, St. Luke's hospital, Chicago, they are required to get their hair shingled. A couple of years ago the rule at that hospital was against short hair; but the rule was quietly ignored by many of the nurses; the management winked at the numerous infractions, and finally, for the sake of uniformity, decided that all heads should be bobbed alike.

In a general hospital not far from here, the nurses were forbidden to have their hair cut. There was much discontent and some disobedience. Then the management compromised by permitting the bob, but insisting that all nurses shorn of their locks must wear false hair while on duty. This is perhaps the limit of absurdity in official attempts to regulate the coiffures of nurses in training.

30 YEARS AGO

Mr. Gilbert Parker, the popular Canadian novelist has arrived in Toronto with Mrs. Parker. After a short visit in Belleville with Mr. Parke's fathers, Mr. and Mrs. Parker will be guests in Montreal of Sir Wm. Van Horne before returning to New York.

Mr. Hanley has completed two altars for the Roman Catholic Church at Cornwall. They are on view at Mr. Hanley's workshop.

The weather yesterday (Easter) was suggestive of Christmas and though Easter millinery was much in evidence church goers were wrapped in furs.

BRITISHERS LIKE THIS DOMINION SING ITS PRAISES

Ottawa, April 5. — British settlers who came to Canada last year under the Selected Family Scheme are proving good immigration agents for their adopted country.

Many of the members of these families have recently written to friends and the agents of the Department of Immigration and Colonization in the districts of Great Britain from which they came, giving an account of their efforts and the measure of success they have already attained. These letters are encouraging documents and indicate the good opportunities farming in Canada offers to the thrifty and industrious.

"We are all more than pleased with Canada," writes Henry Murchie from his farm near Bexif, Alberta. He came to Canada last May with his wife and six children from West Lin ton, Peebleshire, Scotland. "The two boys old enough to work, also myself and one daughter have not been out of employment since we came to Canada," continues Mr. Murchie in his letter to the Canadian Emigration Agent at Glasgow. "The wages are superior to those paid for similar work in Scotland. I would not say that Canada is a country where one can get rich quick, but to me it is a country where any working man can become independent, and that is something worth while to any way of thinking. As for people of Canada I cannot speak too highly of them. They are ever ready to give you a helping hand.

"Now this is written in plain Scotch just as I have found things myself," concludes Mr. Murchie's letter.

Richard W. Morgan worked as a farm hand in Alberta from 1908 till he returned to his old home in North Wales in 1915. Last May he returned to Ponoka, Alberta, with his wife and six-year-old daughter. A few weeks ago Mr. Morgan wrote to the Shipping Agent at Oswestry, England, a letter in which he first describes his house in the farm purchased for him by the Land Settlement Branch. "We have quite a nice house," he writes; "kitchen, dining room, sitting room, three good bedrooms, milk house, good well, a barn with stabling for six horses and one large enough for 12 cows."

He was impressed with the welcome he and his family received on their arrival at Ponoka. "We were met by the Mayor, members of the council and their wives," states Mr. Morgan. They escorted us to the Royal Hotel where we had breakfast. We were given a parcel of groceries to take out to the farm. This welcome was a great surprise to us for we were not prepared for it as the Prince of Wales would be. I am sure no one could have had a better welcome to Canada than we received."

James McFie is now a good citizen of Joyceville, near Kingston, Ontario, though he has been there only a few months. But this is not surprising for he was a good citizen of Bothesay, Scotland. An indication that Mr. McFie is the right kind of settler is given in the following extracts from his letter to the Canadian Emigration Agent at Glasgow: "Just a few lines to say we have now been located in our new home in Canada several months. We have been well treated by our neighbor farmers, who help and give advice on how things are done here."

CHEAP PASSAGE IS GOOD THING FOR BRITISHERS

London, Eng., April 6. (By Canadian Press).—Old Country papers are over flowing with letters appearing and conservative on the subject of emigration to Canada. In the Glasgow Herald, "Winnipeg" gives his views on the matter as follows:—

"I have just read the long articles sent you by A. C. Hunter, of Walkerville, Ontario. As I also know the Dominion fairly well (from Halifax to Vancouver), I would just like to say that what he states is pretty near correct. Emigrants are getting a great opportunity in getting out for £3. They ought to jump at the chance, but as A. C. Hunter tells them so clearly they must go on the farm and stay with it. I might just say in passing that many emigrants get lonesome on the prairie and drift into the towns, or perhaps into one of the big cities, where they get more life. Now, if you intend going to a homestead, I would say try and get one in Alberta, east of Lacombe or in the near neighborhood of Edmonton. Also, get some of your friends to locate reasonably near you. To succeed you must be a handy man with the hammer and saw, and forget about working only eight hours per day. If interested in your homestead you will get plenty to do.

"If you are thinking of going out I would say—Keep outside your door every man who pleads with you to take on a mortgage; don't listen to him; thousands have lost their homes through listening to these men; pay for what you need, or do without it. Under this nice £3 scheme you have a great chance and I would certainly say, Go. Don't take much with you except dollars; you can easily buy there cheaply just what you need. Take all the dollars you can raise and bolster them in a belt. (The banks are tumbling over each other in Canada.) They will often help you if they find you straight in your

R.C.M.P. Constable Tells Committee of How Evidence Was Gained

Ottawa, April 6.—Attempted smuggling of 100 bottles of rum in a taxicab across the wharf in Montreal was described in the Customs probe this morning by Constable Frank Cahill of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. A Customs officer was implicated in the transaction.

Constable Cahill said that he watched four men, three of them ship's officers, carrying cases from the ship Borden to the taxi and finally when the car was driven away, he halted it.

Four men and two women got out and disclosed the rum in the taxi. He detained the group and sent for his superior officer, Sergeant Salt.

The ship's officers assured him that the transaction was quite regular because they had a custom's officer with them. The customs officer left the party.

When Sergeant Salt seized the liquor he exacted a promise from the ship's officer that they would remain in Montreal until the incident was investigated.

Two of them kept their word, were prosecuted and fined $50, a third escaped down the St. Lawrence River and the charge against him is still pending.

Later the customs officer J. P. Landy, was charged with being the customs officer implicated, but later the charge was dropped on instructions from customs headquarters.

Colonel Ilsley, who was conducting the case for committee stated that the deputy minister of customs would be called to testify why the case against Landy was dropped.

MAROONS STUNG TO NEED OF WIN IN NEXT TUSSLE

Another Capacity Crowd Already Cetain For Fourth Game

Montral, April 6.—Capacity crowds have been the order in the Stanley Cup series between the Montreal Maroons and Victoria Cougars as the Forum in the past week and a fourth bumper gathering of over 10,000 is assured for that tussel under western rules tonight. The next sale for the extra cup game was opened yesterday morning and by evening the tickets had been practically all taken up.

The line has changed from one in which it appeared that Montreal would romp through in three straight games to one which is now causing considerable speculation. Will Hibbs' game tonight under the westerners code Victoria are conceded a fair chance of tying the series at two wins each and forcing a fifth game on Thursday to decide the honors. In their victory under eastern rules Saturday night the Cougars from the Pacific Coast showing their smatter hockey since their arrival here to defend the trophy and title. Montreal on the other hand felt decidedly below form. And the big question among the fans is "Can the Maroons come back to their true pitch and duplicate their victory of last Thursday when they thrashed the westerners at their own game?"

Three days rest should prove a boon to the local players who have been selling through a heavy schedule for the past five weeks. Their defeat Saturday night has given every signs of having stung them out of their complacent attitude regarding the series. Now they realize that they are in a bit of a corner and that they will have to play their best hockey to down the counters tonight and take no chances on the decision being left to a final game in which anything might break and the coveted honors be enabled to slip from their grasp.

Sport Notes

It is at this season of the annum that the trials and tribulations of the poor Sporting Editor reach their zenith. Those poetic scribes who loudly acclaim the advent of the "beautiful white blanket" are now loudly bewailing the fact of its slow departure and are patiently waiting for the sun to shine on both sides of the fence and erase the carpet from mother earth and set the brooks in motion and then the welcome report of ball meeting bat, and baseball boys will arrive on the scene. The last storm put the clamp on any chances of talking to the green sward within the next few night. Usually at this season of the year the paraphernalia is being exhumed and active plans being formed for the summer's activities. Why not a little warm-up now and then indoors—the armory for instance? Several of the boys are getting the old soupbone in working order thru the indoor ball league route. From the ranks of the Trunke have emerged a spirit of enthusiasm and prospects point to a successful season on the diamond. The old guard is still here and with the burning ball bolstered and some of last years Juniors ready for Senior company there is every reason to believe that Bellefield will regain the former status as leader of the C.O.B.L. Politicians are not in order at this time and we will wait till after season before we venture our opinion. Peterboro and Kingston are working hall will probably be represented by quietly and when the umps call "play ckey tonight.

Our predictions as to winners in tomorrow night's soft ball games: C.N. R. to win from Christ Church and Point Anne to humble the High School nine. These are based on the results of last week's games but the S.S. boys and the students may upset the dope pail and bust out, calculations on the score. Both will make things interesting at least.

The Cougars are almost even favorites with the Maroons for the fourth game of the World's Championship tonight. Fans in this neck of the woods for the most part are nothing but a Maroon victory and with it the Stanley Cup. Those westerners were a typical fighting mob after that hockey goal

PROFESSIONALS BARRED

Toronto, April 6.—Professional soccer football clubs are barred from this year's competition for the Connaught cup, the Dominion Football Association has notified all provincial associations. The decision was arrived at following a vote by mail on the suggestion of the province of Quebec Football Association that amateur and professional teams be allowed to compete for the Dominion championship.

Recreation Alleys

The Hopes won the Ladies' C.N.R. League when they played their final game at the Recreation Alleys yesterday afternoon, Hopes finishing two points up on their nearest opponents, the Lucky 7s. In the game yesterday the Wolves won the first game, both teams rolling far below their average scores, but in the second and third Hopes improved and won both points. High bowlers were Mrs. Orne and Mrs. North.

The Wolves in the Men's Junior League were in their best form last night when they played against the Hardyens, the Wolves winning three points and the Hardwyns one, the Wolves rolling up a nice total score of 3094 which is the highest in the Junior league. Alexander for the Wolves was high man with 719 and D. Tobe was high for the Hardware.

A novel prize competition is being put on at the Recreation Alleys in the next two weeks, in which any lady and gent can pick their own partners. As this is something new for the local bowlers it should be very popular.

Because it contains more vitalizing vitamines than any food you can get.

You'll be glad to know that McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets come in sugar coated form now, so if you really want to put 10 or 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh on your bones and feel well and strong and have a complexion that people will admire— ask Dolan's Drug Store, McKenzie's Drug Store, Doyles Drug Store or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets.

Only 60 cents for 60 tablets and if you don't gain five pounds in 30 days your druggist will hand you back the money you paid for them.

It isn't anything unusual for a person to gain 10 pounds in 30 days, and for old people with feebleness or aetaking them they work wonders.

We want you to make this test

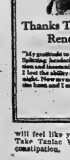

We want every weak, puny, fagged-out man and woman in America to make this test: buy one bottle of Tanlac at your druggist's, take it according to directions for one week and see how quickly you get started back to full strength and vigor.

We know what we are talking about. Tanlac has helped millions. In our files are more than 100,000 letters of praise from grateful users.

Don't confuse Tanlac with ordinary patent nostrums. It is Nature's own tonic and builder, compounded from roots, barks, and herbs that we gather at great expense from the four corners of the earth.

Tanlac goes straight to the seat of your trouble; cleanses and purifies the blood stream; puts your digestion in proper shape. First thing you know you have an appetite like a starved child. You rest at night and your whole body begins to feel the stir of strength and energy.

Don't you be discouraged. Don't put off testing Tanlac another day. Get a bottle now and in a week you should notice signs of real improvement. Then you will feel like your old self again. Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation.

Thanks Tanlac for Renewed Health

"My gratitude to Tanlac is unbounded for what it has done for me. I was all run down, had no appetite, could not sleep. Now my appetite is splendid, I sleep like a log and I enjoy life as of old."

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT GRIFFINS —

An artistic genius and a sense of humor that can convert tears and heartaches into joy and laughter exist on equal terms the year of pathos is here itself in the wrinkles of fun—is a combination seldom met in real life, and much less often encountered a mile motion picture screen.

But this is just what Charlie Chaplin does in his film comedy. "The Gold Rush", a United Artists Corporation release, which is described by picture critics and competent critics as the greatest Chaplin comedy ever produced. "The Gold Rush" is now at Griffins.

Out of a situation where a hilarious yet wanderer throws himself into a self-enforced faint at the door of a gold prospector's cabin, at the prospector's wife pick him up, carry him inside and revive him with hot coffee and a much needed meal, Chaplin builds a comedy scene that is said to excel anything he has ever done.

"The Gold Rush" deals with the stampede into the Klondike and Chaplin has cut himself in the role of a tenderfoot and lone prospector. And when he finds himself lone man aside on the shoals he shabby clothing and finally solves him like a piece of paper into the pathos of a fugitive from justice—again Chaplin is turned into hilarious comedy.

There are tears and laughter, too, when Charlie is the wrong recipient of an endearing and apologetic wallop from his diva by the girl whom he adores and the note—not meant for him at all—sends him into the seventh heaven of ransomed delight.

AT THE BELLE

All who enjoy real fast-moving action-drama will be right in their glory when Richard Dix's first Paramount starring picture, "Manhattan," opens at the Belle Theatre on Wednesday for a run of two days. The story is an adaptation by Paul Sloane and Frank Tuttle of the novel, "The Definite Object," by Jeffery Farnol.

The star has the role of Peter Minuit who is a wealthy young Manhattan father purchased the island of Manhattan from the Indians and Peter Minuit is all for giving it back to them. "There might be some life in the old town then," says he.

You take it from this that Minuit is slightly bored with life. He is just that—a millionaire bachelor who has everything in life except which he craves most—action, adventure, a definite object, something to live for, to strive to be worthy of. He finds action-plus in New York's Hell's Kitchen as well a definite object in the beautiful sister of a youthful prey whom he befriends.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

CHAPTER XI.

With feverish eagerness Constance commenced packing her things. She felt that short as was the time Lady Ruth had given her, it was all too long for her to remain in Shakespeare Castle. Her one desire was to get away — and yet she paused a moment and a strange thrill ran through her as she thought of what the marquis would say when he heard that she had gone.

What would Lady Ruth tell him? Would she be able to persuade him that the reason she gave for Constances departure was a genuine one? Would he not rather think that she had flown because of the scene in the drawing-room and her discovery of his strange meeting with the tramp? Would he not think that she had gone because of his wild avowal of love for her?

Her face burned as she knelt over the portmanteau and her hands were crowding with heedless speed her scanty ward robe. Well, it did not matter what he thought. Perhaps it would be as well that he should thus construe her sudden departure. She would probably never see him again, and it was also quite probable that in a few short days or weeks he would have forgotten her.

Somehow there was not much consolation for her in that reflection and he felt and was angry at feeling her eyes grow suddenly moist.

What a strange and eventful time it had been! She had thought that her life at Shakespeare Castle would be calm and serene; that she would find rest and peace after the old restless, adventurous and painful past; but, instead, almost every day at the castle had been charged with momentous incidents for her.

And now she was going! Then she remembered Arol. She had grown to love the child, to cling to him, as she knew that he loved and clung to her. She would never see him again! Surely there would be no harm in her taking one last look at his pretty face! Even Lady Ruth would not begrudge her that small comfort! . . .

Her packing was done in an incredibly short time, and when she had put on her hat and gather she found that she had still some minutes to spare.

Obeying an impulse which was irresistible, she opened the door, went down the corridor and through the nursery into Arol's room.

He was fast asleep, his face resting upon one arm, the other thrown in child like abandon on the silken quilt.

Constance looked down at him, her heart very full indeed, then she knelt beside the bed, and softly put her lips to his. Gentle and cautious as the caress was, it woke him.

He opened his eyes and looked at her dreamily for a moment, then he smiled.

"Miss Grahame, dear! Is that you? Is it time to get up yet?"

"No, no, Arol," she whispered; "not yet. Go to sleep again."

He put his arms round her neck, and closing his eyes fell off again. Constance waited, her tears falling fast, until he was soundly asleep, then gently loosening his clasp she rose away.

When she reached her room she found Lady Ruth there.

"You are ready?" she said, coldly and suspiciously. "Where have you been?"

I have been to wish Lord Leachhook goodby. Yes, I am ready," replied Constance coldly.

Lady Ruth sneered.

"You appear to have grown very fond of him in a short time," she said.

"Yes, I am fond of him, Lady Ruth," assented Constance. "If the carriage is ready I should like to go now, if you please." It is quite ready."

She went to the door and beckoned to the hansom which usually waited upon the rank and was standing in the ex-rider with an unmistakable expression of surprise in her face.

"Miss Grahame has had bad news, and is obliged to leave the castle at once," said Lady Ruth. "Take the portmanteau down to the side entrance, please, and go quietly"

"Yes, my lady," assented the maid. "I'm very sorry, miss she added in an undertone to Constance.

Constance said nothing, and was full moving the maid, when Lady Ruth stopped her with a gesture.

"I have invented a reason for your sudden departure," she said, in a low voice. "When a few days have passed I shall say that you have written to me stating that you find it impossible to leave your sick relation, and that you cannot return. You had better write such a letter."

Constance turned her head and looked at her steadily.

"You must rely on your own falsehoods, Lady Ruth," she said. "I cannot assist you."

Lady Ruth's face flushed and her eyes glittered angrily.

"Please yourself," she said, and as Constance went down the stairs she leaned over the balustrade and watched her as if she could see to be satisfied until she was assured that Constance had left the house.

A brougham stood at the door, and she said put the portmanteau in.

"I'm so sorry you are going miss, and I hope you'll soon be back," she said, sympathetically.

"Thank you," replied Constance, and her lips trembled.

The girl, considering that her emotion as quite accounted for by Lady Ruth's assertion that Constance had received bad news, nodded ina pitying kind of way, closed the door, and the brougham started.

As it reached the station Constance heard the bell ring. Lady Ruth had timed is pretty accurately. A porter came and got out the portmanteau, and Constance was going up the stairs when a gentleman on horse back came riding by.

He glanced at the carriage instantly, then at Constance, and was pulled up, flung himself from the saddle and hurried after her.

"Miss Grahame!" he exclaimed.

It was Lord Elliott.

Constance turned with a start, and a sudden flush on her pale face.

"Lord Elliott!" she faltered.

"Why, what is this!" he exclaimed, his color coming and going, his face fixed upon her face eagerly, as he held her hand. "Where are you going?"

The question made Constance start. Where was she going? Until that moment she had not asked herself the question!

"Are you going to London?" he said, his surprise developed into keen anxiety.

"Yes, by lord," she replied.

"At this time of the morning! Have you—have you heard bad news?"

Constance remained silent and the pressure of his hand grew warmer and more sympathetic.

"I am so sorry! So very sorry! It is not very bad, news, I hope. Were you obliged to go?"

"Yes, I was obliged, Lord Elliot," she said as steadily as she could.

He waked beside her, seeing bewildered in confusion by his unexpected meeting with her and her sudden departure his frank face indicating his emotion as palnly as the dial shown the hour.

"Is there anything I can do?" he asked, looking down at her with all a man's tender solicitude for a woman in trouble. "If there is anything I should be glad; any little thing—"

"No, there is nothing, thank you, my lord," faltered Constance, and she quickened her steps, for the train was coming in.

"I can get your ticket, at any rate," he said, and he hurried to the booking office. "It is so strange that I should meet you here," he said, as he put her in the first class carriage; the porter standing respectfully by, and the guard waiting quite patiently until the booking should be ready. "I—I was rather wakeful this morning, and—and thought I would have a gallop. Oh, is there nothing I can do?" he broke off. "I hate the thought of your going up alone at this time of the day!"

And he looked wistfully up and down the platform as if he were strongly tempted to jump into the carriage.

"I am quite safe. I am used to travelling alone, my lord," said Constance with quiet dignity.

"But you should have had a maid. Can I wire to your people in London to meet you? Have you done that?"

A chill seemed to fall on Constance's heart. Her people in London! Where, and whom were they?

"It is not necessary, thank you, my lord," she replied, feeling that if he waited another minute or two she must break down.

"And when are you coming back?" he asked, hurriedly and eagerly.

"I—I'm afraid—I do not think I can not certain—look at all, Lord Elliot," she said, faintly.

His handsome face went pale, and he stared at her with unconcealed dismay.

"Not—not coming back? Why? I—I don't understand. You are not coming back! Miss Grahame—"

"Time's up, my lord," suggested the guard, respectively but firmly, [illegible] am afraid, putting up his hand anxiously. Miss Grahame —your address. Have you left it with them at the castle Will you give it to me—"

"Constance's face went scarlet, and then white, but she was spared a reply, for the guard, having given his lordship all the rope possible, blew his whistle and the train started.

Lord Elliot sprang upon the step and held on this hand.

"Good-by, said, and his voice shook in its earnestness.

"If—if I dared I would come with you. Say the word!" he exclaimed impetuously. Say that I may—"

Constance shook her head agitatedly.

"Take care, my lord!" shouted the porter and Lord Elliot dropped reluctantly from the footboard.

As the train rushed on Constance saw him standing looking after it, as if he could not yet realize that she had gone. As for herself, the meeting with him had but accentuated the painfulness of her position, and her loneliness and helplessness. With the exception of Lady Ruth, every one she had met at the castle had been good to her; even this young nobleman, who parted from her as if she had been an old friend Not being vane or self-conscious, she never suspected for a moment that his kindness was actuated by any other or warmer feeling than friendship; but for many a mile his handsome face, with its expression

Coconut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

Do not use perfumed shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and a delight to anything else all to itself. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. One application only gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

An official of the Essington Rural District Council, however, confirmed that the loan was made by the Mr. Shaw, "the author, playwright, Socialist, vegetarian, and non-smoking Mr. Shaw," he said.

WOMEN NO THINNER NO ILLUSIONS REMAIN!

London, April 6.—Women are not any thinner than they used to be, they merely look thinner and do not fill out the hollows in their figures as they did in days when it was fashionable to be well-rounded.

Such is the conclusion of The Evening Standard, which refuses to be alarmed over statements of Sir Bruce-Potter, the well known surgeon, that girls are less solidly built than their grandmothers.

"It is probable," says The Evening Standard, "that girls are on the whole better built than their mothers were, though not nearly so well built as their mothers seemed. When the Gibson girl came on at the end of the last century it was easy for a weedy girl to give the impression of possessing lovely curves, but the present fashion allows no illusions."

WOMAN FIRES AT MUSSOLINE; PREMIER SLIGHTLY HURT

ROBBER BRAVES DEATH JUMPING TO OTHER ROOF

New York, April 7.—Crowds in Mad ison street witnessed a thrilling chase over roof tops that had all the exciting elements of a movie melodrama except that the fleeing man who braved death by leaping five feet from one roof to another was discovered later hiding in the shaft of a dumb waiter.

Following a hold-up on the street two youths, who later identified themselves as Tony Sgarna, 18, and Bernardo Trisanna, 19, fled to the roof of a building three detectives hot-foot after them. Trisanno was cornered on the roof.

But Sgarna, while on enthralled crowd watched from below, took a run ning start and leaped through the air ready clearing the five feet that separated him from the next floor roof. He disappeared.

Detectives Reilly, Dowling and Foley descended to the street with their prisoner and began a search through the building next door. Sgarna was found cringing in a dumb waiter shaft.

Dr. Malott Refuses Call

After a three hours discussion, the Board of Bridge Street United Church persuaded Rev. Dr. F. E. Malott, pastor of the Church to refuse a call to a prominent Toronto Church, which Dr. Malott received a few days ago.

So pleasing was the appreciation expressed of the pastor's work in Belleville and so great was the regret expressed at his intended transfer that Dr. Malott ultimately consented to remain in the city.

About one and a half years ago Dr. Malott received calls from six churches but he was then also persuaded to remain in Belleville.

CANADA BECAME DOMINION NOT AS BIBLE INSPIRATION BUT TO APPEASE YANKS

London, Eng., April 7.—(Canadian Press Despatch.)—That long-cherished, very pretty, but entirely unauthenticated story about Canada having received the title of "Dominion" because of a reference in The Psalms to the Almighty having dominion from sea to sea, receives another blow when a perusal is made of "The Letters of Queen Victoria, 1862-78," which have just been published here.

This period, of course, covers the time when Confederation was effected. Writing from Windsor Castle on Feb. 5, 1867, when the delegates from British North America were in conference in London over Confederation, General Grey, the Queen's Secretary addressed himself thus to Earl Carnarvon, Colonial Secretary:—

If it shall be clearly in accordance with the wishes of the people of those provinces generally, Her Majesty can have no possible objection to the adoption of the general name of Canada for them. Her sole desire must be to consult the wishes of her American subjects but before she is called upon to pronounce definitely on the question Her Majesty would wish to have more precise information upon this point, and to be assured her decision would be accepted with general satisfaction.

The name of Canada was brought before me at the unanimous wish of the delegates. There has never been any vote in the Provinces on the subject . . . It would probably have led to local jealousies and mis-understandings.

Writing again on the same matter Earl Carnarvon told the Queen's Secretary:—

The North American delegates are anxious that the united Provinces should be designated as the "Dominion of Canada." . . . It is a new title, but intended on their part as a tribute to the monarchical principles they so earnestly desire to uphold.

Earl Carnarvon added an expression of belief that this title would give greater dignity to the commencement of this great scheme (i.e. Confederation) "and consequently greater self-respect to those who take part in the administration of affairs there."

The present-day editors of these letters, G. E. Buckle, adds the extremely valuable foot-note, "The Queen approved." Nothing in all this about Queen Victoria quoting as by inspiration a line from The Psalms of David! In fact the above extracts seem to correct those who while rejecting the story maintain that Sir John Macdonald was correct when he asserted that the word Dominion was used instead of Kingdom (which appears to have been first considered) at the instance of Lord Derby (Prime Minister) "who feared the name of Kingdom would offend the sensibilities of the Yankees." At any rate Queen Victoria never mentioned Earl Derby's name in connection with the matter.

PEARLS, COOKED, WORTH NOTHING; UNCOOKED $3000

Overton Jamieson, 63 12 Octavia street, missed being the owner of a fortune of $3,000 by twenty minutes.

Several days ago Mr. Jamieson purchased from Thomas Hodgson, Bridge street, a pint of oysters which his wife cooked for twenty minutes. While eating the stew his little son Morley bit something hard which he found to be twelve pearls —two about the size of peas, the others about the size of pin heads.

Mr. Jamieson gathered the almost fortune and sent them to Ottawa. He was notified yesterday from the Department that silver peeling the large pearls twice it was found they were now value less due to the effect of the heat applied in cooking. The pearls were returned and will be kept by Mr. Jamieson as a reminder of a fortune that once lay with in his grasp.

Mr. Jamieson who has been employed at Corbyville is removing to Redeemville where he will take up farming. When he took the pearls to a local jeweller some time ago the jeweler told him that he himself purchased two pearls found in an oyster for two dollars. For these he has likely offered nine hundred dollars. Fortunately the pearls had not been cooked.

CALLS EDUCATION PUBLIC PROBLEM OF HIGH IMPORT

Premier Ferguson Speaks Before O.E.A. and States Position

Toronto, April 7.—Problems of close interest to the teaching profession, the inspectors, trustees and ratepayers of the Province occupied the attention of the opening sessions of the Ontario Educational Association yesterday; and the general session of the Association held in Convocation Hall in the evening, was featured by the frank manner in which Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister, and Minister of Education, took the rostrum into his confidence and asked for their sincere co-operation in an effort to arrive at a solution for the educational questions of the day. Hon. Mr. Ferguson outlined his personal views with regard to the two big educational features which have received his attentio of late, and he pointed out that there was no thought on the part of the Department of Education of the adoption of the official view, point upon the school sections, but that, on the contrary, the aim of the Department was to seek the opinions of the majority of the people on these important matters. The questions to which he made special reference were: His proposal to make it possible for various centres throughout the Province to introduce the first year of the University course into the secondary schools, and his proposal to amalgamate the School Boards of the rural sections into township boards for the purpose of economy and greater efficiency.

So far as those proposals were concerned, Hon. Mr. Ferguson remarked that he had received a great number of resolutions opposing them; but that no such resolutions he wanted. What he asked was expressions. He added further, that whenever he gets an idea which he believed would be in the interests of the educational system of the Province he would endeavor to place it before the people; and it would remain for the people to accept it or reject it.

CANADIAN BORN OFFERS TO RUN U.S. AIR FLEET

Now 38 But Has Seen Extended Service with American Army Pilots

Winnipeg, Man., April 7.—(By C.P.) —Secretary of the air recently offered the United States by the Canadian-born soldier and incidentally a Manitoban, Harold E. Hartney, a native of Hartney, Man., made a proposal to the U. All of which he offered to do at the annual cost to the government of $3,000,000.

TWO INSURANCE ORDERS MERGE AT EARLY DATE

I. O. F. to Absorb the Order of United Workmen On May 1

Toronto, April 7.—Unanimous approval of the merger of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, the pioneer of fraternal insurance in Ontario, with the Independent Order of Foresters, was given yesterday at a meeting of grand lodge of the former organization here. The merger, in which the A.O.U.W. loses its identity, takes effect on May 31. It was stated that in the opinion of the chief officers of the two orders and the insurance department the merger was considered an excellent move for each and very much in the interests of the members.

Some interesting facts regarding the standing of the Independent Order of Foresters were given out at the meeting today. The I.O.F. records show that some $87,000,000 have been paid out in insurance and benefits since the organization of the order. The present annual income is $5,000,000 and this will now be augmented by the addition of the income of the A.O.U.W. which is $572 000, or a total of $5,572,000. The I.O.F. assets, which now stand at $38,000,000 will be further increased by those of the A.O.U.W., $15,000,000.

The membership of the I.O.F. is 152,000 and to this will be added, by reason of the merger the 8,300 members of the A.O.U.W. Both organizations were on the reserve basis. The I.O.F. members over and above reserves of $2,000,000 while the A.O.U.W. is $150,000 over and above reserves.

Revolver Bullet Struck Duce in Nose After Being Discharged at Point Blank Range—Great Crowd on Spot—Assailant Rescued By the Police

Rome, April 7.—An attempt was made to assassinate Premier Mussolini this morning.

A woman fired the revolver point blank at him, but he escaped with a slight wound.

Mussolini was shot through the nose.

The shooting occurred at about 1.15 a.m. while he was leaving a session of the congress of the international surgery in the Place Di Capitole, to enter his automobile.

A great crowd was around the premier and the cheering the Premier, when a woman pressed to the front and pointing a revolver directly at him pulled the trigger.

The woman, whose identity has not been disclosed, was rescued from the crowd with great difficulty and was rushed to the jail where woman prisoners are confined.

Meanwhile, Mussolini, submitting to medical attention, maintained great composure. He ordered that immediate dis position be taken to preserve order and that no retributions be taken.

SAYS DAUGHTER STEPPED QUIETLY IN' PATH OF BUS

Mr. John Helm Declares Ruth Didn't "Dash" Into Highway

Inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the tragic death of Ruth Helm, who was killed on the eve of Good Friday when struck by a bus on the Trenton Highway will be resumed Thursday evening, here.

There are to be quite a number of witnesses, who will detail their story of the very unfortunate affair.

Mr. John Helm, father of the girl, told The Intelligencer today that he desired to have corrected the impression that his daughter hurried across the highway and into the path of the oncoming truck. He said he saw the whole thing from his doorway and said Ruth stepped leisurely around the vehicle and by no means could be said to have "dashed" as newspaper accounts credited her with doing.

Asked by The Intelligencer how fast he would judge the bus to have been travelling, Mr. Helm said: "Thirty-five miles." He said, the bus travelled 66 feet from the accident before it was brought to a stop.

Other evidence bearing on the tragedy will be given by the driver and occupants of the vehicle, it is said.

NELSON STEWART SCORED TWICE TO WIN THE CUP

Gave His Team The Stanley Mug With His Trusty Stick

Montreal, April 7.—Nelson Stewart is the winner of the Stanley Cup. He (himself) scored twice for Maroons in the second period, and so nobody else did so that hands it to Mr. Stewart.

Certainly he was the shining light here last night and today among players and with the fans.

Maroons by winning through Stewart's deadly accuracy thus becomes possessed of the battered mug once upon a time dedicated by a former Governor-General Lord Stanley, luther second season among the bigtime hockeyists, and at that one must take off his chapeau to the team that showed courage and skill and had the youth and stamina to come through.

HOLWAY DROPPED

Lester Patrick made one switch in the line-up of the Victoria Cougars for the fourth Stanley Cup game against the Maroons, starting Hewitt Ortman on left wing in place of Dizzy Hart. The Montreal line-up was the same as that used by them in the past three games. Nelson Stewart playing Munro's position on the defence and Phillips taking cesase. To reckoning to the Western rules, the Maroons were forced to drop Holway for the battle to bring the squad down to ten player limit.

The game attracted great speculation and the fans were ready for anything from a Victoria victory under the Western code, to a route for the Maroons.

Montreal's defeat in the last game caused the uncertainty. It gave Victoria renewed hope and the Cougars were out to battle to the last for a triumph. The defeat, on the other hand, during the Montreals into a mood determined to fight from the first whistle.

NEITHER SCORED

Neither side could get going properly in the early stages. Stewart made the first rush for Maroons and was spilled by the Cougar defence. Phillips and Stewart kept up the pressure on the Cougar goal. Holmes getting half a dozen shots, while Benedict had not been tested.

Montreal were stepping into the Cougars, who were attacking and were doing them consistently at the defence. Reg Noble cleared after a shot by Solman. Noble appealed the play was offside on a rebound off the boards.

And so it went for alblustering twenty minutes.

SECOND PERIOD

Victoria started the middle session without Fraser and the Maroons took command of the offensive. Stewart stole the puck from Foyston at the Maroon defence. He was flanked by Phillips and Broadbent. A rare old scuffle developed in front of Holmes, who made four saves as the Maroons rained in the rubber. Paisley Steele took the puck around to the Cougar goal and brought Holmes to—slow to get across the other corner of his net. Stewart walloped in the puck and the Maroons went ahead.

Victoria came back with a vengeance. They pushed in on the Montreal defence but found the guard much tighter than on Saturday night and could not penetrate.

Phillip went down in a fast attack. He passed Hallinan at the Cougar defence, but was spilled by Walker. Phillips still keenly in hand to retire with a puff on Ilo.

In the last minute of the period Stewart and Broadbent raise gave Phillips a nice lead, picked and finally Stewart added one of his own rebounds and scored.

SECOND PERIOD

Phillips was back at centre for the Maroons to start the final session. Loughlin turned one at Benedict and Stewart retaliated with a clatter at the other end. Phillips went through and almost drove the puck and Holmes into the Cougar net, so hard was the shot. Halderson had thumped Phillips as he went around the Cougar defence and the Cougar crowd was chased. Phillips was brilliant at time and again he drifted the puck at Holmes.

Stewart dodged and was tripped when about to shoot and Fraser went off.

Cougars were fighting like wild cats and the Maroons with victory, the cup and the world title in sight, were matching the exertions for speed and fight.

There was no more scoring and so it ended.

KENNEDY'S SEAT WILL BE MADE SERIOUS ISSUE

Meighen Will Bring Matter Up in House at Proper Time

PEACE RIVER FRAUDS

D. M. Kennedy Says He Would Not Resign If He Could

Ottawa, April 7.—Conservatives in the House of Commons intend to make a serious issue of the situation resulting from the Peace River land fraud, inasmuch as this effect being given by Hiehl Hon. Arthur Meighen when he declared that the matter required and should have the full consideration of the House at the first convenient opportunity. When the House met after the Easter recess, Donald M. Kennedy, Progressive, announced his intention of exercising all the privileges of a duly elected member. He declined to accept the Conservative suggestion that he should refrain from voting or otherwise participate in the work of Parliament.

HEAD A STATEMENT

Mr. Kennedy read to the House a long statement defining his attitude, and resulting with repeated articles challenging his position. The sense of his statement was that he would not be influenced by the finding of the Alberta court which established the fact that he sits in Parliament without having been properly elected. Under the law, he could not resign from the House while a protest stood against his election, but he would not resign if he could, and would be with-draw from the House or refrain from voting. He would, however, when the session was over, insist that the charges which had been laid against him in the Liberal petition of protest be fully prosecuted.

REPUTATION

The member for Peace River assured the House that he considered his retention of his seat as of small consequence in comparison with the importance of cleaning up electioneering irregularities in his riding and if the unexpected should befall him that he would have no complaint to make.

Mr. Kennedy brought the attention of Conservatives sharply to his statement by an assertion that following the election in October a representative of the Conservative candidate had proposed to him that he should agree to resign his seat after the present session on condition that his election would not be protested. He had declined to consider the suggestion.

DEMANDED NAME

Mr. Meighen demanded the name of the man who had made the proposition and Mr. Kennedy promptly replied that it was Milner.

Mr. Kennedy's statement was punctuated with Progressive applause.

Mrs. H. Diamond; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Symons; Mr. and Mrs. Holton and family; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smith and family; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McDonald and family; Mr. and Mrs. Riches; Mr. J. B. Jordon; Beats Class; Mr. and Mrs. Clement and family; Myrtle and Gordon Gregory.

NORTH POLE STUFF

We are inclined just as a sporting proposition to pin our faith to this fellow Amundsen. In all this flurry over the North Pole and whatever results these chaps are striking for. There happens to be a chap named Wilkens up Alaska way hoping to get up north and we wish him all the good luck in the world. Wilkins is a regular fellow, Captain with the R.A.F. and got the M.C. out of it. He is at least sincerely in the hunt. Then there are other people and gallant fellows no doubt, Americans and others out for the North and Amundsen. He knows more about what is likely to be found up there and he can gauge more nicely the needs of such a trip than all the rest put together and he says heavier than air machines are a washout for such a venture. We know nothing about all this but we are with Amundsen.

Already, without exception the rivals of Amundsen are in trouble with machines and dogs and what not. They summer's cutting at all events will not be monotonous. But we shall expect to hear later that sundry of these ventures have been abandoned and we would not be surprised to hear that this chap Amundsen had been there and back.

IMPERIAL ITALY

Those people whose habit it is to bolley "peace, peace" at every opportunity and who claim to take great interest in all efforts to ensure that there shall be no more "sorrow or crying" might do well to look with some concern at what the cables report Mussolini as doing or likely to do. His Imperialistic policy is leading him to look with longing eyes on Asia Minor and other areas in the East, which, however carefully do not conflict with French policy.

Published by the Journal Des Debats, which habitually interprets Italian news favorably to Italy, the present article is presumed to have been inspired by the Rome Government.

The correspondent also says the military spirit is growing apace in Italy. Eight thousand youths are training to enter the militia, and the military, naval and aviation preparations are assuming formidable proportions. Munition manufacturers have outlined a program which will make it unnecessary after 1927 for Italy to import munitions in the event of war. These new munition factories, including one at Merano, are already producing.

The usual thing for the pacifist to say is that preparedness for war brings sooner or later that for which preparation has been made. The thing about Signor Mussolini is therefore frightfully obvious is it not?

But one might suggest is all this drilling of Fascist youths for Imperial wars or for home defense with many evidences of enmity already in sight to the aforementioned Signor Mussolini?

CENTRAL AMERICAN GOLD

The cheaper and most read magazines lately have had stories bearing on Central America and to make the thing look realistic along comes a story of a tremendously rich find of gold by Henry Mond a son of Sir Alfred Mond of political notoriety in Britain. So well known a Belleville man as Dr. Proctor, Alderman of the city, who while an official of a steamship line with connections in Central America got to know intimately the romantic tales of the richest to be found there if one were only persistent enough says that from all he had been told one got the impression that undoubtedly the country held enormous riches but they were likely to stay there undeveloped because of the climate and the impenetrableness of the up country district and because also of local politics there which prevented any white man getting anything like a square deal.

However the Mond syndicate with its great connections and its immense wealth will be able to pull the right strings one suspects and may be able quite nicely to pull off this immense development.

A Person Who Does Not See as Well as He Should

Is liable to spells of "crankiness" or depression or both. To one who understands the effects of eye strain on the nervous system this is not surprising. A sufferer from defective vision has his nervous system upset by the results of the strain to which his eyes are subjected, and irritability is a common result. To improve the disposition see that the eyes get needed attention. My service produces the desired results.

Last year, barring one week in April and two weeks in July, the team of Buck Harris, trailed the Mackmen until the latter part of August. At that point the athletics cracked; a long losing streak putting them definitely out of the running. Pittsburgh players, although they gained the peak quicker than the Senators, had a longer and harder climb in 1925. In the cellar in April, they did not begin their ascent definitely until the middle of May. They reached third place in June and vaulted to the pinnacle in July, remaining there until the end except for a few days in August.

The world do move. When mother was a girl, school children released for recess played ring around the rosie. Now they have Charleston contests.

Hospital in Town in Maine Prey of Flames—Cause a Mystery

Old Town, Maine—April 6. — Miss Blanche Frost, an employee, was burned to death and nine patients three of whom had been operated upon yesterday, were removed with difficulty when fire broke out in the Penobscot General Hospital early today. The building was badly damaged. Several of the patients were carried out partially overcome by smoke which filled the rooms as the flames swept through the upper stories of the hospital. The origin of the fire has not been determined.

FLIGHTS OVER LEGATIONS ANNOY WHITES IN CHINA

Peking, April —Continued aerial raids against the National Army barracks in Peking for the last four days by the Chinese "Allied" forces brought a protest from foreign diplomatic quarters in the city by flights over it of military planes. While determined to maintain neutrality in the civil war which prevails the ministers assert they feel justified in reminding the government of its responsibility toward friendly powers whose nationals including delegates to the international customs conference, are endangered.

CUSTOMER OWNERSHIP

Can anything be simpler—the ownership of a Public Utility Company by its customers? The people who pay the gas bills own the Company. Those who make the revenue possible, profit by their own bills. Those who own shares practically get their bills marked "paid." It is estimated that the cash dividends paid on $500.00 worth of stock will pay the average gas bill.

At present there are more than 1,300,000 individual stockholders in public utility companies on this continent.

Sport Notes

By "The Observer"

"The tumult and the shouting dies, The Captain and the kings depart."

The hockey is now practically a dead issue and those gladiators who furnish the populace with thrills galore during four months of the year are now hibernating until the call is again issued next season. It is a fact that the majority of them drift back to the smaller towns from whence they sprang. Dr. Charlie Stewart led the Boston contingent back to Hamilton and all report wonderful treatment at the hands of the Bruin owners. Jimmy Herberts and Carson Cooper experienced their best seasons since joining the pork and beaners. Newsy Lalonde who was reared in Cornwall arrived back on Monday and was just in time to see him before he died, "Toots" Holway who has been subbing with the Marconi since his release by the St. Patrick's Club is expected home soon.

Plans for the Junior ball team will be formally discussed at a meeting in the "Y" tomorrow night.

Young Whitehouse, the sensation of the Central League for the past two years, has evidently been sent to a minor league club. The youngster needed at least a year's seasoning before stepping into class A.A. ball. When one stops to consider the players from the C.O.B.L., who made the jump and how many remained, there it leaves room for thought. At least three players have left the city on purex from this district to mingle with the salaried ranks. How many made good? Freddy Compeau of the Kingston team, Jack Williams from Belleville, and then Peterboro produced Whitehouse. All three were considered as top-notchers in this league, but when placed in company with international players they failed to make the grade and drifted back home to dream of what might have been. It is a long chance and those players who make good have a true steady grind in order to join the classes few under the "big two".

Western Ontario lost one of its foremost Cardigal followers and particularities when Clap Kennedy of Woodstock shook the dust of Ontario from his feet and joined the army of Canadians now located in Detroit. Mr. Kennedy was widely known as an umpire and player in Western Ontario for many years.

Luis Firpo disappointed his many followers in his bout against the Italian Primito Scalla in Buenos Aires the other night. The "Wild Bull of the Pampas" failed to display any of his old-time form but managed to win on points over his European rival.

Sir Thomas Lipton has failed to arouse a great deal of enthusiasm among American yachtsmen regarding America's cup race. The veteran English promoter is expected to hurl a new challenge at the Yanke holders of the auctient trophy. The first race for international yachting supremacy took place in 1930 and Sir Thomas has been trying ever since to lift the trophy, but as yet has been unsuccessful.

Ernest "Jocky" Anderson, of the Victoria Cougars, who was badly injured in Tuesday night's Stanley Cup game, is resting comfortably in a Montreal hospital. A plate was made and set to hold his fractured leg in place. The fracture was so near the hip that splints could not be used. Anderson will have to remain in the hospital for some time.

Although it has been reported that Clarence Boucher, playing manager of the Galt Terriers, of the Big Six Senior O.H.A. group, has been signed by the New York Americans, later information denies this. Many offers have been made by N.H.L. teams to the player, however.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT GRIFFIN'S

What can be pronounced by experts as one of the most extraordinary panoramas ever filmed is the spectacle of the famed Chilkoot Pass, gateway to the Klondike gold fields in "The Gold Rush," Charlie Chaplin's most pretentious comedy-drama now at Griffin's for all week.

The awe-inspiring reproduction of the pass was made at an elevation of 9,500 feet, near the summit of the high Sierras and cost United Artists more than $50,000 to film. The lockie was near the crest of Mt. Lincoln, far above timber line, on granite ledges where seldom eternal snow melts.

Professional ski jumpers were hired to cut a pathway 2200 feet long through the deeply blanked snow, the ascent rising to a height of 1,000 feet above a narrow basin, known as "The Sugar Bowl," where the tent camps of the prospectors were constructed.

To reach the locale, a trail had to be broken nine miles from the railroad through an immense fir forest, to provide a roadway for the vast amount of material used in filming the majestic scene.

The mining camp constructed and the pass opened, Chaplin called upon the Southern Pacific railroad to round up 2,500 men to portray the gold rush's rush for the Klondike. Bearing their packs on their backs, a huge gathering of human derelicts was assembled, representing beggary on a holiday.

The prospect of appearing in a picture with Chaplin, the most famed of vagabonds, brought rogers from far and wide, and they realistically fought their way through the snow as if gold itself was to be their reward rather than a mere day's pay.

AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC RANGE DEMONSTRATION

Of interest to every housewife of the city is the announcement of a demonstration all this week at the store of Mr. F. Finn of the latest and most modern Hotpoint rendering—The Automatic Central Electric Range. It represents the last word in range construction and is the first of its kind to be seen in Belleville.

Almost human is the mechanism of the range in its ability to carry out every wish of the housewife. It is equipped with an electric timer that turns the oven on automatically when the cooking is to be started and turns it off when the food is cooked—all with out any care or attention. Again, it has a heat control, which automatically maintains the oven at just the right temperature for the cooking of the food—neither too hot nor too cold. Then the Hotpoint Electric Timer and Heat Control start and stop the cooking operation and maintain an even and accurate over temperature.

Thus does advances in modern house hold conveniences continue, and who can tell what will be the next.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK

Marvelous beyond conception inspily describes the glories of Canada's Rockies to be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but far-famed mountain region, to many persons quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird, of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountain Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious land of scenery.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th at 9 p.m. by Canadian Pacific Railway. Returning, the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific, through the best farming area of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rockies, affording scenery such as is to be seen nowhere else on earth; Lake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery in the world; Banff; Lake of Beautiful Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devils Lake, Dauphin, on the Lake of the Woods, near Kenora, these two Lake Cities, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific Steamers will be used across Lakes Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Playing in support of Richard Dix in his first Paramount starring picture, "Manhattan" coming to the Belle Theatre for a run of two days commencing on Thursday, Lenore Ulric's leading woman; Gregory Kelly, as a member of a notorious gang of thugs of New York and Helen Kinson, whose the scenes of the production are laid, George Seigmann, in a heavy role, and Gunboat Smith.

The story is a gripping tale of New York's gang life, by a New Yorker who knew what he was talking about. Farnol sets and slept right in the surroundings of which he writes. Everything about the picture is authentic—and as far as entertainment goes, that's the real thing, too!

ROUND THE EARTH IN 34-FT. YAWL GIVEN A MEDAL

Momento Awarded Every Five Years For Courageous Feat

New York, April 7.—The Blue Water Medal of the Cruising Club of America, has been awarded to Harry Pidgeon adventurer and yachtsman, for his recently completed feat of circumnavigating the world in a 34-foot yawl, it is announced.

The medal, awarded every five years for the most courageous feat of navigation, will be presented to Pidgeon on April 6, at a dinner to be tendered him by the Cruising Club on his arrival here from San Pedro Cal., where he built himself, are both abroad the steamship Virginian.

Only one other man ever has circumnavigated the globe in a small boat, according to the records of the Cruising Club. He was Captain Joshua Slocum of Gloucester, Mass., an experienced navigator. Pidgeon, however, is only an amateur. He learned navigation by studying in the public library.

Since he sailed out of Los Angeles from Tantah. At least thirty-five perhaps on November 15, 1921, thirty-five thousand miles of blue water has passed beneath the bow of his bobbing craft. The trip occupied 1,442 days, and Pidgeon reckoned it cost him only $1000. All other entries are on the credit side of his travel log.

He had no previous knowledge of the places he was to visit, nor of ocean currents, storm lanes and typhoon breeding grounds. Experience with these things and places were obtained up as knowledge gained, as they were encountered. His log noted that eight miles north of Capetown a "cool easter" drove him high and dry on the beach.

At another time while he was taking a "watch below" with the islander wal lowing in a shaggy Pacific swell, he was all but run down by a tanker which steered his starboard quarter, leaving the islander with a broken bowsprit and mangled starboard shrouds.

Running before jules which his small boat could not face, Pidgeon found himself in dangerously narrow passages, urged forward by current and gale, with rocks of reefs showing their teeth through the white breakers about him.

Grippe

Now when the germs of Grippe abound, physicians advise keeping the bowels open. Constipation poisons the blood, lowering your resistance to the germs of infectious diseases.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movement without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

CONVERT LABOR TO SOCIALISM

I.L.P. of Great Britain Undertakes to Make Them Like It

London, April 7.— A policy which in effect means that the independent labor party, must again embark upon a campaign to convert the present parliamentary labor group to clear out Socialism if possible, was adopted by the independent labor party at its annual conference in Northumberland. The clear cut section aimed at broader nationalization of those industries which are suitable to pay a "living wage".

This policy has already been repudiated by Ramsay MacDonald and Philip H. W. Bralford, editor of the New Statesmen, as being impracticable. Leader, admitted it was premature, the main objects of which are the creation of commissions to define living wage standards, inquire into direct taxation, provide allowances of five shillings for each child and nationalization of the banks.

By such stages he said control of all industry would be won by socialism within the lifetime of the present generation.

Among the critics of this programme was Emanual Shinwell, former M. P. and organizer of the amalgamated union workers union, who claimed that putting the subject of a living wage in front of the programme was just where the trades union movement for years had come to grief, because capitalism refused to grant the workers "even half a living wage."

EVERY MONTH MANY WOMEN

Take ZUTOO Tablets and are free of the Griping Pain and Sick Headache

Read what Mrs. Wright says: "I received your sample of Zutoo Tablets, and took them for severe pain (monthly) and headache. At the end of 10 minutes, I was entirely free of pain and experienced no more throughout the period. Suffers great deal at these times and feel grateful that I have a remedy which affords quick relief. Every woman in the land should know about Zutoo Tablets and what they will do."

ed on Saturday when a sudden change in wind carried sparks from a fire to a straw dwelling.— Two hundred or more dwellings were ablaze within a few minutes. Many of the villagers cut off were women and children. Fire-brigades from nearby towns were unable to control the fire until practically the entire village had been levelled.

BLACKHEADS

Don't squeeze blackheads—dissolve them. Get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store and rub with hot, wet cloth briskly over the blackheads. They simply dissolve and disappear by this safe and sure method.

Curling and Waving Dries Life from Hair

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, slowly burns the color, luster and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, and full of dandruff; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

Since girls just must curl and wave the hair to appear their prettiest, try "Danderine" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life and that healthy youthful lustre, become incomparably soft, wavy and appear twice as thick and abundant. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears.

A 25-cent bottle of refreshing "Danderine" from any drug store or toilet counter will do wonders for any girl's hair. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

U.S. Wets Say Proposals Go To Far Will Mean Break Down

Washington, April 7. — The outcome of the controversy between the wets and the drys which is marked just now by hearing of wets and drys before the Senate judiciary committee, is likely to be a desperate struggle in the closing days of this session over the enactment, not of more moderate liquor legislation, but of legislation more drastic and severer than any yet attempted.

Introduction by Senator Goff of West Virginia of a bill which goes to greater lengths in behalf of drastic enforcement than ever, has stirred up much feeling.

The bill is so vigorous according to the wets, that the more moderate drys will turn against it. The wets declare that if it is passed, juries will not convict under it, and the Volstead Act and its amendments will be broken down.

The Marquis

By CHARLES GARVICE

Of friends she had absolutely none. Her father had died in Melbourne. For years before their departure for Austral ia they had been living in an out-of-the-way place in Ireland. Dr. Grahame, an eccentric man, absorbed in science, had quarreled with the people at the time of his marriage. So far as she knew, Constance did not possess a single relative. The only acquaintance she had in England was the kindhearted woman, Lady Armstead, with whom she had come over to England, and who had procured her the situatio at Brakespeare.

Constance had stayed for a few days with her at her home in Allingham St. but when Constance left for Brakespeare Lady Armstead was just on the point of departure for Scotland. It was improbable even impossible, that she would be in London now.

And even if she were, how could Constance go to her? Her very first question would be, "Why did you leave Lady Brakespeare?" and what could Constance answer? Whatever reason she gave, Lady Armstead would write to the mistress; she would learn the falsity of the reason Lady Ruth had given her; more questions would be ask ed. With a heavy sigh she put the idea from her shirting mind.

But the problem still remained, and demanded a solution." The train was rushing on the line. She would find herself at the great, busy terminus presently, homeless and friendless! She took out her purse and emptied the money into the palm of her hand, counted it.

It was a pitiably small sum, but it would suffice to keep her for a short time, until— Until when?

She grew too weary to think at last and closing her eyes let the great sorrowful world slide from her.

The train reached Paddington, and the usual bustle and movement surrounded it.

Constance got out, and was making her way in the direction of the cabs, when an impatient crowd, intending to get her portmanteau and call a cab. There was nothing to do, so she let herself be carried to a private hotel.

A porter found the portmanteau and a cab driving toward the cab rank with a small crowd of people came bounding down the platform all very excited and curious and all starting in one direction.

Constance was standing immediately in their way, and was driven thound not very roughly against one, of the cab ranks pillars.

There she stood and waited and watched, if her flatless patience could be called watching.

The object of attraction apparently was an exceedingly handsome carriage. The carriage stood in a line standing upon the embroidered hammer cloth; wore a powdered wig; two footmen in handsome livery stood like sentinels at the door, as if waiting for their master; while the horses chafed on their bits and pawed impatiently as if fully conscious and proud of the attention the equipage was exciting.

Constance looked at the whole business with weary eyes.

"Is it one of the Royal Family?" she asked the porter, who stood staring with half-opened mouth.

"Royal Family? No, miss. It's the great City man they're all talking about. Here he comes!" he broke off excitedly.

Constance turned her head in the direction the crowd was taking, and saw a gentleman coming down the platform. He came with a quick, resolute step his head held high, a look of concentration and power in every movement. A servant followed him with a dispatch box and sundry wraps and the station officials hovered about him with respect ful homage.

In a few paces he came close to her and as he did so a shaft of sunshine shot through Constance, for in spite of the shine movements everybody was watching us exactly, was—Rawson Fenton.

Several men raised their hats as he passed and he raised his, but without bestowing any particular notice on the crowd and making his way to his car riage, stepped in!

The servant followed; the footmen put up the step, mounted behind, and the carriage drove off one or two boys in the crowd raising a shrill hurrah.

Rawson Fenton! The object of a popular ovation in London! And when she had seen him last he was a penniless adventurer in the wilds of Australia. How had this extraordinary change in his position been brought about? For a moment or two she stood, recalling the scene as vividly as if it were occurring before her at that moment — the hissing of the fire, her father's fancied discovery of the secret of the paper rock. Could there have been any truth in it? Had Rawson Fenton availed himself of the secret and gained possession of the treasure of gold?

"DRESS WELL AND SUCCEED"

That Easy Confidence

That comes from knowing you are well dressed — It's yours when you buy clothes Here.

Hat, topcoat, suit and haberdashery to the final touch—the bright handkerchief that dresses up your pocket—it means something to be assured that they are all in good style and that the material and tailoring are the best.

The new Spring topcoats in fancy tweeds, and covert cloths, and new suits in worsted and tweeds are specially interesting.

The Difference

Even with the comparative simplicity of women's clothes nowadays the increasing importance of "cut" and "line" there still remains a certain amount of "accessories that conceal the fact," in the shape of Furs, flattery scarfs, sashes and ruffles—and it's wonderful what a small choker can do for a shoulder line that isn't all it should be. Men's clothes have no such comfortable "camouflage." What they are they uncompromisingly appear to be. So the style, fit and material must be exactly right, every little detail must be correct. Your clothes when they are on should be like a masterpiece in sculpture, with every clean-cut line a perfect line.

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion, sour stomach, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

LEA DELORME
ST. ADOLPHE, MANITOBA

St. Adolphe, Manitoba.—"I was very weak and had great pains during my periods so that I could not sweep the floor. The pains were in the right side and extended to the left and then downwards. It seemed as if the body was heavy and upside down. It is for these troubles I took the Vegetable Compound. I saw about it in a paper and one woman prevailed on me to take it. It has helped me in every way, the pains are less, and I have more appetite. It is a pleasure to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to other women."—Lea Delorme, St. Adolphe, Manitoba.

Found Great Relief

Toronto, Ont.—"I am at the Change of Life which flashes, flushes, dizziness, weakness and nervousness. I had bad boils on me and was short of breath. I was this way about six months when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers. I have taken eight bottles so far and found great relief."—Mrs. R. J. Sasnor, 312 Lansdowne Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. Carr Also Helped

Moncton, Indiana.—"I had inflammation and the doctor said I was in a very low condition. My hips and back felt like knives cutting me. I suffered terribly and could not get around to do my work. I had indigestion and very bad headaches and could not sleep so I was so nervous. I took local treatments and doctor for me so long. I had always heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and I thought it would be like all the others, but I found out after I took half a bottle that I have proved it wonderful. I am taking it yet and I can do all my work. I am feeling fine now, and it is your good medicine that has done it."—Mrs. Carr, wife of the good I get from taking the Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and from using the Sanative Wash. I don't intend to be without them."—Mrs. P. W. Carr, 776 West Jackson Street, Muncie, Indiana.

HOUSE APPROVES POWER PROJECT AT MORRISBURG

Stewart Says Government Will Do Nothing to Hinder

ACTION IS POSTPONED

Government Awaits Joint Board Report—Maritimes Commission Named

Ottawa, April 8.—The House of Commons has gone on record as approving of the granting of permits by the Dominion Government to the Ontario Government and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission for the development of electric power on the St. Lawrence River at the Morrisburg dam and also for using an increased flow of water from the Niagara River. No action will be taken by the Government in the way of granting such permits, however, before it has received the report of the international board of engineers acting in behalf of Canada and the United States and now investigating the question of St. Lawrence developments.

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Interior, assured the House that once this report was received action would be taken by the Government on the Ontario applications and there would be no holding up of the development. The Government, the Minister declared, was in sympathy with the proposals for increasing the power supply of Ontario, but he was persuaded that there should be policy in the matter acceptable to both Canada and the United States.

MANY ATTENDED TO PAY RESPECTS

Despite the fact that inclement weather prevailed this afternoon, many from the city and district were present to pay a last tribute of respect to the late Mr. Burnham Mallory, former County Treasurer.

Members and ex-members of the County Council were present. After a brief service at the family residence, 265 John street, by Rev. D. C. Ramsay, pastor of John Street Church, the body was conveyed to the church where an impressive service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Ramsay who paid a glowing tribute to the departed. He spoke from a portion of the 15th verse of 2nd Timothy, "A workman that needeth not to be ashamed." Mr. Mallory's life was ope of activity and the greater portion of it spent in public capacities. His life had been pre-eminently one engaged in occupations that led to real service in the community. He was a pioneer in the dairy industry of Central and Eastern Ontario. With his many duties he also loved the house of God and was a trusted elder of the church. His kindly heart and clear mind were a source of strength and inspiration to his minister and he was a great help in the work of the church. He was truly a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

At the conclusion of the church service the cortege was reformed and proceeded to Belleville cemetery where interment took place. Floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Bearers were prominent officials, namely, Messrs. Sheriff J. H. Clare, W. H. Nugent, County Clerk, Jas. Haggarty, Acting County Treasurer, J. A. Kerr, County Court Clerk, D. C. Donnan, County Attorney, and S. Fox, County Superintendent of Roads.

There are evidently many of the tramping fraternity at present out on the road from one place to another. This is demonstrated by the fact that last night no less that nine were provided with shelter at the police station. Their ages ranged from 21 to 45 years. For the first three months of this year 707 sought protection at police headquarters here which is an exceptionally large number, and more than in any previous year.

Mention in Speech of Extension of Hydro Resources

Toronto, April 8.—The third session of the Sixteenth Legislature of Ontario was formally closed this afternoon by His Honor, the Lieut Governor. The session lasted eight weeks.

There have been prophecies that it will be the last session of this legislature and that the Government will go to the electors during the year, but there is no official word of a general election.

In the meantime, there are seven vacant seats in the House which will be filled by by-elections if there is no general election.

In his address closing the House today His Honor observed that most of the legislation passed at this session has been to clarify and simplify the law.

The speech mentioned steam grading, the protection of shores and the control of corn borer acts as being useful measures for the farmers.

"Timely steps have been taken to increase the resources of the Hydro Electric Power Commission" his Honor said. "The construction of a new transmission line will bring to the central parts of the Province power generated in the Ottawa River. Northeastern Ontario will experience the advantage from increased development on the Nipigon River and in rural districts, the extension of electrical services continues to make headway."

During the session 132 bills were passed.

BOOTLEG LIQUOR SENT TO CANADA

Washington, April 8.—Canadian Government officials have complained "bitterly but informally" over the smuggling of liquor into that country into Canada, officials here said to-day commenting upon the testimony of District Attorney Buckner of New York before the Senate committee investigating prohibition. The district attorney this the committee that "the dry United States is exporting bootleg industrial alcohol into Canada to help Canadian bootleggers beat the Canadian Government out of taxes."

NURSES ARRIVE GREET FRIENDS OF WAR TIMES

Re-Union Jolly Feature of Morning Session at Parish Hall

ARE MADE WELCOME

Mr. Robert Tannahill Presents Suggestion on Hospital Economy

Belleville added another link in her historical associations when the first general session of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario opened this morning in the Parish Hall of St. Thomas Church.

Long before the opening session registered nurses from all parts of the province had delightful re-unions and the verdict of the hall re-echoed with "Why last time I saw you was at the base hospital at "Somewhere in France" and "Miss ——— this is the first time we have met since in training at Toronto."

Several Reverend Sisters in the habits of the order to which they belong were among the delegates.

OPENING SESSION

This morning's session was opened by invocation by the Venerable Archdeacon C. B. Kenrick, following which Miss Margaret Tait, R.R.C., Superintendent of the Belleville General Hospital, welcomed the delegates and outlined the aims of the newly formed association. She concluded by regretting the absence of business represented His Worship Mayor Graham from welcoming the delegates on behalf of the city, a duty which had devolved upon Alderman Wilmot who was present at the opening of the afternoon session.

MR. TANNAHILL'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Robert Tannahill, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital in welcoming the delegates said: "Madam President and Ladies,—

"On behalf of the Board of Governors I have pleasure in expressing our welcome to you to visit our General Hospital of the City of Belleville and of the County of Hastings. We hope that your sojourn here will have a happy recollection, as well as that it may prove to be both interesting and profitable in every way to you all.

"We look on our hospital as a modern miracle—born by an association of devoted ladies, with a very limited amount of funds available for their purpose. They gradually developed it by their great zeal and ability during the nearly forty years —until a year or two since their accommodation was the burden had outgrown their strength, and an organization of men were called to carry out the further development of the work.

"Like most hospitals outside of large cities, we try to maintain high efficiency without a substantial endowment, there is always a pressing problem to give service to the patients who are only moderately well off, at rates that they can pay.

"The philanthropic and generous contributions from the Province, the County and the City help us to provide for patients without any means—but there is a large part of every community, who desire to pay their own hotel bills and can choose accommodations that suit their circumstances when they are well—but find the expenses of hotels for the sick quite beyond their ability.

"I have personally hoped that by availing ourselves of the services of the senior nurses-in-training as probationary nurses might be a step to the direction which we would like to advance. It may be that suggestions could be developed and perhaps among so many who are interested, some additional suggestions may be brought forward."

Mr. Tannahill concluded by again wishing the newly formed organization every success.

OIL IS ON FIRE MILE OF BLAZE AS TANKS IGNITE

Loss of Union Oil Co. in California Estimated at $15,000,000

San Luis Abaispo, Calif., April 8.—The 300-acre tank farm of the Union Oil Company at which was stored some 6,000,000 barrels of oil, was abandoned early today to the fire which had threatened its destruction since yesterday morning when two underground tanks were struck by lightning.

Four huge underground reservoirs in which the blaze had been confined all day yesterday and last night, boiled over early this morning and the flaming oil, sweeping over a dyke that had been thrown up carried the fire to two other reservoirs and ten surface tanks. Other surface tanks were rapidly ignited.

As the fire spread from tank to tank it created a flame a mile long. The loss is estimated at more than fifteen million dollars.

Famous Soldier To Be Successor Of Byng of Vimy?

London, April 8.—The Daily Graphic, independent, says it has excellent reasons for believing that the Earl of Cavan, former Chief of the Imperial General staff, will succeed Lord Byng as Governor-General of Canada upon the expiration of Lord Byng's terms of office at Ottawa in August. The Earl of Cavan recently resigned the position of Chief of the Imperial General staff which he had occupied since 1922. He was A.D.C. to Lord Stanley of Preston when the latter was Governor-General of Canada, 188-93. He is in his 62nd year.

Licensing System For Makers May Be Expected In 1927

RATING TO BE SHOWN

Four Main Points To Be Considered—Sanitation Comes First

During the remodelling season of 1926 cheesemakers in Ontario will be on trial according to the "Ontario Milk Producer," organ of the Association. It is well that they should know this in good time. By the time 1927 rolls around makers will come under the amendment to the Dairy Standards Act, making provision for the granting of certificates to or for the licensing of makers. Makers, therefore, are receiving due warning what to expect and should govern themselves accordingly during the present season. They are now on probation, so to speak, and whether they will rank as makers of first or second grade a year from now will depend upon themselves.

There will be no arbitrary measures adopted in awarding certificates or granting a license to operate a factory. There will be no picking out of fellows here and there more or less at random because of long service to the industry or because they are connected with leading factories or have some good friend at court. Selection will be entirely by merit and there will be no haphazard methods followed in deciding upon the qualifications of any maker. Certain well defined tests have been decided upon to judge of the merits or demerits of any one operating a factory in 1926. These in turn are based upon conditions existing in the trade and in the operation of factories, which permit of the maker's ability to do the work he is engaged to do, being gauged pretty accurately by those whose duty it will be to allot certificates.

FOUR MAIN TESTS

The four main tests are four main tests which will decide the fate of makers so far as licensing and receiving certificates are concerned. These may be defined as follows:

1.—How his cheese grades.

2.—The kind of milk he accepts.

3.—Sanitary conditions of factory and its equipment.

4.—Maker's appearance, of if you will, his own personal condition.

The first one is important and at the same time clear and definite. With cheese grading in force, the quality of the product each maker turns out can be accurately ascertained, and this quite independently of those who have the grading of cheese under their control. Cheese grading comes under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, the appointment of makers will be a provincial matter. All that will be necessary for the Provincial Department to do will be to obtain from Ottawa the exact grading of each maker's cheese and award the certificate accordingly. Arrangements have already been made so that the information is already being supplied to the various provincers by the Dominion grading officer. Ottawa has on file, or will be on file, in the office of the Dairy Branch at Toronto, a complete record of how each maker's cheese grades during the season of 1926.

THE MILK SUPPLY

The second test is linked up closely with the first. In fact the two stands or fall as a general way well. How a maker's cheese grade, will depend in no small degree upon the kind or quality of milk he accepts for cheese making. This reason ability he must take upon himself. If he accepts milk that he knows will not make a good grade cheese, the burden is upon himself. No excuse on the milk score will be entertained. A maker's ability to make first-class cheese is dependent in a large measure upon his ability to judge the quality of the milk he receives.

It might be contended that some allowance should be made for this in fixing the quality of the product a maker turns out. While it is possible that milk may be taken in whose quality for

CHURCH PEOPLE URGED TO STOP ALL SMUGGLING

George P. Graham Talks Plainly in Meeting to Brockvillians

Brockville, Ont., April 8.—"If the church members of the Dominion of Canada would pay duty on the goods that they are now smuggling into this country, the debt of Canada would be reduced by several millions more dollars every year."

Rt. Hon. Geo. P. Graham told this to a gathering of men of the Wall Street United Church last night.

"You have to be honest with the state as well as the church. You say that the bootlegger is an awful crap, and he is, but how much worse is he than the smuggler? Don't do things yourselves that you think are terrible in others. If you were to come home with something on the lap, your wife would probably and rightfully kick you. Look out she doesn't kick you with a smuggled shoe. Smuggling goods into Canada is doing the country out of money that rightly belongs to it."

CHEESE MAKERS PUT ON TRIAL

...ing for not the necessary ...ished when there is at the neighbouring factory, with the exception, and occasionally infrequently in unsatisfactory. In the latter instances or cases where the milk is accepted, the maker knows it or should know it and is attentive to his duties.

SANITARY CONDITION AND CLEANLINESS

No. 3. As the sanitary condition in which the factory and its equipment is kept is a definite and clear cut test. Whether a factory is kept in a cleanly and sanitary manner, there can be no two opinions. It is either kept in a sanitary condition or it is not kept in a sanitary condition. Any well informed and experienced instructor or inspector should be able to size this up pretty accurately.

It may be said that makers in up-to-date and properly equipped factories will stand a better chance of securing first-rating than makers in small, old or dilapidated factories with inferior equipment will. That will not be the case. In fact much more will be expected of the maker in an up-to-date factory than of the maker in one that's old, and out-of-date in every respect. The maker will not be held responsible for the kind of building he works in nor the kind of equipment he has to work with. He will be judged upon the sanitary and cleanly condition in which he keeps the factory and equipment, and not upon the factory itself or its equipment. There are today old worn out buildings with inferior equipment kept scrupulously clean and in first-class sanitary condition in so far as it is possible for the maker to do so under such circumstances. On the other hand there are new, up-to-date factories with proper equipment kept in anything but a clean and sanitary condition. It all depends upon the man. And in the licensing plan it is the man and his ability or aptitude to carry on the work in which he is engaged successfully that will count.

DURANT DEALERS HERE HAVE LUNCH AT QUINTE

With factory representatives from Toronto and factory service experts present, Durant Motors dealers of this district to the number of some thirty-five assembled in the city today with F. C. Lee, local Durant Motors dealer acting as host of the gathering. The occasion was one of a series of dealers' educational conferences, in which experts from Durant Motors are taking the opportunity of making the various assembled Dealers thoroughly tacquainted with the merits and fine points of the New Star Four and Six Cylinder Motor Cars.

For this purpose a chassis demonstration is being held this afternoon in the showrooms of Mr. F. C. Lee.

At noon to-day the various dealers assembled in the Hotel Quinte at luncheon previous to the demonstration. Included at the gathering were Mr. Phillip Duggan, Sales Manager of Durant Motors of Toronto; Mr. R. B. Robinson, District representative of Kingston; M. F. Pounsett, Service Manger of Toronto and Mr. W. Kirby, also a factory service representative. Mr. Duggan stated to The Intelligencer that prospects in the motor industry were never better than at the present time. During the first three months of the present year, sales had increased more than one hundred per cent. over the corresponding period in 1925.

SOURCES OF SUPPLY.

Sensitive humanitarians in this country who have been greatly troubled at the thought that Canada has been the chief source of liquor supply for unregenerate Americans who will not obey the Volstead law—that this country is doing much to debauch its neighbor—can now cease from troubling. There is comfort for them in the testimony given to U.S. Assistant Treasurer Anderson, who is responsible for the Volstead act, before the senate committee which is conducting an inquiry into the working of that act. Mr. Anderson told the committee that bootlegging and rum-running from Canada and Mexico are not the chief sources of supply. With additions to the number of dry fire officers along the borders, that illicit traffic could be stopped. The chief sources of supply, he said, are the diversion of industrial alcohol, moonshining, and the smuggling of liquor from the sea.

And so it appears that the responsibility for the enforcement of this American law is upon the American government and American officials, and it is not necessary for the Canadian government to spend money in helping the neighboring republic to enforce its own law.

TO ENCOURAGE MARRIAGE

Ordinarily, remuneration for service is according to the value of the service, without regard to the needs of the person who gives it. A married man gets no more than a bachelor, although the needs of the married man are likely to be much greater.

The government of the Irish Free State is of the opinion that there should be discrimination in pay in favor of the married men in the public service, and has accordingly introduced a new schedule of pay. For clerical officials the maximum pay of the married man is to be $700, and that of the bachelors $150 a year, the same salary as is paid to women doing clerical work. The maximum for married men holding executive positions is fixed at $524, and that of bachelors holding similar positions is to be $392.

It is evident that this change has been made not so much as a matter of justice as because it is deemed good public policy. Evidently the government intends to do something to encourage marriage and increase the birth rate. For it is provided that when a public official marries he is to receive a cash bonus presumably to assist in establishing a home; and executive officers are to receive special allowances up to a maximum of $75.

So this discrimination in favor of married officials should be regarded as a subsidizing of the holy state of wedlock, the infant industry which is, or ought to be, associated with it. It is a principle which could not be applied to remuneration for temporary or special service.

CHAPMAN; AND AFTER

Gerald Chapman, "prince of bandits," was hanged by the state of Connecticut for the murder of a policeman and his exit from life's stage brought the last curtain down on a melodrama that has had quite an extensive run. Chapman, declared by the police to have been the cleverest criminal of a decade, wasn't clever enough to win his war against society. Frank James, who was shot in the back by Ford, a double crosser, pal, to Chapman, one can name on the fingers of one hand, and still have a few digits left over, the killers who have saved their own hides. When the so-called "master criminals" can't win, one is forced to wonder what the incentive is that prompts the average run-of-mine thug to carry on. The Biddle boys were quite some hellions in their day, which was more than twenty years ago. Their escape from a Pennsylvania prison and their subsequent reincarceration at the hands of a posse were deemed sensational enough to be incorporated into a melodrama, A Desperate Chance, Harry Tracey was another of this royalty of the underworld whose career of crime was ended by a rain of bullets, when, after an escape from prison, he was surrounded by a posse. There have been dozens of a kind in the last twenty years, in Canada as well as in the United States, the end of the trail for whom was violent death. Resourceful lawyers and maudlin public sympathy are making outlawry less hazardous, but it is still a game in which the odds are against the player. Chapman's forages against society netted him millions of dollars of loot, but one wonders if, when he made his last melodramatic plea for his life before the board of pardons for the state of Connecticut he would not gladly have welcomed the opportunity to start off, as a boy of seventeen, on the road of honest labor and respectability.

IT "MIGHT HAVE BEEN"

Gerald Chapman died by hanging as a murderer after being pronounced until he was the best known killer and crook on the continent. His attorneys will now say they "might have" had him saved by use of the insanity plea.

DON'T WED CLEVER GIRL ONE WITH HUMOR BEST IF A CAREER, NO FAMILY

English Novelist Says Woman With Children Cannot Well Run a Separate Career

Miss Storm Jameson, one of the clot successful of that band of young women novelists of high intelligence and infinite promise, a striking feature of literary life in London, has come to the United States to pay her first visit, says R. L. Clare Fullips, editing in the N.Y. York Times.

Her last two novels, "The Pilgrim Wife" and "Three Kingdoms," both deal with phases of one topic that seems to absorb endlessly without ever burning itself away—the topic of women in their relation to married life. She has tried ed the question with as much power and insight that it is not surprising her personality and views are both a matter of considerable interest abroad.

The English novelist—she, by the way, is only 28—when invited to express herself on the subject of careers for married women, replied in a very positive manner:

I dont say that it is impossible for a married woman with children successfully to run a separate career as well, but that it is practically so. Some can, but a super-woman can run both, and super-women are few and far between. Moreover it is a fair question for her, is a career. Either the marriage or the career is bound to suffer when a woman tries to combine both.

I think that it is quite possible for a woman to have a career and to run a husband as to speak; but I don't think that she can have a career, run a husband and bring up her children properly—as I have tried to point out in my "Three Kingdoms". A woman can rule over any two of three kingdoms with a reasonable amount of success but not over the three.

Of course, many modern women solve the difficulty by shading over their children to other people to bring up but I think the practice of pushing the children out of one's scheme of existence is detestable. A mother is the right person to bring up her own children. I am certain that one of the results of this attempt to do the rest of so many modern women to rule these kingdoms leads men to look outside their home for interest and sympathy.

I dont know anything about American husbands, but, speaking from experience, I do know that an English husband resents a good deal of attention from his wife. Although he may not have the slightest objection to her work as long as inclined to feel aggrieved if he considers that he is being grossly neglected for the sake of her outside interests.

In other words, I think that the ever see Englishman objects to careers for married women more on personal and spiritual grounds than on any other.

You ask me if women with brains lack imagination. I think very often they do. You know that clever women are frightfully apt to get obsessed with the idea of their own efficiency. They are generally very dominating and in a sense have little mental audacity. Their minds are, so to speak, set and don't "jump" easily because their great lack of imagination.

If I were a man, I should never want to marry a clever woman. What sort of woman would I marry? One with quite a strong sense of humor and a good temper. Not that I should like a fool around me and a woman who cannot talk also bores. But I should marry a "decorative" woman for love or money.

Let me make myself perfectly clear. I don't think that a clever woman is I'm sure they much prefer them to the barely domesticated type. I dislike intensely domesticated woman myself. I consider her a pretty boring specimen and the word "decorative" woman is better than the domesticated type who spends all her time shopping and window gazing and doesn't possess two ideas to rub together.

Nevertheless very few highly intelligent women seem to be able to make a successful career of marriage. They seem to want an outside interest as well just as a man does. But men are so used to careers that having them doesn't worry them, domineering as it so often makes women.

As a matter of fact, I think that it is only the highly educated woman who gives a woman a square deal in business. The highly educated man is the only kind who will treat her as a man.

The other sort either gives her too much just because she is a woman or too less to the other extreme and takes advantage of her by bullying her.

AMATEUR SHOP-LIFTER REPLACES HARD-BOILED NEW EXCUSE EMPLOYED

Women Are Culprits in Vast Majority of Cases and Veteran Store Detectives Tell of Fads and Fancies of this Sort of Person.

New York, N.Y., April 5.—The professional shoplifter has taken a back seat in the business to her sister, the amateur. Stepping out from under, just as stricter policing of the store department arose, higher and following arrests and more frequent sentences made things a little too hot, the army of hard-boiled "regulars" has left for the smaller cities.

"Most shoplifters today are unskilled culprits, thieves of impulse, easily caught and in most cases warned by the results of their first offense," W. de S. Trenholm, secretary of the Stores Mutual Protective Association, Inc., said. "Most of the shoplifters we get today are young working girls, who crowd the stores at noon and on Saturday afternoons and steal little trinkets that tempt their vanity—perfume, beads, silk stockings, lingerie," said Detective Orlih, who has been with a large department store 20 years.

"Women are stealing simply because they want to get something for nothing," said Detective Wall of the other large store. "Many arrested have professional women, or the wives of professional men. The vast majority of shoplifters could afford to pay for the things they steal—often have the money in their purses at the time."

"Many women steal because they are tempted by something they see and want, possibly need, and have not the money for them in their pinched weekly budgets," he said.

Just as the majority of shoppers are women, so are the majority of shoplifters. Of the 1,353 cases last year only 240 were men.

"Men sometimes come in and steal around Christmas time," said Detective Wall. "They are the type who don't like to "crowd" and run pressmas, so they try to pick up a few knick-knacks to give away."

Detective Orlih is on the way, a seasonal activity, with marked increase around holidays. One large store, for instance, with an average of 60 for the other months of 1926, showed 304 cases in December.

"There was the wife of a rich Chicago packer that was caught with stolen Christmas presents hidden for all her family and friends," added Wall.

Methods of shoplifting vary. Covering small objects with numerous, pushing them into open bags, slipping garments under heavy coats and even into the underwear of the shoplifter have all been tried and discovered by the quick eye of the detective.

"I remember the case of a woman who went into a store wearing an dress under her coat," said Justice Frederic Kernochan, one of the Police Special Sessions. "She left the store wearing a stolen dress, and when arrested raised great hue and cry, demanding that the store produce her own dress."

With the new shoplifter have come new excuses. The "women of the old school" used to play up feminine frailties.

"I'm not quite right when I'm this way," was the plea of Margaret Reilley, mother of a large family, when another little Reilley was on the way.

Today the new psychology is quoted. "I can prove to you, Judge, why I have to steal," a college student accused of shoplifting said. "It is an ancestral throw back to primitive days."

A BIT OF REAL SEA

Chicago, April 5.—A bit of sea—one million gallons of genuine ocean water—is to be transported to Chicago. Geo. F. Moore, director of the $2,000,000 Shedd Aquarium, is the man quoted in Great Park is making a preliminary survey of the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts in search of a favorable spot from which to obtain the sea water which will mean life to the salt water fish of the aquarium.

Synthetic salt water lacks the organic content and chemical constituents of real ocean water without which salt water fish cannot live, Mr. Moore said.

The entire shipment will require 125 railroad tank cars having a capacity of 8,000 gallons each. The million gallons will be stored in a huge reservoir.

"Once we have our full supply of salt water," Mr. Moore stated, "we will be equipped for an indefinite period after the water can be used over and over again by virtue of a process of filtration and aeration. Evaporation will take place, but this affects only the water and not the salts. We will simply add filtered water."

BLACKHEADS

Blackheads simply dissolve and disappear by this easy, simple, safe and sure method. Get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle it on a hot, wet cloth, rub the face briskly—every blackhead will be gone.

MISS DICKSON'S REPORT

Miss L. E. Macpherson Dickson in her president's address briefly outlined the steps taken in the matter of reorganization and incorporation. She stated that since the registration of Nurses act had been made operative in the Province of Ontario, it became both desirable and advisable that the name of Provincial Nurses' Association should be changed. Advisable because in the rules and regulations relating to the registration of nurses there is a clause which provides that the nurse members of the Council of Nurses Education may be nominated by the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario.

REPORTS READ

In presenting the report on private duty nursing prepared by Miss Carruthers, Miss Brown pointed out that several hospitals have adopted the 12 hour system for graduate nurses instead of the 16 and 20 hour system. Some have even adopted an 11 hour day..

MISS JEAN GUNN

Miss Jean Gunn superintendent of the Toronto General Hospital, reporting on the Red Cross Advisory Committee, said that six additional out post hospitals have been opened by the Ontario Division of the Red Cross this year, making 16 in all giving a total of 92 adults beds, and 27 children's beds, employing 32 graduate nurses and undergrads.

During the past year 1020 were admitted to outpost hospitals as in patients, with a total of 11371 hospital days. Out patients treated were 1629 while 1397 visits were made to homes.

ALD. WILMOT REPRESENTS MAYOR

In welcoming the delegates, representing Mayor Graham, Alderman C. E. Wilmot regretted the inclemency of the weather which would prevent them from seeing the city at its best. He spoke of the pride taken in the splendid local hospital, in the efficiency of the Superintendent, Miss Tait, and in the Board of Governors. He hoped that while the delegates were in the city they would see the many points of interest including the School for the Deaf and generously offering transportation to any who tomorrow might wish to see this famous institution. Alderman Wilmot expressed his sincere interest in the activities of the nursing profession and wished the newly formed organization every success in the future.

SPORTOGRAMS

By "The Observer"

What has become of the plans for Belleville's new artificial rink? It was evidently only a dash in the pan. It is high time the citizens of Belleville took hold of the proposition and made it a realization. There is no doubt in anybody's mind but what a real up-to-date arena is needed here. With interest on every side of us erecting new rinks, Belleville should not remain in the same old rut. Hockey will always draw good crowds as long as there is suitable accomodation for spectators. The Quinte city has always cut quite a swath in hockey circles in this district but will be left far behind when the other teams can step on the ice in mid-november and be in first-class shape when the O.H.A. season is officially opened. An artificial arena could be used for boxing tournaments, food shows and other entertainments during the summer months and with proper management could easily be put on a paying basis. Peterboro and Prescott are the latest towns to report plans for new rinks. A little action what say folks!

Peterboro ivory hunters are already scouring the country for hockey players for next season. Val the North Bay junior has been reported as a recent acquisition to the lit-tle rock aerates.

Junior League meeting at the Y. M. C. A. to-night promptly at 8.00. All eligible players and those interested, are earnestly requested to attend and settle up-to-date and outline the season's work.

The games in the soft-ball league were hard-fought last night. We managers to pick the winners correctly but Christ Church came near sending the C.N.R. team home on the short end of the tally but a seventh inning rally send the winning counters over. The High School held the Point Anne boys to a 1-run score and with a few hitters in the line-up they would have figured more closely in the result. Sonny Green's pitching proved rather puzzling to the students, some of whom showed a tendency to draw away from the plate rather than step into the ball.

On Friday night the C. N. R. will meet Colling's Juniors, this promises to be a battle royal with the probabilities slight favors over the "Mogul." The Citco will clash with the Alemites with odds in favor of the latter. Don't miss these two games.

The Montreal Maroons are now perched on the highest pinnacle that any hockey team can mount, World's Champions! The easterners were only able to subdue the fighting coast team after four fierce struggles. A lion's share of the credit is due to Nelson Stewart speedy defence man on the champion team. It was he who scored both goals on Tuesday night and put up a wonderful exhibition in all four games. The Montrealers performed an almost impregnable defence which the Cougars found difficult to penetrate. The Maroons rained 8-2 after shot at Holmes but the former Pitchfork goalie was on his best behaviour and saved in beautiful style. The series has been of special interest to Belleville fans owing to the fact that a local boy has been playing with the title hold ers and although he did not get a chance in any of the series games he appeared in one or two games in the National league race. "Toots" has no doubt profited considerably in his stay with the Maroons and will probably be recalled next season. Holway, was nabbed by Gerard immediately when the Toronto St. Pats' set him adrift and the veteran mentor will bring him along in a year or two. He will be in line for his share of world's series coin.

The Kingston Juniors will be feted to-morrow night with a banquet and presentation of gold watches. Mayor Angrove and Dr. Bruce Taylor of Queen's are arranging an elaborate program.

Dune Monroe who captains the Maroons hold the unique record of having led three champion teams in seven years. In 1918 he captained the U. T. S. senior'd, in 1923 was with the Granites and in 1924 he was captain of the World's amateur champions and now with the Maroons he is leader of the world's professional title-holders.

Dr. Kirk Quinn well known hockey and football star is back in Toronto according to advices from the Queen city. The former tricolour now recently took up his residence in Massachusetts but trouble with immigration officers forced his return and Aggos are claiming his services for the double blue gridiron squad once more.

CROOKED RACING

The moving picture industry has its Will Hays and baseball has its Judge Landis—and they have had them, for a sufficient length of time to constitute a real test. That the movie actors and actresses are still playing fast and loose with matrimony and the divorce courts—and that baseball has had a scandal since Judge Landis was placed in supreme control do not prove that the experiments have been unsuccessful. There undeniably has been an improvement in the tone of moving pictures and baseball since their respective evils were removed and the suggestion that a ralph of baseball appointed, whose job it will be to thoroughly renovate and fumigate that sport, will be approved by those who have the best interests of that industry at heart. Horse-racing and scandal have affinities for a long time, but there's no particular reason why a virtuous sport should not be made to divorce one from the other. The recent exposures of crookedness in Kentucky tracks where the standard fee paid jockeys for "pulling" horses was $1,000, proves that it is an even more 'wicked' game than the public has permitted and maintained it suspected. The appointment of a high commissioner, with power to banish from the turf all those detected in deviation from honest practice, might not rid the sport of all crookedness, but it would have a restraining effect. There would be no way of preventing horses that could win being sent out only for an "airing" to lighten them up for future races of more importance, but the more glaring offenses, the doping of thoroughbreds, the stuffing of spectators in bastile and the bribing of riders could be made so risky as to become the exception and not the rule. The exposures in Kentucky indicates it to have been on many tracks. What once was the sport of kings seems to have developed into the haunt of dirty deceivers. Whether it can be restored to its once high plane remains to be seen.

Detroit promoters have at last realized that the time is ripe to introduce professional hockey in that city, before by the following from the pen of H. G. Salsinger, in the Detroit News:

"The team that represented New York in the National League of professional hockey during the season of 1925-26 and that were those gay red, white and blue uniforms, played as the Hamilton Tigers during the season of 1924-25, and represented Hamilton, Ont., The New York team was not composed of New Yorkers or Americans. Its players were recruited from the Dominion of Canada.

C. N. R., Pt. Anne Were The Winners In Soft Ball Games

The soft-ball games at the armour. ies last night resulted in the Canadian National team out-slugging the Christ Church bunch in the curtain raiser, and the High School were put away by the Point Anne nine. A fair crowd watched the proceedings and Friday night's games should draw a bigger gate. It is a real evening's entertainment to watch these boys perform and the game is fast growing in popularity.

C.N.R. 17; CHRIST CHURCH 16.

As the score indicates, it was a regular slugging bee and the railroaders came through with a last inning rally and clinched the piece. The Canadian Nationals did not play up to expected form after holding the fast Point Anne team to a quartette of runs last week and Christ Church took kindly to Hurley's offerings and hit him hard and often. The fielding on neither side was nothing to write home about. Fred Saunders serving them up for the losers did fairly well on his initial appearance. In the third inning the C.N.R. pasted the pill for a grand total of six runs before the avalanche was stopped, it was a second battle all the way through. Woodley umpired at the plate on Colling on bases.

The line-up:

C.N.R.—Welz, s.s., S. Hagerman, c., C. Young, 1b., S. Symons, 2b., L. Amo, 2b., H. Gibson, l.f., S. Seeley, r.f., H. Hurley, p.

POINT ANNE 7; HIGH SCHOOL 1.

The second game was the better of the two, but the High School could not solve "Sonny" Green's delivery. The Point Anne bunch appear to be the class of the league at the present time. With a fast fielding team combined with good hitting qualities and a mighty nifty battery, they will be hard to beat. The High School went out in one, two, three order and with the exception of the sixth inning when "Doc" Faulkner and Naphin hit in succession not a man reached first base.

The cement mixers garnered a quartette of runs in the fourth stanza. When the heavy artillery got under motion.- Naphin pitched a nifty game and was given nice support all through. Nig. Ross' catch of Strahan's drive was one of the features.

Umpires—Colling and Woodley.

Official scorer—S. R. Curry.

C.C.C.—J. Maracle, 2b., G. Goulin, s.s., M. Green, 3b., P. Green, c., R. Green, p., J. Bonneau, c.f., J. Brant, r.f., W. Strahan, 1b., R. Hutchings, l.f.s.

Recreation Alleys

Four league games were played at the Recreation Alleys last night. In the Ladies' Senior League the Ramblers won four points from the Rinky Dinks. Mrs. Salisbury was high honor for the Ramblers with an even 500, while for the Rinky Dinks Mrs. Harris was high with 452.

In the Men's Junior League the Chaos after getting off to a bad start and losing the first game, managed to win the next two points and also on the total score from the Ponies, counting three points against the Pony's one. B. Holland and F. Liberty were the two highest bowlers for their teams.

In the O.N.R. League two postponed games were played. In one game Shops No. 1 emerged two points from the Supt's Office No. 1 and are still on top of the C.N.R. League with one more game to play. W. Gerow was the high bowler for the Shops and for the Office J. D. MacMillan was high.

In the other C. N. game the Office No. 2 won two points from the Stokers and practically eliminated them from the running. If the Stokers had won the three points it would have given them a good chance in the league standing. High honors were V. Welz 631, and W. White 570.

Westerner Star Is On Vienna Team

Winnipeg, Man., April 7.—Hockey material developed in Winnipeg has gone far afield to bolster up amateur and professional teams in many parts of the Dominion and the United States, but to Blake Watson, member of the Tiger-Falcons wealers last year, goes the honor of being probably the most distant emissary of Canada's national winter pastime.

Taking a post graduate course in medicine at the University of Vienna, Watson has so enthused other students at the Vienna institution of learning that hockey has become a popular sport in the old Austrian capital.

According to a copy received of a sporting journal published in Vienna, Watson is heralded as the best player ever seen in action in those parts. He has mastered the best skaters attending the university and taught them the rudiments of stickhandling, combination play and has trained the team into a smooth-working machine.

Since Watson joined the Vienna hockey club, the students have not lost a game against teams from Berlin, Munich, Czecho-Slovakia and Switzerland, the journal states.

Blake is credited with a high goal average in 25 international series and as a result of his prowess, has been offered contracts to play exhibition games in several European cities.

In Germany, Watson was presented with a silver cup by the Berlin sports men in commemoration of his brilliant performances before record crowds there.

Watson was a member of the Varsity junior hockey champions of 1922 and was regarded as one of the most promising players ever developed in city otherwise proud of its hockey graduates.

"Professional hockey would go over just as big in Detroit. Put a high-class professional team in the city and it will play to packed houses. The attendance would be assured by 100,000 former Canadians now living in Detroit, and by converts the Canadian game has made among the American-born in the city."

AT GRIFFIN'S

It is related that it is much harder to move audiences to laughter than to tears, and odd devices often are used by studio and stage technicians to produce mirth by contrasts.

There isn't anything particularly funny about a double-barrelled shotgun, in fact this particular weapon and other firearms are hardly proper ten times where they appear in a comedy once.

Yet what has been pronounced one of the funniest scenes in Charlie Chaplin's comedy-drama of the frozen North, "The Gold Rush," now at the Griffin Theatre, revolves about a two-barrelled fowling piece.

The comedy is achieved by Chaplin's indirect efforts to keep out of the range of the muzzle of the gun, while stark tragedy impends with two men fighting for their lives over the possession of the weapon.

FAMOUS JAPANESE HERE

Prof. Paul Kanamori, who is regarded as one of the most influential scholars, teachers and pioneers in modern Japan, visited Belleville last night at Bridge Street Church. He has been visiting some of the prominent Christian churches in Canada. He has been back to Japan and has just returned after visiting Great Britain. He was also a notable representation in Britain. Prof. Kanamori related the story of his conversion to Christianity. While attending one of the Government schools he received an English Bible and after continuous study he was lead to accept its teachings and also became one of the foremost men of Japan in extending the Gospel to his people. He spoke for one hour, and said that he preaches one sermon of three hours' duration, and his object in coming to the western world is to raise funds for the publishing and distribution of this sermon to all of Japan. One copy for every family would mean the publication and distribution of 15,000,000 copies.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

From Hell's Kitchen to the Pearly Gates of Heaven is a long, long journey even as the crow flies, but Richard Dix makes the trip in a few seconds in "Manhattan" his first starring picture for Paramount. One minute Dick is strolling along the side-walk of New York's famous gang district. A ryegrass tapline over the head with a black-jack and the next minute our hero is groping through clouds to a massive silver gate, where St. Peter sits on a raised dais and challenges all comers.

Stage directors have often grappled with the problem of depicting the Heavenly Threshold, but it is doubtful whether the scene has ever been portrayed more graphically than in this motion picture. The background is the vast vault of the sky, with the golden rays of a rising sun spreading out fanwise from the far horizon. Billowy clouds drift across the foreground, dissolving and changing shape.

In the foreground is St. Peter's knee, in a huge book. A close up reveals the book is filled with names. Opposite each name is the age and "qualifications" of the applicant. From this information, St. Peter either admits the newcomer to heaven or consigns him to outer darkness.

"NO, NO, NANETTE" IS COMING

It is announced here that "No, No, Nanette,".now the reigning sensation of New York, London and Australia and which played to solid capacity for more than a year in Chicago and completely stole the hearts of Boston theatregoers for seven months, as well as the two theatres which it has had, Adelphia, is booked for Griffin's on Thursday next, April the 15th.

"No, No, Nanette" with its famous song hits,"I Want to be Happy" and "Tea for Two" is the outstanding musical sensation of this generation, the production containing melodies being literally sung nightly in all the great amusement capitals of the

British Prison Commissioners Have No Respect For Them

London, Eng., April — (Canadian Press Despatch) — The present day convict is far better educated than his forbears of olden days, but he is softer and more apt to whine over trifles, declare the Prison Commissioners in their annual report. Neurasthenia and nervous breakdowns used never to be heard of; now they are almost fashionable and applications for aspirin, sleeping draughts and nerve tonics are becoming more and more frequent.

At eighteen prisons the old fashioned method of prisoners taking their meals at the solitude of their cells has been done away with, so far as second-division prisoners are concerned. They now dine in association and the results are satisfactory. Public opinion among prisoners of this class maintains a decent tone of conversation, while eating in a common table with ordinary arrangements promotes self-respect."

The general good conduct of prisoners is also commented upon. "Most prisoners now consider the man who misconducts himself, or who resists authority to be a nuisance, instead of regarding him as a hero, which used to be the case."

REJECTS WIFE'S FOURTEEN POINTS

Awarded Alimony After Ultimatum Read Like "Terms to Vanquished"

New York, April 7.—Justice Hagarty, in the Brooklyn Supreme Court allowed Mrs. Virginia Mowbray Whitney, 612 Third Street, Brooklyn, alimony of $75 a week, together with a decree of separation. Mrs. Whitney submitted a series of "fourteen points" as a basis for reconciliation with her husband, Arthur Whitney, jr., a stunt flier. The points read:

1. That you understand this is your last chance to prove yourself.

2. That the home we may form will be run on principles of love; that the baby will only know kindness.

3. That there will be no interference from the in-laws on either side.

4. That the running of the house and the managing of the clothes of the baby and myself is my department, and your business is yours.

5. That when I leave my mother's home her financial obligations cease.

6. That I will have help to relieve me of the heaviest drudgery.

7. That I will have your entire confidence in financial matters and access to your living bank account.

8. That this marriage shall be run on a 50-50 basis.

9. That I will have your utmost cooperation and thoughtfulness in every way.

10. That we will stop all discussions of past unpleasantness.

11. You will have one night a week for yourself, and I will have the same.

12. No more talk of bachelor freedom nor entertaining of young ladies by you.

13. That you will not put obstacles in my path if a divorce seems to be the best solution.

14. That you will stick always to the truth and not deny statements that you have previously made.

Whitney rejected the fourteen points because "they read like the terms of a victorious general offered to a vanquished foe."

W. M. S. OF ST. ANDREW'S HEARS DETAILED REPORT OF MEET OF PRESBYTERIAN

The Easter Thanksoffering meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Sunday School room of the Church. Mrs. Morris occupied the chair in the absence of Mrs. Howard Sharpe through illness.

Reports were read for the delegates who had attended the Kingston Presbyterial last week by Miss Edgar Rutherford and Mrs. G. A. Reid and a most comprehensive and interesting account of the proceedings in Kingston was included in those reports. The reports of Mrs. W. S. MacDavid, Press Secretary for the Kingston Presbyterial, sent to the Presbyterial was read at the Belleville meeting yesterday and this gave to the local Society a wonderful idea of the great work being done all of which is reported by the press of the district.

Delegates to the Provincial Convention of W.M.S. in Toronto to be held at the end of April were named yesterday. They are: Mrs. Sharpe, Mrs. D. L. Fleming and Mrs. Rutherford.

During a social half-hour in which the meeting concluded a song by Mrs. A. Bell was very much enjoyed.

John L. Sullivan's $10,000 championship belt, which has been melted in the United States mint at Philadelphia, contained only $100 worth of gold. It had been stripped of 327 small diamonds before being turned over to government authorities. The belt weighed a little more than 80 ounces. It had been turned into the mint by a Baltimore jeweler, into whose possession it had come. The gold in the belt was only half fine.

20,000 WOMEN WALK A PROTEST AGAINST STRIKE

April 17th in London Will See Great Demonstration

London, Eng., April 7.—(Canadian Press Despatch)—It is expected that more than 20,000 women will walk in the procession in London organized by the Women's Guild of Empire on April 17, to protest against strikes and revolutionary activity in industry. The procession will be composed largely of workmen's wives from centres within a distance from London, although working women in the Metropolitan area will also be represented. There will be a Scottish contingent, accompanied by a pipers band and Yorkshire is sending two colliery bands.

"I want it to be particularly understood that the women from the provinces are paying their own way, though collections are being taken up in London to assist the poorer people," said Miss Bowerman, the chief organizer. "Our women for months past have been organizing socials and whist drives to raise money. We stand for common sense in industry and we are calling upon Capital and Labor to unite and adjust their differences."

FOR GIRLS WHO WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is a Great Friend—It Stops Pain and Restores Health

Toronto, Ontario.—"I work in a factory and I have been away from from my work every time I was sick. The drug-store pains and cramps were very bad, but my back was terrible. It hurt so that I couldn't lie down with it. I heard some of the girls talking about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and they told me to try it. I have taken about a dozen bottles now and it has done me a lot of good. I can stand here and work or sew all day since I have been off from work a day or two. I recommend it to every woman who needs a reliable Compound when I have the opportunity."—Miss Rolla A. Howie Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

Hanover, Ontario.—"I was terribly pained and a few old times I almost fainted. I used to do housework until a few months ago and sometimes I had to leave my work and go to bed. I am now a wonder in the knitting-mill. I suffered five or six years from painful periods before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by the advice of a friend. I got relief almost immediately, and I tell my friends what a good medicine it is. You may use my testimonial if you like, if it will help some."—Miss M. Hanover, Ontario.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES CARVICE

But put the suggestion from her with a weary smile. If her father had really made the discovery it must have died with him.—Rawson Fenton would undoubtedly have learned it from her father and he, Rawson Fenton, was too ignorant of chemistry to discover it for himself.

Besides, there was so many ways nowadays in which a man could become suddenly rich that it was no uncommon thing for a man to find in Australia without a penny and become possessed of thousands in a few months.

She had always considered Rawson Fenton clever, and it should be no surprise to her that he had gotten rich.

The porter put her into the cab.

"Where to, miss?" he said.

Constance paused a moment.

"Ask him to drive me to some quiet private hotel, please," she said, trying to speak with easy self-possession.

The cabman looked rather surprised, as well as he might and riding the trap, door asked:

"East or west, miss?"

"West, please," answered Constance, at haphazard.

The cab drove off after a moment or two of consideration on the part of the driver, and went in the direction of Kensington and Constance wondering listlessly whether her fate was taking her, look out upon the London streets with that sensation of loneliness and helplessness which only the homeless and friendless ever fully know.

They stopped presently in front of a quiet looking house with a "Private Hotel" painted over the portico, and she got out and rang the bell. A maid servant opened the door and in answer to Constance's timid. "Can I have a room, if you please?" surveyed her and the portmanteau with critical regard.

"I'll see, miss," she said, "if you'll walk in," and she went and brought a middle-aged woman, in a brown silk dress whose scrutiny of Constance was even more open and critical than the girl's had been.

"Are you alone, miss?" she asked, after what appeared an endless silence to Constance.

"I am alone, yes," she replied, trying to keep the blood from rushing to her face.

The landlady looked very dubious.

"It's not usual for us to take in ladies unaccompanied," she said, slowly, glancing from Constance's face to the portmanteau.

Constance lowered her veil and was turning with a heavy sinking of the heart to the cab when the landlady relented.

"But perhaps you can give me a reference," she also looked at the beautiful face and quietly-dressed figure hesitatingly.

Constance shook her head.

"I have no friends in London," she said, mastering her voice sufficiently to keep the tears out of it; "I have just come up from the country quite recently."

The landlady shook her head.

"I'm very sorry, miss," she said, "but we make it a rule. We're very particular you see—"

Constance inclined her head and went back to the cab, and the door closed.

For a second her presence of mind forsook her and the tears rose to her eyes and blinded her.

The cabman's voice recalled her to herself.

"Anything the matter, miss?" he asked, roughly but not unkindly.

"I do not know where to go," she said. "I am quite alone and—"

The cabman comprehended the difficulty at once.

"Ah! I understand, miss. Yes, it is if you was old and—" "ugly", he was rather going to say, but paused—"if you was an old kind of person it wouldn't a mat, ter. It is awkward. I cannot say," and he took off his hat and scratched his head. "If you ain't particular set ter a hotel and could put up with a respectable quiet lodging—"

"Oh yes, yes!" Constance made haste to assent. "That is what I should like. Somewhere, very very quiet."

"Jump in, miss," he responded promptly; "I know the very place as'll suit you. It isn't so swell as this, but I'll answer for it they know a lady when they see her; and won't treat her as if she wasn't respectable. Don't you be upset, miss; it's all right!"

The cab swung at encouragement and sympathy cheered her, though it was, and she got in and allowed him to drive her away. But the loneless, helpless aching of her heart. What words can describe it?

She felt the cab leave fashionable thoroughfares and dived into a network of quiet streets eventually stopping before a house in a long road curved like a bow

Prevent and Relieve Eczema

Mrs. Albert Bishop, 88 Lafontaine St., Amherst, N.S., writes:—In one week my baby was entirely relieved of eczema by the use of two cakes of Dr. Chase's Ointment. He had sores all over his back."

EVERYWHERE Dr. Chase's Ointment is known and appreciated by mothers who have with gratitude witnessed the benefit it has brought to their suffering children.

Chafing and cracking of the skin is often the beginning of eczema. The trouble develops where two surfaces of skin rub together—as in the neck, armpits or between the legs of fleshy infants.

Dr. Chase's Ointment applied after the bath brings relief from this condition and prevents eczema.

Father of Girl Repeats State ment Bus Was Going At 35 Miles an Hour

"We, the jury empowered to inquire into the death of Ruth Helm, find that she came to her death, on April 1st, 1926, at or about the hour of 5.30 o'clock in the afternoon, at her home, lot 29, broken front of Township of Sidney, in County of Hastings, from injuries received by being struck by a motor bus, driven by Jacob Rathbun on the provincial highway, on lot 29, broken front of said Township of Sidney. We find from evidence submitted that the driver of the motor bus did all in his power to avoid the accident which was purely accidental."

JURY OUT 20 MINUTES

Such was the verdict rendered at the inquest of the late Ruth Helm, sixteen-year-old pupil of the Belleville High School who was killed while retiring to her home on the afternoon of the fatality. The inquest was opened at the court room before Coroner Dr. Bogue, last night, the jury took but twenty minutes to return a verdict of accident death.

Mr. Jacob Rathbun, the chief witnesses labored under some emotion as he gave his evidence. He was paid a stirring tribute by J. C. McCarthy who was a passenger in the bus at the time who said, "Mr. Rathbun was the most careful driver I ever rode with."

Or Thereabouts

And It Will Be Refought Tonight!

Ottawa, Ont., April 9 (By Canadian Press)—Many of the officers of the Canadian Corps from all parts of Canada who took part in the Battle of Vimy Ridge nine years ago today, will be the guests at the anniversary dinner tonight at Government House to be given by His Excellency General Lord Byng of Vimy, who was the Canadian Corps Commander in the battle, in plan and in action one of the most notable of the war.

Since Lord Byng came to Canada as Governor-General in 1921 the Vimy Ridge anniversary has been an annual event. In view of the fact that his term as Governor-General of Canada will be completed next summer, the dinner tonight will be at the last of its kind at Government House and consequently it is to be marked by some memorable feature.

The capture of Vimy Ridge was one of the outstanding triumphs scored by the Canadian Corps and the supporting units of the C.E.F. during the war. Vimy Ridge was the most dominant position held by the Germans on the western front and was so strongly fortified that the Germen High Command regarded it is being practically impregnable. From the earlier days of the war in 1914 it had been the scene of bitter fighting. Attempts by the French Army in 1915 and 1915 to capture the Ridge from the Germans had failed, at a cost of 100,000 casualties.

General Byng began in January 1917 to make preparations for the capture of Vimy ridge. After he had worked out his plans of attack he communicated it in detail to all under his command, and entirely new departure in British Army practice. For weeks the plan was rehearsed behind the front line, and the glorious result fully justified Sir Julian Byng's brilliant strategic conception and fine battle tactics.

The attack began at half past five in the morning of April 9, on a 12-mile front, the final objective being the summit of the Ridge, two and a half miles from the jumping-off trench, at 1.26 in the afternoon of the same day. The Canadian troops were at the final objective to the second; the whole of Vimy Ridge, with the exception of one point known as "The Pimple" was then held by the Canadian Corps. "The Pimple" was won and consolidated the next day. In no other battle during the war up to this period had there been such close co-ordination by all arms, nor had there been such a terrific and concentrated artillery barrage.

After the summit of Vimy Ridge was reached the Canadian Corps and other units of the British army drove the Germans further backward down to the Douai plains below. In three weeks fighting the Canadian Corps captured thousands of prisoners, many guns and much material.

General Byngs pride in this great success of the Canadian Corps is shown by his choice of title when elevated to the peerage in 1918—Byng of Vimy.

Much of the ground over which the Canadians so valiantly fought nine years ago today has been given to perpetuity to Canada by the French Government, so that this terrain is now a bit of land in France that is forever Canada, and upon this is being erected an Memorial which will be presented to the Canadian who there fell.

FOUR ARRESTED; SALE OF LIQUOR IS CHARGE; MADE

One Will Face Also Allegation That He Obstructed Officers

Thursday was a red-letter day in annals of provincial and county police officers. No less than four alleged violators of section 49 of the O.T.A. were placed under arrest, all of whom are charged with selling liquor. The raiding party consisted of Inspector F. J. Naphan and Inspector E. C. Gurnett and Sergt. Ray of the provincial force.

The officers met with a warm reception at the home of Nicholas Peccon, an Italian, residing at 151 Station street. On noting the officers' approach he attempted, they said, to destroy a flask of liquor which they sought. Inspector Naphan informed Peccon that he was under arrest for selling alleged intoxicants.

Peccoon resented the remarks and immediately went to fight.

After considerable difficulty he was overpowered, placed in a motor car and conveyed to the city police station—minus coat and hat.

His wife also intervened, police said, with the officers and endeavoured to secure her husband from the arms of the law. Peccoon remained in the cells over night and was arraigned this morning before Magistrate Masson. Inspector Naphan requested that the case be enlarged until the 15th, next Thursday. W. C. Mikel, K.C., appeared for the accused. Bail was fixed at $2000 on Piccon's own bond, and an additional $500, A charge of obstruction and assault on officers while in discharge of their duties will be preferred, police said today.

Horace Yaleman, Station street, was arrested on a warrant issued for the alleged sale of liquor. He was released on bail and will be tried tomorrow morning before Magistrate Masson.

Gwen O'Brien, Station street, was placed under arrest by city police officers and charged by F. J. Naphan with selling liquor. He will also appear tomorrow morning for trial.

John Colden, of Latta, was arrested by Inspector Naphan and provincial officers and was later allowed out on bail.

DARING ATTEMPT AT RESCUE FAILS HE FELL 300 FEET

Man Seen Clinging to Window Ledge—Dropped 19 Storeys

Chicago, April 9.—Two men aided by a woman risked their lives here early today in a daring but unsuccessful attempt to rescue four-year-old Aiswerth of Cincinnati while he clung from a window ledge of his fire swept hotel room, 300 feet above the sidewalk. Men formed a human ladder from a window below the hanging man but before the rescue could be effected, Aiswerth dropped from the nineteenth floor, his burned fingers no longer able to bear his weight.

He was instantly killed.

Scores of loop pedestrians gazed in horror on the scene.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McMille, of Chicago and F. A. Guillesaume, of New York, guests at the Morrison Hotel were the three who sought to save Aiswerth, a pioneer in radio manufacturing and broadcasting in Cincinnati. Others who broke down the door to Aiswerth's room had to battle flames and when they reached the ledge they were too late. "Tell my wife", began Aiswerth just before he dropped, but the remainder was not heard by the two men on ledge below him.

MISS JEAN GUNN REVIEWS SURGERY OF CONTINENT

Says It Is "Vaudeville" As Compared With Europeam Methods.

MORE NURSES ARRIVE

Thursday's session of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario concluded with a dinner at the Quinte Hotel attended by one hundred and twenty-five nurses and friends, at the conclusion of which Miss Jean I. Gunn, Superintendent of the Toronto General Hospital, gave a brilliant address on "Nursing Systems in Central Europe." In her address Miss Gunn who recently returned from a European tour, spoke from first hand authority, who having personally inspected the nursing system of the European hospitals a few months ago.

AMERICAN SURGERY VAUDEVILLE

In speaking of the methods of surgery in the large European hospitals, Miss Gunn referred to an amusing incident. After watching an operation and observing the methods adopted, when the surgeon, with one assistant off all the work including the final preparation of the patient, Miss Gunn contrasted the American methods with those of the doctor she had watched in honor to her observations the surgeon assured Miss Gunn that the American surgery was vaudeville.

OUTSIDE HELP

In speaking of the training schools in Europe, Miss Gunn observed that they had almost been started from outside help. She referred to the methods in which the lay nurse is trained which involves many difficulties. Practically all the nursing in Central Europe is done by religious orders and the student nurses are consequently working under difficulties. They have to go out of the hospitals for practical work and their residences are very poor. At last however, the co-operation of the nuns is being secured, they having learned that there is room for all in the profession, for the nuns in hospitals and for the lay nurses in public health work.

12 SCHOOLS—64,000,000 PEOPLE

In Central Europe there are twelve schools for sixty-four million people. The countries have their own method of selecting the best methods from other countries added to which they have their own system and they have a comprehensive plan for public health. In this they are ahead of us in many instances. In Poland they have 600 nurses in the Red Cross of Health, each of whom has had an intensive course in public health.

If at any time we can extend to our sister nurses in Central Europe, or anywhere, a helping hand, it should be to us one of our greatest privileges, Miss Gunn observed in conclusion.

On behalf of the assembly present, Miss Macpherson Dickson extended a hearty vote of thanks to Miss Gunn for her instructive address.

EDUCATIONAL SECTION

In the nurses education section Miss E. Muriel McKee of Brantford, was elected chairman and Miss Micklejohn of St. Catherines, vice-chairman. The section discussed matters of a preliminary course and summer course for instruction.

Dr. F. C. Routley, secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, gave an interesting address on organization.

LABORITE, WET, SAYS "UPRISING" IS SOBER MOVE

Meantime Drys Are Taking Notes For Their Counter Attack

Washington, April 9—A challenge to dry leaders to join in a movement for a nation wide referendum on light wines and beers was issued to-day before the Senate prohibition committee by spokesmen for the American Federation of Labor.

Appearing as a witness for the wets and speaking as personal representative of President William Green of the Federation, William Roberts told the committee that the present uprising of those opposed to the Volstead Act was a stable, solid movement.

Mr. Roberts was the first witness for the wets at the fifth day of the Senate hearings. Dry leaders have been accumulating a store of notes during the presentation of the wet attack in preparation for their counter offensive next week against the modification of the prohibition law, and in favor of the enactment of restrictions even more drastic than those now existing.

EXPECT BUDGET EARLY IN WEEK TAX CUT RUMOR

Elimination of Some Stamp Taxes and On Small Incomes Talked

Ottawa, April 9.—Federal budget will probably be brought down in the House of Commons either Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, according to present indications.

This year's budget has been the subject of more than the usual speculation on account of several semi-official intimations that have been given of a reduction in taxation.

Elimination of some of the stamp taxes, particularly the receipt tax, is regarded as quite probable.

Rumor is also current that exemptions on small incomes will be increased.

There are also rumors that super income tax will be reduced.

The automobile tariff has been discussed considerably but the possibility is that this matter will be one of the first to be referred to the new Tariff Advisory Board.

The Government's immediate programme was under discussion this morning at a caucus of Liberal members.

TRAIN WAS QUARANTINED

SMUGGLE ALCY INTO MONTREAL TO EVADE EXCISE

Reverse Usual Process bring In High Power Stuff From U.S.

Ottawa, April 9.—Reversing the usual order, a syndicate has been smuggling alcohol from New York into Canada during the last few years to evade the Canadian Customs and Excise.

Two separate consignees between them apparently got considerable quantity through the Customs before the fraud was discovered.

Sergeant Salt described the seizure of drums billed from New York as ammonia compound. They contained 65 overproof alcohol. Shippers could not be located from the name given and the consignee, one Peechis, lived in a hotel and easily got away.

This was the only one of the many shipments which had been previously cleared through the customs by this syndicate and which presumably were alcohol, too.

Cigarettes on which no duty or excise had been paid, were smuggled from Europe arriving in Montreal from France.

Mounted Policeman bought some from a Mrs. Marie Vanbommaier, of Montreal, "posing as one of her regular customers".

J. E. Bissillon, former customs inspector in Montreal testified he states to realize much less unpaid by a concern that she was selling the cigarettes who had left without paying her, and left the cigarettes behind in his room. She was charged $50 as a penalty duty on the smokes and no prosecution was entered.

RICH HERMIT OF BRIGHTLINGSEA DIES ON YACHT

Eccentric American Lived on Board in England 37 Years

LEGENDARY FIGURE

Sailed Suddenly From New York in 1889 on World Cruise

London, April 9.—The millionaire hermit of the Essex coast is dead. His name was Bayard Brown. He was an American. For 36 years—from the time he was a lusty man of 27 until his death today, whitehaired, feeble and 63—he lived aboard the palatial yacht Valkrys, moored close off the Essex coast at Brightlingsea.

On that yacht the engines were always in readiness for a sea voyage. The yacht was kept always fully provisioned. A crew of 18 men kept watch as on sea-going ships, and were always ready for the order to put to sea. But it never came.

Bayard Brown simply let the years glide past, spending his hours amid the hundreds of books in his library below decks, often pushing out to throw his coals or coins at persons desiring to visit his yacht of mystery. At other times, though he would welcome them most cordially and show them over the yacht from stem to stern. But if one of them ever mentioned America, Bayard Brown's lips would close tight. Never would he say a word about his native country.

Some said his heart was broken by an unhappy love affair—broken when he was a gay society-butterfly in New York. But from him they could learn nothing.

One thing was certain. Bayard Brown had plenty of money. For years he used to go to London to fetch it himself. On his return to the Essex fishing town where his yacht was moored he would toss gold sovereigns about for anyone to pick up. Later, he gave up the London trips, moving the remittances aboard his yacht. Recently the British authorities asked him to pay an income tax on a yearly income of $50,000. He ignored the assessment.

Around Bayard Brown stories true and untrue have clustered until he has become a legendary figure among the Essex folk. They are telling today how, at times, his eccentricities almost became madness. Again and again he would greet visitors, or people upon whom he happened casually, with the eager, mysterious question: "Any claims, or penalties?" None ever knew what this meant. Once a caller who ascended in getting aboard the hermit's yacht was subjected by him to an unceremony cross-examination.

"Any claims or penalties?" asked the hermit.

"None," answered the mystified visitor.

"Do you come to warn me yourself, or bring a warning, or be warned?"

"No."

"Have you brought George or Louis with you?"

"No."

At this point the visitor removed her hat, whereupon Bayard Brown curtly said: "Put it on. Only liars take off their hats."

Greatly embarrassed by this time, the visitor began twiddling her thumbs.

"I don't know what you signal means, so I cannot answer you!" was the hermit's comment.

The case is being heard in Toronto because witnesses have been summoned from Buffalo. Mr. Graham's car was repaired. Asked why it had not been repaired here, plaintiff said there was no adequate provision in Canada for look after the type of vehicle he owned.

Ottawa Apparently Made No Censure in Harrison Drug Case

PROBERS SEEK REASON

Members, However, Could Not Secure Information

—One Bright Moment

Ottawa, April 9.—Nobody in the customs service at Montreal was censured, reprimanded, warned, or even told in future to obey regulations after the Keith Vaughan Harrison drug smuggling case of 1923 had revealed drastic violations of the law. The Stevens committee spent an hour trying to find out why. Interrogated with the Hon. H. H. Stevens declaring: "We are going round in a circle and we don't get anywhere."

C. W. Bell, M.P., thought, "it's a merry-go-round all right."

The huge narcotic smuggling case faded from the committee's view after C. H. Farrow, deputy minister of Customs, had sworn he could not recall that violations of the Customs Act by customs clerks and officers had been brought to his attention. He suggested C. P. Blair, chief law clerk of the department, might be more enlightening. Mr. Blair was not. Very busy as to details of the affair at all he found nothing proving that he had referred the matter to Mr. Farrow; he admitted it was a case for the attention of the Minister or the Deputy Minister. The committee is still waiting for the response to the "why" of the department's lack of action.

Of course the session had its bright moment, furnished as usual by Dugald Donaghy, Vancouver North's M.P. At one period during the afternoon he found an opportunity to slam his Conservative confreres for "shooting off political fireworks."

The committee sat only for the morning today. Sessions will be adjourned until Monday morning.

LOCAL SCHOOLS MORE EFFICIENT THAN AMERICA'S

Dominion System Outclasses That of States in Rudiments

Montreal, Que., April 9.—Canadian elementary and secondary education is on a higher plane than that of the United States, a fact that is admitted by Americans themselves, declared Hon. Dr. T. H. Glover, Fellow and Lecturer in Classics at St. John's College, Cambridge, and formerly Professor of Latin at Queen's University, Kingston, in remarks at the Montreal Board of Trade here today. Two things struck him about education in the United States: The stage-fixed importance paid to opinions of the young, and also the practical contempt that Americans have for the minds of the young.

Chips of the Old Block for Canada

Here are a few examples of the class of settler that is being brought over to Canada by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Of the four British stock they look the part and a finer crowd of children and young people could not be found anywhere in the world. Catch them at this age and they are complete Canadians in a very few years. Next family from Wickart, Scotland, who are settling at Edmonton, father and mother, two sons and four boys. Then there is the Shires family from Birmingham, England, also two girls and four boys, and shading down in height and age from eight years to 18 months, left to right, John, Daphne, Peter, Betty, Charles and Albert, bound for Saskatoon. Finally there are Annie, Jeffrey and Mary, the children of F. Heald, of Fleetwood, Lancashire, also for Saskatoon. These are the type of emigrant that Canada is hungry for, and is always glad to have.

MAYOR OF TORONTO BUSY OVER ALTA COAL

Toronto, April 9.— Mayor Foster states that he intends at an early date to call together the mayors of the larger Ontario municipalities with a view to discussion of ways and means of getting a permanent supply of Alberta coal.

"I think we can do better by concerted action than if Toronto acts alone," said the Mayor. "It would be a mistake to let the matter go until the autumn, as people in the meantime would have to get in their coal from the only available supply—U. S. anthracite."

The Mayor said if a $7 rate could not be secured on Alberta coal the city should import an emergency supply of Welsh coal.

AMBITIOUS PLOT TO FIRE BALKANS NIPPED IN BUD

Soiviet, Aided Malcontent Greeks, all For Revolution

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 9.—Police assert that in the arrest and examination of Cristo Kabachichieff on the Serbian frontier, while he was trying to escape to Russia, they received information of the existence of a widespread plot of the Soviet Government.

The plot, they declare embraces starting a new revolution in the Balkans, the murder of Bulgarian leaders and the promotion of disorders in Bulgaria, Serbia and Greece.

Large sums of money are alleged to have been appropriated for the movement, and Soviet leaders are declared to have been appointed to organize the movement in the Balkan states and in Paris.

Police allege that among these leaders are the Greek revolutionary General Plastiraem who is in exile from Greece and the Bulgarian revolutionist Costa Todoroff. Both are said to be working to pave the way for a revolution in their respective countries.

RUNNING OF RUM NOT SO CASUAL AS FORMERLY

Vermont Border Raid Failed to Find Any In Cars

Burlington, Vt., April ... Not a single pint of liquor was found in any one of the nearly 400 freight cars which were emptied by customs officers at ports of entry along the Vermont-Canadian border during February, Collector H. C. Whitehill gives this as the answer to the question whether rum smuggling by this method is as popular as formerly.

Customs officials believe that the close watch which they have kept on freight trains coming from Canada has discouraged the rum runners and led them to abandon attempts to get interlopers across the border in this manner. During the months when the deep snow of northern Vermont has prevented smuggling by automobile the entire border patrol has been used in inspecting freight cars.

Particular attention has been paid to carloads of hay and lumber which for a long time were favorite devices for concealing liquor. At St. Albans, 80 cars were completely unloaded in February and about the same number at Richford and Newport.

A short time ago a new way of smuggling champagne was discovered. The rum runners used the familiar method of concealing it in bales of hay and behind dummy loads of lumber but instead of consigning the cargoes to some nearby point in the United States they named the destination as some point as far south as Georgia or Florida.

For a time the customs officers let these cars through. The shipments were made under the names of reputable concerns in Montreal and they had no suspicion that any place in the vicinity of Bermuda or Cuba would be buying liquor in Canada.

Finally, however, it was discovered that the names would be side-tracked for a time after they had crossed the border and then would be sent by an agent of the rum running gang to some point on Long Island or elsewhere in the neighborhood of New York. Several loads of champagne which had come into the country in this manner were seized near New York. Now this loophole has been closed.

MAIL SERVICE STARTS TO RED LAKE DISTRICT

Ottawa, Ont., April 9.—A temporary mail service to the Red Lake district, the new mining prospect in Northern Ontario which has created such interest, has been established by the Dominion postal officials. R. H. Macnab, general superintendent of railway mail services, has just returned from opening a post office at Red Lake and instituting a mail service by dog team for the second week. The first mail service is, of course, temporary until the ice breaks. In the mean time, consideration is being given to plans for a regular permanent service.

DR. F. W. AXHAM PASSES AT THE AGE OF 86 YEARS

London, April 9.—"Let God forgive. For myself, I forgive, as I hope to be forgiven."

Fifteen years ago Dr. Axham was struck off the roll by the General Medical Council because of "infamous conduct in a professional respect." Dr. Axham had acted as an assistant for Dr. Herbert Barker (now Sir Herbert Barker) a specialist in manipulative surgery noted for his success in setting fractures, whose abilities were rewarded by knighthood in 1922.

Dr. Axham's official degradation created great popular sympathy, which was shared in the great majority of the members of the medical profession.

Feeling that his days were nearly numbered, Dr. Axham some time ago made a move towards getting the ban of the General Medical Council removed. The Royal College of Surgeons refused to restore his diplomas.

H. P. Normand.

PRICES HIGHER AFTER PRESSURE BEARS LOSE OUT

Leading Equipment Shares Began to Climb in the Afternoon

New York, N.Y., April 9.—Bear selling subsequently rebounded sharply on the part of traders at the opening of today's market session, but met with strong resistance, and the prices became to creep up in the afternoon when brisk demand developed for equipment shares.

Calling of about $5,000,000 in bank loans, reflecting the usual week-end readjustment of the banks, failed to have any influence on the call money rate which ruled unchanged at four per cent.

Lack of effective buying power in the market was attributed to misgivings over the course of business, which have been heightened by the continued decline in commodity prices, and the relatively small increase in international borrowing.

United States Steel Common broke below 129 during the morning, but snapped back to around 131 in the early afternoon. Leaders in the rallies were Baldwin, American Locomotive, General Railway Signal, Mack Truck, Public Service of New Jersey, and National Biscuit.

APPLES AND CHEESE THIRD RATE QUALITY

Ottawa, Ont., April 9.—Apples and cheese sold in the Parliament Buildings here are not even of third rate quality, Donald Sutherland (Conservative member for South Oxford) declared in the House of Commons. Estimates of the Department of Agriculture were under consideration.

J. D. Chaplin (Conservative, Lincoln) suggested that one of the reasons why so many British Columbia apples were sold in the Prairie Provinces was because of the "lack of inspection of fruit used by our own people."

"Probably that accounts for the quality of the apples which are served for dessert in this city," protested Mr. Sutherland. "I think it is most remarkable, bearing in mind that Ottawa is the headquarters of the inspection service and centre of Government, that you cannot obtain what one might term decent, or at least third rate cheese, a thing such as we have here. The same might be said with regard to cheese."

DEBT NEGOTIATIONS ARE CALLED SUCCESS

ON CHEESE MAKERS

The summary of what is likely to be required of cheese makers this season as referred to in a special article by the Ontario Milk Commissioner and reproduced in The Intelligencer is one that will be perused with great interest throughout this district famous as it is for its leadership in all sides of the great dairying industry.

Stress is laid and of course properly so on sanitation. The factory and the milk must not only be clean but the person handling it. And personnel in all factories whether of modern or older type will be judged and rated on their performances under existing circumstances. As the article so plainly points out the license will be granted and the man's ability to carry on the work at which he is engaged that will count. It's fair warning.

LORD CAVAN

We shall perhaps have many rumors as to who is to follow the present Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada before the final and official announcement comes. The Daily Graphic which is usually pretty well informed sends on the latest suggestion that Lord Byng may be succeeded by Lord Cavan, not long since Chief of the Imperial General Staff, former Guard's officer and of a distinguished family. We have heard similarly the H.R.H. the Duke of York, Lord Beatty, and other distinguished personages have been mentioned. Certainly any one of them would be given a most hearty and sincere welcome to this Dominion. Lord Cavan of course has the fine for some such appointment having held all the principal commands in the Army and being sixty-one while no means "old" may be said to be "getting on".

C.P.R. FIRE LOSSES

The Canadian Pacific Railway has been hard hit on several occasions recently with fire, not so long ago when part of the Chateau Frontenac burned at Quebec and just the other day with part of the almost as famous hostelry at Banff. Of course there will be immediate rebuilding and the hotel will be as occupied by guests from all quarters of the continent this summer as is the usual thing but one cannot help thinking that there was careless work somewhere in both instances when these places well protected as they as nearly fireproof as possible went so quickly up in smoke. There are few prettier views than the one from the Banff hotel upper bedroom windows. The Rockies have a charm all their own. That view will not be lost for doubtless the Railway will put up something to replace the burned section which will be "bigger and better" than ever—a familiar phrase that to Belleville ears—as they probably would be justified in doing.

INDIAN RIOTS

The fighting between the Hindus and Mahomedans in Calcutta, which now appears to have been definitely checked by stern measures on the part of the authorities, shows how complete is the collapse of the coalition entered into by the two religious factions for the purpose of attaining the common objective of "swaraj" or home rule. The goal aimed to have been lost sight of in the bitterness of mutual antagonism, which has now manifested itself in acute form. For a long time past it has been apparent that the coalition was doomed to failure. There have been open protests on both sides against the actions of their nominal allies—mutual jealousies and demands impossible of reconciliation. The desire of the Mahomedans to obtain increased representation in the legislative assemblies and in public offices was resented by the Hindu majority. It would seem that the ambitions of the Moslems and the pretensions of the Hindus are alike impossible of realization under any system of co-operation entered into for political purposes, which leaves racial and religious antipathies unmollified. The differences between the two communities, according to an observer writing in the Round Table, go much further than religion. "They involve all political and economic questions," he says, "and extend to the smallest bodies of local self-government." The spread of popular education in India has accentuated the differences, for it has raised up Mahomedan rivals to the Hindus for administrative posts. Mahomedan leaders are also urging their co-religionists to take up commerce and banking, so as to break the grip which Hindus hold on their economic life." In politics there is the keenest rivalry between the two factions, with the Mahomedans constantly striving to secure fuller representation in the legislatures.

THE CAUSES OF THE WAR

Viscount Grey of Falloden:

"More than one true thing may be said about the causes of the war but the statement that comprises most truth is that militarism and the armaments inseparable from it made war inevitable.

"Every country had been piling up armaments and perfecting preparations for war. The object in each case had been security." The effect had been precisely the contrary of what was intended and desired. Instead of a sense of security there had been produced a sense of fear, which was greatly increasing.

"Such was the general condition of Europe: preparations for war had produced fear and fear predisposes to violence and catastrophe.

"The Great War has been the most tremendous experience in the history of civilized man, and the assumption that he has learned nothing from it except to prepare and to make another war is unreasonable."

RUTH HELM DIED FROM ACCIDENT

of the opinion that the boy was travelling at a speed of between twenty and twenty-five miles an hour, and that the accident was practically unavoidable. The jury was composed of men who reside in the neighborhood where the fatality occurred.

DROVE THE TRUCK

Chas. Thompson of Trenton, the driver of the truck from which the deceased girl stepped, was the first witness called. In his evidence he stated he was drawing a load of house hold goods from this city to Trenton on the afternoon in question. On nearing the Belleville cemetery he overtook Miss Helm who was walking toward her home. He stopped and offered a ride which she accepted and they proceeded in a westerly direction until opposite the Helm home. He halted the truck on the right hand side of the road and allowed her to get off. Putting the car in low gear he was about to resume his trip when perceiving the bus coming about two car lengths in advance and realizing that an accident was probable, he uttered an exclamation and through the rear end of the truck saw the girl step in the path of the motor.

STRUCK BY JUMPER

She was struck by the bumper and carried a distance of twenty-five feet when the bus was brought to a stop, the wheels sliding some distance when the brakes were applied. He went back to where the girl lay on the right hand side of the road and she was immediately carried into her own home. Mr. Thompson said that the bus driver could have done nothing under the circumstances to avoid an accident.

DR. MORGAN

Dr. Morgan of this city, the attending physician, was called and testified that he made an examination of the injuries. When he arrived on the scene she was still alive and remained so for half an hour following the accident. Death was due to a fracture in the base of the skull.

Oscar Villeneuve was riding in the truck from which Miss Helm had stepped and corroborated the evidence submitted by Mr. Thompson.

THROWN TOWARD SOUTH

J. P. Sherelin, electrician, of this city, who was a passenger in the bus driven by Mr. Rathbun, stated that he noticed the truck standing on the north side of the road and saw the girl emerge from the back of the truck and walk three paces across the road when she was struck by the bumper and thrown some six feet toward the south side of the highway striking her head on the pavement.

He had previously noted the speed ometer registering twenty-three miles an hour. Mr. Rathbun had considerably reduced the speed on reaching the scene of the fatality. He did not hear any warning signal given by the driver of the bus.

J. C. McCarthy, owner of the Belle Theatre, travels extensively with Mr. Rathbun and had always known him as a most careful driver.

Wilson Stansburg an employee of the Hydro, in his testimony said he did not notice the speed at which the bus was travelling.

TWENTY MILES AN HOUR

George Dunn, commercial traveler, another passenger said he judged the speed of the bus to be twenty miles an hour, and when the bus arrived at a point opposite the front of the truck he saw the girl step in front of the vehicle allowing the driver no chance to avoid hitting her.

Sergt. Ray of the Provincial Police said he made an investigation and took measurements of the distance the bus travelled after hitting the deceased. It was brought to a stop one hundred and eighty feet from the point where Miss Helm was hit. He produced in court a report card which he picked up a distance of ninety feet away.

In his investigation he found that Mr. Rathbun had been driving for seven years as a particularly careful driver.

RATHBUN'S EVIDENCE

Jacob Rathbun being sworn, testified that he had been operating a bus line between Trenton and Belleville for a matter of four years and had been driving motor vehicles for a period of ten years and never before had an accident. The brakes, were to his knowledge in the best of condition on the bus. On the afternoon of April 1st, he said he was taking unusual precautions due to the slippery pavement. He saw the young lady and immediately jammed on the brakes, at a distance of seven or eight feet from her and also attempted to swerve the car to the left in an effort to avoid striking her. Mr. Rathbun said he did not blow his horn as he seldom did in the case of this kind. He said he always sounded the horn when passing another motor proceeding in the same direction on the highway.

FATHER TESTIFIES

John Helm, father of the victim was sworn and stated he was looking from the window of the home at the time the accident occurred. Glancing up, he beheld his daughter in the centre of the road with the bus but a few feet away and then the next instant she had been struck. Running out he assisted in carrying her into the house. Mr. Helm said his knowledge of the speed of motor cars told him the bus was travelling at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour. The bus was facing a south westerly direction having been practically turned around in an opposite direction when the brakes had been applied.

The jury retired at 9.10 p.m.

Wild West Very Untamed When Frogs Ended Dance Old Timer Delights to Tell

Winnipeg, Man., April 8.— (By Canadian Press)—Life in Manitoba now by 125 years ago and the experiences of the pioneers settled on the Red River Valley, were described by Dr. C. N. Bell, veteran medical practitioner of Winnipeg, in an address before the Natural History Society here.

Armed with volumes of historic data, Dr. Bell declared that when Alexander Henry came to the province in 1800 he found many woodcuts that have since disappeared.

There were shoals of fish in the rivers, pelicans and wild pigeons in myriads and thousands of snakes. Great herds of bison roamed over territory which today serves as the business district of Winnipeg. Nations of wild Indians were ranged near the banks of the Red and Assiniboine rivers.

Some of these things were still to be seen when Dr. Bell came to Winnipeg as a lad of sixteen with the Wolseley expedition. The Manitoba capital then was a handful of log houses quite remote from Fort Garry. Its population then was 241.

He witnessed the extinction of the pemmican pigeon and told of seeing a herd of buffalo on the ice, stretched over a distance of about twenty miles. He had eaten with the Indians whose habit he said it was to get up three or four times in the middle of the night for smoke and three pounds or so of buffalo meat. In his boyhood days, the fields of Manitoba had abounded with wild fruit, particularly grapes and plumbs.

Referring to the humorous side of life in the frontier days, Dr. Bell related how an old-time Red river dance had been unexpectedly broken up. The dance, he said, was in progress in one of the town's best known homes. The evening was hot and all windows had been thrown open. Suddenly, the young ladies were screaming frantically and fighting for the doors or jumping on chairs or other furniture. Mice? No! Merely an invasion of frogs; half a hundred or so anxious to demonstrate their own peculiar hops to the dancers.

Fisheries Expert Gives Recipe For Fish Pie Crust

MISS ADA B. VAIL is an assistant in the bureau of Fisheries, Department of Commerce, and is also associated with the Middle Atlantic Fishery Association of New York and New Jersey. She is therefore thoroughly competent to speak of the proper pastry covering for the fishy tribe, and the excellent results of her fish pie crust and oyster pie crust recipes leave no doubt that Friday's food is much enhanced by this pastry cover, for which she has given us her own directions as follows:

Hot Water Pie Crust

Hot water pie crust needs only that measurements be followed accurately. This is an excellent fish pie crust or oyster pie crust:

1¼ cups well sifted Pastry Flour.
½ cup Crisco
1 level teaspoon Baking Powder
½ teaspoon Salt.
½ cup freshly boiling water

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Work into this mixture, with the finger tips, the Crisco. Then add the quarter cup of boiling water, no more, and no less. Mix water through the flour at first with a spoon, while it is hot, turning the dough over and over, using your hands during the final mixing.

Flour the kneading board and rolling pin, roll dough out thin, then using a long palate knife, lift from the board and roll with a light stroke, until corset is right thickness. It is well to pastry bake this crust for an oyster pie, cutting in the shape of the dish, before putting in the oyster mixture, for oysters require much less cooking than the crust.

A new 80 page cook book will be sent free to readers of this newspaper, upon receipt of a two-cent stamp to cover postage. Address the National Home Study Service, 549 Fifth Ave., New York City.

ASTOR'S FORTUNE WAS TREASURE OF CAPT. KIDD?

Strange Tale is Told of over Million in Gold and Ducats, Found

New York, N.Y., April 1 (By Canadian Press).—That John Jacob Astor, founder of the Astor millions, got his start by selling Captain Kidd's treasure for $1,400,000 is the strange story unfolded in the latest issue of the Dearborn Independent.

The story is that Jacques Cartier, a trapper, discovered the treasure on Deer Island off the coast of Maine, sold it to Jacob Astor for $5,000 and that Mr. Astor sold the treasure to a firm of London jewellers for $1,400,000.

This theory of the commencement of the great Astor fortunes is developed from the discovery in 1893 of a cave on Deer Island by the island's owner, Frederic Olmstead. Mr. Olmstead found that in the rock covered by the water at high tide, there was a square cut hole, with scratches on the side indicating that a cover had once lain there. Olmstead found that a trapper named Jacques Cartier had lived on the island almost a century before, and among Cartier's effects he discovered a note reading "Absolute secrecy must be maintained," signed by John Jacob Astor.

Mr. Olmstead delved into the Astor family's records in New York, according to the story in the Independent or Prof. H. H. Dunn, as told to him by Prof. Bolton, a noted historian, and from these records less than $600 before 1802, in that year they jumped to $1,400,000.

Olmstead investigated in England and found that Astor had received that amount from a jewelry firm in London in 1802. He found that Astor had bought the pirate chest from Cartier for $5,000, Cartier having discovered the chest by accident. The treasure chest itself was later discovered by one of Olmstead's family who assured himself that the chest had perfectly the hole in the cave on Deer Island.

This story of the origination of the Astor fortune was scouted as "unreasonable" by members of the William Waldorf and Vincent Astor estates, when it was related to them. "It has always been understood," they said, "that the Astor estate was the result of John Jacob Astor's activities in the fur trade and of the increment in New York real estate. The story may be someone's idle fancy."

NURSING EDUCATION

Three sessions occupied this morning's conference of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, the Nursing Education Section held in the Quinte Hotel at which Miss Eaton Cook presided. At this the Provincial Deputy Fire Marshall and Inspector of Training Schools for Nurses gave an interesting address on the feasability of fire drills in hospitals which was heard with much interest, and all addressed by a round table discussion at which some pertinent questions were asked and answered.

LENGLEN FALLS FOR MOVIE PLAN

Will Not Have to Play Professional Tennis but Gets $100,000

Nice, France, April 9.—Suzanne Lenglen, French star tennis player, is likely soon to be seen in the movies pictures. After a four-hour conference which Mlle. Lenglen, her family and friends had with William H. Pickens, representing C. C. Pyle, sports promoter, it was announced that a tentative agreement had been reached with Suzanne to go to America in October and make a film version of a book she has written.

The salary agreed upon and the exact duration of the trip have not been made public, but the representatives of both parties took occasion to declare that tennis playing does not enter the agreement, which will soon be drafted into a formal contract.

Mr. Pickens had been waiting at Nice for three days hoping to meet Mlle. Lenglen, who returned here only last night, and he was preparing to leave Wertzinger when he succeeded in having a last minute interview.

Mlle. Lenglen appeared willing to accept arrangements which will call for her playing professional tennis, and the family's objections disappeared when the moving picture scheme was outlined.

This was followed by the election of officers for the coming year.

PRIVATE DUTY SECTION

The private duty section was addressed by Dr. George H. Stobie who went very fully into the scope and limitations of the nurse in outpost districts during emergencies. Much helpful information was decided by the section to have a fourth extension course at the University of Toronto, starting on August 15th.

The officers elected were:

Private Duty Section.

Chairmen—Miss Helen Patterson, Toronto; Miss I. McIntosh, Hamilton.

Secy.-Treas.—Miss Clare Brown, Toronto.

Rep. to Programme Committee—Miss Gray of Chatham.

Publication Committee—Miss M. Hazlett, Toronto.

Membership Committee—Miss Northgrave, Barrie.

Councillors for the various districts will be appointed later.

NO ONE TO LEAD THE JUNIORS?

Team Which Did Well Last Year at Present is Headless

The meeting of the Junior ball team failed to materialize last night and as a result the situation is at a stand-still.

No one has volunteered to take over the management and Belleville will not be represented by a Junior organization if some interested citizen does not offer to take over the reins. After the Juniors' enviable record sustained on the diamond in the past two years the matter should not be dormant. The boys will undoubtedly eventually drift into the senior company.

London reports G. B. Shaw offered to lend $100,000 for housing purposes to rural district council of Essington, Durham.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I wish I were able to convey to every weak and ailing woman the value of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and what they have done for me. I am the mother of six children and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the only medicine I ever took during pregnancy. I always got strong after it. Keep me as well and strong that I was able to do my work right up to the last, and I did not suffer with any of the troubles that come to most women at that time." Also I had very little suffering. SPORTOGRAMS

By "The Observer"

The Canadian Nationals will swing into action against Ken Colling's Juniors in the first game of the Soft Ball League at the Armouries tonight while the Clarke's will attempt to lower the Alemites colors in the second game. Both these tilts will be closely contested as they are evenly matched lines. We pick the Juniors to win from the Mogridge although the railroaders may turn the tables. The Alemites are a nifty aggregation and appear to have the edge in the night-cap affair. The Corbyville lads are strengthening several weak spots and our selections may be all wrong. Those who have not yet attended these games are missing something. Twig Woodley will call the balls and strikes. First game, at 7.45.

The conquering Maroons each received $2000 as the winner's purse of the world's "serious," in the National League play-off. Indeed a nice little sum for a few hours' work. Bob Stewart was the big noise who could have easily been elected mayor of Montreal after Tuesday night's game. The Stanley Cup is once more back in the east after one year's sojourn on the coast.

The majority of the big league teams after a month's training in the south will arrive home the latter part of this week and after a few exhibition games will start on the long ride to pennantville. Most of the managers are optimistic over the season's prospects but the teams most feared are McGraw's Giants in the National League and Connie Mack's Athletics in the Junior Circuit. Wall Street is betting on these two to finish first. The Pirates we feel as strong as ever while the Giants to the wire, while Bucky Harris' mixture of youth and old age, after two American League pennants, will give the Philadelphia team a chase.

Tex Rickard claims to be in possession of signed articles from Jack Dempsey for a bout in New York this summer, preferably with Gene Tunney. Tex is side-stepping Harry Wills who has been patiently waiting for some years for a crack at the champion. Rickard plans to stage the bout in the Yankee Stadium sometime in early fall. Dempsey has dodged the match-makers long enough and should be forced to defend his crown against Tunney or Wills.

Winnipeg, Man., April 1 — Is there such a thing as an omen of good luck or a "jinx"? Eddie Poulin, manager of the Calgary Canadians, 1926 junior hockey champions of Canada, believes in both. The victory of his proteges after losing the first game of the title series to Kingston, so stirbutes in no small measure to the influence of a playful black cat.

This particular dusky fellow, which had been working up a partner acquaintance with the Calgary boys, suddenly disappeared before the first game of the Dominion finals. The Canadians lost the game. In trying to discover how it happened, Poulin thought of the cat.

After searching all through the Amphitheatre rink, Poulin discovered Tony Rettinger, guardian of the arena, fondling the evasive pet in his office. It developed that the pussy was a pedigreed specimen and Rettinger turned a deaf ear to the pleas of Poulin that the cat be given to him.

The Calgary manager departed but returned a few minutes later with the ultimatum that the Canadians refused to take the ice again without the cat. Rettinger finally capitulated, and Poulin proudly escorted back to the Canadian dressing room with the much prized cat.

This, according to Poulin, instilled the Calgary team with confidence and the Bronchs Busters went on and captured the next two games, and the championship.

HOLDING THE PAPER AT ARM'S LENGTH

Some people think they have strong eyes because they read the paper at arm's length, but really their eyes have begun to lose their power for focusing for close work. The competition is open to any lady and gent bowlers and the players can play at any time and as often as they want.

In the Ladies Senior League the Rovers won three points from the Poppies at the Recreation Alleys last night, the Poppies coming through in the last game to count their only point. High bowlers were Mrs. Donovico and Mrs. McLean.

In the men's junior league the Rovers had a set back when they played against the Wanderers, the Wanderers running all four points. Quatrocchi for the Wanderers was high bowler with 98 and Salisbury was high for the Rovers.

Ottawa Would Like to Come In But The Petes Object

OSHAWA SEEMS OUT

Kingston All Set For Another Season—A Meeting Here

The C. O. B. L. will hold a meeting here tomorrow when delegates from Kingston, Peterboro and Belleville will be present.

The officials are at a loss to know just who is going to compose the loop this year.

Oshawa are definitely out, having taken a franchise in the Lakeshore League. The loss of Dainty and Tyson was a severe blow to the Motor City team, but they will probably be represented at the meeting.

Kingston have a never-looking bunch with Harold Dainty topping the list. The old guard with one or two new ones round out a fast collection.

Petes have not been heard from lately but "Skinner" Johnson is probably doing most of his work on the quiet. Awelda the fast man who has covered short-field for the Bit-lockers is back again. The loss of Whitehouse meant a break to fill but Al Heckman is still around and is going for nine innings.

Jack Oulette was the man needed by Belleville and the Trunks have no secrets in that department if the lanky boy performs up to expectations. If Johnny Williams can be signed he will plug the hole at third base.

Ottawa want to enter a team but it means a two days trip at least and Petrehoro are particularly hostile to this arrangement.

The trouble will be ironed out at tomorrow's meeting.

CUSTOMER OWNERSHIP

Can anything be simpler—the ownership of a Public Utility Company by its customers? The people who pay the gas bills own the Company. Those who make the revenue possible, profit by their own bills. Those who own shares practically get their bills marked "paid." It is estimated that the cash dividends paid on $500.00 worth of stock will pay the average gas bill.

At present there are more than 1,300,000 individual stockholders in public utility companies on this continent.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT GRIFFINS

A twist of the wrist has brought fame and fortune to many a man, but it was a twist of the ankle that placed Georgia Hale, "The Girl, Georgia" in Charlie Chaplin's comedy-drama, "The Gold Rush' in a position where the gates of stardom in pictures were opened to her. She is seen daily at the Griffin.

Born in St. Joseph, Missouri, of English and French parents, Miss Hale spent most of her life in Chicago, where she studied voice and dancing, intending to make the stage her profession, but always with dreams of a motion picture career in California.

Entering a Chicago beauty contest in 1925, Miss Hale's personality and charms won for her the honor of representing the Windy City in the Atlantic City national contest as "Miss Chicago". Best of all, she received a cash prize of $1,250, which meant the realization of her dreams of a trip to Hollywood.

At Atlantic City she lost in the competition for the honor of "Miss America", but made ready for the journey to Hollywood. Arriving in the cinema capital in July, 1923, Miss Hale got her first opportunity in doing a bit in a dancing scene, with a bright outlook for a real future.

But fate intervened when she fell and severely sprained her ankle. She was compelled to hobble on crutches for nearly six months and when her parents arrived in California at the end of this time, they found Georgia with only $12—still lame and unhappy.

Inspired by the timely arrival of her two sisters her mother and father, she evidenced her courage by seeking work as an "extra".

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. You can obtain a jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist.

And that was her start.

AT THE BELLE

When Walter Reid died it seemed that no one could ever fill the place he had left vacant. The screen missed him and missed him badly. But he has not forgotten Wally, but it has found in Reginald Denny his worthy successor.

Denny has that same humanness which made Wally beloved the world over, and he has that same sense of humor which carries over to his audience making it laugh with him as well as at him.

In "California Straight Ahead" his latest picture, above these characteristics most clearly. It stamps him as one of the foremost comedians on the screen as well as one of its most likeable young chaps. His ability to do all the daredevil stunts that any rather can come over coupled with his infectious smile and boyish earnestness has placed him at the top of the screen ladder up which he has been climbing.

For Denny has not always been a star. Not so very many years ago he went to London from his English home to make his fortune. He wanted to be a hero and he wanted to train at the National Sporting Club, England's most snapper boxing centre. But without the use of members to sponsor him he could not even get inside its sacred portals.

Finally he went to Lord Lonsdale, one of the best known and most popular sportsmen in England, asking for an interview. After some hesitation Lonsdale consented. Denny got to his own room and waited. Lonsdale stood up to his own scratch, and trainer, Lonsdale adopted him as a protege. With skilled training, Reginald soon forged his way to the very top of England's long line of amateur boxers. Unwilling, however to become a professional boxer, Denny looked about for new fields to conquer.

He got into movies. He's at the Belle tonight.

Women Awake to This Fact

All over the country women are awakening to the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one dependable remedy for their ailments. Thousands of grateful letters are received annually from women in all walks of life attesting to the good this old fashioned root and herb medicine has done them. For over fifty years it has been relieving women to health and strength. Why suffer unduly, ferish from any female trouble, why don't you try it?

"NO, NO, NANNETTE"

Now and then the reception accorded to an entertainment to be given at Griffin's Theatre merits the good opinion of theatre-goers to such an extent that its engagement is looked forward to with real, cordial anticipation. Therefore, it is not at all surprising to note the general interest shown in the information regarding the coming visit of "No, No, Nanette", the musical comedy which is bound to attract on account of the reputation preceding it.

In view of the hearty reception given it in all parts of the world, and in order to insure the enjoyment of an attraction of positive reliability, arrangements have been entered into with H. H. Frazee, producer of "No, No, Nanette" to bring this sensational success here for one engagement only, Thursday, April 15.

There can be no doubt whatever regarding the outcome of "No, No, Nanette's" visit, as there can be no question about the general character of the production to be brought here as any one of the five companies Mr. Frazee vouches for, has been selected with the first rank artists in their respective lines of musical comedy.

Among the principals are John Hyams, Leila McIntyre, who are the featured players, there are Roland Westervelt, Jack Young, Helen Case, Mary Vaughn, Dorothy Newell, Floyd English, Mildred Joy, Myrtle Glenn and others whose names are known to those who keep a mental record of stage celebrities. The widely extolled "Gorgeous Garden of Girls" and "Nanette Chorus Quartette" are features, together with a production of infinite splendor.

APPEARANCE IS UP TO TEACHER

O. E. A. Convention in Toronto Hears Questions of Tact Discussed

Toronto, April — Discussing the selection and training of teachers, Dr. J. Keys, Ottawa, raised the question of whether, when in marriage and good appearance generally were not vital qualifications, which were given too little attention on the part of young teachers. He was addressing the supervising and training section of the Ontario Educational Association. Dr. Keys also asked whether ties and unselfishness were not also essentials, remarking that there was a surplus of teachers in Ottawa at present, and that it was time to raise the standard.

PAN-AMERICAN MEET OF JOURNALISTS HELD

Washington, April — President Coolidge, in addressing today the first Pan American Congress of Journalists, which assembled at the Pan-American Union, said that the gatherings be held frequently as a means of drawing together the people of the western hemisphere. Speaking of the increased interchange of news among the American nations in recent years, Mr. Coolidge declared this awakening of interest had been "one of the most important factors in bringing about a better understanding" of the several countries.

FLU IN GLASGOW NOT OF VIRULENT TYPE

Glasgow, April — The influenza epidemic here shows little signs of abatement though the disease appears to be of a milder form than at the first of the outbreak. The number of influenza patients admitted to hospitals averages 30 a day. Fifteen cases of sleeping sickness have been reported in the past month.

ORGANIZED ATHEISTS TO ATTACK CHURCHMEN

New York, April — Organized atheists of the United States are planning a series of legal attacks upon Ecclesiasticism, according to a statement issued today by Charles Smith, President of the Association for Advancement of Atheism. The announcement said a fund of $100,000 is being raised among Atheists for the purpose of instituting several legal actions and spreading propaganda in College.

The Marquis

By CHARLES GARVICE

The cabman got down from his perch. "You wait here, miss," he said, as he rang the bell. After a few minutes of parley with some one in the passage he came back to her with a quiet smile of triumph.

"All right, miss. Here you are. You'll be comfortable enough here, I'll answer for it. You see, I knows the lady as keeps it. She was a trues at a hospital where I was once—broke my arm. She's a good sort, and a lady like yourself, miss."

Constance went up the short flight of steps, and saw a woman whom the cabman, with the quick perception of his class, had rightly described as a lady. She was young, scarcely of middle age, indeed, with a rather pretty face, with that expression of subdued sadness which speaks of past trouble, and was dressed in black. Constance and she stood for a moment regarding each other, then the woman's face relaxed into a softer and welcoming expression, which brought an intense feeling of relief to poor Constance, who was dreading another rebuff.

"You wish to have a room, miss?" said the woman.

Constance answered in the affirmative.

"But I am quite alone," she made haste to add, "and I cannot give you any references, and —I know no one. But I will pay."

Her face crimsoned, and the woman's colored faintly in sympathy.

"I think I understand, miss," she said; "I am not afraid about the money, sad will you come in, please?"

Constance paid the cabman, who refrained from asking her more than his fare and a half, which was generous of him considering that she would have paid three times the legal amount with out a murmur, and he went inside the house. The landlady led her into a plainly-furnished, but by no means uncomfortable, sitting room, and motioned her to a chair.

Constance raised her veil, and at the sight of her sad beautiful face the landlady gave a very faint start of surprise and admiration.

"I don't know," said Constance.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

MARION DAVIES

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

Then she went on, her color coming and going. "My name is Grahame. I am a stranger here in England. I am a governess, and—and shall want a situation. I have some money for the present," she took out her purse, with trembling fingers, "I will pay in advance."

"If you will give me a sovereign, miss, that will be sufficient."

Constance laid the coin on the table.

"I will show you your room," said the landlady.

Constance followed her up the stairs to a small but clean and neatly-furnished room.

"It is very plain and simple," began the landlady, but Constance stopped her.

"It is very nice, and quite, quite good enough," she said. "Will you please tell me your name?"

"My name is Mervyn," said the woman. "I am a widow," and her voice sank a little.

Constance's heart went out to her instantly.

"I am so sorry," she said in her low, sweet voice.

Mrs. Mervyn's face flushed slightly. "Thank you, Miss Grahame," she said, gently. "Yes, I have seen some trouble, and," with a faint smile, "that made me feel for you," and she glanced at Constance's black dress.

"It is for my father," said Constance.

Mrs. Mervyn nodded.

"The world is full of trouble, especially for us women," she said. "But I will go and get you something to eat, while you take your things off. You look tired and as if you wanted rest."

Constance sighed and sank into a chair as she took off her hat.

"Then I will," she said, very tired." Then she added as if in explanation, "I have come up from Buckinghamshire to—"

She stopped suddenly.

But Mrs. Mervyn displayed no curiosity, pardonable though it would have been.

FLORIDA'S BOOM NOT SO LIVELY BUT NO SLUMP

Belleville Man is Home But Is Going Back to Lauderdale

Real estate is pretty quiet in Florida at present according to Mr. Leo Orr, 7 Grove street, who returned to the city from the South a few days ago. The Intelligencer this morning Mr. Orr stated that he has been with a construction company in Lauderdale for the past several months but when building activities became quiet he returned for a short visit and will after selling out in the city go South again shortly. Business is good and wages average $40. a week but combined with this living is expensive.

BOTHER NEW COMERS

Flies, mosquitoes and other pests are a menace to the new comer but they soon get used to them, Mr. Orr said, instancing the rapid growth of the Florida towns since the boom. Mr. Orr stated that Lauderdale has grown since 1924 from 3,000 population to 15,000. The population for the most part is remaining steady, not so many people coming and going as during the past year. Some people of course drift South, get fed up and, disappointed, return North. The East coast is much settled by Canadians. During his visit South Mr. Orr visited Mr. John Bicknell, formerly of Belleville who is now the proprietor of a very flourishing restaurant and barber shop in Ojus, just out of Miami.

PRESIDENT OF CHINA UPSET IN COUP d'ETAT

Peking, April 10.—President Tuan Chi Jui was deposed to-day in a coup d'etat which had as its basis the calling of General Wu Pei Fu, Chihli war lord, by leaders of the national army "to restore the political situation" in Peking. The chief executive was placed under restraint as a consequence of an agreement between General Wu and the Kuominchun, or national army leaders. The coup was executed quietly early this morning. The bodyguard of the chief executive was disarmed.

EGGS AND SYRUP WERE FEATURES OF BIG MARKET

Potatoes Three-Fifty and up —Eggs Down to 24 cens

Two features of the market today which was largely attended by both sellers and buyers were the quantities of eggs offered for sale and maple syrup. While the season has not by any means been the best for the making of syrup there has been a fairly good flow of sap in some localities. Syrup sold today at 65c and 70c per quart and maple sugar at about 20 cents a pound.

Eggs were almost a drug upon the market the supply being exceptionally heavy. While the ruling prices for specials were 25c and 26c fresh ones were sold for 24c and a few basket lots were secured at a slightly lower figure.

Fresh dairy butter was quite plentiful and the ruling prices were 40c and 42c per pound. Cream sold at 30c per pint.

Good prices were realized for dressed chickens namely $1.50 to $2.50 per pair according to quality. A few ducks sold at $1.40 and $1.50 each.

Considerable quantities of homemade cooking were offered for sale in the interior of the market and ready purchasers for same were found.

There were no change to note in prices of vegetables excepting potatoes which are scarce and sold at $3.50 and $3.75 per bag.

Fish and shellfish held sold from 10c to 15c per pound and pork from 12c to 25c per pound according to cuts.

Fish sold as follows: Salmon 20c per pound, white fish 15c a pound, Haibut 25c, muskeie 25c and fillets 22c per pound.

William Wannamaker When 60 Moved Into Forest of Hastings Raised 12 Children; Is Now 88

Mr. William H. Wannamaker, a pioneer of the northern part of Hastings County, was celebrated his 88th birth anniversary, at the home of his son, A. R., Wannamaker, Port Stewart, in the Township of Carlow.

Mr. Wannamaker was born in the Township of Carlow, Hastings County, in 1838, the youngest of a family of three children. One of the late James Wannamaker, who was a grandson of Thomas Wannamaker, one of the U.E. Loyliats who landed at Adolphustown on the shore of the Bay of Quinte on June 16th, 1784, after enduring a perilous winter and many hardships on the shore of the New Jersey coast and the gulf of St. Lawrence. Having been compelled to leave the state of New York in September, 1783, because of their loyalty to the cause of a united Empire, and after all their possessions had been confiscated.

He married Eliza Jane Hannah, eldest daughter of the late Wm. Hannah, in 1872, who still shares his companionship, and to them was born a family of twelve children, seven boys and five girls, of which only seven survive, (viz.) Mrs. Jas. Brenner, Belleville; Mrs. J. W. Foster, Mayor, Alta., and Mrs. Chas. Graham, Hastings, Ont.

In the year 1886, Mr. Wannamaker moved from the Township of Carlow to Mayo Township, in North Hastings, which at that time was practically a wilderness, and settled on lot 21, with only a few acres cleared, and although then nearly sixty years of age, he succeeded in clearing out a home and providing for his large family, a task that to the present generation would be considered beyond possibility.

YOUTHFUL HEAD OF CAKE-EATERS GOES TO CHAIR

New York Jury Took Only 40 Minutes to Decide

New York, N.Y., April 10.—A sentence of death in electric chair will be imposed upon Herbert Koetzer, 18 years old, leader of a youthful hold-up gang known as "cake eaters."

A jury in the Queen's County Court deliberated only forty minutes last night in returning a verdict of first degree murder against Koetzer for the slaying of Angelo Mahaira, a Jamaica restaurant owner three weeks ago.

Drink, bad companions, and irresistible sights in the Harlem negro cabarets, following the loosening of home ties with the death of his mother, were the outstanding features of the youth's career as outlined during the trial.

THE OLD BANFF SPRINGS HOTEL AND THE NEW

Inset in the lower right hand corner is an illustration of the Banff Springs Hotel which has been partially destroyed by fire while the larger picture is composite picture of the wonderful setting in which the hotel stands and an architect's drawing of the new hotel as it will be when completed. The central tower of the hotel is of stone and the wing farthest away in the small picture is the one that has been burned. It was built in 1887 and was of wood and was to have been torn down in September next to be replaced by a new stone, steel and concrete structure. This work will now go forward at once at an approximate cost of $1,791,000. When completed the new structure will contain about 600 rooms, double the number of the old building. Thornton Offers to Present Medal to George Cornish For Bravery at Sand Banks

In August 1924, George Cornish, C. N. R. Yard Foreman at Belleville, at the risk of his life saved the life of a young child, Jean Elliott, who ,lives in Chicago, from drowning in Lake Ontario at the Sandbanks.

W. C. Mikel, K. C., took the matter up with the Royal Canadian Humane Association with the result that after careful investigation it has been decided to present a parchment testimonial to Mr. Cornish for his courageous act.

Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, has written Mr. Mikel expressing a desire to be present when the presentation of the testimonial is made to Mr. Cornish.

Sir Henry in his letter to Mr. Mikel writes as follows:

"I am happy to know that one of our employees performed a fine and noble act. If it is not procrastinating matters too long I think I could stop off at Belleville and assist in the presentation of the testimonial. I always like to know when any of our men do anything outstanding in order that they may receive the congratulations and good wishes of the company. It tends to make us all a little more human; then man forget that they are working for a soulless (?) company, and the company remembers that after all men are men."

Yours sincerely,
H. W. Thornton.

Chicago Society Women Seek Votes and Use "Shock" Tactics

Chicago, Ills., April 10.—Women candidates for political office here are showing a thing or two in the way of campaign advertising.

While Mrs. Bertha Bauer, society woman, Republican candidate, was sending a wagon load of empty beer bees through the loop to advertise her stand for prohibition modification, Mrs. Laura Mullendore Bucholtz, seeking the Republican nomination to an ultra aristocratic neighborhood, was taking up the campaign slogan in which more aristocratic beverage champagne was given a word.

One resolution of particular general interest was:—

The approval followed a very interesting discussion in which particularly the historic origin of the affiliation were brought out in a concise and comprehensive manner.

HOSPITALITY HOSPITALITY

HOUSE DEBATED VALUATION OF SOLDIERS' LAND

Marine Estimates Also Considered During a Dull Day

Ottawa, April 10.—Today in Parliament was divided between two subjects—all the afternoon being occupied in the further consideration of the bill that provides for the revaluation of soldiers' lands, while last night estimates of the Marine Department were proceeded with. The discussion on the land revaluation bill was largely a re-hash of the previous arguments.

Conservative members are offering a line of constructive criticism and it is understood by the Minister that they were mainly suggestions which will be followed. The principal clause of contention was that which limits the benefits of the act to those still on the land. Mr. Hambleton, of Selkirk, strongly urged that those who have abandoned their farms should be given a chance to go back and avail themselves of the revaluation process.

It was indicated that this course will be followed and that these men will be notified shortly. About one hundred farms, however, have been resold and where this has been done the original owner, of course, will not be able to return.

Mr. Meighen took the position that the legislation should apply more particularly to those lands forfeited since the amount the Government is less than the property is actually worth, but the Minister of the Interior, who is in charge of the bill, is not prepared to agree to that. The whole afternoon was spent in committee on this measure, but none of the clauses were actually passed.

In committee of supply on the marine estimates, several items were passed, including those for the navigation school, the temporary relief of shipwrecked seamen and interpretation of navigation. On the whole, it was a very dull and prosaic day.

CONSTANT CURLING AND WAVING RUINS HAIR

Girls just must curl and wave bobbed hair to appear their prettiest. But constant curling and waving burn and dry the hairs, vitality and very life from the hair.

To offset these bad effects, just get a 25-cent bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug store or toilet counter and just see for yourself how quickly it revives dry, brittle, lifeless, and fading hair.

"Danderine" is a dependable tonic and will do wonders for any girl's hair. It nourishes, stimulates and strengthens each single hair, bringing back that youthful gleam, glint and vigorous appearance. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears. "Danderine" is pleasant and easy to use.

see," the dictator wrote, as set forth in a statement made by officials today. "In spite of the pageant presented by our warships, my voyage is merely a matter of courtesy. It is with the constant care attention on our colonies, to make them better known, better appreciated and better developed. But I refer only to the colonies we possess." The dramatic events of the past three days in Italy—the attempt on the Premier's life and his spectacular departure for North Africa—have brought the chief currents of the Italian situation vividly to the surface.

The violent outburst of rage in Rome and other cities when the news spread that a foreigner had tried to kill Mussolini, followed by manifestations of almost delirious joy when the public learned that the Duce had been only slightly wounded, could hardly be taken otherwise than testifying strikingly to the strength of the national spirit which Mussolini has engendered.

BURNED PICTURE ON CABIN FLOOR THAT OF WOMAN

Millionaire Recluse's Story Remains a Mystery

London, April 10.—The charred remains of a woman's photograph lying on the floor of his luxurious cabin are the only clue to the secret romance and tragedy of the life of McEvers Bayard Brown, the United States millionaire recluse who died aboard his drydocked yacht at Brightlingsea, Essex.

Three weeks ago Brown had a stroke, and a day or two ago he must have had a premonition that his death was near and destroyed the picture which would have revealed to the curious public the identity of the woman who is supposed to have been responsible for his self-imposed exile.

There was no death-bed revelation, in the darkness just before dawn Thursday the yacht's grey-haired steward, who has known Brown for thirty-eight years, heard his master cry out.

"I rushed to him," said the steward, "and found he had fallen almost unconscious. He died an hour later without opening his lips."

Besides destroying the photograph Brown arranged that when he died his body was to be embalmed and taken to a Brooklyn cemetery to rest beside that of his father. Embalmers are working on the silent ship while the crew idle sadly about the deck.

BODY OF CHILD PART DEVOURED SHOCKS VILLAGE

Dog Had First Come Upon Remains—Brighton is Horrified

Brighton, April 10.—The village was shocked out of its usual placid calm by the finding of the body of a dead child and was horrified at the manner of its finding.

There is complete mystery as to how the body was left in the foundation of a building. No one seems to know anything about it. But the gruesome part of it was that the little body was first discovered by a dog and the dog had partially devoured it.

The village is buzzing with rumors and the authorities are endeavoring to unravel the mystery.

ONE MAN LOST ON SEALING BOAT AS FIRE SPREAD

Government Steamer Eagle Rescued the Remainder at Dawn.

St. John's, Nfld., April 8.—One member of the crew of the sealing steamer Seal, lost his life when the vessel burned in Bay de Verde yesterday after an explosion of ammunition in her magazine. Five others suffered serious burns. The survivors arrived here to-day on board the steamer Eagle.

The government steamer rescued the crew of 80 men of the sealing steamer Seal from the ice floes in Bay De Verde shortly before dawn. The men were driven on to the ice yesterday when the cartridges for shooting seals exploded in the ship's magazine. The Seal caught fire and sank at sundown.

The men were able to get off with small boats and later started for the shore eight miles away over the ice floes. The blazing ship behind them was visible off shore when the fog lifted momentarily.

BEATING ONE'S OWN COUNTRY

This smuggling business seems to have "all of a sudden" come to the front, principally of course because of the somewhat farcial probe at Ottawa—farcial because so much is NOT coming out, smothered by the Government and its paid servants—and from other reasons. The splendid little talk which Hon. George Perry Graham gave his towns men the other evening was a gem; and it was as a matter of fact so true! How many exceptions are there would you say to the rule that everyone who comes back from the States, brings something on which duty has not been paid? The women folk have a large assortment of fancies and furbelows to choose from and so have the men. How many men for instance have not smoked smuggled cigarettes?

Now the astonishing story comes along that the Americans assisted by Canadians have been smuggling alcohol into the country beating the customs and excise and undersailing their rivals in the trade that for these many years has been centred around the demon rum. There's simply nothing these people will not do to make a dishonest dollar, what?

A SEARCH FOR TRUTH

Heard you ever of so many convictions on uplift and education running concurrently as 'twere?

Toronto has had its provincial association it full swing and Montreal has had the Dominion Education convention and (connected in a way) here in Belleville we have had the nurses. They are working hard to improve their own position and everyone recognizes that they have perhaps long and tedious hours and trying times, at rates of pay when everything is taken into account, perhaps not too excessive.

The state of things prevailing with respect to education and relative to religion is being questioned. History tells convincingly that these two things cannot be separated; they are bound to work together like light and heat in the same sun beam.

Human civilization depends upon their mutual and coherent influence. We separate these elements at our peril. Upon this section history speaks consistently and with louder voice than any or all exhortations delivered from the pulpit. Today we are as never before asking what are the integral values of our boasted civilization and above all else whether our civilization as it stands is an illusion or a worthy reality. Has democracy made men better because it has set them free? Is human society more contented or more orderly than before our educational institutes appeared? Has the moral fibre of humanity improved proportionately with the diffusion of knowledge and our mastery of natures's forces? These are indeed searching questions and they cannot be downed. They thrust themselves upon us perforce by social conditions wherein we find a deplorable lack of discipline and the sense of moral responsibility; and in their stead an increasing mass of external laws and commandments designed for, and but partially succeeding in, keeping human society in working order. Two things are mainly responsible for hindering religious education from being put in its rightful place. One is the easy assent to the claims of religion with corresponding neglect of its practical ethics. The other is the formay denial of Christian teachings and the attempt to supplant them by some other concepts which are deemed as having prior position and proffering more tangible advantages. The outstanding fact that stares us in the face is that of a scientific and intellectual civilization so absorbed in the economic and material aspects of life that for the time being we have lost the clear vision and vital contact with those moral and spiritual elements in which true culture consists and which alone determine the healthful growth and orderly progression of human society. The psychology which leaves the human soul out of its calculations is simply a barbaric phantasy.

SOLACE FOR SCRAWLERS

Tell it not in school; publish it not in the room where the children are doing home work. Dr. William T. Root of Pittsburgh University says that "as a rule those of low mentality are good handwriters."

If that be true there must be a lot more genius in the world than most of us had suspected. Not only that, but genius must be more common than it used to be, for there is no question that bad handwriting is on the increase.

Some think it is because there is less discipline in schools than formerly, while others ascribe it to the early stage at which so many learn to use the typewriter. A pen is often the hardest thing to borrow in offices where it is used only to sign a letter or contract.

However, there should be comfort for many in Dr. Root's statement: "Intelligent people think 20 times faster than they can write. A person low in mentality has nothing else to think about but the shaping of his letters."

Don't scold Johnny or Mary because of handwriting that looks as though it were the jay-walking of a fly escaping from an ink bottle. He or she may be an exceptionally fast thinker, and possibly a genius.

Mr. W. S. Harper of Madoc, has passed with credit his examinations for the Fellowship of Trinity University Mr. Harper also took a particularly high stand in surgery and medical jurisprudence. The doctor is to be congratulated on his excellent standing all through his course. It is confidently expected he will soon stand in the forefront of his profession.

"NO, NO! NANETTE" COMING

"No, No, Nanette", the most pronounced musical comedy success ever recorded comes to Belleville next Thursday, April 15, when a will play an engagement at Griffin's.

This sparkling Frazee musical play has risen to such triumphant records in all the leading amusement capitals of the world, from Chicago to London; from London to Australia, and from Australia home again to New York—literally engulfing the globe—that it now ranks as one of the outstanding musical comedy successes of all time. In Chicago and many other large cities it is still the reigning sensation, with audiences clamoring for seats month after month, until it seems impossible to satisfy the demand.

There are many sure-fire numbers in the score; but among them all the two outstanding hits, which have set every one to dancing and singing them are, "I Want to be Happy", and "Tea for Two". Even the ensemble is made up of specialists, for there is a male octette and several very amusing dance numbers.

NEWS OF MOVIES

Here you are, girls. Blanche Sweet's recipe for happy marriage: The beautiful film star advises all girls to chose a husband who shares their ideals. She appears at Griffin's Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Wed only the man who really shares your ideals—whether they be of work or of play. The more you share each other's ideals the more happiness will you find in each other. A perfect sharing of ideals must result in an ideal marriage.

"Naturally, where the ideals differ, great tolerance is necessary to make the marriage fortune. It only rarely happens, however, that such tolerance is found in both parties.

"I cannot imagine a happier relationship than that which combines a real material interest in one partner with a mutual interest in the same kind of life work. There is no reason why such a couple cannot be equally interested in the creation of a home, with all its tender associations, and the achievement of a professional success.

"As a matter of coincidence, Blanche Sweet's latest picture, "The Far Cry," a First National adaptation of the Arthur Richman stage success, deals with the marriage problem.

C. N. R. STAGED A FINAL RALLY TO BEAT JUNIORS

Exciting Ball in Indoor Loop With Last Innings Upset

The Canadian National came from behind to stage a great seventh inning rally and beat Colling's Juniors to the wire by one run in the main game of the soft ball at the armouries last night. It was the best game yet played in the series and was closely fought all the way. The raiseders were behind all the way and going into the final frame it looked as though the Juniors had things cinched but four juicy hits resulted in runs and tied things up and a minute later the winning tally came over.

The second game was a virtual slaughter and the Clacos of Corbyville were snowed under before the attacking forces of the Alemites. When the smoke of battle had cleared the lubricators were on the long end of a 16-3 score. The losers could not get going at all with John Kerr twirling pretty ball and given air-tight support, the Alemite were by far the best. The losers were slow in fielding and many of the runs came over as a result of bad errors. The next games take place next Wednesday night.

Score—9. R. Curry.

ALEMITE 15 — CIACO 3

From the looks of this score one would imagine the Corbyville bunch had been partaking freely of the stimulants that they make, but such was not the case. Certainly they couldn't play ball. They played in general like a bunch of school kids but will be strengthened for the next game.

Jimmy McKenna pulled a couple of pretty plays for the winners.

Batting order:

Ciaco	Alemite
G. Maldens 2b.	Kerr p.
Whiting 1.f.	Flegler r.f.
Curry 3 b.	Belnap 3 b.
L. Murray s.s.	Cornell 2 b.
J. Boyle 1 b.	McKenna 1 b.
Clarke p.	Knott c.
Stark c.	Palmer s.s.
J. Murray c.f.	Page c.f.
Barrage r. f.	Burley l.f.

G.K.E. 7 — JUNIORS 6

The heavy artillery of the winners started to work in the last inning and pushed over a quartette of runs enough to clinch the game. Gibson smashed one of O'Donahue's plants against the left wall and S. Symons trotted in with the needed run.

O'Donahue had no right to lose this game as he kept the hits well scattered and had the Tranks eating out of his hand at times.

Fielding was pretty to watch by both teams and but few errors were chalked up.

Hurley was touched freely but his teammates were in fine fielding fettle and saved the bacon.

Batting order:

V. Weir s.s.	Stark 1.f.
S. Hagerman 2b.	Latchford c.

HOLDING THE PAPER AT ARM'S LENGTH

—when reading, says an plainly as it can be done: "get reading glasses." Some people think they have strong eyes because they read the paper at arm's length, but really their eyes have begun to lose their power for focusing for close work. If you cannot read at about 13 or 14 inches comfortably, it is time to interview me.

"The Spring's the time the golfers haste
A pesky little pill to paste
And, somewhat later on, supply
A freshly-painted alibi."
"Spring is here"

The warm weather of the past two days stirs the sportsmen to action and dreams of a day's fishing on afternoon at the ball game or a round or two at the links will soon be realized. Winter sports have had their fling after an unusually lengthy season and the warm weath er is a sign for considerable rejoicing from all sides. The baze at Crow Lake are stirring around in anticipation of a pleasant season and some lively battles with those minnods who frequent the ancient fishing grounds.

"Sista" Kerr has been in hibernating during these long winter months and his deep bass voice will once more resound around the ball parks in the C.O.B.S.L. when the umps send the boys on their way. The Trunkers will pastime at the new exhibition grounds this year and will not take a back seat to any teams in the matter of playing grounds. The composition of the league will be decided definitely at the meeting of the officials here today. Who will be the fourth team to complete the circuit is the important question or will it remain a three-team loop. Ottawa is a long jump and means at least a two days' trip which these clubs cannot afford.

Lester Patrick during his stay in the east said that western rules were far superior to those used in the National league. He states that coast league rules tend to make the play faster and that is what the public want. Lester and Frank Patrick have made a thorough study of the game and know what they are talking about.

The penalty shot, kicking the puck and the forward pass were deciding factors in speeding up the game.

"Pans on the coast never ride the referees as they do in the east and this is due to the code under which the coast league teams have adopted."

The National league magnates would do well to make a close study of western rules, and experiment with the next season.

The Edmonton Grads, world's champion basketball team, will meet the Lakeside of Toronto next week in a two-game series for the Canadian and world championship. The girls play an excellent brand of ball and are drawing big crowds in Toronto and other cities. The western girls are engaged in a series in Cleveland and whipped the Yankee girls on Thursday night.

The Observer has not received any replies regarding the note which appeared in this column as to Belleville's new rink. Let's have some action on this issue. Don't wait until next October before reopening the case.

The winners went into the game minus the services of their captain who is sick in bed, but Mike Nash who filled in, although he didn't roll any big score, managed to get a fairly good total. The Hardware got the jump in the first game, getting a lead of 140 pins. In the second they added another 64 and in the third 200 more. Doran of the Hardware was the highest bowler with a nice total score of 786. Anderson for the same team having 749. For the Wanderers, Lynch was high with 643. Players and scores:

DEFINITION OF A MAN

A man is something that can see a pretty three blocks away when driving a car in a crowded street, but will fail to notice in the window contrivance the approach of a locomotive the size of a school house and accompanied by a flock of 42 box cars.

FOR MEN ONLY

It's a wonderful thing for the women
The popular permanent wave,
Now it's up to some struggling investor
Why is it when I buy a car
To get out a permanent shave.

Careful inquiry I must make,
How many cylinders there are
And if it's got the four-wheel brake,
And if the bearings are indeed
Quite strong enough for constant use,
How many miles I can proceed
Per gallon of the vital juice?

And yet, when I select a wife
None of these things do I require,
Although I'm taking her for life.
And each of us may quickly tire;
Why do I rush to these fair ones?
The reason is not far to seek—
Cars are of standardized design.
While every woman is unique!

"I've found a really wonderful dentist," Hostmon told his friend. "Every time he extracts a tooth he gives his patient a drink to stimulate him." "Then what are you so gloomy about?" asked the friend. "Did he run out of whisky?"

"No, I ran out of teeth."

Last Words Of the Great

Many touching farewells of great men are recorded, although nobody can ever be sure whether last words attributed to famous people are genuine. For example, for a hundred years the British public cherished the belief that the last words of the dying Pitt were: "My country, how I love thee." According to Lord Rosebery, however, what the brilliant statesman really said was, "Fetch me one of Bellamy's pork pies!"

Although it is generally accepted and taught to children as history that Nelson's dying words were, "Kiss me, Hardy," many authorities hold the opinion that, whilst this version sounds feasible, there is a strong possibility that the words might have been misunderstood by the hearers, and incorrectly handed down. . .

A copy of a newspaper dated November 7, 1805, records Nelson's last moments as follows: "Turning to Captain Hardy, Nelson said, 'I know I am dying. I could have wished to have survived to breathe my last on British ground, but the will of God be done!' In a few minutes he expired." This account does not mention that his last words were, "Kiss me, Hardy."

"Blue down the curtain, the farce is played out," are the dying words attributed to Rabelais. Sir Henry Irving's last playing in Bradford when he collapsed on the stage His last words were those words of Becket, which he was acting, "Into thine hands, O Lord, into Thine hands."

Here is a collection of the reported dying words of other notable people:

"It is well."—Washington.

"I must go down."—Goethe.

"Let the light enter."—Goethe.

"Is this your fidelity?"—Nero.

"God preserve the Emperor."—Haydn.

"A dying man does nothing well"—Franklin.

"What, is there no bribing death!"—Cardinal Beaufort.

"All my possessions for a moment of time."—Queen Elizabeth.

"I feel as if I were to be myself."

"Let me die to the sound of delicious music."—Mirabeau.

"I have loved God, my father, and liberty."—Mme. de Staal.

"I resign my soul to God—and my daughter to my country."—Thomas Jefferson.

"I have endeavored to do my duty."—Taylor.

"Let us bear once more those notes which have so long been my solacement and delight."—Mozart.

"God bless you, my dear."—Dr. Johnson.

"Now it is come."—John Knox.

"God and my country."—Wolfe.

"Yes, my voices were of God. They have never deceived me."—Joan of Arc.

"Why work is done!"—Cromwell.

"I am not afraid to die."—Charles Darwin.

"There are millions of people on the earth, and many suffer. Why then, are you all around me!" Count Tolstoy.

"We are all going to Heaven, and Van Dyck is of the company."—Gainsborough.

"See in what peace a Christian can die!"—Addison.

"Dying, dying."—Hood.

"How grand these rays; they seem to beckon earth to heaven." Humboldt.

"Clasp my hand, I die."—Alfieri.

SPRING WINDS.

(By Charles Hanson Towne)

And every tulip is a cup,
Filled with the wine of Thy great love
Lift thou me up.

Raise thou my heart as flowers arise
To greet the glory of Thy day.
With soul as clean as lilies are
And white as they.

Let me not fear the darkness now,
Since life and light break through Thy tomb;
Teach me that doubts no more
No more consume.

Show me that Thou art April, Lord,
And Thou the flowers and the grass;
Then, when awake the soft spring winds,
I'll hear Thee pass.

FROM DISCIPLE TO MASTER.

My life is like a dream,
I do not know
How it began, nor yet
How it will go.

Out of the night a bird
Has quickly flown

Across the lighted room,
And now is gone.

Into the dark again
From whence it came—
So the old Druids said,
And I the same.

But, we not content;
I, like them, too,
Questioning all I meet,
Seek something new.

Saying to each who comes,
"Bring me clear,
But, if you know of more,
I wait to hear.

"The dark, the lighted room,
The bird which flies
Are not enough for man
Who one day dies,

"Are not enough for man,
That bird which came
Out of the dark and must Return again.

"If you know more besides,
Tell what you know,
O wise and traveled souls,
Before I go."

—Monk Gibbon.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"You! Let me recommend you to lie down and rest for a little while. The house is a very quiet one, and you will not be disturbed," and she left the room.

Constance took off her things, but sat gazing out of the window upon the long row of backs of houses. Rest! How could she rest with her brain in a whirl? She could do nothing but think and think, and try to realise that a few hours ago she was at Shakespeare Castle, and that now she was in a London lodging house, friendless and alone!

CHAPTER XII.

Mr. Rawson Fenton leaned back in his luxurious stain-lined carriage, and the high-spirited horses bore him through the stately gates and along toward the west, the turn-out attracting attention and remark at almost every yard of its way.

Passing Hyde Park, it pulled up before one of the large houses in Kensington Park Gardens. The footmen dropped down from their perch, the ball flew opened and reverend a outlet and two tubes footmen, and the great man strode quickly into the hall, followed by his secretary with the dispatch box.

Besides the servants there were thirteen or fourteen other persons standing or sitting in the hall, and they moved forward as Mr. Rawson Fenton entered, as if they had been waiting to get a word with him.

But with a bow to the right and left, and a "How do you do? Excuse me for a moment," he passed through them and up the broadstairs.

Some of the persons thus disappointed recalled their seats, others went out, two gentlemen strolled toward the door and looked uncertain which to do.

"No," replied the other. "He looked busy, but one can't tell," and he shrugged his shoulders. "He may come down, or send for us. That's the worst of these big men, you can't tell how to take them."

"Yes, and I want to see him on a matter of importance," said the first man.

The other smiled.

"So do we all, I expect," and he glanced over his shoulder at the waiting group.

"Have you known Mr. Fenton long?" asked the first, as if to invite conversation.

The other smiled.

"Not very long. I should be singular by privileged if I had."

"Ah, you are that—?"

"That no one, at any rate here in England, has known him very long. The people abroad, out in Australia and elsewhere may have done, perhaps; though that matter, no one seems to be well posted about his antecedents."

"Every one knows that he is a wonder fully successful man."

"That goes without saying," said his companion, glancing round the spacious hall, with its palpable evidences of wealth in the shape of costly pictures, magnificent hangings, and rare china. "Of course, but few persons know how it was all made."

"He is one of the marvels of the age," said the first, reflectingly.

"Quite so, and that is an age when there are so many marvels. Yes, Mr. Rawson Fenton is one of the great men of this the Victorian era."

"They tell me that he must be worth a couple of millions at least," said the first.

"Or three," said the other, shrugged his shoulders and smiled.

"Very likely. Perhaps more. It does not much matter."

"No?"

"No, so long as a man possesses the power of handling large sums of money it does not signify how much he really owns. Rawson Fenton may be a millionaire, as you say, or he may not. All I—and I expect you—care about is that he can, if he chooses, make my and your fortune."

"That's true, sir," assented his companion. "And I believe he can do that. It's wonderful! I suppose you have heard some of the stories respecting him?"

"Some, yes."

"Is it true that only a short time ago he was quite a poor man, out in the bush somewhere?"

"I have heard so."

"And that his first hit was in gold mining?"

"Gold mining or something of the kind. But it was only his first hit. The rest of his career is the extraordinary part. Many men come across a piece of luck in the shape of a huge nug get or a mine, and—stop there. That is to say that they are content with the one piece of luck, either settle down and live on the proceeds, or—spend it."

JUST IN PASSING

GILBERT FRANKLIN, THE FAMOUS NOVELIST, says that Canada has a short the only justification that anyone has for existence.

There was a man who thus summed up his philosophy of life:
Look up and not down,
Look forward and not back.
Look out and not in—and Lend a hand.

LET THEM COME AND COME SOON

At a luncheon in London, England industry Sir Nicholas Grattan attended by members of the textile Doyle, M.P., announced that rumproof hosiery will be on the market soon. The inventor of this textile

"And Mr. Rawson Fenton was evidently not content?"

"He was not. After his first stroke he took his place among the financiers over there, and soon found the old saying that no mine in the world is so golden as a clever man's brains. There has been a big and successful undertaking over there that Mr. Rawson Fenton has not had a finger in, generally two or three fingers. I have heard, and I know it to be a fact, that his name stood on the board of directors would suffice to float a company, however thin and rickety it might be. For instance, do you remember the Great Placer Reef?"

"The other goddess."

"Yes. I've come to!" he said, ruefully.

"Exactly. Well, that looked like a hopeless affair at the start but Mr. Rawson Fenton appeared on the scene, and bought the whole of it, started a company and cleared—how many thousands?"

The Modern Woman

The life of the average woman of the middle classes is the subject of most searching analysis by Dr. Mercy Rick Booth, Ph. D., in the "Hibbert Journal".

"In the educated classes in particular, the woman is not truly cooperating in the task of life," writes Dr. Merrick Booth. "She is not 'pulling her weight'. Her activities are not positively related to the task of evolution. The man is, for example, doctor, business man, or Government official; he is doing something which is definitely productive and useful; he is satisfied in the consciousness of furthering the life of the nation.

"In other classes, the miner produces coal; the railwayman feeds the vital nerves of national life; the agriculturist provides us with food; the sailor carries the wealth of the people to the ends of the earth. In these classes, too, the women are much more indispensable than in the higher classes, and nothing makes a woman so happy as to know that some one needs her. The farmer's wife is a necessary being without whom everything would stand still.

"The miner's wife is the priest of the miner's religion; without her the life of the coalfields would cease to function. Moreover, these women carry on the life of the nation, on the physical side, inasmuch as the birth-rate in these classes is higher than the death-rate. They marry early and realise their sole conscious life more completely than their sister's higher in the social scale.

"The modern woman is proud of her independence. But in reality she shows a deplorable lack of spirit in claiming her own life. She is quite willing to subordinate herself to a man-made, social system without even stopping to mould it in any distinctively feminine way. The modern girl goes into a shop, on an office, or a school, and becomes part of a machine run by men for men. She imagines that in this way she is achieving "independence". She meekly sequiesces in social conditions which deprive her of all that is typically feminine in life."

KNIGHTS OF THE GARTER

The Order of the Garter, which the King conferred on Sir Austen Chamberlain on the occasion of the signing of the Treaty of Locarno, is the most renowned Order of Chivalry in the world. There are only 25 Knights of the Garter, besides the foreign sovereigns and dignitaries, who are admitted by special statute. For the past 200 years the "K.G." has been mainly restricted to members of the peerage. Sir Edward Grey was the first commoner to be awarded the honour (in 1912) since its conferment on Sir Robert Walpole in the 18th century. Mr. Arthur Balfour (now Lord Balfour) received the honour in 1922, and in the same week Viscount Lascelles, then Lord Lascelles was admitted to the Order.

"HONEST" FOLKS ROB GOVERNMENT AT THE BORDER

Rt. Hon. Mr. Graham's Formal Hint Kindly Reproof Noted

Montreal, April 10.—The Gazette says:

The Right Hon. George P. Graham, speaking before a gathering of church members in his home town of Brockville, told his audience some of the things he knows, not as a former Minister of the Crown, but as an experienced man, concerning one phase of human weakness through which, when customs, excise and taxes are in question, and the sums involved are small, that complex thing we call conscience will compromise with principle and easily find an exception to the rule of probity it honors in all other things faithfully and well. Mr. Graham displayed commendable courage. "If," he said, "the church members of the Dominion of Canada would pay duty on the goods that they are now smuggling into this country the debt of Canada would be reduced by several millions more dollars every year." He was referring to what may be termed the delicate forms of smuggling that go on every day and every hour of the day, and not, to the dishonest credit that is now forming the subject of a parliamentary investigation at Ottawa.

How strong the temptation is to smuggle little things nearly everybody must know whose business or pleasure takes them to and fro between Canada and the United States. And whoever succumbs to the temptation, similarly enough, does so with bravado and without shame. In fact, they are proud of their clever evasions, and will afterwards openly boast of their faculty in using stratagem to accomplish their purpose. Why do they do it? Economy is not usually the motive. Less frequently is the act based on avarice. They do not do it deliberately to rob the Government. Quite a number may, after hearing Mr. Graham's lecture, realize for the first time that they actually do rob the Government. It is in such instances as Mr. Graham had in mind, in a spirit more of play than of dishonesty, that the street probity of law abiding people is, on the occasion, deflected and silk and other garments are camouflaged and the exuvine of fetals outwitted. Let the man who has never "inadvertently" or otherwise omitted to declare the presence of the large box of his favorite cigarettes in his inner pocket of his overcoat, the supply of tobacco and cigars hidden elsewhere, and the silk things nested in friend wife's trunks, cast the first stone.

But it is all wrong. Be honest with the State as well as with the church, was Mr. Graham's advice to the church gathering, and the advice, of course, applies generally. Smuggling goods into Canada, he pertinently pointed out, is doing the country out of money that rightly belongs to it. "You might just as well stand the Minister of Finance right up against the wall and take the money from him." The formal and not unkindly reproof should give the mind of even the mildly guilty a greater conscious-ness of rectitude and direct them in the right way in the future. Others who have cheated the excise more boldly and effectively may perhaps anonymously send to Mr. Robb what is always acknowledged as "conscience money." Having experienced the thrill of smuggling they could in this way enjoy the glow of conscious virtue. Conscience is the one court whose "findings" are incontrovertible and it may be that some who heard Mr. Graham, or who will read what he said, will come to realize that a practice which robs the Government of millions of dollars a year is more serious than hitherto they have considered it to be, and will properly rescind that the national treasury has been "scored off" quite long enough.

TRUCK OWNERS CALL FOR DRIVING SAFETY

Toronto, April 10.—The question of safety in the operating of trucks on the public highways occupied much of the discussion of the Ontario Motor Truck Owners' Association during their annual meeting at the King Edward Hotel last night, and as a result, a special appeal went out to all the owners of trucks in the Province to exercise special care in the selection of their drivers, in order that accidents on the streets and roads may be reduced to the minimum.

TWENTY-NINE INJURED AS GASOLINE EXPLODES

New Orleans, April 10.—Twenty-nine persons were injured, 23 rescued from the Mississippi River, and four unaccounted for as a result of an explosion of several gasoline tanks aboard the Standard Oil Company's tanker, O. T. Waring. No persons were definitely known to have been killed. Officials declined to release the names of the missing until they complete a check of some 200 men aboard the vessel when the blast occurred.

Detroit policeman who placed bets on two horse races to win a bookmaker found out later that both his selections were winners.

NUMBER OF WORKLESS IS RAPIDLY FALLING

London, April 9.—The number of unemployed in Great Britain is falling toward the 1,000 mark. There has been a consistent drop evident for many weeks and last week a decrease of 26,000 to 1,014,000 was noted.

Several passengers were injured when all sleeping cars on Ocean Limited from Montreal left the rails in Cumberland County, N.S.

DUCHESS GIVES WORDS OF PRAISE TO I.O.D.E. TASKS

Lauds Educational Work on Behalf of Ex-Service Men's Dependents

Montreal, April 10.—Optimism regarding the outcome of the Locarno treaty, which in spite of certain disappointments, still stands and promises to be fulfilled when again the Council of League of Nations meets in the fall, was voiced by Her Grace the Duchess of Atholl at the Mount Royal Hotel, in her address before the Montreal Municipal Chapter I.O.D.E. and their guests, who are delegates to the National Conference on Education.

Patriotism and a firm faith in the staunchness of the British Empire pervaded the spirit of the gathering, from the silken Union Jack standard of the chapter, standing behind the chair of the regent, Mrs. J. M. C. Muir and the Duchess of Atholl at the head table, to the utterances of Her Grace and the officers of the I.O.D.E. who voiced the principles of the Order and told of the work it has carried on since the war.

"I have been most interested to hear of the work you have done during the war," declared the Duchess. "For one women's organization to have raised something like £1,000,000 during the war was a marvellous feat. The giving of practical assistance to the dependents of those who suffered disablement or death, in the most important step of education, in the form of scholarship, is one of the very best ways of honoring those who have gone.

"Something of the same sort has been carried on in the Old Country, but through the administration of the Pensions Ministry, with funds remaining over from the war," said the speaker. "I hope that those who through your splendid service find their way to British Universities will derive every benefit and be welcomed by those there.

"I am interested to learn from your president that you are affiliated with the Canadian League of Nations Union. Sometimes in the Old Country, one meets people who say 'Why is it necessary to have a League of Nations? Surely the British Empire has been a great instrument for peace. People may say that we have had wars in India, Africa, and different parts of the world, but with one exception, the Crimean war, these wars have been on the borders of civilization.

"But in spite of that fact, that the Empire has been an instrument for peace since Waterloo, it was not able to prevent the great catastrophe of war in 1914. That war has proved that no-one can speak in terms of isolation.

On the question of whether Britain should let herself be entangled in European affairs, the Duchess pointed out that its geographical position, and the policy of the country in times past, made it impossible for the country to do otherwise than participate in European affairs. "We have been in Europe since the beginning of our days, and must be prepared to shoulder our burdens. Old sores, and old wounds are still fresh in Europe, and we have been able to do something substantial in helping to heal them."

BAPTIST PAPER PUBLISHES REPLY TO DR. SHIELDS

Says Place of Debate Master is on Floor of The Convention

Toronto, April 10.—The Canadian Baptist carries an answer to an open letter published recently by Rev. T. T. Shields, in which he challenged the Chancellor, faculty, secretaries and governing bodies, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, and any and all other Baptists who take McMaster's side in the present controversy to a public debate in Massey Hall. In the absence of the Chairman of the Board of Governors of McMaster, states The Canadian Baptist, inquiry had been made of the Chancellor and Dean, who had authorized the following statement as to the view of the authorities:

CONVENTION PROPER PLACE

"The proper place to discuss matters relating to McMaster University, as the editor of The Gospel Witness very well knows, is not the platform of Massey Hall, but the floor of the regular Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, to which the boards of the Convention are directly responsible. To such Convention the governing bodies of the university are responsible, and are ready to give a full account of their stewardship. Even if such a debate as is proposed in Massey Hall were held, loud experience and recently published statements of the editor of The Gospel Witness show that, if it would not create any real difficulties, nor cause from controversy until matters are settled as he wants them to be.

"The Editor of The Witness is much exercised as to the widespread doubt concerning the orthodoxy and accuracy of some of his public statements and charges. For the present it is sufficient to remind our people that at the Wallmer Road Convention in 1922, the delegates had before them statements and charges from The Gospel Witness which, after full discussion, those delegates showed they believed to be untrue, and the Convention concluded this prolonged discussion by passing a resolution which deprecated the methods and substance of the attacks made by one member of the board upon the university and colleges'. There was no mistaking the convictions of that Convention as to the false statements and misrepresentations of the editor of The Gospel Witness, who withdrew only one. The Convention spoke and voted its disapproval.

INDICTED AT HAMILTON

"Again, at the Hamilton Convention, last October, the Chancellor and Dean of Theology charged the editor of The Witness on the floor of the Convention with making false statements and misrepresentations in his paper of Oct. 15, 1925. Those charges were not disproved, nor were they ever withdrawn by Dr. Shields.

"The attitude of that Convention toward such charges was shown in no uncertain way. The confidence of the Convention in the chief officers and governing bodies of the university was expressed by the adoption of the university report and by the enthusiastic election of the Dean of Theology to the Presidency of the Convention.

"That Convention further put itself on record as repudiating the methods and tactics which the editor of The Witness had previously made upon Drs. A. T. Mc Cummon, President of the Walmer Road Convention."

HUSBAND KILLED WIFE CARRIES ON AS BLACKSMITH

Curious State of Affairs Exists Within 20 Miles Of London

London, April 10.—Overlooking a village green, within 20 miles of the heart of the empire, there great strapping fellow wields hammer and the slender wife opposite him plies bellows, forge and the blacksmith's trade.

She is the widow of Walter Green though, who died a year ago, following a kick from a horse. Since then, with the help of a hired smith, she has carried on the forge, acting a "striker," in which capacity she had worked for four years with her husband.

"I have many friends," said Mrs. Greenhough, "and I loved the forge too much to give it up. It's not only my chosen livelihood, but my life. The old engine, who died a few weeks ago, still is though I was just plucky. It nearly broke through. I couldn't have earned as honest living in a woman's way, but when my husband died a year ago the business was standing the corner. For four years we had worked together. I helped him to do the trying ends; got him rims on the farm carts. I would stand at the side of a horse, ready with the pincers, hammer and smith. Seldom work, under my husband, day by day, often in the morning to five at night.

"Walky liked horses—and they all knew him as the second shoeing. I've heard him say often, 'Every horse knows his smith.'

"After the funeral, what anyone would tell me was to carry on. But I wouldn't give in.

"I couldn't leave the work. As I carryin' on I had a sort of feelin' that I might be pleasin' my dead man.

"Mand and wife, smith and striker, we had fought for the forge, together. And I think while I light he fights still. Pride—and love! At work now in the forge, I feel always nearer to him.

"Do I remember the first day I worked with him? When his chance came of getting the forge he found himself 'stuck' for a striker. No money.

Kingston, Ont., April 12—Baron Byng of Vimy, Governor-General of Canada accompanied by his staff arrived by special train this morning at 11 o'clock on a visit to the Royal Military College. At the college Lord Byng inspected the battalion of cadets and later toured the buildings and grounds. He was the guest at luncheon at the College Mess of the Commandant and Staff.

"You know what this country wants just as well as I do" said the Governor-General, "Leaders in every sphere, leaders politically, economically, commercially and from every point of view, and what I want you gentlemen to think about after you leave that college is whether or not you will try and supply this demand."

BURBANK'S SWEETHEART DIED SO SOUGHT SOLACE IN FLOWERS

Santa Rosa., Calif., April 12.—Crushed as a youth when the flower of his love wilted and died, Luther Burbank sought solace in the culture of earthly plants. That in brief is the hidden story of the life of the eminent scientist who lay in the quiet sleep of death in his garden wonderland here today. The end came early yesterday morning. To Edgar A. Waite, of the San Francisco Bulletin, in whom he had confidence, Burbank opened up a chapter of his life that resulted in his turning his energies and talents toward the service of mankind. Waite was given permission to publish the story only after Burbank's death. The details of the incident will be told in a copyright article to be published in the Bulletin to-day.

HENRY FORD'S FLEET TO BE MOVED TO DETROIT

Montreal, Que., April 12.—It is reported here that 100 ships of Henry Ford's fleet, purchased from the United States Shipping Board will pass through here early in the coming navigation season, en route from the Hudson River where they now lie to Detroit. Captain W. C. Johnson of the Ford Fleet with other representatives of the company were in Montreal over the week end.

If the plan made with one ship last year were followed, half of the fleet, loaded with scrap from the other half would be towed to Montreal and from here proceed under their own power.

SCHOOLS REPORT MANY ABSENTEES AS HOLIDAY ENDS

About 10 Per Cent. Still Away Some of Whom Are Ill

Flu, measles and other minor illnesses accounted for the non-return of about ten percent of the pupils of some of the schools in Belleville this morning, though the entire teaching staff with the exception of two were on hand, the exceptions being Mr. James Irwin, assistant principal of the King George School who underwent an operation in Kingston during the holidays, and Miss Sandgrs of Smith's Falls, who is ill.

AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

At the High School with a total enrollment of 518, about seventy-five of the pupils are absent, 443 having reported today. Some of the absentees are ill but it is thought the majority will return during the week. The serious illness has been reported. The fatal accident to Ruth Helm accounts for one of the absentees.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

At Queen Mary School, Mr. David Barragar, the principal, stated that four hundred and fifty had returned, some have been detained by measles and flu though none seriously ill.

At Queen Alexandra School ten per cent failed to report this morning, about four hundred of the total enrollment of 440 returning, Mr. M. W. Mott said.

At Queen Victoria School colds and measles kept eighty-seven of the four hundred and eighty-seven pupils on roll of school today, Mr. Wilkins told The Intelligencer.

At King George School seventy-seven pupils of the three hundred and fifty-four were absent.

At St. Michael's Academy a number of the pupils are detained from school by colds and flu.

NOTHING SERIOUS

While it is definitely known that a number of the absentees are ill, there are always a few laggards who "take a day or so extra" which system accounts for a certain percentage of the non returns.

MOTOR SHARES SHOW COLLAPSE ON WALL STREET

New York, April 12.—Stock prices broke sharply today, presumably on selling inspired by growing uncertainty as to the future course of business. Motors were hardest hit, on the theory that the heavy cuts in production and sales in the first quarter could not be maintained and that as a result earnings would suffer. Hudson collapsed 6½ points to 64 3-4 as against a high of 123½, earlier in the year, Jordan broke ¾, Pierce Arrow preferred 6 and several others 1 to 3 points.

BURBANK, PLANT WIZARD, IS DEAD IN CALIFORNIA

Recently Caused Sensation By Declaring Himself An Infidel

MADE PEOPLE THINK

In 25 Years He Made 100,000 Experiments on Billion Growths

Santa Rosa, Cal., April 12.—Luther Burbank, withered by age, died here early today amid the flowering fruits and blooms that he created for mankind's benefit. The noted horticulturist passed on to the great adventure of a hereafter in which he had no faith.

Only a few weeks before the end he had declared that he could not believe in a life after death.

And as life ebbed away and he stood at the brink he did not falter in his convictions. Inform and worn-after years devoted to developing and grafting plant life, the controversy started by his pronouncements on religion he eloquently, unburdened, contributed to his last illness.

A storm of protest came from religious leaders when Mr. Burbank gave out the statement describing himself to be as infidel. His home here was swamped with letters and telegrams condemning his stand. The stress he was subjected to in defending and explaining his beliefs brought on a nervous condition that his 77 years could not survive.

"Oh doctor, I am very sick, were his last words. They were uttered to his physician, Dr. Jos. H. Shaw.

Gastro-intestinal complications and violent hiccoughing had weakened Mr. Burbank. All hope for him was given up last night after a two weeks' struggle by physicians to prolong life.

At the bedside were his wife and sister, Mrs. Emma Beeson, of Halesburg.

100,000 EXPERIMENTS

Acknowledged the dean of plant breeders and leader in modern crea-tive plant development, the name of Luther Burbank became a household word. Virtually his whole life was devoted to creating new plant breeding and many of his more than 100,000 experiments with various forms of vegetation attained such marvelous results that he gave him the title of "Plant Wizard."

Early in life Burbank evinced a great love for growing things, selecting plants rather than animals as his pets. His first notable success was attained in the age of 23, when he happened to find a seed ball of the Early Rose potato, which rarely bears seed. From this he developed the world-famous Burbank potato that has spread to every portion of the globe and which is said to exert a greater influence upon the food supply of humanity than any other single food plant.

Soon after the breeding this potato, which made him neither fame nor money at the time, Burbank moved to California, where he obtained employment on a farm land. He continued as a laborer until able to acquire a small farm in the town of Santa Rosa, some 10 miles north of San Francisco. Here this small beginning he undertook the series of experiments which long had been uppermost in his mind. Thereafter his work was continuous and tireless, occupying nearly 16 hours a day on the average.

Burbank was born at Lancaster, Mass., March 7, 1849, son of Samuel W. and Olive (Ross), of English and Scotch ancestry. He was the 13th of 15 children born on his father's 200-acre farm. He attended the Lancaster Academy, from which he was an honor graduate.

MOTHER OF BABE IS GIRL OF 17 HELD AT COBOURG

Police investigating the finding of a child's body in Brighton obtained a confession from Norma McDonald, 17, that she is the mother of the infant. She is now in Cobourg jail. The body was simply bound when a terrier owned by Thomas Chew, carried an arm into the house. The dog was leaked up for a few hours, and then released. It led the police across the road to the rear of a house, where it ran under the floor. Here the police found the remains of the infant, about half eaten. Coroner Dr. Dare took charge and will conduct a post-mortem examination to ascertain whether the child was still born.

Norma McDonald is said to have told the police she gave birth to the infant two weeks ago last Sunday, but before this the coroner had expressed the opinion that the child had been dead 48 hours. There was no medical attention given at birth, and the girl said she did not see any harm in concealing the body as the child was born dead. Her father, Larry McDonald, was buried last Monday.

POLE DIRIGIBLE DOES 1400 MILES WITHOUT MISHAP

Will Not Attempt To Look While North—Use Vacuum Bottles

Fullam, Eng., April 12.—The big dirigible Norge, in which the Amundsen-Ellsworth expedition hope to cross the north pole from Spitsbergen, is flying smoothly and steadily on its long struggle to land her on her arrival Sunday afternoon from a flight of 1,400 miles from the Canopus Flying field near Rome, Italy. The airship left Italy Saturday morning and flew here at an average of 1,000 feet. A new mooring mast has been erected at Oslo, Norway to accomodate the dirigible but it is possible that she will not stop there but will go direct from England to Leningrad.

PLANS FOR FLIGHT

Oslo, Norway, April 12.—Lincoln Ellsworth, co-director with Amundsen in the proposed North Pole flight in dirigible Norge, says the airship will sail from Oslo for Spitsbergen as soon as rate of speed so as to save gasoline. Mr. Ellsworth added that no food would be cooked aboard the airship during the two or three days of the northern flight because of the possibility of an explosion of the big gas bag. Hot food, he added, will be carried in vacuum bottles and will be taken in large vacuum bottles.

VICTORIA TO KEEP 4-YEAR COURSES SAYS DR. BOWLES

Chancellor Discusses Possible Changes Over New Policy

Toronto, April 12.—Victoria College of the University of Toronto might be dropped from the University and act independently if the proposal of Premier Ferguson to remove first year courses from Universities for normal schools was passed, Chancellor Bowles of Victoria College declared today. "In all probability" he said, "Victoria will maintain a four year course, irrespective of departmental regulations regarding first year. The University wanted to continue to decide its own policy regarding educational matters. The Chancellor said. He thought the proposal was contrary to the University act.

CANADIAN WETS GIVE OWN VIEWS TO U.S. SENATE

Quebec and Manitoba Systems Are Explained at Washington

Washington, April 12.—"A drive against the Volstead Act before a Senate committee was wound up by the wets with the statement that Canada has improved conditions in Provinces which have turned away from prohibition and with further demands of Labor leaders for legalized beer.

IN QUEBEC

Although lacking much of the spectacular which has accompanied attacks on the Volstead Act during the week, the testimony of Canadians regarding the operation of laws for Government control of liquor distribution, in the Provinces of Quebec and Manitoba claimed the closest attention of the committee.

Sir William Stavert of Montreal, a former member of the Quebec Liquor Commission, declared the Province had "banished the bootlegger" by returning to restricted license and had increased revenue.

CONDITIONS IN MANITOBA

Describing conditions in Manitoba since prohibition was voted out, Premier William Russell, President of the Moderation League of that Province said "every large assembly in Winnipeg of beer and wine and a falling off in hard liquor consumption and that conditions as to temperance had improved.

E. C. Clarke, an experienced prospector with a party of three capable men, has just flown out to work on his 39 claims on Birch Lake, which have kept full interest for twelve years. D. Dubois of Superior, who has for years been a prospectors' outfitter and has himself done many trips, states that Cat Lake holds possibilities quite equal to those of Red Lake, and that speedy development will certainly show this, now that the country is attracting attention.

THIRD TANKER BLOWS UP AND 23 LIVES LOST

Terrific Explosion on Oil Ship Rocked Port Arthur, Texas

TANK OVERFLOWED

Screams of Terrified Sailors—Liquid in Contact With Hot Pipes

Port Arthur, Texas, April 12—A terrific explosion aboard the tanker Gulf, of Venezuela, in the harbor here took a toll of at least 23 lives to-day, injured more than a score, eight seriously, and for a time threatened other shipping.

Seven members of the ship's crew of 39 were missing, but it was believed some were among the dead. A number of dock workers also were missing.

The first explosion, which was followed by several minor ones, rocked the ship and brought hundreds from their beds into the streets before dawn. The tanker, which had a cargo of about 60,000 barrels of gasoline, was laying at the docks of the Gulf Refining Company, its owners at the time of the explosion.

Twenty-two of the dead are unidentified.

The bodies were so badly mangled that identification was virtually impossible, and there was fear that the loss of life would be much greater as dock workers and pipe fitters were at work on or near the vessel at the time and it was difficult to check the missing.

Capt. Charlton, of the tanker, who was asleep in his quarters under the bridge at the time, barely escaped the flames that followed the explosion when he sprang from the vessel to the dock.

Several bodies were buried hundreds of feet into the air with the debris and bits of wreckage from the ship at the impact of the blast.

A lifeboat from the top of the tanker was blown several hundred feet into the air, landing atop a warehouse nearby. The Gulf of Venezuela had a capacity of 4,276 tons.

The first explosion is said to have occurred when gasoline in one of the storage tanks aft overflowed and the liquid, coming in contact with hot steam pipes, became a deadly vapor that was ignited by sparks from the tanker's stack.

Several lesser detonations followed, and the screams of terrified sailors pierced the air as they burst forth from various parts of the ship, their clothing in flames.

They leaped overboard, thus extinguished the flames that enwrapped them, later to be dragged from the water by hundreds of rescuers who had rushed to the scene when the racking roar of the explosion awoke the city. Added to the noise that engulfed the harbor was the wailing of the siren on the Gulf Company's power house.

Belching flame from every porthole, her plates white hot and buckling from the tremendous heat of the fire within, the tanker threatened at every moment to drift away from the dock and spread destruction through other shipping in the harbor and to the great refining plant ashore. Every piece of fire-fighting apparatus in the city, together with the full crews of the refinery plants, fought the flames and succeeded in confining them to the ship.

MUSICAL PILGRIM BESET BY DEMONS LIKE SAXOPHONES

Gleaming Instruments Emitting Sulphurous Sounds

Montreal, April 12.—Saxophones were termed hobgoblins on the side of the musical pilgrim's pathway; jazz was declared to be without rhythm and it was believed and hoped on the decline to a speedy death, by Sir Hugh Percy Allen, director of the Royal College of Music, London, and professor of Music at Oxford University, in a striking address at yesterday's special conference on music in connection with the third triennial conference of the National Council of Education, in the Mount Royal Hotel.

Sir Percy Allen's address was delivered in an incisive, clever and witty manner, drawing constant cheers, laughter and approval. In answer to a suggestion from a member of the audience at the close, Rev. Dr. Richard Roberts, who presided, stated that the address would in all likelihood be printed by the council and distributed to the Canadian public.

"Music is beset by all kinds of demons," Sir Percy Allen told the large gathering present. As you go down the narrow pathway, you are constantly assailed by difficulties. As in the Pilgrims Progress to the celestial city, described by Bunyan, the musical program is beset with hobgoblins. They look like saxophones, gleaming silver instruments, all covered with knives and forks, and emitting violent and sulphurous sounds.

"Thank God, already the steps of the dancers are showing signs of weariness. No rhythm is there, only rushing of one limb after the other in a most undecorative and rotten way."

John Phillip Sousa's statement in Washington that ballroom dancing is on the decline owing to jazz music, was mentioned by Sir Percy Allen, who endorsed the statement and at the same time paid a tribute to the American composer's talents.

FIRING A JANITOR KNOTTY PROBLEM MAYOR STEPS IN

Evanston Trying to Arbitrate Between Man and His 24 Bosses

Evanston, April 12 — When a fellow is janitor for a co-operative apartment, and has 24 bosses, and gets fired — how is he to know whether he really fired or not?

It's a complicated problem — so complicated that when it injected itself into the human relations of a co-operative at 548-606 Michigan avenue, Evanston, it required no less an arbitrator than Mayor Bartlett.

Mayor Bartlett accepted the responsibility, but at the time of the last bulletin from Evanston there was no solution yet.

COMPLICATIONS FOR MILKMEN

Fred Hartman, the first janitor, who wants to know if he's fired still-yet right. Ladies and gentlemen cooperating in the ownership of the building were losing their finger nails. And milk-wagon drivers in sympathy with the ousted, or unousted, janitor, refused to deliver milk to any tenants except those with babies. This was a source of much exercise for housewives, who shoveled paths through the snow so they could get to their backyard negotiations with the milkmen.

W. Howard Stewart, a salesman, was impersonating a janitor trying in the meanwhile to remember his role as co-operative owner of the building long enough to tell him self to go easy with the coal.

THEIR LITTLE APRIL FOOL JOKE

"There was no fire at all in honor of April Fools' day," Mr. Stewart explained. "Mr. Hartman, our non-working and apparently non-freezing janitor, had been keeping up the fires and doing little else about the building—thus giving us the impression that we had a regular janitor. He kept up the fire be-

NEW CODE NOTED IN BRIDGE PLAY RELATES TO BIDS

Practices Previously Unwritten Laws now Clearly Set Forth

New York, April 12—Ethics and etiquette of bridge which in previous years have, in many instances, been unwritten laws, are clearly defined in the new laws of auction bridge issued by the Whist Club Committee of the American Whist Club, both of which approved the 1926 rules and co-operated in the drafting of the new code. Offenses are divided into ten sections, provisions being made to cover a major abuse of the game.

Offenses against the ethics and etiquette of the game are unpardonable, as they are not subject to prescribed penalties. The only redress is to cease playing with those who habitually disregard them, asserts the Whist Club in summing up a list of privileges that are many times infringed upon.

Other minor changes in the new rules include changing declaration. A player who inadvertently says, "no bid" when meaning to say "no trump" or vice versa, or who names one suit when meaning to name another, may correct his mistake before the next player declares.

Regulations regarding penalty exposed during auction were also changed. If, during the auction, a player lead or expose a card it must be left face up on the table if it be a ten or higher card the partner or the offender is barred from further participation in the auction. If the offender became declarer or dummy the card is no longer exposed, but if the offender becomes in adversary the card, regardless of its rank, remains exposed until played. If the player at the left of the offender becomes declarer he may, before the dummy is exposed prohibit the partner of the offender from leading the suit of the exposed card. When two or more cards are exposed by the same player all are subject to the provisions of this law, but the declarer may not forbid the lead of more than three suits.

Regarding the rank of cards, the cards of a suit rate ace, king, queen jack and down in order, with two as low. In the draw, as between cards of equal rank, the suits rank: Spades, hearts, diamonds, clubs, and high in winner. If any player except dealer touch a card during the deal and thereby cause a card to be faced, making a new deal compulsory, the side opposed to the offender may add 50 points to its honor score.

A bid of a greater number of odd tricks ranks higher than a bid of a less number. When two bids are of the same number they rank: No trump, spades, hearts, diamonds and clubs. A bid, unless it be the first bid of the hand, is insufficient if it be not higher than the last previous bid. A player may correct it if he do so before another player has called attention to it, but it must be made in the same suit. If the player on the left of the insufficient bid der declare before attention has been called to the insufficiency the insufficient bid stands and is treated as if sufficient.

cause he had to do so in order to heat his own flat. Thursday he didn't even bother to do that and there are 24 families—men and women and children—in these flats."

Mrs. Louise Donigan, president of the co-operative corporation, said that Hartman was discharged a month ago, at which time he was given ten days' notice. "Ungenlemanly conduct and inefficiency were the charges preferred against him. He received his discharge calmly. That evening, according to Mr. Donigan, the business agent of the janitors' local, informed the owners that Hartman must receive 30 days' notice and they could not have another janitor until that rule had been complied with.

The month expired yesterday, but Hartman refused to be discharged.

SECOND NIAGARA IN ST. LAWRENCE IN POWER RESULT

Engineer Sees Big Possibilities From Miles Below Ogdensburg

Albany, N.Y., April 16.—Characterizing the St. Lawrence River as a point 40 miles below Ogdensburg, N.Y., as a "second Niagara Falls," with 5,000,000 horsepower possibilities, the Hon. L. Cooper, nationally known consulting engineer, today described to the New York State Water Power Commission, new plans for development of the stream proposed by the Frontier Corporation. The corporation, it was brought out at a previous hearing is a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America, the General Electric Company and E. I. Dupont de Nemours and Company.

To-day's hearing was granted primarily to receive the application of the Frontier Corporation for permission to amend original plans for development so as to provide for one international dam rather than two.

The St. Lawrence development described by Col. Cooper, would be at Barnhart Island, near the northern end of the international section of the river. It would contemplate a single dam, capable of developing 2,400,000 horsepower to be thrown across the river at a cost of $238,000,000. One half of the developed power would go to Canada and one half to New York.

Young Judean Circle Debates Maggie-Jiggs Maggie Has Best Of It

The Young Judean Circle met last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Springer, Moira St. E. The meeting was opened by the president, J. Goodman. Disposing with all business, the members gave themselves up to enjoyment. A number of games were played and then refreshments were served.

The main portion of the evening, however was taken up with a debate: Resolved that Jiggs be granted a divorce from Maggie because of cruelty administered by a rolling pin. The affirmative being represented by Messrs. Louis Tanover, J. Goodman, and S. Goodman, the negative by Misses S. Safe, Jannie Springer and Bluma Tanbe.

The contention of the affirmative was that Maggie was no more than a "cavewoman" who did always delight in tormenting Jiggs into humble submission. That she was a virago, a nuisance a second Lady Macbeth who would set half the world afire to get her husband to do what she desired, and that since the word "obey" being how omitted from marriage ceremonies, it followed that Jiggs could do as he pleased and as Maggie refused to allow him to do so, he clamored for a divorce. He set forth his case very plainly. He told how he spent nine months out of the year in the hospital because of Maggie's cavewoman's stuff. He complained that he didn't like Maggie's companions. He climaxed his plea by stating that to insure a placid life with Maggie, it would be necessary to make him deaf and Maggie dumb.

Then those defending Maggie took the floor. That Maggie was justified in her actions was plain. Jiggs was manifest because of the latter's behavior towards her and her guests. Maggie is president of the Hocus Pocus Knock 'Em Dead Society which boasts a membership of nineteen million women and the object of the club is to make Friend Husband come across with his shekels, mind the baby and refrain from riding the merry-go-round of thoughtlessness. The symbol of the club is a rolling pin and if husband doesn't live up to the womanmade constitution part of which has been mentioned, he gets a clump on the noodle. Jiggs is a dusty, wusty, fusty mortal with cotwebs on the brain. Maggie's position as president of such a club gets her in touch with the world's ills whom she invites to her palatial home. Instead of entertaining his guests, Jiggs sneaks off to Dinty Moore's to play pinochle 24 hours at a stretch. Maggie is left alone. There are widows—grass, radio, but Maggie is a pinochle and corn beef and cabbage widow—two in one. If this is life, then marriage is hocus-pocus.

If indeed Jiggs lies in the hospital nine months then it is his own fault. Besides if he didn't go to the hospital, would the the doctors become so wise? Don't they practise on him? If Jiggs is granted a divorce, then Maggie resigns from the society. What does it mean? It means that she will be out of work. No one to make rolling pins. Friend husband will become lazy, no incentive—he will become a marmot. No, what makes Jiggs eat the pace is the rolling pin. Jiggs is only a boy grown up. To make him successful and keep him from becoming an idiot, the club must always hover over his head like the sword of Damocles. Remove the rolling pin and society will go to the rocks!

The decision of the judges was loudly applauded. Both sides were well supplied with data and for an impromptu debate it was a howling success. The debaters are to be congratulated the way they handled the subject. Much credit is due Mr. and Mrs. Springer who helped make the evening a success.

THESE U. S. ATHEISTS

The United States is the home of many a cult, ancient and modern, and it is not, perhaps, remarkable that an American Association for the Advancement of Atheism should be added to the list. There have always been atheists, in name at any rate, in the United States as elsewhere, but the fact that they have been organized into a regular "association" under the presidency of a Mr. Charles Smith is of some significance. What makes the movement the more menacing is the announcement that an attempt will be made to recruit members from the universities. Mr. Smith looks upon these institutes of learning as the most promising field for his activities. Just exactly how the "organizer" intends to go about the task of organizing in the universities is not explained, but it will presumably be through a policy of "boring from within". Youth is proverbially skeptical and self-sufficient, ever on the watch for novelty. Atheism is not a sign of maturity, but of presumption; though it denies, it exhibits nothing. One cannot live by mere negation. The atheists are not to be found among the men of knowledge—the scientists and philosophers. Science has not taken the place of religion; knowledge cannot, for the most part, remain so incomplete that in all essential matters humanity has to depend upon faith. The fool alone says in his heart, there is no God, in these days just as in the times of old.

TEACHERS AND O. T. A.

The public school teachers attending the meeting of the Ontario Educational association in Toronto have gone on record as unanimously approving the Ontario Temperance act and pledge themselves to do all in their power to abolish those with whom they come in contact "so that we may remove entirely the curse of liquor from our land." Teachers can do much for the cause for it is with the young essentially that the fate of prohibition rests. A new generation is growing up, one which, for the most part, should be unfamiliar with liquor. On hearsay stories about secret youthful indulgence; according to some superficial critics the equipment of the average high school scholar is considered incomplete if it lacks a flask of liquor; but these stories are, fortunately, mere fairy tales. Masters and students come forward with indignant denials whenever they are uttered, and every one knows that they are the grossest calumnies. There are violations of the law, but that is not a condemnation of the act, but of the lawbreakers. The teachers have acted from a high sense of duty in thus publicity-declaring themselves on this important question.

$8,000,000 DOPE SMUGGLED

Fiction is never as dramatic as truth. What novelist, for example, would have had the courage to conjure up $8,000,000 worth of narcotic drugs smuggled through the port of Montreal in a single year? Yet that is what actually took place in 1922. Eight million dollars worth of poison secreted past our customs examiners. Eight million dollars worth of drugs bootlegged through Canada, leaving death and decay in their wake. Eight million dollars out of human misery and degradation and sin in the pockets of international smugglers.

This is not the narrative of a thrilling shocker, remarks the Ottawa Journal. It is not something from the pages of a Phillip Oppenheim. It is from the stark, reliable records of Canada's Mounted Police.

And a startling part of the story is this: that there is ground for suspicion that this heinous canoe is in with the collusion of Customs employes.

"Dog-eared files of Canada's famed police force gave up a story both rare and fascinating. Staff-Sergeant E. C. P. Salt, and Corporal J. H. Kyle, of the Mounted division of the R.C.M.P., held the committee tense while they unfolded a tale of the machinations of an international ring of drug smugglers, operating from Eagle, Switzerland, via Antwarp to Montreal. They told of one Keith Vaughan, otherwise known as North America's biggest drug smuggler, pouring his merchandise into Montreal. One shipment of almost 10,000 ounces of cocaine, heroine and morphine was captured, a raid on offices in the heart of Montreal's business district brought to light evidence convincing the agents that five other shipments already had passed through. Always the shipment was in case of cocoa or chemicals; always the shipment was split into two parts; always three of the cases bore blue crosses difficult to discern; and always the blue crossed cases actually held cocoa or chemicals. In the other three were hid the deadly drugs, set even camouflaged, and these cases, is the opinion of the investigators always missed the examining warehouse."

Mr. R. L. Calder, counsel for the investigating committee, very reasonably pointed out that the drug ring would scarcely risk tens of thousands of dollars unless they were sure the drugs would pierce the customs wall. It may be, of course, that what the smugglers banked on was carelessness, or inefficiency, but even that is hardly something for public consolation. A Customs department conspiring with a drug ring would be a dreadful thing, the very possibility of which is terrible to contemplate; a Customs department so incompetent that $8,000,000 worth of morphine and opium and cocaine can be smuggled past it in a year is hardly less appalling. In either case there is challenge for a housecleaning prompt, merciless and complete.

Some weeks ago a Cabinet Minister ventured the wisdom that this Customs inquiry was a waste of public money. This week's revelations are continuing to reveal it as one of the most important and necessary things that Parliament has tried to do within a decade.

THE CALGARY OIL BOOM

Oshawa Reformer:

They do say that is the news dead patches say, that there is an oil boom in Calgary that makes the recent Florida land boom look tame and inconsequential. There is much oil and more oil stock. One hotelkeeper who was "stung" in the oil boom there in 1914 and who had papered the walls of a room with worthless stock certificates has, according to the published story, torn the paper off the walls and sold it for several thousands dollars. Experts, with experience in other oil booms are already on the ground and doing business. There are experts—and experts.

Of course, there is oil in the Calgary district. If only there were some means by which the fakers could be prevented from doing business and some means could be found to keep gullible, credulous people from making fools of themselves this oil discovery would be a boon and not a boom. As it is, look well and carefully before you leap.

EVEN MONKEYS BETTER THAN ADAM

New York Times:

—They are queer people who find it humiliating to admit that apes and men had a common ancestor and yet are not at all disquieted by the thought of being a son of Adam. The former distinction is at least as honorable as the other, for a poorer specimen than Adam hardly is to be found in the enormous progeny ascribed to him.

Accepting the only available evidence, it is obvious that Adam had none of the instincts of a gentleman. The story he told about the apple episode seems to have been true enough—the woman did tempt him —but what a way to exculpate himself! The excuse was considerably baser than the sin. It did not mitigate the allotted punishment and of course it should have made it heavie than it would have been if Adam had confessed to guilt instead of to unmanly weakness and had protected his wife instead of trying to make her bear all the blame.

Eve, though she may have been weak in another way, at least seems to have accepted consequences of her acts as courageously as did, according to Professor Erskine, that other fair lady, Helen of Troy. An ancestor Eve might be believed but she is nothing to be ashamed of, while Adam—why, any half-way decent ape has a right to scorn him.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK

Marvelous bodily transformation inspired describes the Rockies of Canada's Rockies. To be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but fairbanned paradise-country, to many, appears quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird, of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountain Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipegers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain resort; by automobile for 101 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Doukobor country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake; to Vancouver, thence by steamer to Victoria.

Returning—the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific through the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rocky Mountains section such as can be found nowhere else on earth; Lake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world, and two days at Banff, Dominion, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Dafoil, Gateway to the Lake of the Woods, near Kenora, thence to Fort William, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific steamers will be used across Lake Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Everything is included in the price of $330.00, from Toronto; transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in Hotels, and bungalow camps, meals in dining, hotels and on steamers, and sight-seeing tours at points visited.

The trip is open to all, and applications for accommodation, are being received.

Those from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrated booklet set on application to Dean Sinclair Laird, Macdonald College Post Office, Que.

Letters to the Editor

FROM MR. BOGLE

Belleville, April 8, 1926

The Editor Daily Intelligencer.

Belleville,

Dear Sir,—

Col. Ponton has said: "We need more people to share our privileges of citizenship and to lighten our burdens. Can we get them under existing conditions?"

Now respecing population we entered the 12,000 class twelve years ago and have remained in the 12,000 class for twelve years, notwithstanding the many strange startling strenuous and stinless methods resorted to to make our city bigger, better and more prosperous. We have even tried to elevate ourselves by community singing and community street and market place jigging or fox trotting.

Although the population has not been able to get out of the 12,000 class in twelve years the assessment and taxes have not, like the population, remained in a stagnant condition. If the number of empty houses, apartments and stores continues to increase and the assessment and taxes continue to increase we shall inevitably fall back into the 11,000 class in which we were thirteen years ago.

Twelve years ago the assessment was about five millions, now it is about ten millions. The class of citizens we had twelve years ago was as good, if not better, than we have today. Twelve years ago we were a healthy, happy, joyful and contented with what a few million assessment afforded. Now with a ten million assessment we are unhealthy, unhappy, satiated and discontented.

Some unthinking people say: "There is nothing in a name." Before our country received its present name the greater statesmen in Canada said the Motherland gave the matter long and serious consideration; it was even brought before the Queen to secure her opinion. Several names had been suggested but after the name "Dominion of Canada" was decided upon. Some narvon stated: "This title would give greater dignity and consequently greater self-respect to those who take part in the administration of affairs." This is what we want: A name for our city that will give greater dignity and consequently greater self-respect to those who take part in the administration of the affairs of our city.

STEEL INDUSTRY IS IN DIRE NEED OF 'PROTECTION'

President McMaster Gives Reasons for Lack of Progress at Annual

Montreal, April 10.—The annual general meeting of shareholders of the Steel Company of Canada, Limited, was held at the general offices of the Company, at Hamilton, yesterday. The president, Rose H. McMaster, presided and the report of directors and the annual statement were received and adopted. The following were elected as members of the board of directors for the ensuing year: Cyrus A. Birge, A. J. Brown, K.C., B. H. Champ, H. G. Dalton, G. H. Duggan, H. M. Jaquays, Rose H. McMaster, W. G. Osler, Sir Thomas White, K.C.M.G., Hon. Senator White, and Charles Seward Wilcox. At a subsequent meeting of the board of directors, the following officers were appointed: Charles Seward Wilcox, chairman of the board; Rose H. McMaster, president; H. H. Champ, vice-president and treasurer; H. M. Jaquays, vice-president, R. G. Wells, vice-president; H. T. Dyment, vice-president; Edgar Spence, general sales manager, and H. B. Alexander, secretary.

Under provisions of a by-law which was confirmed at the shareholders' meeting, additional vice-presidents were named who are not members of the board, constituting in this manner control of finance, manufacturing and sales in the respective officers.

In moving the adoption of the report, Mr. McMaster, after paying a tribute to the late Mr. Robert Robson, stated, in part, as follows:

"Referring to the published report, while the results for the past year are comparatively gratifying, the profits, if calculated upon the amount of money invested in the business represented to share capital, surplus, and useable reserves, do not show, by any means, the yield which might be expected from an enterprise and capital engaged in an industry subject to varying conditions of business. Any calculation based simply on the ordinary share capital, while proper for purposes of comparison, is liable to create the erroneous impression that excessive profits have been made, as it disregards the capital employed which is not represented by issued shares. Since the inception of the company there has been no increase in capital stock, and undistributed profits have built up a substantial surplus and other reserves which represent funds invested in the business which was equally entitled to an adequate return. It may be observed also that interest from investments covers a large share of our bond interest obligations.

"Our adopted form of Federal taxation, under which the largest share of its proceeds from organized business, as it seems abundantly evident that industry is manufacturing and other lines, should be preserved in a healthy state. It should be equally recognized that, when products manufactured in Canada yield almost twenty-five cents in taxes for every dollar of added value produced, it is a poor bargain for this country to admit commodities similar to those produced at home without payment of any contribution to our Federal or other exchequers.

"A century policy, however, has been followed, as an examination of our tariff reveals that there are 55 items which admit steel and iron at various descriptions duty free, or provide a drawback of substantially the entire duty when intended for particular purposes.

CANADA—MATCHLESS VACATION LAND—PROVIDES A WIDE CHOICE OF LOCALITIES FOR THE VACATIONIST OR TOURIST

Those who must carry a holiday are those who truly earn it—earn it by attention to business detail or household cares, earn it by planning and saving for it. Canada is the greatest vacation land on the globe—from Halifax, guardian on the East, to Victoria on the Pacific, there is scarcely a mile of country but has its own charm. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, "The Grey Old East" with their lakes and rivers, their modest hills and valleys, pleasant farms and comfortable homes, where life is easy and rest and peace. The Province of Quebec, simply another spelling of romance, with its tiny strips of farms, running back from the Road in the old French Fashion, its great churches with spy-roofed cottages grouped round about to form a village—its great elms, noble river and magnificent possibilities for development along many lines. A leisurely jaunt through the Province still will reward the traveller.

Further on, Old Ontario, where almost every river or Lake means pleasure. Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London, hundreds of towns familiar by name since childhood, and in the newer Ontario Sudbury, North Bay, Port Arthur and Fort William any and all of them worth discovering. By rail or lake get acquainted.

On west across the spreading prairies, Winnipeg and Calgary, then on into the mountains, Banff with its thousand and one points of interest, lovely Lake Louise and Lakes in the Clouds, side trips by motor to Windermere and the Okanagan and the Kootenay, visits to charming bungalow camps and magnificent hotels, Field with the Rocking glaciers, in the vicinity and nearby like falls, the noble range of the Selkirks, and down the slope to the Pacific. Vancouver, the great gate of the West, by boat to Victoria, real in situation and dignity, Vancouver Island. The whole a journey of never-ending interest and new delights.

And from Vancouver by splendid sea liner up to Alaska for the Land of the Midnight Sun, through the sheltered seas, where sheer precipices frown down upon one, and gaudy totem poles make a dash of color and romance. Such a trip can only be realized by the taking. Any Canadian Pacific Agent will gladly map it out for you, give you details, fares, train schedules, any of the many little matters which make the trip a pleasure.

Summer tourist fares are effective from May 15, to September 30, and by planning early the trip will be a possibility and then anticipating the wonders and pleasures of it all makes it doubly dear. Get hold of some of the charming folders the Canadian Pacific publishes, see the photographs, then make your call at the office.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The testimony of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell regarding prohibition, in his lecture in Toronto this week, is well worthy of note. Himself a teetotaller for forty years, after witnessing the death of a woman in a London hospital who had been fatally injured when her drunken husband threw a lighted lamp, he made a strong plea for banishment of the liquor traffic.

"The best kind of prohibition we can have," he said, "is to live in with the men who say: For Christ's sake, anyhow, we'll have no more of it."

Alcohol had done much harm among the fishermen. He had spoken of this evil to Nansen, Peary, Shackleton, and MacMillan, famous explorers, and they had answered unhesitatingly that in their opinion it was absolutely unnecessary. In a work where we are supposed to make new men out of old, we want to get rid of it," he went on. "Why are people so anxious to get this thing back? Merely because they want to sell more of it." The world was not going to become Christian just because the use of alcohol was prohibited, he said, but great difficulties in the way of reclaiming men would be overcome.

On the same subject, Prof. Dallas Lore Sharp of Boston University bears the following testimony:

"Machinery must be dry. So must be the people who run it, and those who build it. If this is a mechanical age, it certainly called, then it must perforce be a dry age. Its genius is dry. This dry thing which has overtaken the whole globe is by no means confined to the railroads, the steamboat and the automobile. Because they are, it is; it is their logical and essential consequence and condition.

"I drove my car from Boston to South Berwick last year, a trip of 400 miles, and then drove it back again over an entirely different route, and did not see an open saloon, nor so much as lodge next a drunken driver."

338,329,767 PEOPLE WERE CARRIED IN 1925

New York, April 12.—The number of passengers carried into and out of New York City by the railroads and ferries during the calendar year 1925 was 338,329,767, according to figures made public by the Transit Commission. Of this number 219,765,005 may be classified as commuters using the railroads or ferries. As these figures represent two-way traffic the actual number of passengers was one-half of the number given, or 169,882,883, the number of commuters on a round trip basis was 124,882,831.

Reduced to days this means that—counting a year as consisting of 310 full traffic days—497,53 passengers of all sorts daily used the railroads and ferries for round trips to and from New York, of whom 367,202 may be classified as commuters. The difference between the two figures, or 130,241, probably in a measure represents the figure of the average daily number of visitors to New York City.

The Newry Urban District Council has adopted a report authorizing the expenditure of £37,141 on the improvement of the streets.

Here and There

Claims staked in the Red Lake gold mining field are keeping the recorder's office busy. Prospectors are of the belief that this area from Red Lake to the Manitoba boundary is promising and already many square miles of territory west of Red Lake has been staked.

During the eleven months ending February 28, the ordinary revenue of the Dominion was $327,598,449 or an increase of twenty-nine millions over the sum of $298,894,297 for the corresponding period of the previous year. Ordinary expenditure is about the same as a year ago. On February 28 last it totalled $276,557,417.

Archie Gee, the good-natured chef on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia, superintended the trans-Pacific voyage of 50,000 Canadian fish eggs from Vancouver to Kobe. The shipment necessitated extremely careful handling. The eggs were packed in ice and had to be kept at an even temperature during the entire voyage.

Lord Allenby, conqueror of Palestine, was greeted by huge crowds on his arrival in Jerusalem, March. The leaders of the local militia were on hand to do homage to the famous general who placed a wreath on the monument to Canada's fallen soldiers in the Windsor Station. Viscount Allenby also spoke at the St. Denis Theatre.

The Dominion Experimental Farms system announces the introduction of a new and valuable variety of field peas which may mean to the field peas what Marquis has meant to the grower of wheat in the West. The new variety is a selection from a cross made at Ottawa between Blueway and Black Eye Marrowfat varieties.

Gross earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway during 1925 amounted to $183,356,096, as compared with $182,502,183 in 1924, while working expenses last year, totalled $143,201,250 as compared with $142,277,814 in 1924, leaving a balance, after deduction of fixed charges, of $28,216,250 for 1925, as compared with $27,857,102 in 1924.

In an interview in Montreal recently, E. W. Beatty, president and chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said that the National Conference of Education, scheduled for April, would be of incalculable importance for the future of the Canadian people. Mr. Beatty is chairman of the Montreal Committee which undertook the organization and financing of the Conference.

Count Thun Hohnstein, one of the wealthiest men in Czecho-Slovakia, who arrived on the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm recently, is to purchase a large tract of land around Calgary. Count Hohnstein, owner of the Kingerlitz Estate in Czecho-Slovakia, is well versed in scientific farming and came to Canada to obtain information concerning the great possibilities which await the right type of settler.

A party of twenty-five schoolboys arrived at Montreal in March, as the first contingent between the Macdonald Agricultural College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, and the Canadian Pacific Railways. As the college the boys receive a short training in the rudiments of Canadian farm methods and are placed with suitable positions on farms in the spring. An experienced supervising official takes his entire energy to see that the boys are well taken care of.

Y's Men's Club Very Active Here

There was a large attendance of Y's Men at their regular weekly meeting on Friday evening.

During supper, President Newton Thompson kept the entertainment very busy collecting fines from those members who were unfortunate enough to boomerang committing any indiscretions.

Leslie Woodley sang a song during the evening and Ab. Adams presided at the piano.

Mr. R. F. Jennings of this city, Mr. has broker, a former resident of Belleville, now living in Sarnia, and Y's Man Arthur MacGlashon of the Kingston Club, were guests of the evening. Each spoke a few words when called on.

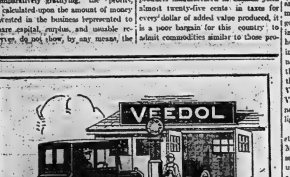

Plans for the Charity Ball to be held in Johnstone's Academy on Monday, April 19th for the purpose of raising funds for the Boys' Work Programme which the Club is undertaking were discussed at some length.

Catherine Shannon, aged 89, and her two daughters, Catherine and Mary, of Garrick-on-Shannon, died within four days.

Why Your Ford Requires a Special Kind of Oil

Your Ford car has a unique lubricating system. The motor and transmission are combined in one housing. Both must be lubricated by one oil . . .

Failure to lubricate the engine leads to excess carbon, burned out bearings and unnecessary repair bills. Failure to lubricate the transmission bands results in jerky chatter when you start, stop and reverse. No Ford owner need pay these penalties unless he deliberately wants to.

By using Veedol Forzol, the economy oil made for Fords exclusively, you insure your Ford against oil failure both in the engine and transmission.

Veedol Forzol was created only after four years of exhaustive laboratory experiments and thousands of actual road tests. . . . More than a million Ford owners have tested Veedol Forzol's quality, proved all the claims made for it and now use it exclusively.

The 8 Economies of Veedol Forzol

1. 10 to 25% positive saving.
2. 10 to 25% saving in oil.
3. 10 to 25% less carbon.
4. Silences transmission chatter.
5. Resists heat and friction.
6. Increased ability to coast.
7. Resists fuel dilution.
8. Reduces repair bills.

Any dealer displaying the orange and black Veedol Forzol sign and many authorized Ford agents will gladly drain your crankcase and refill with exactly 3½ quarts of Veedol Forzol. Ask for it by name.

CENTRAL LEAGUE OF THREE TEAMS OPEN MAY 24TH

Home Umpires Will Be Used For All Games

—Details

The Central Ontario League will be composed of only three teams this season, namely, Kingston, Peterboro and Belleville, while was the definite decision reached by the officials who were in conference here on Saturday afternoon. The general opinion of the delegates present moved, to carry on with these teams, rather than disband the league. A partial schedule was drawn up and the Trunks will pry the lid off on May 24, Victoria Day, with the Kingston team as the visitors.

Several important changes were made in the constitution and will take effect immediately.

UMPIRES

A drastic change was made in the umpiring situation. This year all home games will officiate. This step was made by way of saving expenses. Each club will select one umpire-in-chief and a staff of three assistants to work in all the home games. The chief umpire will select his own assistant for each game and submit it to the clubs taking part. The fees were fixed at $7.00 a game for the umpire at the plate, and $5.00 for the base official. These will by under the control of the league president.

Sullivan will umpire in Kingston, Colling in Belleville, and Alex Kay in Peterboro.

Oshawa were represented by Ernie Parsons who outlined the situation that the club faced the difficulties under which it labored last year and it was deemed advisable by the officers that they withdraw from the Central League, for this season at least. They did so, with many regrets, and pleasant memories of their affiliation with the C.O.B.L. Ottawa was not represented and President Kennedy who was in phone conversation last week with a prominent baseball authority of the Capital, stated that Senior baseball did not receive sufficient encouragement in Ottawa, to warrant entering a team.

Brockville was also mentioned as a fourth team, but the suspension placed on the club by the O.B.A.A. had not yet been lifted.

The meeting opened with the reading of the minutes of the last meeting held here in December. These were received and approved.

Ernie Parsons and Secretary N. Thompson who were delegates to the O.B.A.A. convention in Toronto, made their report dealing with any special clauses which effected this league.

Ernie Parsons dealt with Oshawa's rde of the case and reasons for with drawal from the league.

He said Oshawa had failed to draw crowds even when the club was in the fore first place. Softball, lacrosse and football now hold the attention of sporting men who formerly followed the C.O.B.L. entry. Besides this Toronto is but an hour's ride by car, where international league games can be witnessed. Dainty, Lobban and Tyson departed leaving the Motor City with out the services of a team and the General Motors then entered a team in the Lake Shore Intermediate group. He said he hoped that Oshawa would be able to reenter the C.O.B.L. next year.

Ernie Parsons suggested that Port Hope, and Cobourg be induced to enter an alamagated team next year.

Peterboro favors Saturday games while Belleville and Kingston on Wednesday and the Lunestowns will play a few games on Friday and the league secretary will draft the schedule according. Holiday attractions will be divided accordingly.

The Spalding ball was again adopted as the standard ball to be used in all league games.

Kingston will open the season at home with the Peterboro Club on Wednesday, May 19th.

Certificates and amateur cards must be in the hands of the secretary before May 10th.

Those present were W. L. Kennedy, Pres. of Kingston; N. Thompson, Sec'y, Belleville; Bert Booth, assistant manager, of Kingston team; Ernie Parsons of the Oshawa club,—1st Vice-Pres. McFadden and Mr. Sullivan of Peterboro; Past Pres. H. P. Duff, Belleville, and Manager Gerow of Belleville, who is an executive of the league.

Some people think they have strong eyes because they "read" the paper at arm's length, but really their eyes have begun to lose their power for focusing for close work. By "The Observer"

Although only three teams comprise the C.O.B.L. this year the fans are going to see a close race all through. On papers every team appears well-balanced. Peterboro with the old reliable Herkman to do the heaving are probably slightly weakened in this department from last year by the loss of the Kid Whitehouse. But Herkman built up a reputation around these parts and is still good to go in and haul nine innings. Max Bennett is slated to do the catching and he always held that end up in good style.

"Hap" Harrison, manager "Shiner" Johnston, Arnoldo and Hebon are expected to cover the infield positions, although the Pets have several other fast boys coming out.

A host of players will try out for outfield births.

Lennox formerly of Oshawa, and Rapp now attending Queen's will also assist in the pitching department.

Kingston have the same players with one or two valuable acquisitions and are out to repeat last year's performance. Harold Dainty who has pastimed in Oshawa for several seasons decided he needed a change of scene and selected Kingston as his batting player conceptively fans in that city were filled with glee as Dainty was a badly needed boy down that way.

Belleville are strengthened in pitching from last year and that was the main reason for dropping so many games. Collette if he returns to his old time form should win a heap of ball games this summer.

Penny Mills will go behind the bat with Hagerman in the relief role.

Harry Mills, Meagher, Blakely and "Crocker" Williams, if he can be signed form a likely-looking infield. Howe, Casey, Hagerman and some other aspirants will try for outer field positions.

Taking all things pro and con it look like a real good season in Central League circles.

Someone made the suggestion at the meeting that Cobourg and Port Hope place an alamagated team in next year. That sounds like a real good proposition.

BADMINTON CLUB WON IN KINGSTON BY WIDE MARGIN

Took 39 Out Of 49 Games Played—Two Clubs Coming Here

The Belleville Garrison Badminton Club journeyed to Kingston Saturday evening to play the Kingston Badminton Club and emerged winners of 39 out of 49 games played.

They won 22 and lost 9 mixed doubles, won 3 and lost one ladies doubles and won all four men's doubles matches.

There were nine teams of mixed doubles and twenty-two in the party which motored down. The Kingston

Neither town can support a team alone in the C. O. B. L. but could be represented by a team picked from the two and have the games alternated.

The new umpiring system should result in a heap of money being saved all round. It is contended that home umpires give just as much satisfaction as those brought from outside town. One club expended $625 in umpires expenses last year.

The Granites are planning to rebuild the famous team which captured the Olympic games in 1924. Harry Watson has been mentioned as a playing manager and several stars of Varsity and other Toronto senior teams will line-up with the new team.

"Babe" Dye sharp-shooter of the St. Patrick's hockey team is experiencing trouble with his legs since joining the Leafs in the south. Dye must either give up one sport or the other as he certainly cannot do justice to both. Babe ball offers the most tempting salary.

Manager Fred Hamilton, of the Oakes has lost Bill Buchanan well-known catcher who has joined the Highlander club of the Gosington Park senior league. Chuck Glover has signed with Hillcrest.

players were Mrs. Melvin, Mrs. Polson, Mrs. Herrington, Miss I. Moores, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Stacey, Miss G. Moores, Mrs. Wm. Nickle, Messrs. Hirk, Duff, Robinson, Livingston, Dr. Breese, Morley, McGadden, Herrington and C. E. Taylor.

The Belleville players were Mrs. Walker, Mrs. G. H. Scott, Mrs. W. E. Scott, Mrs. Porter, Miss Keeler, Miss Rose, Miss Manson, Miss Pollock, Miss Tetzlaf and Messrs. R. J. K. Graham, G. K. Graham, G. H. Scott, C. C. Walker, H. T. Rose, G. Joseph, T. Y. Wills, R. D. Fenton and P. M. Little.

The local club have two games in Belleville before the season ends. Cobourg here next Saturday night and Queen's University team next Monday night.

POTATO PRICES SOAR

$4.25 AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, Ont., April 10.—Potato prices are soaring throughout western Ontario. They took another jump of 50 cents per sack, here, yesterday, and at the Central Market the prevailing quotation was $4.75 per bag. The supply was limited, even at that price. Farmers who have reserves are saving them for seeding. The activity of American buyers is said to be responsible for the increase of the price in London, where $4.25 per bag was paid yesterday. In Woodstock the price went up from $2.50 to $3 per bag, and in Brantford 50 cents per bag is being paid on the market and $3.25 per bag right on the farm.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

Philosophers who visit the Belle Theatre to-day to see Paramount's gorgeous comedy-spectacle, "The American Venus", are certain to find the feminine member of the cast worth watching for the eye. Not only are the principal players plentifully endowed with good looks, but the supporting cast includes dozens of the prize-winning beauties in the Atlantic City pageant.

The woman's side of this spectacular story by Townsend Martin is acted by Esther Ralston, the fetching blonde screen star; Louise Brooks, a diminutive brunette charmer; Jean Arthur, Polly Moran and Fay Lanphier, who also starred the most beautiful girl in America, at the Atlantic City bathing beauty contest and was awarded the title of "Miss America".

To the army, the Misses Bronx, New York, San Francisco, Bay Ridge, Birmingham and Seattle, all leading contestants in the recent seashore frolic, add their charm, grace and shapeliness.

In addition to the bathing beauty show, the picture boasts a magnificent ballet display in which some of New York's loveliest mannequins wear the latest modes before the camera. This ballet is also as well as the bathing beauty ballet, which is another lavish feature of the production, were filmed in color.

AT GRIFFIN'S

Baloon! That's all.

He is First National's new director, and the most talked of person in Hollywood. He is limited everywhere. One cameraman, production authority and adviser to European motion picture magnates and producers, Baloon has, perchance, the most highly colorful of backgrounds donated by anyone engaged in the direction of screen fare for the season.

Baloon's first picture which has just been completed is "The Far Cry," a stage play by Arthur Richman, adapted by Katherine Anne Porter and under the supervision of Jane Murfin, at Griffin's now, Tuesday and Wednesday. EXACTLY FITTED

"The Far Cry" is a subject that entirely fits with the Baloon! tastes. It is the story of the life of Europe as lived by Americans and Baloon! before him something wish which he was able to mould into a worthwhile entertainment for the screen.

His long years of study and his firm foundation in the cinema matters of importance form a solid perspective for this young Italian director. He has the faith of his associates and of those who have been assigned to his important productions. What more should Balloni ask?

The rapid development of the fish oil and fish products industry on the Pacific Coast has made it necessary to date the fitting up of three steamship vessels as tankers to carry oil from the Coast to Eastern points. Each vessel found this method successful. Fish reduction plants, it is estimated, will produce 10,000 tons of fish meal and fertilizer this year.

President E. W. The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"I don't know; I doubt it sometimes. Have you ever noticed his face particularly?"

"Yes, and it always wears a smile"

"Smiles are cheap," retorted the other, sententiously. "There are so many different kinds of smiles; they make capital stocks. Now I always fancy that Mr. Rawson Fenton's smile is unmeaning. I'll admit that it is an excellent one. Did you ever see him when he thinks himself unobserved? It is not often, I'm bound to say."

"No," replied the other, curiously. "This is very interesting."

"All studies of human nature are, especially when they are as dramatic as Mr. Fenton's. Well, if you take him off his guard, so to speak, you will notice that his face had a peculiarly restless and dissatisfied expression, like that of a man who is looking for something without which he cannot be happy or at peace."

"Looking for more money, perhaps!" suggested the first gentleman.

"Almost to the foot of the throne" with a laugh.

"No-o; I don't think that is it, exactly. If it were money he wanted, you see, he would go and make it. It isn't that. It is something I can scarcely define. But there is one explanation obvious enough—he is a lonely man."

"Ah, yes, he isn't married, is he?"

"No wife; no kith or kin."

"That's strange. I suppose he could marry as high as he chose?"

"Strange he doesn't marry—marry a title. Most men in his position would do so. He's not a bad-looking man, either."

"No," assented the other; "no, rather good-looking than otherwise."

"Perhaps there is some mystery, some affaire de coeur in his past life eh?"

"Possibly, though I should rather doubt it. I should think that his heart is pretty well under control. I can't imagine Rawson Fenton laboring under the disadvantage of a love affair. Well, I suppose I had better go. Good-morning, sir."

"I'll go, too, I think. Are you going cityward?" and the two men walked off."

Meanwhile, Rawson, the object of their analysis, sat before a table in a handsome room on the first floor of the great house, opening his letters.

Some of them he glanced at and dropped into the waste paper basket, others he read quickly and threw over to his secretary, a pale young man who sat at a table near him and wrote, as if for dear life; others he read slowly and attentively, and laid aside in a pile by themselves.

Every now and then a servant in plain black livery, which contrasted with the brilliant livery of the footmen, entered with letters and telegrams which had just arrived and these were treated as the others.

The light fell full upon the face of the great man. It had changed much since we saw it last in Dr. Grahame's hut. Keener and more acute, perhaps, with the lines drawn upon the brow and about the eyes, but the old self-restrained, calculating look was there still and accentuated. Success—success so great as to rank with the marvelous and fabulous—had not softened the old expression of conscious power and the desire to make it felt.

He was Rawson Fenton the adventurer still, but with the world at his feet.

The work, and hard work it was, continued for an hour or more, and finally a word being spoken. The secretary wrote still more rapidly, if that were possible the great man read his letters aunder, letters in business envelopes, letters encloned in pyy daintv ones stamped with golden crests and breathing perfume . . .

Those letter from women sending him invitations and opening them in warmer language than the usual formal one. But they raised no corresponding warmth in him. One by one he put them in the wastepaper basket or laid them aside.

A servant entered and announced a famous City name, that of a man who is supposed to control millions. Mr. Rawson Fenton looked up.

"My excuse. I will see the baron in the city tomorrow."

That was all.

Presently the man appeared again and approaching the desk reverentfully and almost timidly placed a scrap of paper there.

"Waiting, sir," he said.

Rawson Fenton took it up and glanced at it, and for a second an impassive face lost its set expression and a sudden light flashed into his eyes.

"Wait," he said to the servant.

Then he took out his watch and looked at it.

"You had better go and get some lunch," he said, addressing the secretary.

The secretary rose at once, laid down his pen, and left the room.

"Show him in," said Mr. Rawson Fenton then to the servant.

A minute or two afterward he ushered in an old man with a yellow wrinkled face, the only noticeable feature of which was a pair of small keen eyes. He was dressed very plainly and looked not unlike an old and very much trusted confidential clerk in a bank.

Rawson Fenton glanced up and nodded and the man made a low bow.

Rawson Fenton bent over his papers until the door closed on the servant, then looked up sharply.

"Lock that door," he said.

The old man moved quickly across the large room, very quickly indeed for an old man, and noiselessly turned the key.

"Well," said Rawson Fenton, coldly, "you have some news."

"Yes, sir," said the man, straightening his back in a peculiar manner for his age; "I have some news at last. I'm afraid I have been some time, but as I said you, even a detective, Mr. Fenton, cannot work with out a clue."

"I know all that," responded Fenton, coldly, but with his eyes down cast. "What have you discovered? Have you found—her?"

"Yes, sir, but—"

"What!" exclaimed Rawson Fenton, raising his eyes, and letting a flash of angry eagerness escape him: "What do you mean? Quick, my time is valuable."

"Yes, sir. In a word, then I tracked Miss——"

Fenton glanced toward the door. "The young lady I was in search of. She had gone to live in Buckinghamshire. Here is the address."

Rawson Fenton took it, slowly, with an affectation of indifference that was rather overdone.

"Brakespeare Castle," he said. "The Marquis of Brakespeare. Baroness to the young Lord Lancebrook."

He put the paper down and screened his face with his hand from the keen eyes watching him.

"So near!" he muttered. "So near!" and a sigh struggled through his set lips. "Is that all?" he said aloud.

"Well," replied the detective, reluctantly. "I'm sorry to say it isn't. I ought to have said that that was the young lady's address."

"What, then, do you mean?"

"Well, sir, she has gone——"

"Gone!"

"Yes, sir. Left this morning suddenly and unexpectedly."

"Well well, where is she now?"

"I'm sorry to say I don't know, sir," replied the detective. "I received a telegram from one of the servants in my pay at the castle saying that the young lady had left quite suddenly and that no one in the place knew where she had gone."

Rawson Fenton bit his lip.

"But you traced her," he said, with suppressed fury. "You are a detective and you come and tell me this!"

The man looked up at him.

"I have only just received the wire and the exact instructions were that I should bring you every piece of information as I got it. I have done so, sir."

Rawson Fenton controlled himself with an effort.

"Very good," he said. "Now go and find her for me. Lose no time, spare no expense. Stay," he added, as the man rose and seemed to grow rigid again. "Did you tell your first employer that she was well and—happy?"

"Yes, sir, quite well. I hadn't a doubt on the information at any hour, day or night."

His face was pale, paler even than usual, and there were beads of drop of perspiration on his forehead.

"Constance! Constance!" he murmured, hoarsely. "Ah! I never can think that I cannot forget her!" and he struck the desk with his clinched hand.

CHAPTER XIII.

Constance stood looking out of the window of her room at Mrs. Mervyn's the next morning, but she scarcely saw the long row of respectable houses; each exactly like the other, a dreary monotony prevailing over them all. She had slept little, and the thought that had haunted her all night was haunting her now. She had spread her little store of money upon the dressing-table, and regarded it fixedly, and the longer she looked at it the less it seemed to become.

She must do something to earn her livelihood, and that quickly—but—what?

Without friends or references, she was perfectly helpless. She could not pose—or even a situation as shop-girl or assistant; the thought made the window with a sigh almost of despair, as she thought how soon she would be compelled to leave even the haven of rest.

Mrs. Mervyn had been very kind and attentive, and exchanged a word or two with Constance, and Constance felt that she should desire nothing better in life than to remain where she was, in solitary quiet and peace.

But that could not be, and at last, having no settled purpose in her mind she put on her out-door things and went out.

She passed a moment or two on the steps, wondering which way she should go, and as she did so a man who had come slowly down the street glanced up at her and crossed over.

"Can you tell me which is Pembridge Crescent, miss?" he asked.

He was an old man, with a bent back and a face wrinkled with care, and Constance, as he asked the question, wondered whether he, too, like herself, was a stranger in the vast city.

"I'm sorry I cannot," she said; "I am quite a stranger."

He took out a paper from his pocket and looked at it, then glanced up at her with a pair of small, keen eyes.

"So am I, miss," he said, apologetically. "Yes, Pembridge Crescent is the place I want. Thank you, miss, and excuse me for troubling you."

Constance assured him gently that he had given her no trouble, and walked down the street.

The old man followed her slowly, and crossing over presently, stopped as she stopped, uncertain which direction to take.

Constance saw him apparently asking his question of a man who passed; then she turned to the right at haphazard, and lost him. She found herself presently in a gay and busy thoroughfare, with brilliant shops and crowded pavements, and walking along lost in her own sad thoughts, paused now and then to look absently at the windows. As she did so she noticed in one a large placard with the words, "Registry office for tutors and governesses."

She stood and looked at this for some minutes reflectingly. It was just possible that she might hear of a situation; at any rate, it would be well for her to go in and inquire.

Perhaps Lady Armstead would act as her referee, without requiring to know all the particulars of Constance's sudden departure from Brakespeare Castle.

Summoning up all her courage, she entered the shop. A young lady with very much befrizzled hair and a languid manner, stood behind the counter and eyed her in the cold-blooded fashion which sometimes greets the would-be purchaser; but her manner grew more frigid, not to say ice-like, when Constance, with a faint blush, said:

"Can you tell me if you have a situation for a governess vacant?"

The girl got a huge book, and laid it open upon the counter.

"Please write your name and address," she said, listlessly.

Constance paused a moment, feeling very much as if she should like to walk out, but resisting the inclination she took off her glove and wrote her name and address.

Then the young lady in charge of the office opened another book, and read in a monotonous voice, which clearly indicated her disgust at the whole business:

CANADA LOSES MILLIONS YEARLY FROM PLANT ENEMIES

SMUGGLED FAGS NUMBER BILLION 'BACCY MEN SAY

Every Year This Goes On Excise and Sales Taxes Are Blamed

Ottawa, April 13.—Excise and sales tax on cigarettes in Canada make the retail price so much higher that more than a billion cigarettes are smuggled from the United States every year the customs inquiry committee was told this morning.

Tobacco dealers from Toronto and Montreal testified to the effect of cigarette smuggling on their business.

It was H. S. Bourque, of Montreal who gave it as his opinion that this quantity of smokes are smuggled in at border points, chiefly by people who sell lower priced United States cigarettes as a side line to their work.

The Canadian treasury was actually losing money through its high tax, he thought. All imposts on cigarettes together totalled about $7.50 a thousand. In the U.S. it was about $2 a thousand. The disparity should be greatly reduced if smuggling was to be prevented. The Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, did not promise anything.

FIFTY-ONE, and FIFTEEN . . ADDED TOGETHER MAKE TROUBLE

New York, April 13.—Edward W. Brown, 51 year old real estate operator, and his 15 year old bride of three days were back again to-day in Coldspring, New York, the scene of their marriage with trouble from a new quarter threatening their honeymoon.

Special district attorney Ryder, of Putnam County, has announced that an investigation will be started, to learn whether they violated the county laws requiring six months' residence before obtaining a marriage license. The young bride already is under the summons of the children's court here in an action started by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children, seeking to have her removed from the custody of her mother, as an unfit guardian. Mr. Brown stated that a perjury charge will be impossible if it were found that Mrs. Browning had sworn to six months residence in the county.

GOLD IS FOUND AT WOMAN RIVER BY TORONTO MAN

Prospector Says Big Rush On Now and More As Spring Arrives

Toronto, Ont., April 13.—Reports of gold discoveries to the east of Red Lake were circumstanced today by John Jones, Toronto prospector, who declared that substantial gold deposits have been found at Woman River which is fast south of Trout Lake and Pt. Miles, east of Pine Ridge, a point on the trail from Hudson to Red Lake Mr. Jones who has just returned from the Red Lake district, said another gold rush was on to the Woman River district. Tom Pew, another Toronto prospector, had found the gold at Woman River on directions from an Indian, Mr. Jones said. Mr. Jones said the food at the Red Lake camp at present was scarce and prices high and warned any one contemplation going to Red Lake that the proper equipment whether for winter or summer weather was essential.

He looked for a big rush into Red Lake and eastwards within a few weeks.

SCARED WOMAN WITH REVOLVER FLED WITH CASH

Lone Bandit Found That Nervy and Fast Work Paid Well

Winnipeg, Man., April 13.—The Edmonton Cafe, Edmonton Street, was the scene of a daring hold up during a busy hour last night. A lone bandit walked up to the cash counter where the wife of the proprietor was working, ordered a package of cigarettes and paid for them. As soon as the woman opened the cash register he flashed a revolver, warned her to stand still, reached across the counter, grabbed a handful of bills from the till. Before any one in the cafe realized what had happened he had run out the door and escaped.

Gas Company Affairs Ventilated Council Decides to Allow Hubley To Submit Proposals on New Deal

At the conclusion of the City Council business last night a round table discussion took place relative to the gas deal proposition. There has of late been rumors about the city that some parties in the city were looking forward in regard to having stock given them but this was refuted by Mr. Otto R. Hubley, President of the Hubley Company Limited, Toronto, who was present at the meeting.

In his opening remarks Mr. Hubley stated that the object of his visit to Belleville was to straighten out some matters of which there appeare to be some doubt about in regard to the gas works proposition. Some in the city were apparently not satisfied with the agreement made. The speaker referred to the articles which had recently appeared in Saturday Night, which he claimed were misleading. The agreement was a business agreement and it was intended to go ahead with the agreement and carry it out to the letter.

In answer to a query as to the selling of stock Mr. Hubley said "We can sell all the stock independent of Belleville. In regard to the bonus he can say nothing whatsoever for promoting the deal. Stock to the amount of $7,500 was given to Mr. Thompson and a Mr. Richardson for services rendered.

Mr. Hubley was asked if his company was prepared to carry the bonus by a draft which according to the terms of the agreement should be paid this 15th day of April.

Mr. Hubley—No. And there was no question if it was due on April 12. The Hy-law was voted on in December and was finally ratified by the council on December 21st 1925. Six months from that date would be the 21st of June.

Mayor Graham—Is not the agreement up today.

Mr. Hubley—That is a question perhaps of law as to really what the agreement is up. We have several brokerage firms that are willing to assist in this matter and we will be able to take care of the overdraft. We will under take to do so if the council will make the date further than April 15th. If the council desired to cancel the agreement it may do so, but what would be the result. Then that overdraft is paid we can sell the capital desired.

Mr. Hubley promised that employment would be given to local people when the company proceeded with the reconstruction plan. The proposed plant would need more men as it will be double the size it is to-day.

Mayor Graham—Has any stock been sold in Belleville?

Mr. Hubley——Yes, $100 was sold to a party of which $50 has been paid. Salesmen were recalled back to Toronto when there was no city parent trouble in regard to the matter.

Ald. Collins—Evidently you desire to have the time of the agreement extended.

Mr. Hubley—Yes.

Ald. Collins—Submit your proposals to the council so that they can be considered.

A motion made by Ald. Collins, and seconded by Ald. Duff, was to the effect that Mr. Hubley submit to the council his proposition in the matter in order that it may be considered.

The motion was adopted and the meeting adjourned.

TO SATURDAY NIGHT

As you surmise, the Board as shown on our prospectus is only a temporary one. We are at present lining up a new Board and when our work in this connection has been completed a public announcement will be made. At the present time negotiations are in progress of Belleville and one other prominent resident of that City will go on the Board as qualified members.

As to what the promoters put into this undertaking to warrant them receiving 7,500 shares of stock, we would say that a group of five business men have spent the greater part of the past year negotiating with the members of the Belleville City Council and others. In addition to this thirty-six other people assisted materially in getting the agreement through. You can appreciate that it costs a considerable amount of money carrying on such lengthy negotiations, particularly when we tell you that it was necessary to send a representative to England in addition to their making many short journeys to and from Canada. Of the 7,500 shares taken down in return for the franchise agreement only 2,400 shares have been retained by Mr. Yates. The balance has been divided among the other seventeen people who assisted Mr. Yates in obtaining the franchise agreement and promoting the Company. Considering the amount of time and work spent on this undertaking we do not think that any one of the parties or any of those who were associated in the formation of the Company will be overpaid.

Should there by anything else pertaining to the Belleville Gas and Fuel Company, limited, that you do not know or would like to have explained in detail, do not hesitate to ask. We will do all in our power to enlighten and keep you enlightened at all times regarding the affairs of the Company so that you, in turn, will be able to intelligently answer any enquiries.

RUST AND INSECTS DO BIG DAMAGE TO ANNUAL CROPS

Yet Some Progress Is Being Made Says Kiwanis Speaker

It was farmers' day at Kiwanis to-day and the numerous rural guests of the Kiwanians were well repaid for their visit; for the large gathering at to-day's luncheon at the Queens, had the pleasure of listening to a most interesting and beneficial address on the subject of plant diseases and their remedy, delivered by Prof. W. T. MacClement of Toronto University. The fact that Prof. MacClement is also associated with the Dominion Government Dept. of Agriculture, in his efforts to solve the problems of plant diseases, gave additional weight to his remarks, for years, of practical experience put him in a position to be thoroughly acquainted with his subject.

CAUSE OF DISEASE

Prof. MacClement pointed out that germs were the cause of plant diseases, which took many different forms. Fungi and fire blight, two of the more common diseases in plants, could be controlled by early spring spraying when the tree was dormant. Again, if a plant has a wound at the surface of may spread. It may become infected, and this infection would eventually bring about the death of the entire plant. This in this case the disease originates in the soil itself, rather than in the plant, as in the case of the diseases previously mentioned.

POTATO BLIGHT

The speaker dealt with the problem of potato blight and pointed out that due to this disease our growers were not producing anything like what was possible in the potato line. In the Experimental Farm at Ottawa, there had been produced 1000 bushels to the acre, when proper precautions had been taken to prevent late potato blight. Every garden and every field had it.

And the Remedy!

We must spray—and for this purpose the common Bordeaux Mixture which could be purchased and could be effective, be done earlier—when the plants are only three or four inches from the ground—that is the proper time to check potato blight.

OLD LEAVES ARE BAD

Apple scab was another serious disease which could be overcome by proper precautions. Just at this season of the year, the spores of the disease germinate in the leaves and refuse under the trees, and get into the new fruit; the leaves should be removed from beneath the trees in the Fall. Prof. MacClement pointed out and the cause of the disease would be thus gone too. Spraying at Blue Point where they will be picked up later when the ocean flights begin.

BEAVERBROOK'S FOUR POINTS

Liverpool, April 13.—Lord Beaverbrook in a lecture here last night emphasized the following four points:

1—"The press is more powerful to-day that it ever was before but its actual influence depends upon the ability with which it is directed.

2—"The ability of a person in public life depends on his egotism; this applies equally to the journalist and the politician.

3—"The modern newspapers can beat politicians every time if newspapers are conducted by men of character and ability.

4—"Great Britain owes a debt of gratitude to the late Lord Northcliffe, because his genius founded the modern popular press here and kept that press absolutely clean."

SECOND FLIGHT FROM FAIRBANKS TO PT. BARROW

Wilkins Put Down Another Cache For His Polar Trip

Fairbanks, Alaska, April 13.—Captain George H. Wilkins, Arctic Arctic explorer, and Carl B. Eielson, his pilot, were back in Fairbanks after a second trip to Point Barrow with a load of supplies for future flights over the Arctic ocean.

The aviators flew over the route which Alexander Malcolm Smith is following to Point Barrow with a dog team, but failed to see any trace of the Smith party, which was reported short of food.

The flight was made in the shadow of the two aeroplanes of the Detroit Arctic Expedition, which is equipped with a single engine. The supplies, mainly gasoline and oil, were cached at Point Barrow where they will be picked up later when the ocean flights begin.

The dazzling white monotony of the country Lenguth, unmarred by any forestation or mark which would give a clue to their whereabouts, prevented the air explorers from locating the Smith overland party. FIND THE SKULL OF HE WHO LIVED IN THE ICE AGE

Strange Relic is Believed to Be Over 30,000 Years Old

London (By Mail).—Deep down in the prehistoric gloom of Kent's cavern on the outskirts of Torquay, expert geologists and anthropologists are searching for the remains of men and women who, it is believed, inhabited the country more than 30,000 years ago.

Under the glare of an electric globe, their figures in sharp black silhouette and their vague faces vivid in the strong light, a little group of men bent over a glittering mass of shattered stalagmite heaped upon a rough table. In this mass their careful fingers sought for traces of primitive man and of those monstrous animals that roamed the earth when no Channel separated England from France.

A new line of excavation has been started. In 1864 William Pengelly and one of a number of explorers working under the auspices of the British Association, discovered in the cavern what he thought to be a huge hearth at which prehistoric men cooked their food.

It is in the vicinity of this hearth that the first search for human remains is now being made. A score of flints used by men 20,000 years ago are among the latest finds as well as bones and teeth of the rhinoceros, hyena and great Irish elk.

The most sensational find, however, consists of 30 pieces of the skull of a man who, it is computed, lived in the period of the breaking of the Ice Age more than 20,000 years ago.

"But what we really hope to find," said Mr. Dowie who leads the search "are remains dating as far back as the famous Piltdown skull found at Lewes and thought to be 30,000 years old."

USE WAR DEVICE IN SEEKING OIL AT GREAT DEPTH

Dallas, Tex., April 13.— The great sums of the war gave to the oil industry one of its most effective means for discovering petroleum hidden beneath the ground. Delicate pieces to the eleventh annual convention of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists here recently heard an explanation of, this in a paper on the seismograph as applied to oil exploration.

This delicate instrument records ground sound and by indicating the extent and direction of sound beneath the surface points the geologist to structures that may contain oil.

Practical application of the instrument in the oil industry resulted from the work of the National Research Council in the great war. One of the problems of that council was to discover or invent some means for locating long range guns hidden far back of the lines. They hit upon the seismograph, known most generally for recording earthquakes. This instrument registered the intensity of sound waves from artillery and by proper calculations led the scientists to fairly accurate conclusions on the distance of the gun.

In geological explorations for oil this instrument performs a peculiar function with the difference that the geologist must explode his own powder to send a noise into the ground An explosion is caused at a certain point on the surface. The sound waves travel down into the earth. If they hit a rock structure such as a dome or some other fault in which the normal position of the rocks is disturbed, they are deflected back to the surface. In measuring the distance, the waves have travelled, the geologist can locate the structure and there he may find oil.

OPEN AIR RINKS WERE FINE IDEA COUNCIL IS TOLD

Ran For 40 Days Here and Were Patronized By Shoals of Kiddies

At the City Council meeting last evening the following communication from the City Engineer relative to the open air skating rinks was read and filed.

April 12, 1926.

To The Members of Rotary Club :

Kiwanis Club, and City Council.

Gentlemen:

The special committee from this organization in conjunction with the committee from the other two organizations acting second with instructions met on December 29th, 1925, and agreed on plans for free open air rinks in the city during the past winter season. The work was constructed by the public works department of the city under the active direction of the City Engineer and were opened for the use of the public on January 22nd, 1926. A period of mild weather delayed the opening about ten days as the surface that was first made was lost and necessitated re-building the ice surface a second time.

Heated dressing rooms were provided, by using local construction shanties and a fire later was provided at each rink from 1.00 p.m. till 10.00 p.m. daily except Sunday with an additional period from 2.00 a.m. to 5.00 p.m. each Saturday. Good lighting arrangements were provided for skating after sunset.

The rinks were maintained till March 16, 1926 a total of 40 days and evenings. There were five days after the opening that were too mild to permit of skating during the period.

Rinks were constructed at Hookway st. and Hayward St., the skating surface being 45 x 105' and a skating rink adjoining 55' x 105' to serve the west side of the river and another rink was constructed at Queen and Foster Ave. 55' x 105' to serve the east side of the river. These rinks were placed in locations where the use of the recreation did not conflict seriously with the privately owned rinks in the other parts of the city.

From observations made by your committee the rinks were very popular and should be continued next year and we would suggest that a second rink be provided for at Queen St. and Hayward Ave for skaters only and that during the summer provision be made for a proper flood service for flooding the rinks and also suggest that the ground be levelled as at present the unevenness makes it quite difficult to prepare an ice surface in a reasonable time.

The total cost of the rinks for the season was $935.41 of which maintenance costs for flooding and curtakers and lighting was $283.20 and construction of the three rinks with equipment for curtaking was $652.21.

Yours respectfully
Chas. D. Campbell.

Winnipeg, April 13.—According to the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway little or no work on the land has been done during the past week. Parmers were ready to commence operations in many districts, but the sudden change to the weather with accompanying lower temperatures upset expectations. Weather conditions however, improved towards the end of the week, and in some parts of central Saskatchewan and southern Alberta seeding operations started in scattered areas, but today it was raining, sleeting and harrowing being done.

The land generally is in good condition and two or three days of warm weather should see front sufficiently out of the ground to permit a general commencement of work.

There was little confusion in the theatre, the curtain was rung down, the beast beaten off and the injured man taken from the cage. He was attended by Dr. G. R. Deacon. "I am anxious to do what I can to help the poor chap," added the Chairman, who with his fellow members of the Edmonton Council, has treated the application with respectful sympathy.

CARRIER PIGEON WAS WISE BIRD

Washington, April 12.—The Navy's pet pigeon story about a carrier bird that went away from a canal zone station for a year and then returned to duty, is capped in an official report from San Diego of an aerial messenger which stole a sea plane automobile ride to deliver his message.

The San Diego pigeon arrived at the Navy station there, perched on the motor car driven by Mrs. Evelyn Johnson of San Diego, who said it had boarded the machine at Ocean. side, 43 miles away. It promptly took up its residence in the quarters of the officer of the day, drew rations, rested a bit and then took the air to make its home port at a nearby naval aviation station under its own power. The bird had been released presumably from a plane with a message addressed to the aviation station.

"If Empire Is At War Australia Is At War"

Sydney, N.S.W., April 13.—"If the Canadian Press Association Conference could settle the question of how far the great self-governing British Dominions should refer the field of international politics has exercised many of the ablest minds in the Dominions. Should the Foreign Office in London formulate the policy for the whole of the Empire, assisted by Dominion statesmen? Or should the Dominions take an active part?

Australia's position was distinctly outlined in Sydney yesterday by the Prime Minister, Hon. J. G. Latham—constitutional lawyer of note, who was on the advisory staff of the Prime Ministers of Australia, Hon. "Billy" Hughes, at the Versailles Peace Conference in 1919.

Mr. Latham said that in regard to the relation of Australia to international affairs, there was a disposition in Australia to deny the existence of any problems. There were many in Australia—some in responsible positions—who assumed what might be termed the pose of indifference as far as the question of Australia and foreign affairs was concerned. The suggestion, for instance, that any Australian should be sent to London for the purpose of discussing the solution of problems of foreign affairs met sometimes with expressions of contempt. There were however, despite the attitude, very urgent matters in relation to foreign affairs which affected intimately the welfare of Australia, and we were not going to solve the problem of our relationship to foreign affairs by refusing to admit that it existed and by meeting with contempt any suggestions that might be made for the solution.

Australia's attempts to deal with her own local problems, urgent, and important as many of them were, were not significant in the life of the nation as the reactions of Australia to foreign affairs. It was international affairs which affected the very existence of a nation. The very existence of Australia, for example, as a democratic self-governing community, was at stake during the war. Our very destiny, our fate, our chance of dealing with internal affairs, were all bound up with what happened in international affairs.

Mr. Latham went on to say that to take up part in international affairs meant that the destiny of Australia as a British self-governing community was no longer entirely in other hands. Surely such a position was unworthy of a people with any claims to nationhood. Did we really believe that we were to leave to someone else determine a policy which might, for example, throw Australia into the scale between contending nations? Did we think Australians were blindly shutting their eyes to the facts. It was impossible to escape or avoid international relations. These existed, and that being so, there must be a considered determination of policy with regard to them. Supposing a war, in which Great Britain was involved, should break out. Some people appear ed to think that a Dominion in such circumstances could say: "I am not in the right; you cannot touch me." But it was what the other fellow did that mattered. A big navy such as that proposed not upon what might or could but upon what they actually did say and what they considered they had to say. Think, when Great Britain was at war, that we were not in the fight, was to live in a fool's paradise. In the British Empire Australia had the part and the responsibility of the most powerful nations on the face of the earth. On the contrary Australia by herself was one of the middle Powers. We had a rare pride and a natural pride. But whatever our material pride might be, Australia, standing alone was one of the small Powers of the world.

Mr. Latham emphasized the importance of unity of policy within the Empire; the fact that the Empire, of which we were a part, was in fact not a unit, but an international unit; and what he termed the inconsistency of an attitude of indifference. He concluded that to ask how Great Britain to determine foreign policy without any reference to the Dominions, or the Dominions without any reference to Great Britain, with the growing sense of nationhood in the Dominions and the responsibilities of the Dominions Governments. For the Government of Australia to wash its hands of foreign affairs was gravely to neglect the vital interests of the people. Australia had reached a stage in her development when she owed it to a duty in this regard not alone to herself, but to the world, to the practice of considerations of self-interest, self-protection and self-defence. Australia had a duty to offer some contribution in a solution of world problems.

Mr. Latham pointed out that while the present machinery of consultation through the instrument of Imperial Conference and other channels, were not so easily worked as could be desired, it was hoped that the position of High Commissioner in London in the future would be such that its occupant would be enabled to keep in touch with the questions and give direct and authentic information to the Government of Australia about them, and at the same time there was very strong objection to allowing a High Commissioner to bind the Australian Government to any course in the Old Country, which was responsible to Parliament and, through Parliament, to the people. Mr. Latham emphasized the practical difficulties in the way to the suggestion that a Minister should be sent to London to represent Australia and pointed out that, while the machinery for consultation was not perfect there were a good many imperfect things with which the world struggled along in every walk of life, with a spirit of goodwill behind them.

After emphasizing the duty which Australians owed to themselves and to their country, to take a deeper and livelier interest in world problems, Mr. Latham dealt with those criticisms of the Locarno treaty which, he said, professed to the Empire, and pointed out that, under the Treaty, the position legally was the same as ever it was. If the Empire was at war, every part of the Empire was at war. The practical position was the same.

The share which Australia would take in any war was a matter to be determined by the people through the Parliament of Australia. That remained the position under the Locarno Pact. Supposing Great Britain went to war in pursuance of her obligations, it was a matter for Australia, while loyally at war, to consider whether she could participate actively in the war. Mr. Latham said that the duty for building ships of war there was in the Empire Parliament the breaking-up of the Empire were quite unfounded. The people today were the same as they had been. If the Empire was at war, we were at war; but it depended upon ourselves what part, if any, we would take in belligerent operations.

Paris designs an unsuggestable circular skirt cut with a gored flare across the front and sides and traced to resemble the umbrella which gives it its name.

If you want something new, unusual and indisputably French, choose the frock with the gored umbrella skirt. It is very chic, easily made, and gives you a circular front that won't sag. With its pert shoulder and delightful sleeve, it can be made in Georgette or silk voile. The collar and three-tiered cuffs are linen in organdy on a frock of taffeta, satin crepe or crepe de Chine. The back of the frock is made one piece and the full sash is made of the material of the dress.

Professor Gerlach. It has been estimated that the disease-loss in Canada as much as $100,000,000 each year. And the most lamentable feature about the disease is the fact that as yet we have no effective remedy for it. Just a suggestion. Dusting the wheat with Colloidal Sulphur has seemed to help the crop a little, but we have not yet reached the stage of putting the remedy on a commercial and economical basis.

Another interesting fact brought out by the speaker was the extent to which White Pine Blister Rust had spread in Ontario and to the South of us. So per cent of our Province consists of land on which trees alone may be profitably grown. The most valuable tree we have is the white pine. And this same white pine is the tree which is most susceptible to this rust. A POSSIBLE REMEDY

The disease has been the special study of Prof. MacClement for our Government and he has found that it is alarmingly prevalent in the Province, as far north as Haileybury. It prevents natural reproduction in the white pine and partially destroys the trees. The germ develops in currant and gooseberry bushes and it is thought that the most effective way of dealing with it is by uprooting all of these—a tremendous problem, taking into consideration all the wild plants there are of these. A move had recently been made in this direction in New York State, however.

Tremendous advances have been made in the study and remedy of plant disease in the last 25 years, Prof. MacClement declared, but much more has to be done, so that our vegetable growth in Canada may be what it should.

SOBER SECOND THOUGHT

It may have been noticed that U. S. Senator Borah, chairman of the U. S. Senate committee on foreign relations, has not said anything recently about the desirability of pressing American claims against Britain for losses suffered by American ships on account of the British blockade of Germany during the period of American neutrality. It will be remembered that a few weeks ago the senator made some rather truculent remarks on the subject, declaring that the claims must be pressed and damages collected. It is not like Mr. Borah, when he has taken a definite stand on any subject, to recede. And yet he seems to have forgotten all about the matter and dismissed the complication from John Bull. There must be some strong reason for his sudden silence.

The probable explanation is that Mr. Borah overlooked something and that that something has been brought to his attention. It is that after the United States entered the war, the U.S. navy was quite as active as the British in enforcing the blockade against Germany and interfering with the trade of neutral countries. If, now, the U.S. government were to claim damages from Britain for injury to American trade while the United States was neutral, the governments of countries which remained neutral through the war would have excellent grounds for claims against the U. S. government for injury done to their trade by the interference of the U.S. navy. "After we joined the war," says the New York Times, "we quite outdid the British in seizing the ships of neutral nations and making regulations injurious to neutral trade. We imagine that Sweden, for example, would hail with joy the success of any effort that Senator Borah may make to compel England to pay America for harming neutrals, and would then present a thumping bill of her own to the American government on the same score."

And so the sudden silence of the masterful senator from Idaho is not so strange after all.

OUTLOOK DARK

The fear of a coal strike in the British mines on May 1 is increased by the action taken at the conference of the Miners' federation, rejecting the operators' proposals. Wages must not be reduced, it is declared, nor the hours of labor lengthened. The maintenance of the existing national wage agreement is also insisted upon. There is not much in this attitude to give any encouragement to the view that the impending crisis will be averted. Operators insist that it is impossible to go on without a reduction in wages and are strongly opposed to the idea of a national wage rate. Conditions vary in different districts and it is urged that wage rates must depend upon local conditions. The royal commission of investigation does not entirely support the owners. In its report it favored the reopening of mines in large units, although it did not go so far as the miners and suggest that all the mines be organized as a national unit. Any grouping which might take place should be the voluntary act of the owners, though in special cases compulsory organization might be necessary, in the opinion of the commission. On the question of a national scale of wages the commission declined to decide with the men to a great extent. District wage scales, it is feared, might result in undesirable competition between the districts to sell coal cheap by keeping wages down to a level which did not provide for a decent standard of living for the workers. The commission does not insist, however, that wages must be uniform throughout the country. In some areas, it admits, the standard of pay must necessarily be lower than in others, but where wages fall below the minimum scale agreed upon the amount should be made up out of a national fund.

The British government is faced with the dilemma of a ruinous strike which will cripple national industry or a continuation of the subsidy, which is most unpopular with the hard-pressed British taxpayers. There seems to be no alternative, if both sides maintain a recalcitrant attitude. Every week much time, which to bring about the compromise between the two parties which is the only acceptable solution of the problem. Neither the coal operators nor the miners, it is said, are anxious to bear the responsibility of rejecting the royal commission's recommendation, however, and that is one hopeful feature of the situation. Another is the fact that the miners' executive has sent an invitation to the owners to meet them for the purpose of continuing negotiations. It should still be possible to avert the threatened disaster under these circumstances. Both sides stand to lose severely by a strike, to say nothing of the public interests concerned; while industry as a whole would be paralyzed. It is not to be supposed that such a catastrophe would be wantonly incurred.

THE FRENCH RIDDLE

London Morning Post:

It is hardly too much to say that parliamentary government as it exists in France is now on its trial. It has lasted since 1875, chiefly by leaving things of importance unlegislated; but it is now faced by one or those riddles of the sphinx which if it does not solve, it dies. In one sense, it would be a mistake to suppose that France is like a crab with a soft shell, open to the attacks of her enemies. The Napoleonic framework of the state remains strong and sound.

It is only when we are deprived of their services that we realize just how important a factor they are in our daily lives.

Plot Against Ancestral Halls Seen In Many English Fires

Bonanza Near Lowestoft, Suffolk, Eng land, March 30 (By Mail)—As the ancient homes of the English being burned by the Communists under instructions from Russia?

Nearly every week for more than two months one of the fine old manor houses which constitute the chief historic and architectural interest of England has gone up in flames. In every case the fire was of incendiary origin. Generally its cause has been laid somewhat vaguely to "crooked wires." That the wires run straight to Moscow and were pulled by the hand of the Russian Communist party is a thought freely expressed in the localities where the fires have occurred.

FIRE STARTS IN ATTIC

Benacre Hall, the two hundred year old mansion of the Duke of Somerset, was destroyed recently. The fire like most of the others in the manor houses—originated at night in a remote corner of the building. This time it started in the attic where the electric wiring had lately been inspected during alterations in the lighting arrangements.

The first Baronet Sir William Crispe, was Lieutenant-governor of Virginia a quarter of a century before the American revolution. All that remains today of the splendid old manor brick house with its fine stone trimmings is the two-foot outer wall with the lion of the family crest still out lined against the sky.

The loss in antiques—furnishings, tapestries, rare paintings—though Sir Thomas Beaumont is a famous connoisseur of King Charles II and Lady Gooch herself rescued a valuable Romney—amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars. The historic loss of course is incalculable.

On December 24, Hagley Hall, in Worcestershire, the home for centuries of the Lyttelton family, was burned. A few days later, Cow Hayes, near Birmingham, the residence of Lady Heyworth, was burned. In January Crowe Hall, at Bath, the home of Sarah Cerrid, the novelist, was burned. On February 2, Fawkis Manor, the seat of Earl Grey at Alnwick, Northumberland, was burned. On February 14, Oulton Park, Tapeley, Cheshire, the home of Sir Philipp Grey Egerton, was burned. On February 16, Keyford, an historic mansion near Yeovil, Somerset, was burned.

Each fire destroyed unappraised paintings and of furniture, historic documents and relics which can never be replaced. Oulton Park, for example, was designed and built two centuries ago by Sir John Vanbrugh, the famous architect and dramatist, and was noted for its collection of paintings by Rubens and Landseer. Fire people lost their lives in this fire.

When on February 17 Benacre Hall, a few miles below Lowestoft, was likewise destroyed, the excitement and anger of people hereabouts reached a fever pitch.

"You will notice," said a member of one of the families whose manor house has just been destroyed, "that in almost every case the residence which burned has rather suddenly burst into flames. The fire had originated in a remote corner of a building, made great headway before its discovery. Also in nearly every case the burned residence was situated particularly far from the nearest fire engine.

PROTECTION IS INADEQUATE

"In the case of Benacre Hall, it was one hour before the fire engines from Wrentham, Lowestoft and Southwold were able to get a sufficient water supply to make even the slightest impression on the flames.

"If there is an incendiary plot against the ancestral houses of England, protection, which has been added, it must be admitted, by our own carelessness in the matter of adequate fire protection and water supply. What must also be remembered is that these houses have stood for centuries—all through the days of unshielded candles and of open hearth and kitchen fires—without disaster."

Communist activity has been bid. fair, but intense, in England lately. Not always as hidden, either, for many bee orators have openly advocated tearing down the British flag to replace it by the red banner with the red flag of the soviets. And a thinly organized system of English Communist day schools and Sunday schools has reached such strength as to be a children's crusade."

Incitations have profited with Bisen's bleak tragedies.

GOTHAM'S TASTE NOT TOO LOFTY AS TO THEATRES

New York, April 13.—A survey of New York's most popular and successful theatrical ventures indicates a wide range of taste among those who spend their evenings at the theatres.

The ultimate index of popularity, box office statistics, show such diversity in musical productions as "Sunny" the Mary Brothers, "The Cocanuts" and "The Vagabond King" drawing full houses at high prices.

Next comes such melodramas as "The Shanghai Gesture", and "Lady Belle". The former is a highly colored picture of life among the lower classes in China, the latter, the saga of a lady of color who is not as virtuous as she might be.

Comedies come in third, and among the most popular there is further evidence of variety, with the leaders range from the unsubtle humors of "Cradle Snatchers" to the very civilized "Young Woodley" and Marc Connelly's fantasy, "The Wisdom Tooth".

There is a distinct dearth of "realistic" plays among the public's favorites, although "Devils" a stark drama of backwoods evangelism is being patronized and several organ

SPARKS GOES ON STAND AGAIN IN CUSTOMS PROBE

Prison-made Goods, Particularly Black Shirts, Considered Again

Ottawa, April 13.—Prison-made goods, denied legitimate sale in Canada, also being smuggled from the United States to compete unfairly with free labor in Canada and send Canadian business men to the bankruptcy courts, asserted Jr. P. Sparks, president of the Commercial Protective Association, at today's sitting of the customs probe.

Completing the second month of its investigation into the conduct of the Canadian Department of Customs, a special committee of the House of Commons turned its attention today to commercial smuggling after several weeks devoted to the activities of auto and rum-runners and drug wholesalers. Mr. Sparks now called to the stand, in the now famous black shirt, purchased from an Ottawa retailer, and said to be prison-made in the United States, was the sole topic for discussion in today's brief sitting of the committee.

No evidence was adduced to prove that it was really prison-made, and Chairman Paul Martin expressed the opinion that the mere fact that it bore the label of a firm which used prison labor is some of its facsimile did not prove anything. Mr. Sparks said that the interlocking fifteen Reliance firms in the United States makes it impossible to say who is smuggling these goods into Canada" but he was certain that they were being smuggled, and brought a hatful into support of the commission's auditors, when it is published, will reveal that enormous quantities of prison-made goods are coming into Canada, chiefly through the port of Rock Island, Que. Hon. G. N. Boivin, Minister of Customs, said that Mr. Sparks' statement was strong enough to justify an embargo on all goods made by the Reliance companies.

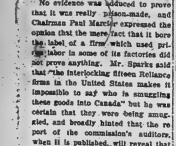

Mr. Sparks was unsparing in his denunciation of prison-made goods.

They were made by people, white and black, he said, who were recruited from the most unfortunate ranks of society. They were used to wipe brows, mouths and eyes of people who might be suffering from the worst communicable diseases. The goods were sent straight to the wearer without being disinfected. The letting of prison labor contracts was the chief source of political campaign funds in several of the United States, he asserted and if public men were corrupted thereby. On the other hand, capital and labor in that country were anxious to limit the sale of such goods in their own country and were not willing to co-operate with Canadian business men in keeping them out of Canada.

Plain Talks for Women

Vancouver.—Vancouver's infant mortality rate for 1925 of 36.33 deaths under the age of one, per 1000 births, established a record for a new low record for cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants, it was stated by city health officer, Dr. F. T. Underhill in his report to civic health committee. The previous record for Vancouver was 40.37 in 1924. Dr. Underhill attributes this record to, at least, a part, to the activities of the division of child hygiene and mentions the co-operation of the Victorian Order of Nurses. The improved milk supply was also advanced as another factor in this connection. Under the Child Hygiene Division, four well-baby clinics were held weekly and advice given.

Edmonton.—The inauguration of an "empire shopping week" in the city, was forcefully brought before the executive of the local council of women by Miss Dorothy Pilley, of London, England. Miss Pilley who is organizing secretary of the British Women's Patriotic League, is in the course of a tour across Canada, during which she is endeavoring to inspire women with the idea of purchasing "made-in-empire" goods.

If being one of the most successful mountain climbers in England can be considered a "hobby," that is Miss Pilley's. However, the energetic secretary of the British Women's Patriotic League is in the course of a tour across Canada, during which she is endeavoring to inspire women with the idea of purchasing "made-in-empire" goods.

Pinnacle club, whose membership is composed of British women mountain climbers. Last year Miss Pilley came to Canada to join the Alpine Club at Lake O'Hara, when she was the first woman to climb Mount Stephen. In speaking of the Alps and the Rockies, Miss Pilley says that comparison is as futile as between the Lily and the Rose. There is an entirely different charm.

AMERICANS FIND GREAT VALUE IN SCHOOL SAVING

Bankers' Association Gives Leadership to Movement

CANADIAN SYSTEM

Twenty-One Years Ago The Penny Bank of Ontario Was Organized

By J. E. MIDDLETON

After five years of activity by the American Bankers' Association and a group of educational leaders, school savings banks are in operation in 1,557 school districts of the United States, representing 10,185 schools. The accumulated number $,843,497 and the bank balances show an aggregate of $18,615,251. The City of Duluth reports that 99.8 per cent. of the pupils in its schools have savings bank accounts. In sixteen smaller communities every child in the schools is saving. The rate of growth over the country as a whole has been phenomenal and the bank balances have increased in the five-year period by more than five hundred per cent.

These school banks are operated sometimes by the banks, sometimes by all the banks of the community in co-operation, and while several States have legislation governing the practice, none of them has a method so sound as that followed in the Province of Ontario, where the deposits are made with the Penny Bank of Ontario, a corporation specializing under Federal Charter. The law provides that deposits may be made by any contributor of one or more to the Institution in a completely democratic way. It was intended to be a true Organized Altruism, years ago. All the funds collected from depositors, beyond a small reserve to meet withdrawals, must be deposited in Government or Post Office Savings Banks, or invested in Government guaranteed securities by the Minister of Finance. The only income accruing to the Bank is the interest from these deposits and securities, and out of it interest at 3 per cent. on depositors' credit balances must be paid. Obviously the cost of operation must be cut to the bone. In fact the paid employees in the Head Office number only twelve. Their task is the considerable one of keeping accurate record of over ninety thousand accounts.

Two rooms in the York Street School, Toronto, serve the modest needs of the Head Office. Commercial institutions may loan towards Persian rugs and necessary furniture; The Penny Bank is content with Business and Public Schools, desks of sturdy oak for text and desks. For a considerable time after the organization of the Bank, despite the enthusiasm of the teachers, the co-operation of school boards, and free use of the Public and Chartered Banks, there was an annual deficit which the Directors paid out of their own pockets. But the thrift of the management at last found its limit, and in the last twenty years the Bank has been self-sustaining.

Clearly, the proper organization exists in the Province of Ontario for the safe and accurate handling of school-children's savings. But the City of Toronto the system has been well developed. Here is the measure—for there are 45,722 depositors. The average attendance at the schools in the Public Section is 52,510, so that the percentage of participation is low compared with Duluth and some other American cities. But the advantages of school banking are very clear to the Toronto public and to all the social and business leaders of the community.

The Penny Bank operates in fifty-four other municipalities of Ontario with continuing satisfaction to the people. There is a steady desire of municipalities in the province in which the work of the Bank might well be organized to add to the understanding of the educational and economic value of the service provided and could be brought home to the people considering that no person or corporation can profit by the collection of children's savings, considering that there can be no possibility of less than every dollar that is lost to, or deposited with the Federal Government of Canada, there is no reason for further delay.

In rural as well as in town schools banking is practicable, for there are few settled districts of the province without the service of a Chartered Bank. Wherever there is a Branch Bank within easy reach of the school its facilities are open to "The Penny Bank," for the governing heads of the great Canadian Banks are the steady friends of the institution. They perceive the advantages of practical school training in the thrifty use of money. They know that when a child develops the habit of saving a part of his money, he is likely to be an asset to the community and the country when he grows up. National prosperity depends upon the diligence and thrift of the citizens, and the future of Banks is their financial institutions depends upon national prosperity.

It is interesting to notice that the President of The Penny Bank is Lieut.-Col. H. D. Lockhart Gordon, D.S.O., a partner in the foremost financial firm of Ontario, Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, of Toronto. One of the honorary Vice-Presidents is the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province, while it was Mr. Hamilton Cassels, K.C., Vice-Chairman of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation.

Those of the calibre and standing are found willing to devote their time and thought, as a public service, to the encouragement of school savings, when the branches of the American Bankers' Association follow their lead, and set up an organization to extend the practice throughout the Dominion, the Penny Bank system may rest content that the example of its success has been fully proved.

Many of the educational values? Are School Trustees, Inspectors and teachers justified in admitting The Penny Bank to the schools under their control? Perhaps the Inaugural Address of Mr. Frederick Upton of the Teachers' College of Columbia University, New York, may be counted as influential. He said: "The purpose of the School Savings Banking (Ronald Press) is an article entitled "Educational Values in School Savings Banks." A few paragraphs from that article are here quoted:

"The habit has as one of its primary tasks the forming of habits in children. It would be well for us to come to consider what a habit is. Your reading, writing and arithmetic are simply habits that the school had to form by instruction of a gradually systematic kind in which repetition played an important part. Ordinary your eating, walking, speaking—all these things are habits. Even your thoughts regarding your neighbor are largely habitual. Thrift, Government may be largely matters of habit. Gradually all these things you do easily and customarily are habits. Thrift, therefore, if it is to become effective, must be made a habit to which we respond as unfailingly and automatically as we do to our other habits. Since it is the habits for a child to acquire a habit, we must attend first of all upon the school to surround the child with the necessary influences and provisions which will eventually make thrift a habit.

"All habits to be effective in life must be reduced to action. We can talk about handwriting and the creative of the "I" and the dotting of the "i" as long as you wish, but that does not mean that the child will necessarily cross the "t" or dot the "i". You can talk to him, you can explain the benefit, but that does not necessarily translate the action and secure the daily cleaning of the teeth. You have to establish the habit of cleaning the teeth before it will be done easily, without effort, and habitually.

"We talk about thrift in the schools, always have done and always about it. We are talking about it in some form or other, we did years ago but through the school savings banks we have had an opportunity to practise thrift, to see the thing before us in actual example. One of the laws of learning states that three must be provided for the learner the opportunity to practise it and to realize the satisfying habit of thrift."

Since the system is sound economically, and sound educationally; since in Canada it is a service under Dominion Government regulation, and as said it is sound, that question arises: Should not all the schools of Ontario take advantage of the service provided—a service endorsed by the Department of Education and functioning under the approval of the Minister and Premier?

Ask the Secretary of your School Board to write to The Penny Bank of Ontario, York Street School, Toronto, for further information.

MEDERIC MARTIN OF MONTREAL CHIEF FOR 11TH YEAR

Has Lead of 22,000 Votes After Strenuous Monday Campaign

Montreal, April 13.—Hon. Mederic Martin, member of the Quebec Legislative Council, and five times Mayor of Montreal, was elected for his sixth term, when he defeated J. V. Desaulniers and J. A. Baillargeon in the Mayoralty race by upward of 22,000 votes. With the exception of the past two years, from 1924 to 1926, when Mayor Charles Duquette held the office, Hon. Mr. Martin has been the Chief Magistrate of the Eastern Metropolis since 1914.

ALL FRIENDS OF PEOPLE

The civic campaign this year was conducted almost strenuous affair, all meetings being of a more or less lively nature. The new Mayor found his greatest support among the working classes in the East End, where, in every platform, he proclaimed himself the friend of the workingman. The other candidates were equally insistent in this respect, but they were charged with having a strong penchant toward the "privileged" classes, and this was reflected out to their disfavor time and again.

Mr. Martin's nearest opponent was Mr. Desaulniers, who received considerable support in the West End, but lacked the popularity of Mr. Martin in the East. Mr. Baillargeon trailed in the two opponents in nearly every poll.

The final figures were as follows: Hon. Mederic Martin, 53,619; J. V. Desaulniers, 37, 612; J. B. Baillargeon, 16,343. Plurality for Martin, 22,682.

SAW TWO BEARS AT SHARBOT LAKE

Ben Burdoff of Kingston Had A Thrilling Experience

A Kingston dispatch says: A bear story was unfolded this morning at the Hotel Dufferin when Ben Burdoff, Burdoff, of Kingston related an unusual occurrence that took place at Sharbot Lake on Friday last. Mr. Burdoff was motoring away from the village of Sharbot Lake to the Rutt Lumber Camp, and about a half mile from the village, being over a fence by the side of the road, saw two dark shadows that at first he took to be sheep, but on coming to the fence he found to his horror that they were black bears. In the words of Mr. Burdoff, he "started walking pretty fast" back to the village. A search party was organized, with flashlights, buttress and firearms but no bears were found, although the ground bore evidence of the fact that there were bears in the neighborhood, as many tracks were found and the bears took large in size if the track is any indication.

Enquiry this morning elicited the information that the bears have not been found yet, although a search party were out, and at the inhabitants of the place were keeping a sharp lookout for the bruins.

They will be arraigned late to day. The safe in the garage alone was blown open and $2120 loot stolen. County officers believe that with the arrest of the two alleged yeggmen they have cleared up the mystery surrounding the burglary of numerous places in Northern and Central New York.

WHY SYMPATHIZE WITH FOX?

London, Eng., April 13 (Canadian Press Cable).—Why sympathize so much with the fox? Why not sympathize with the poultry which he hunts?" queried Archdeacon Holdsworth, of Surrey, when he was asked to support a protest against blood sports.

CARRIED WIFE TO BED

Suffered So She Could Not Walk. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minesing, Ontario.—"I am a practical nurse and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to suffering women. For three months I was almost helpless and could not sit at the table long enough to drink a cup of tea. Many a time my husband carried me to bed. I would be so weak. Then he read in the paper of a woman suffering as I did who got better after taking the Vegetable Compound. He went and got it for me. Now I feel I had taken three bottles I was just like a new woman and have had splendid health ever since. Three of my neighbors are using Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will gladly recommend it to any one who is suffering as I did."—Mrs. Neal Bowser, R. R. 1, Minesing, Ontario.

Do you feel broken down, nervous and weak sometimes? Do you have backache, headache, dizzy spells? Sometimes comes to women when they are not well? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent to make you feel much better. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently will relieve this condition.

SPORTOGRAMS

By "The Observer"

"The sporting section from the ground.

The birds they sing on high,
And soon we'll hear that welcome sound—

Come on, you guys, let's break that tie."

Well boys, the big leaguers have arrived back from sunny climes to their home stamping ground and presently the stands and bleachers of those historic stadiums where so many battles have been fought and won will again reverberate with the cheers and groans of that vast host who pay the salaries of their favorite stars.

The critics are picking the winners of the two leagues already. Connie Mack's Athletics and John McGraw's Giants are topping the list in the opinion of a majority of the prominent scribes. These two are the deans of the pilots now guiding the destinies of the National and American teams. In 1913 the A's and the Giants fought the last memorable series, when the Gothamites emerged on top.

Bucky Harris and his Washington club, runners-up last year, is the selection for second place in the junior circuit, while Pittsburgh Pirates, world's title holders, are favored to chase the Giants in the National league. But there's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip" and who knows but what the lowly Boston Braves and Red Sox may come out on top.

Hockey has been tossed into the discard but still the gossip goes the rounds. The latest dope to leak out is to the effect that Mike Rodden, popular official of the Queen City, will tutor the St. Patricks Club next year. Mogulo in western Ontario are talking of another "pro" circuit embracing Kitchener, Woodstock, Stratford and London and possibly Windsor. Soon there will be no out and out "Simon Pure" organizations in the country with these new professional groups spring ing up here and there. The moneyed men are dangling many tempting offers in front of these individual amateurs and a host of them are taking the jump.

Whitehouse of Peterboro, ace of the Central League team, is back in the city of Quaker Oats and lifflocks. The boy went south with Baltimore Orioles but was released and will go to the London team of the Mint League.

Soft Ball at the Armouries tomorrow night will bring together Christ Church and the High School of Commerce in what promises to be a certain rather fast and furious game. The High School should trim the Church boys and Ciacos will be easy meat for the cement misers. The epidermis are a nice fielding team and if they clout the apple as they should, will win. Ciacos are coming out with a rejuvenated team and a new pitcher and hope to solve "Sonny" Green's delivery and score a few. Game start at 7.45 sharp and players are requested to be on deck at the appointed hour.

What about Belleville's lacrosse revival which started some two years ago. There is an excellent field to introduce the game here and sufficient material to place a juvenile team in the O.A.L.A. It is Canada's national game and should be sponsored. The old-timers want it back and will help towards fostering the game. There is a dozen or two sticks lying just covered in the attics of Belleville homes. These could be relegated and get the ball started. A great revival of the ancient Indian game is taking place all over the Dominion.

Gridiron coaches in the U.S. have already ordered the players out for Spring practice, and are whipping them into shape for the Autumn struggle. The big American institutions realize a mint of money out of football and the mentors spend the whole year working out new systems of play, and the players are drilled both Spring and Fall. Dr. Bruce Taylor of Queen's says, football is not a form of sport any more, it is a business, and he is just about right.

Several reports have come out of Kingston this winter as to the intentions of Harry "Red" Batstone and Frank "Pep" Leadley, stars of the Queen town boys who finish their education at the Kingston university this summer. Batstone has been claimed by Montreal, Toronto and London, and Leadley has been reported as going to locate in Montreal.

It is said that Leadley plans to return to Hamilton and take over the same position he had with the T. H. & B. last summer.

If "Pep" decides to stay in football and wear the famous Tiger colors his presence will help considerably to offset the absence of Dr. Karl Quinn, who is said to be in Toronto.

The Brooklyn club has purchased "Chick" Fewster, secondbaseman, from the Kansas City club of the American Association, it was announced by President-Manager Wilbert Robinson.

Fewster played with the Yankees and several other American league clubs. He came up to the American league from the Baltimore Orioles. While not a great hitter, he is considered a dependable infielder The price paid for Fewster is said to be in the neighborhood of $6000. He was released to Kansas City last fall by Cleveland, but refused to report. He will join the club in New York.

VETERAN OVER 30 STILL POPULAR IN BIG LEAGUES

Many Managers Pin Faith To Seasoned Diamond Campaigners

New York, N.Y., April 13.—The drives of 16 teams for baseball supremacy in the major leagues this year will summon an array of more than 300 veteran players, seasoned stars of a decade's diamond campaigning, to bear the brunt of the conflict.

Despite the popular conception of baseball as ever beckoning to the athletes of the early twenties, rosters of the clubs indicate a growing tendency of managers to pin their faith largely on men between the ages of 30 and 40. This year the veterans will respond in increasing numbers to the call of baseball warfare, with no less than 23 players of 35 or more years among outstanding dependables.

Tentative player lists for the season reveal that the major leagues will rely upon more players of 38 years and over than those of 25 years and under. The youthful division claims 106 prospective starters, many of whom are likely to fall by the wayside in the march from southern training camps. No less than 124 men who have seen 30 summers come and go, however, are prepared to enter the arena, including most of the game's greatest players.

Outstanding exceptions to the rule of age are found in the two Boston clubs, which will have the youngest teams in their respective races. The Braves will have a club whose average age is 26 years and 9 months, while the Red Sox average approximates 26 years.

In sharp contrast will be the Washington Senators, twice winners of the American League flag, with a team averaging 29 years and 8 months. Four of their players have reached the veteran class, with Walter Johnson, pilot and star of the club, next in his fortieth year. Hank Severeid, Roger Peckinpaugh and Joe Bush, Johnny Tobin, Patsy Roettger, Stanley Coveleskie, Joe Judge and Joe Harris are between 30 and 35.

Three teams in the thick of the National League pennant fight of 1925, all rated by critics as leading contenders, will depend largely on players over 30.

Despite an inclination to refer to the champion Pirates as a youthful team, their roster reveals 12 players who already have passed their thirtieth birthdays or will reach that mark during the coming race. The Giants go even higher with 13 men in the same class, while the Cincinnati Reds, third in 1925, will have an even dozen.

In the roster of the Pirates is the grand old pitching veteran, Babe Adams, now 43. Six other Pirate hurlers are in the zone between 30 and 35—Vic Aldridge, Ray Kremer, Lee Meadows, Red Oldham, Tom Sheehan and Johnny Morrison. Max Carey, captain of the club, is 36, while Carson Bigbee, Clyde Barnhart, Stuffy McInnis and Johny Rawlings also are in the veteran division.

Grover Hartley tops the Giants' playing field at 38 years, two more than carried by the Reds third baseman, Heinie Groh. Others between 30 and 35 are George Kelly, Irish Meusel, Hugh McQuillan, Art Nehf, Jack Scott, Bill Southworth, Al. Tracy, Rosy Young and Frank Snyder.

Heading the veteran Cincinnati warriors is the Cuban pitching star, Adolfo Luque, now nearing 36. Eppa Rixey, another star veteran, soon will be 35. Carl Mays, Bubbles Hargrave, Val Picinich, Sammy Bohne, Frank Emmer, Bobo Pinelli, Hunky Pool, Ethe Drasdey, Eddie Roush and Curtis Walker are either over 30 or will pass the mark this season.

It remains for the Brooklyn Dodgers however, to top both leagues in veteran material, for President-Manager Robinson will call upon 16 athletes between 30 and 40 years. Zach Wheat, perennial outfield star of the team, is now 38. Jacques Fournier, Danny Vance, Milton Stock and Burleigh Grimes have reached 33, two years short of Rabbit Maranville's age. Also in the 30 to 35 year zone are Jess Barnes, Jess Petty, Tiny Osborne and Bill Marriott.

If you do, it is good value. No sane merchant or manufacturer would continue to spend good money advertising poor merchandise. Every advertised product has been tested for you—by hundreds of other people. They have bought and approved it—else it could not continue to be advertised.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

In "Love's Highroad," showing this Wednesday at Belle Theatre, we have a case of perfect co-ordination on the part of director, star and supporting cast, under Cecil B. DeMille's supervision, and the result, in spite of appearances, is one of the finest productions that has appeared in this city during the current season.

The production, which is heralded as the first DeMille presentation to be made under his new independent contract, is directed by Robert Julian, with Lestrice Joy in the starring role.

The story is of a girl with the idea that money—lots of money—is absolutely essential to the success of marriage. Through her influence, a powerful financier is induced to back her lover and make him a rich man. This is easy. They are married and all is lovely. But love flies out the window of this young bride's boudoir, in search of money. When love flew, and how it came back, makes up the lovely and principal highlight of this very interesting screen narrative.

AT GRIFFIN'S

Blanche Sweet is featured in the latest First National film offering, "The Far Cry," which opened at Griffin Theatre last night. Jack Mulhall, Myrtle Stedman and Hobart Bosworth are entrusted with important roles.

The picture is based on the Arthur Richman stage hit of the same name. It was directed by Ralph Ince, sensational Italian screen genius. This is his initial effort for First National.

Life and love in the American colonies of various European capitals are the motifs of the story. The picture tells the story of an American mother with European ways and the return of her daughter to the ideals and ideals of America.

It is a most interesting story and the good house at Griffin's last night was well repaid for its attendance.

"NO, NO, NANETTE"

It is very evident that the "No, No, Nanette" announcements have caught the popular fancy of Griffin's Theatre patrons, as the advance sale at the theatre bears sufficient testimony towards the cordial reception to be tendered this quite unusual musical comedy, which will surely spend a profitable visit here, next Thursday evening and leave behind such pleasant memories as to induce follow in the wake of this type of theatrical offering; a type which embodies all the essential elements of a distinguished and wholly enjoyable entertainment, one well calculated to satisfy the most exacting demands.

"No, No, Nanette," besides affording a treat to those who hold scenic and costume grandeur, qualities to a highly colorful production, provides a farcical story of mirthful purpose and contains, at least a half dozen songs which cannot fail to win the affection to an extent rarely found in musical plays, among them are "I want to Be Happy," and "Tea for Two", two of the most pronounced sensations this heard in many years. So infectious are they, that it would seem that the entire audience are fascinated with their swinging melody.

Then, too, there must be a word of praise given to the entire company presenting the delightful performance. It would be impossible to improve upon the cast chosen by H. H. Frazee, which is headed by John Hyams and Leila McIntyre of special musical comedy fame., and one marvels how he ever managed to assemble such a capable lot of talent in all the various directions, still, it should be remembered that

GOLF IS TABOO WITH THIS CLUB OF BASEBALLERS

Mustn't Win (or Lose) in Diamond Pastime and Talk of Foozles

Philadelphia, April 13. — Any person who enters the club-house of the Athletics next summer and mentions golf will be flirting with an undertaker. Kid Gleason is taking plenty of his famous wuffey and is ready to use it when and if necessary.

Much to the surprise of ball players and camp followers, Connie Mack issued an order forbidding his athletes to play golf. He had previously said he didn't mind them batting the little white agate around on days when there was no baseball.

But now Mr. Mack has determined to eliminate golf entirely from his ball club. Talking about the game in the club-house, on trains or in hotel lobbies will be almost as serious an offense as playing it.

Kid Gleason is behind the boss to the limit in the new order, as he is in everything which concerns the ball club. The whip-cracker wants to correct what he refers to as the "club-house manners" of the team.

"I ain't sayin' that golf would do a boy a bit of harm as recreation on the side," Gleason told us. "But the main trouble is that boys don't stop with playin' it.

"Nothin' makes me madder than to walk into the club-house after a tight game, whether we win or lose, and hear some feller say, 'Gee, I oughta done that second bo'o in three yesterday.'

"I mahtain' that a club which goes somewhere to play baseball has inear thinks and talks nothin' but baseball. They ain't got no time for golf, even as a topic of conversation during the season, anyways."

HERE IS VERY LATEST ON WELL DRESSED DOGS

New York, N.Y., April 13.—Francie, a four-pound black and tan exponent of what the well dressed dog will wear, arrived today from France with his master and mistress, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney M. Williams of New York who said that Francie costs them $1,000 a year.

The trip, Mrs. Williams said, was made for the purpose of adding wardrobe to fancy tailor's shop in Paris. It included, she explained, spring styles in short clothes with pockets for gloves and handkerchiefs, evening clothes, morning costumes, pajamas and other "necessities."

Francie, his mistress said, seldom drinks, but appreciates good liquor in a mild highball at tea time. Bootlegged liquor does not appeal to Francie's taste. She said that she and Mr. Williams have four other dogs whose annual expense is $12,000 a year.

Mr. Frazee is one of the shrewdest and most discerning producers in the theatrical world.

HELP YOURSELF TO HEALTH — W.K. Kellogg

This thing will dull the brightest "star"

YOU probably know this story, or one amazingly like it. It deals with a young man who started out "with everything"—who made brilliant progress for a time—became a "star"—had his little hour . . . and then faded. . . . What vicious thing can so transform a man? Can make a strong heart weak? An energetic body spineless? . . .

Constipation ruins so many promising persons—a dread disease which saps life and strength. The fortunate fact about constipation is that it can be conquered—surely, safely, permanently. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the answer!

As Kellogg's ALL-BRAN journeys through the system, its fiber remains unchanged. Doctors call ALL-BRAN a bulk food. You know the importance of "bulk" in diet. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream, or with fresh or preserved fruit; sprinkle over other cereals or cook with hot cereals; use in soups or make into the many recipes given on the package. If eaten regularly, ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or money refunded. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. A part-bran product can, at best, be but partially effective. Kellogg's is the original, genuine 100% ALL-BRAN. Doctors recommend it. All grocers sell it. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it.

BEST MANNEQUINS NOT "ATHLETIC" TYPE OF MAIDEN

Over 20,000 of These Young Persons in London Making a Living

London, April 13. — (Canadian Press Despatch).—There are nearly 20,000 mannequins in London, but not enough efficient ones for the requirements of the dress parades. The scarcity has benefited the "Free-lance" mannequins, who supplement the permanent staffs of the fashion houses and who are in many cases obtaining £2 per session and attending shows at two different establishments every afternoon.

The manager of a Regent street house says the utmost difficulty is being experienced in obtaining the right type of girls as mannequins. Among the applicants are many women who could not be engaged because they had lost the essential grace through the pursuit of athletics and field sports. The ordinary rate of pay was £4 or £5 weekly, with meals and junior mannequins received £2 or £3 10s.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"No? Well, that's all we have got," said the young lady, with the most profound indifference. "If we should hear of anything we'll let you know. You are not very particular, I suppose?"

"No," said Constance, quietly. "Good morning," and she went out again, feeling rather more wretched than before as she joined the throng in front of the shops.

Five minutes after she had left, the old man who had inquired his way of her, entered the shop and asked if he could engage a governess.

The young lady was much more polite this time, there being a great difference between a person who wants a situation and one who has one to fill. The old gentleman examined the list—a lengthy one—very carefully, and took a note of one or two names, especially that of Miss Constance Grahame, paid the half-crown fee and departed.

A few minutes afterward he was bowing along in a hansom to Kensington Park Gardens, and alighted at the residence of Mr. Rawson Fenton. The usual crowd was waiting in the hall, but the old gentleman sent his name up and was at once ushered to the great man's room.

Rawson Fenton was hard at work at his table, and the secretary at his, as if they had never left it, and having got rid of the secretary, Rawson Fenton nodded coolly to the detective.

"You have lost no time," he said, quickly enough; but the detective was a keen observer by trade and instinct, and saw his employer's eyes lighten and the clean-cut lips contract.

"No, sir," he said, "and I have been very fortunate. I happened to find the cabman who drove the young lady from the station, and the rest was easy." He placed a scrap of paper bearing Constance's address on the table and continued his report. "I left sure she would go out this morning, as I watched the house," he said, as he told how he had followed Constance to the registry office. "I recognized her at once; indeed, the young lady is not easily mistaken," he added, significantly.

Constance was mound at last, and was near him. But how to keep her there? He looked up presently, as if an idea had occurred to him, and beckoned the detective to draw his chair nearer as he unfolded his plan.

The detective listened intently, nodded respectfully and after taking a few notes, and quietly remarking that "it was a good plan," took his departure.

For some few minutes after he had gone Rawson Fenton paced up and down the room, his face flushed, his eyes gleaming his whole manner so unlike the cold, constrained and utterly unconcerned one which so impressed every one with whom he was brought into contact, that he seemed scarcely like the same man.

Then suddenly he resumed his wonted composure, and settling himself down to work again, rang for his secretary and was once more the hard-headed and impassive man of finance.

That afternoon Constance was sitting by the table with a book before her, the leaves of which, however, she had not turned for over half an hour. After she had left the registry office she had walked up and street and down another, scarcely conscious of the people moving round her, her thoughts wandering from the strange things that had happened to her at Brakespeare Castle to the great problem of what she was to do to earn her living.

Every now and then she found herself wondering what had happened at the castle after she left. What falsehood had Lady Ruth told the marquis, and had he believed it? Did Avril miss her and was the marchioness sorry that she had gone?

She was going over it all, recalling the strange scene in the drawing-room, and the marquis' passionate avowal of love, as she sat now with the words of the book dancing before her eyes. It all seemed to have happened so long ago; it was all so mysterious as to seem as intangible as a dream.

While she was trying to put the puzzle together Mrs. Mervyn knocked at the door.

Constance started, and the pallor and weariness of her beautiful face seemed to touch a sympathetic chord in the heart of the quiet, sad-looking landlady.

"I'm afraid you are still tired, Miss Grahame," she said, gently.

"Yes, I think I am," admitted Constance, trying to smile.

"Was it well to go out this morning," said Mrs. Mervyn, in a kindly voice.

"Well, it was necessary," replied Constance bravely. "I went to look for a situation, but"—and she sighed—"it is not very difficult to get one. People are all so clever now, and do not want a stupid person like myself."

"Is there so much hurry?" said Mrs. Mervyn in a low voice.

Constance faltered.

"Yes, there is," she said; "I am very poor. I have so very little money, and—"

She stopped.

Mrs. Mervyn's thin hand pleated the tablecloth nervously.

"Don't let that distress you so much, Miss Grahame," she said timidly, her face flushing too. "You are welcome to remain here if it suits you—if you like—until you meet with better fortune. I mean—" She stopped and looked at Constance's face with a gentle, sympathetic smile. "I have had trouble myself, and I know what it is."

W. C. Tyrrell Beat Out a Rival Prospector at Red Lake

Hamilton, April 13.—An interesting case has cropped up where a son claimed a prospecting gold mine staked by his father almost 20 years before.

This was when William C. Tyrrell beat a rival prospector to the paternal claim at Red Lake gold field.

Twenty-nine years ago ex-Constable Tyrrell staked some land at Red Lake. His son mushed in with all possible speed, and after driving his stakes met a man coming in as he was going out, who also claimed to have pegged the same land. However, W. C. Tyrrell, the son, was able to prove he had beaten his rival by 40 minutes, and the other abandoned his claim.

POLE DIRIGIBLE COMPLETES SECOND FLIGHT TO NORWAY

DEATH SUMMONS E. F. MILBURN, AFTER BUSY LIFE

For 52 Years He Was Teacher in B.H.S.—Some Years Principal

Edward Fairfax Milburn, B.A., for 52 years teacher and latterly the Principal of the Belleville High School, died during the night at his home 216 Charles street.

His demise was not unexpected as he had been in ill health for some time. By a coincidence he died on his birthday.

After obtaining a public and high school education, Mr. Milburn attended Trinity University, where he graduated and obtained his degree. Deceased entered into the teaching profession and for 52 years was engaged in imparting knowledge to the youth of the city and vicinity. For a number of years Mr. Milburn was the Principal of Belleville High School. A few years ago owing to ill health he was superannuated and had since lived a retired life. If there was one form of sport deceased delighted in more than another it was yachting and he was considered an expert in handling a sail boat which style of craft he was especially interested in. But in his Vanity days he was also champion pole vaulter of Canada.

Mr. Milburn was a member of St. Thomas Anglican Church and a member of Moira Lodge No. 11 A. F. & A. M. Hospitable, genial and courteous he was respected for his talents and beloved by a large circle of friends who will regret his passing. In early life deceased was a well-known singer being possessed of an excellent voice.

A few months ago Mrs. Milburn preceded her husband to the tomb. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. K. W. Scott and Misses Nonie at home and Miss Roby, of Toronto. To those left in mourning we mourn the loss of a devoted father will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of many friends.

British Schoolboys Make Fine Farmers

They arrived recently at Saint John, N.B., on the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose, and soon after left for Montreal, where they were received by officers of the Association.

The British school boy picks up farm routine quickly and performs his duties efficiently. This has been proved by the large demand received by the British Immigration and Colonization Association from Canadian farmers for more British boys. The group shown above have almost all been placed and as many more applications were received for boys. Other persons are being arranged for.

MISS FLORENCE BARBER WINS A SILVER MEDAL IN W.C.T.U ORATORY TEST

Miss Florence Barber was the winner of the silver medal contest given by the W.C.T.U. under the auspices of the W.C.T.U. in John Street United Church parlors last evening and her recitation, "Slim's Little Girl" proved a most convincing argument in the cause of temperance.

The judges, Mr. J. G. Herity, Miss Madeline Young, and Mrs. Burton Asselstine gave their decision after considerable deliberation of three splendid representations, articulation and impersonation. In presenting the medal, Mr. Herity paid a warm tribute to the talented talkies the contestants were received from Mrs. Marion Wood Alves who had prepared the girls in but six lessons. "Mrs. Alves has done wonders in so short a time and the contestants showed unusual talent," he commented.

The contestants were: Miss Florence Barber, "Slim's Little Girl"; Miss Laura Bell, "The Old Violin"; Miss Margaret Wood, "The Result of Treating"; Miss Theo Reid, "One of the Fallen"; Miss Florence Ventress, "How Mrs. Hennessey Saved Her Boy"; Miss Phebe Donaldson, "A Sad Tragedy"; Miss Maude Eddison, "A Drunkard's Wife"; Mrs. May Starke, "Undressing Little Sod."

An excellent musical programme was given to which Mrs. M. P. Duff and Mrs. A. H. Singer contributed a duet, Miss Irma Woodley a piano solo and Mrs. Singer a solo. Rev. Mr. Sharpe of Point Anne delivered a very commendatory commentary on the contestants upon their efforts which he felt would prove a splendid asset to the cause of temperance.

TO REBUILD ROME AT DUCE'S ORDER IN RECORD TIME

Senate Committee has Handed Down Decision at Ottawa

Grandoise Plan Will Restore Many of Her Ancient Glories

The following statement was issued to the newspapers here today from the office of Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C.—the text of a telegram from Ottawa from Mr. Mikel:

"Ottawa, April 14.—The Senate Divorce Committee passed the Bill yesterday granting a divorce to Bleecker Foy Maiden, of Belleville, from his wife Henrietta Elmina Maidens on the usual grounds. This is the third session during which the Bill has been up for decision on each occasion being stoutly opposed. W. C. Mikel for the Bill, Col. O'Flynn against."

Rome, April 11.—Full details of the grandiose plan for beautification and development of Rome, which will be begun on April 21 were published today. This work is to be undertaken in obedience to the commands of Mussolini, who in a speech inaugurating Senator Cremonesi as the first governor of Rome, ordered him to make Rome again "as vast, well ordered and powerful as in the days of the Emperor Augustus." The state will advance ninety million lire to the city administration for meeting the first expenses of putting the plan into effect.

The plan worked out by the city administration contains much that is highly interesting from the archeological viewpoint. It includes the demolition of the hotel houses and huts clustering round the theatre of Marcellus, excavation of the Forum Olitorium and the Circus Maximus and restoration and beautification of the ancient Appian Way.

The theatre of Marcellus, which was one of the finest buildings of Imperial Rome, now rises in the middle of a slum district, and is inhabited by many poor families who have turned into storehouses the boxes wherein the citizens and Rome's patricians once used to sit. It is proposed to demolish all these unhealthy houses and cut a large open space round the theatre, which then will remain revealed to view in its full splendor.

The remains of the Forum Olitorium and the Circus Maximus are now completely buried, though plans for their excavation have been considered for years. The Circus Maximus is of especial interest as it was imperial Rome's greatest arena, and was capable of the height of its glory of seating 100,000 people.

Former Newspaper Proprietor and Manufacturer Here

One of Belleville's best known citizens and manufacturers passed away last evening in the person of Mr. Thomas Samuel Carman, who died at his home 228 Dundas Street east.

Although deceased had been in failing health for some time his demise was not anticipated. Yesterday he was able to be about his home and in the afternoon retired to rest as was his custom. Short by after 5 o'clock the end came rather suddenly.

At Green Point, Prince Edward County, on the 4th day of October, 1840, Mr. Carman was born, being thus in his 86th year. In early life deceased became interested in the publication of a newspaper and for some time was proprietor of the Napanee Express and was for a time a partner of the late Sir Richard Cartwright. Later he purchased from his brother the Daily Ontario of this city and for a number of years was its proprietor issuing with the daily the Weekly Chronicle. Some sixteen years ago, Mr. Carman disposed of the newspaper plant to Messrs. W. H. Meyers and A. D. Hertig.

Previous to relinquishing his interest in the newspaper Mr. Carman was interested in the Belleville Hardware and Lock Manufacturing Company Pinnacle street and later became President of the Company. Under his management the business has increased and its product has an excellent reputation in the commercial world. Until recently Mr. Carman was active and attentive to his business interests. In religion deceased was a Methodist being connected with Bridge Street Church. He was also a member of the I.O.O.F. and A.O.U.W. societies. In politics he was a Liberal and with provincial leanings.

Prof. MacClement, Queen's University Gives Talk to Hort. Society

"Winged Friends and Enemies" the interesting lecture by Professor W. T. Mac Clement, professor of biology of Queen's University given in the City Hall last evening under the auspices of the Horticultural Society was a lot of friends for the birds but a far greater number of enemies for the insects which prey upon plants and animals.

SOCIETY PROSPEROUS

Before introducing the speaker Mr. Walter E. Scott who in the absence of Mr. J. B. Findlay, occupied the chair, reviewed the activities of the society and its aims. He stated that there are 1,000 active members and the funds are sound. The society has secured several plots about the city in which 4700 tulip bulbs have been planted. The chief trouble the society encounters, he stated, is the collection of fees in the spring of which many members are tardy.

Congratulating the Society upon the healthy condition reported Prof. Mac Clement dealt in opening upon the secret such an organization is to a community.

"Insects" he said in the course of his address, "are our winged enemies" enemies which have been made. The reasons they have survived are many, they are so small they are able to hide, they are better adapted to surroundings, they are better equipped for procreation, they can endure changes of temperature, freezing up when it gets cold and thawing out when the weather changes but the most important reason is the enormous rate at which they reproduce. Man has discovered that the bird is the most important creature but in this insects have not agreed and they are our greatest rivals having a regard for our claim of being lords of creation. There are one and a half million species of insects with three hundred and fifty thousand species have been studied.

INTERESTING SLIDES

The greater part of Professor Mac Clement's lecture was given with some very interesting slides in which he showed the white striped moth which, eating day and night, preys upon oak trees, then the gypsy moth and other harmful insects with particular reference to the pest beetle, the great enemy of orchards, which the speaker said may be exterminated locally by the destruction of a few cocoons of carbon bi-sulphide in the barrows of the beetle, the opening being sealed with putty.

THE CORN BORER

Of particular interest was the Professor's reference to the corn borer which he dwelt upon the slide in detail and which he said came to us from the United States. For its destruction no effective means has as yet been found. We will, he said, however, fight it.

PREY ON PERSON

The second group of insects dealt with was that group which preys upon the human being. He instanced first the mosquito, the only effective means for the destruction of which is the sealing of the ponds in which it breeds with crude oil in order to destroy its breathing apparatus. The tse-tse fly, carrier of sleeping sickness was shown and its filthy habits and terrors explained.

FRIENDS

Our friends the birds which destroy the enemies were shown in some excellent pictures starting with the water fowl which are nearest the serpent from which they developed. Many types of birds were shown and their habits explained to their powers of destroying insects exhibited, the only one coming in for any real criticism being the horned owl.

VOTE OF THANKS

A very hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Wallace Havelock Robb, who had a few hard things to say for cold storage eggs and add chaff away our feathered friends.

CONVENT GARDEN MARKET CLOSES AFTER 300 YEARS

Famous Hustings Supplied Virtually all of London With Vegetables

London (By Mail) — London's great marketplace, the famous Covent Garden, is to be done away. It has been there in the great square for centuries and it is to be removed overnight to a bigger space in old Bloomsbury in order to make way for the greatest street improvement scheme ever planned in England. The new market will have a freight station and garages, storage facilities underground and a system of communicating tunnels and terminals connecting with the new arterial roads from London. And in Covent Garden artists will no more stop with easel and sketch-pad to draw old women shifting peas and the costermongers about their business.

Covent Garden market supplies virtually all of London with its vegetables. Into it daily come 2,000 tons of potatoes, hundreds of thousands of cabbages, and 10,000 sacks of peas and beans. And on every route, box, barrel or truck load the agents of the farmers have for years levied a tax. The property belongs now to the Beecham estates. Once it was part of the landholdings of the Duke of Bedford. Farther back the monks of Westminster Abbey used it for a garden and a burying ground. It was the convent garden then. The square of 19 acres was formed nearly 300 years ago from the designs of Inigo Jones, architect of St. Pauls Church. As the kitchen garden of the Westminster monks it was a walled enclosure that extended from the Strand to Long-acre. In the seventeenth century the garden was a very fashionable quarter of the town.

MARKET FOR 300 YEARS

It was 1656 when the market appeared in the square. It was a few rough wooden sheds and stalls then. In 1829 the rough sheds were succeeded by a market house covering about three acres. In 1859 a flower market covered with glass was put up on the south side of the opera house.

Dickens in his day wrote about Covent Garden market. He liked to watch the chittering vans, but resented the condition of the children who scavenged the streets. The place for a long time had the reputation of being insanitary, but in modern times has been wonderfully well kept. Here came oranges from Spain, lemons from Italy, strawberries from Hampshire and Kent, grapes, melons, peaches, plums, potatoes, tomatoes and cucumbers—all that man desires in fruit flower and vegetable. Edmund Burke wrote in 1771: "My carrots last year were remarkably fine. I sold as much as brought £14, and I am convinced that if I had known Covent Garden as I do now, I should have sold the same weight for near £30.

ALL SORTS OF PEOPLE

The flower market is on the west side of Wellington street. At six o'clock of a summer morning the middle of the streets surrounding the market is lined with the vans of greengrocers and fruiterers. From the vans the porters carry the newly purchased goods to the market. By nine o'clock the market itself is crowded with all sorts and conditions of people.

The regular buyers, the shoppers for flowers, nurses carrying bloxsoms for the hospitals, children mindful of their mothers, hucksters and hookers-on all gather there. At nine or thereabout the buyers and the salesmen alike go to breakfast at the hotels about the square. At 10 o'clock the auction sales begin in Floral Hall, and attending them are buyers from all over England. By noon their purchases begin to come forth in bright heaps to vans which carry them for shipment or to the shops of the city.

The early morning vans have disappeared by the time breakfast is over, bearing stocks north so far as Pinchley, eastward to Woodwich, west to Richmond and south to Croydon. By the afternoon the market grows gradually quiet and empty comes, and with evening the coun-

Had to Lie, Bribe and Drink to Put Over Prohibition He States

New York, April 14.—Lying and bribery on the part of advocates of prohibition in their fight for the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act are admitted by William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, who, writing in the current number of Hearst's International and Cosmopolitan magazine maintains that such practices were justified by the end they achieved.

Calling his articles "I had to lie, bribe and drink to put over prohibition in America," he begins: "I helped to put prohibition over on America and am now trying as best I can to help put it over on the world." After recounting early campaigns against liquor traffic in the Indian Territory, he continues:

"It was at just about this time, however, that the Anti-Saloon League had entered into a new kind of behavior. In thousands of local and State-wide contests, under the general leadership of the late Purley A. Baker, a horde of astute persons schooled in the defeats, of the emotional past, began to scent new ways of victory. From oratory and denunciation they turned to practical tactics.

"I am not engaged in the task of defending either my own conduct or that of the Anti-Saloon League. In the abstract much could not with ease be justified ethically. I am only setting down facts.

SAYS HE LIED TO GAIN END

"Did I ever lie to promote prohibition? Decidedly yes! I have told enough lies for the cause to make Ananias ashamed of himself. The lies that I have told would fill a big book. But—I have never lied to my associates and I have never lied to the public. I have told a sinners a thousand lies for the purpose of decoying them into telling the truth.

"Did I ever bribe anybody? In my law enforcement work for the Government I bribed many bad men to give me information about their associates. But outside of that I have never bribed anybody. I have never known a single case in which any Anti-Saloon League man has bribed public officials."

He denies that the league ever "blackmailed" public officials into favoring their measures, but admits that the organization did "keep records of the acts of public men as to matters relating to the liquor traffic Pertinent facts of this sort were published from time to time."

"Did I ever drink to promote prohibition?" Mr. Johnson continues. "Yes, gallons of it. In fact, I have never drunk for any other purpose In seeking hidden information, in perfecting criminal cases, I have drunk plenty of the stuff.

"And so, actuated by these principles, or lack of principles, I flung the remaining years of my life into the program of the Anti-Saloon League and later into the international aspects of the same movement."

COKING PLANTS OR ELSE SUBSIDY TO AID COALMEN

Mayor Hume Cronyn Makes Two Suggestions Before Montreal Audience

Montreal, Que., April 14.—Two suggestions for enabling Canada to become independent of United States for coal supplies and to bring about prosperity in the perilous coal areas in Nova Scotia, were submitted by Major Hume Cronyn K. C., former M.P., of London, Ont., at the annual meeting of the Young Men's Canadian Club here. Mr. Cronyn was a member of the Duncan Commission appointed to investigate the Nova Scotia coal conditions.

Establishment of coking plants in Montreal and other large central cities for the converging of Nova Scotia slack into domestic coal, was the first suggestion of Major Cronyn. The other was that the Federal Government grant a subsidy for each ton of Nova Scotia coal sold to Montreal and points west and for each ton of Alberta coal sold east of Winnipeg.

Heavy carts and trucks rumble in again bearing the produce for the next day's sale.

All this is to go. Where the centuries have seen the vending of the means of life, the flower hall and the market stalls will vanish, away. Within a year, the promise is shed Covent Garden market shall be removed.

Ford Leadership Has Been Earned

EVERY product which is a leader has earned its leadership.

Over twelve million Ford cars in the hands of owners have proved Ford quality beyond question.

Recently a Ford car, immediately after it was assembled, started a transcontinental trip across Canada and completed that trip under its own power.

Countless travelers in every part of the world have made difficult trips in Ford cars to areas inaccessible to other cars.

Ford cars lead, therefore, because they have earned their leadership.

MARRIED WOMEN CANNOT TEACH TORONTO PUPILS

Have Been Driven From Chance of Job by Education Policy

Toronto, Ont., April 14—(Canadian Press)—According to the Daily Star Toronto has driven practically all married women off her teaching staff with the exception of widows and those who are the support of ill or disabled husbands. The present practice is that even in the night classes in the Collegiates and technical and commercial schools the married woman teacher is avoided and solely because of her matrimonial bonds. There are a number of ex-teachers, married women, who are on the occasional staff, and are used at times to take a class when the regular teacher is absent. So careful are the school authorities to avoid any suspicion of favoring the teaching profession in this respect that there have been complaints that wives of teachers are being discriminated against.

Harrow-on-the-Hill, Eng., April 14—Any Harrow boy who dons Oxford bags does so at his peril.

The Philatelic Society, which formulates the fashions for the famous public school, has decreed that boys who are 5 feet, ten inches high may wear trousers as large as 20 inches at the bottom. An extra inch is allowed in the case of boys who are six feet tall.

RUSSIANS SNEER AT THE LEAGUE REFUSE TO COME

Geneva, April 14.—League of Nations secretariat today made public a letter from Foreign Minister Tchitcherin of Soviet Russia declining to participate in the session of the preparatory disarmament committee opening here on May 15. The latter intimates with criticisms of the League.

M. Tchitcherin declares the attitude of those having charge of the League's policy has finally convinced Soviet Government of the lack of sincerity in initiative taken by League and in capacity and unfitness of that body to carry through so important a task as the convocation of a universal disarmament conference. In conclusion he hopes that the League in future will only trouble itself to the little world (movement to confirm era in which those who direct League's policy genuinely desire it to participate.

MEN OF BUSINESS DEMAND R.C.M.P. BE GIVEN TASK

Blunt, Impressive Demand by Manufacturer and Merchant

COMMITTEE ELATED

Canada Robbed of 40 p.c. of Manufactures by Smuggled Goods

Ottawa, April 14.—Business leaders of Montreal bluntly told the Stevens committee that as soon as they were ready the Royal Canadian Mounted Police can do a job of stopping smuggling, the Canadian manufacturer and merchant will be convinced that the probe has done some real work.

IMPRESSIVE

Impressive both in numbers and in influence, the delegation first swept aside the committee room the last vestige of law work and substituted a business atmosphere. Then they sat down flat on cost, decisive phrases let the committee know that those of the past and politics do not interest the harassed Canadian trader. But what he does want, hopes for, and insists upon is action, more action, and then some action to plug the frontier gaps through which are pouring smuggled American goods now estimated to be robbing Canada of almost 40 per cent. of her manufacturers.

The situation was boldly stated. Canadian price levels, Canada taxes furnish the incentive for the smuggling. They together have given birth to the highway smuggler, to the smuggler who "profits by customs looseness and inefficiency by misdescription and undervaluation of imported goods, and most repeatedly to the apparently reputable Canadian who smokes yet the-line cigarettes and personal clothing and boasts about it to his friends.

RUTHLESS

Ruthless measures were proposed with reckless disregard for political reconsibilities. The business men want the R.C.M.P. given a free hand on? Let the Minister of Justice to curb the contraband traffic. They want a secret service supplementing the frontier force and extending to Europe and the United States. They want Ottawa to understand it must keep its hands off the anti-smuggling operations. Then they would have special courts or special judges for customs law infractions, all trials in open court, no private settlements possible. For the guilty smuggler they would have at least two years in jail and a jail term that sticks; after that restitution of the duty evaded, after that the culprit to be barred from business in Canada for a year, and after that the same culprit to be deprived of Canadian citizenship for five years. "Jail one smuggler and keep him there for his term and you will do more to stop smuggling than anything else could," the committee was told.

PLAIN TALKS

Men like Colonel Robert Starke, president of the Montreal Board of Trade, George Wilson, president of the Toronto Board of Trade, were among those talking to the committee in the plainest of languages that the most hide-bound politician could not fail to comprehend. Some of the witnesses spoke quietly; others pounded the table and practically dared the committee to give without doing what the merchants think should be done to stop the contraband. And lastly, the M.P.'s got a hint that they can forego all thought of amalgamity and minority report to the House of Commons—a business report is demanded.

SIR LOMER GOUIN AT MONT. ST. ELOY EVENT

Inaugurated Children's Institute—Posthumous Honor For Mrs. Lovering

Paris, April 14.—(via Reuter's)—Sir Lomer Gouin, former Minister of Justice for Canada, and for many years Premier of the province of Quebec, inaugurated the Children's Institute at Mont St. Eloy, west of Vimy Ridge, where the Canadians had heavily in the war. Among those who witnessed the ceremony were Lady Gouin; Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian commissioner-general in Paris; M. Amety, director of the Franco-American Committee, and Major-General Garnet B. Hughes.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the Cross of the Legion of Honor was conferred in absentia on Mrs. W. G. Lovering, of Hamilton, who was a leader among the women of Ontario in the reconstruction work of the Secours National at the village of Mont St. Eloy.

The Canadian delegation afterwards visited Vimy Ridge, where they inspected the impressive Canadian monument that is being erected to the memory of the dead and missing soldiers of Canada, under the personal supervision of the sculptor, Walter S. Allward, Toronto.

The conferring of the Cross of the Legion of Honor on Mrs. Lovering is a post humous award, as Mrs. Lovering died a short time ago. Her husband, W. H. Lovering, received notification yesterday of the honor intended for his wife.

GUNMAN LEAVES CELL ON BUSINESS TRIP

Returns While Search Is On and Apologizes to the Sheriff

Norwalk, Ohio, April 13.—James Lyon, Huron County's most feared gunman, equally envied with either hand, left the county jail this morning. He was awaiting trial for the murder of Frank McGrath of the American Railway Express Company.

Lyon used a bit of copper wire to open the locks, and last night Sheriff Gregory, having dispatched posse and State troopers in a vain search was sitting disconsolate in his office.

"Good evening, looks like Spring," said a voice, and Gregory looked up. He saw Lyon, who went on "just a little business trip to Sandusky. Back earlier than I expected." Now Lyon is back in his old cell, with an extra guard to discourage more business trips.

SPRING SONG OF AN APRIL INFLUENZA VICTIM

By H. L. Phillips in The Ottawa Journal:

Gentle Spring again is here
With its soft caresses;
Vernal is the atmosphere—
Where? You get three guesses!

April skies are soft and sweet;
Verdant fields they mention.
How's dat each yard and street
Now I'll tell another!

Overcoats are packed away—
That's a job that's well done;
Lightweight suits have come to stay
Now, old thing, you tell one!

Gone is every trace of snow—
Cold waves were wrongly;
More like June the days now grow—
Still, don't go and quote me.

Influenza's run is o'er—
(Winter time has did so!—)
Grippe has gone to rule no more—
But don't say I said so.

Shepherds pipe a tune all day,
Jack Frost's rule is blighted;
Come and watch the lambkins play
You watch. . . I'm nearsighted!

Shout the news that fields are green
Butterflies a-flutter!
Tell the folks that Spring is queen—
I would . . . but I stutter.

How one's heart with pleasure fills!
Aprils so entrancing
Dance among the daffydills!
Not me . . . I'm not dancing.

Seek the wood nymph's mild retreat,
Prance with Pan right through it!
Let the daisies kiss your feet—
Good trick . . . If you do it.

Vine-draped is the wayside hut,
Playful every gust is;
Golden summer's near us, but
Not so you could notice!

Robin Redbreasts fill the trees;
On each bough a chorus;
Soothing is each vagrant breeze—
Gee, ain't I the liar?

L'Envoi.

Spring is here, kind gentle Spring—
Spring, the Great Romancer;
Spring is here and everything—
AND SO IS YOUR OLD MAN SIR!

MOTHER, CHILD DEAD, FROM GAS 6 OTHERS ESCAPE

Leaking Gas Jet in Toronto Home Cause of Tragedy

Toronto, Ont., April 14.—A leaking gas jet caused the death here during the night of Mrs. Helen Watson and her 12-year-old daughter, Muriel, and rendered William Watson, the husband and father, to a state of unconsciousness from which he is slowly recovering in the hospital. He is 53 years of age.

When Bella Watson, another daughter, entered her mother's room this morning, she found her mother and sister lying dead in bed. The father was lying on the floor in an unconscious state. She immediately called Police Constable Morocco who carried Mr. Watson to the open air and thus revived his life. A doctor soon on the scene said nothing could be done for the other two. Five children sleeping in another part of the house were aroused and moved on ill effects from the gas. Three daughters and two sons at home, and three adult sons and an adult daughter, besides Mr. Watson, survive. The family came from Scotland twenty years ago. Mr. Watson is a well-known contractor.

A Lady From Madoc

——dropped in yesterday, tired and weary at long looking through paper hangers' sample books and homely lines.

She first stated—I have a living room, north exposure. I wish to make the room inviting, have you anything to recommend.' I understand you people know your business.

Our designer and colorist was consulted and showing the lady a proper paper explained why it was the correct paper for her room with northern exposure. He stated that yellow was the only color to overcome the chill of a north lighting. She saw the point and asked to have no other paper shown her than that he had displayed. She took the yellow and we KNOW she will be pleased and come back again for other rooms because she received a service such as no paper hanger could give—a service alone that is the outcome of years of study in color harmonies and correct application of those harmonies.

Not one mechanic in a thousand understands harmonies.

If you consult them you simply consult their taste It may be good and it may be bad.

Consult those who know and can tell you why rose should be used with grey; why the harmonies and why not. Our Wall Paper Sale, with Free Borders, makes our values marvellous and when combined with a real service, is of great advantage to the public.

DICTATOR PROPHESIES

Dictatorship in government is repugnant to the instincts of the British people, whatever form it may take. Whether it is the dictatorship of the proletariat or the dictatorship of an individual or a clique, there is an equal resentment to the curtailment of liberty, as interpreted by the majority of the people. The principle of democratic government is that the majority shall rule, and that principle has been found to work out, on the whole, quite satisfactorily in the most progressive countries. Signor Mussolini speaks of the decline of popular government in democracies, he says, are on the wane and he looks to the time when other nations shall have followed the example of Italy and set up a system similar to that established by the fascists, in which parliament will be more or less superseded by an executive body which lays down the law and sees to it that it is enforced. Mussolini points to his own country as a proof of the success of such a method. The people there are contented, he says, and contrasts the satisfactory state of the employment market there, the apparent peacefulness and prosperity, with the disturbance and distress which are to be found in some of the European countries. What more could be desired? he asks, and reiterates his gibe at "Liberty" with a capital L.

Strong arm methods may be expedient and successful for a time; but for a permanent system of government there is nothing which appeals like parliamentary institutions where the representatives of the people meet together to air their views and thrash things out. There may be contradiction, delay, inefficiency, but the remedy lies in improving the institutions, not abolishing them.

LUTHER BURBANK

Mr. Luther Burbank, the "plant wizard," is dead, worn out, it is said, by the strain to which he was subjected in answering the criticisms of those who resented his pessimistic professions concerning non-survival of the human personality after death. A few weeks ago he had expressed his belief that he would do the most important work of his career in the next five years; and then God and God disposes. He has not been spared to accomplish that work he had in mind; but his life, nevertheless, has been exceedingly fruitful in benefits to his fellow-beings. The long series of petitot experiments which brought such remarkable success are a tribute to his genius and his indomitable perseverance. A hard worker, whose daily schedule of labor is said to have been not less than fourteen hours, Mr. Burbank did what no other man has succeeded in doing, and yet his methods are declared to have been essentially very simple. Heredity was the basis of his experiments. He would breed out what he wished eliminated by the choice of seed from plants with special characteristics. After many generations the offspring became what he sought.... In the same way he would develop characteristics which at first were not present. Through his researches the way has been shown to those who follow. Others will take up the work and many more notable successes will undoubtedly be recorded.

U. S. CHURCHES GAIN

It might be comparatively easy, from reading reports of murder, suicide, hold-ups and other forms of 1926 "news" to imagine that the United States was headed straight for some sort of moral eclipse.

The organization of athletic societies, backed by huge sums of money for propaganda purposes, might also give the impression that anti-Christian forces were taking on new vigor and gaining ground rapidly.

Against all this should be considered a table such as that published by the Christian Herald in a recent edition, giving the church population of the United States. The figures show that there are 46,883,756 persons recorded as members of religious bodies of all kinds, a gain of 807,256 over the total for the preceding year. The gain is actually greater than the increase in population for the same period.

Except for the year 1922, when there was an unusual rise in membership above the average of annual increase, the gain for the last year was the largest in recent times. It appears to have been fairly evenly distributed among the principal denominations and does not appear to have been materially affected by the modernist and fundamentalist dispute in several of the large Protestant communions.

By grouping the various sects of the principal denominations it is found that seven have not fewer than a million members each. The ten largest with their reported gains for the year are:

	Total	Gain.
Rom. Cath.	16,156,916	205,290
Methodist	8,823,190	229,182
Baptist	8,297,914	104,396
Presbyterian	2,641,956	61,570
Lutheran	2,546,127	42,485
Disciples of Christ	1,759,359	20,467
Prot. Episcopal	1,134,911	15,719
Congregational	907,583	28,588
East. Orthodox	729,650	2,980
Lat. Day Saints	625,160	1,416

It must be that the element that secures the greatest amount of publicity in the United States is really not the dominant factor in determining the tone of national life. The fact that church population in 1925 showed a substantial increase is well worth remembering.

CAUTIOUS CALVIN

Of the fifty-five countries represented in the League of Nations, forty-eight have given their adherence to the Permanent Court of International Justice, commonly called the World Court. Since the U.S. Government signified its willingness to join the circle of World Court adherents, subject to a long list of reservations, it is evident that the governments of the forty-eight countries have been exchanging opinions about the American string of reservations. Probably there were differences of opinion as to the exact meaning of some of them. That is no doubt the reason why the League Council extended an invitation to the U.S. government to send a delegation to Geneva for the purpose of explaining some of the points in the reservations. As the countries adhering to the World Court are also members of the League and will have delegates at Geneva in September, it was no doubt thought that time and trouble would be saved by having the World Court conference there.

But President Coolidge declines to accept this invitation. It looks too much like recognition of the League's authority. Opponents of American adhesion to the World Court charged that it meant entrance in the League, and cautious Calvin is determined not to give them any excuse for saying "We told you so." So those reservations will be discussed and settled by conventional diplomatic means. Washington will have to communicate directly with every one of those forty-eight governments, learn from each what points in the reservations are misunderstood, and strive to elucidate what is obscure. It will take a long time and even at that it is likely that some of the governments will require explanations of the explanations from Washington.

It would have been much simpler and easier and more expeditious to have American delegates meet the others around a table, in friendly talks about the matter. But a great danger has been avoided. No one can now say that President Coolidge has stumbled into a trap and unwittingly recognized the authority of the League of Nations.

PRELIMINARY ARRANGEMENT

There was a tong war on in San Francisco's Chinatown. On both sides there had been numerous fatalities.

One morning, in the midst of hostilities, a mild-looking little Oriental came quietly into the office of a prominent criminal lawyer of the city. He opened negotiations without preamble.

"How much you charge, get Chinaman free for kill another Chinaman dead?"

"Ten thousand dollars," answered the lawyer promptly.

"How much down?"

"Five thousand dollars now—five thousand dollars when I go to court for the trial."

The caller counted out five thousand dollars, and put it on the desk, then started out.

"Hey, come back here—where are you going?" cried the attorney.

"I go kill him," said the little yellow man. "Be back himeby."

A CANDIDATE FOR THE VACANCY

This one dates back to America's entry into the war with Germany. I don't know where it began wandering in the meantime because I heard it only the other day.

The draft board was in session in Lebanon, Tennessee. A large colored man came up as an unwilling candidate for registration. He claimed exemption.

"I just natchelly can't go over yonder to fight them Germans, boss," he stated.

"Why can't you go—you look strong enough?" asked the chairman.

"Oh, I'se plenty strong. But of you sends me away they won't be nobody to look after my wife."

Another colored man advanced with eager step from the group awaiting examination.

"What sort of a looking lady is yo' wife?" he enquired.

MISSING PLANE FOUND INTACT

Two Men Who Were Flying It Left Note To Say "We Walk"

Cairo, April 7.—A Y.M.C.A. missing aeroplane of Capt. Ernest Martino-Zerbi, leader of the Spanish aerial expedition which has Manila in the Philippine Islands as its objective, has been found intact about 17 miles from Amman in Palestine. Reuter and his mechanician had abandoned to craft but they left a note attached to it saying they would make their way on foot through the desolate region to Amman. Reuter and his companion were found the day when he became separated from the two other pilots of the expedition.

Sleeplessness
Comes from Constipation

Loss of sleep—a waning appetite—low spirits—these are only a few of the symptoms of constipation.

They warn that poisons from the waste matter are being absorbed by the blood and carried by all parts of your body. Your vitality is lowered until you become a prey to serious disease.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricants in the intestines. It moistens the waste matter and thus permits it to pass through regular bowel movements without straining.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

WAGAR ADMITS TO BURGLARIES IN LONG SERIES

Appears in New York State Court—Escaped From Jail in Kingston

Watertown, N.Y., April 28.—Evidence against Duane Wagar, aged twenty-six, a Canadian convict, who is charged with committing a series of burglaries at Croghan and Beaver Falls near here in March last, was presented before the Lewis county grand jury here. Indictments on at least five counts are expected to be returned against the former Kingston, Ontario convict, charging grand larceny and burglary. Wagar, who is also known as Delware Voucher, was arrested by the Watertown police on March 27 last. After The Lewis county officers are through with Wagar, he will be turned over to the Dominion officials who will prosecute him for entering the Beaver Falls postoffice. Then he will be returned to the Kingston, Ontario, jail to serve a three years sentence for burglary. He was serving this sentence on March 20th when he made a sensational escape, and came to this country on the ice to Cape Vincent.

Wagar is a native of Enterprise, Ontario. He has a long criminal record for a man of his age. In 1923 he served a term in the Portsmouth penitentiary for thefts.

SECURE IMMIGRANTS OF THE FARMING CLASS

London, April 13.—Colonel Dennis of the Canadian Pacific arrived in London on one of his periodical visits in connection with colonization business. He will stay here a fortnight and will make a short tour of the Continent.

Colonel Dennis would make no statement, but it was understood that the Canadian Pacific was carrying to Canada on its steamers a very large proportion of the immigrants of the year, looking to the Dominion under the family and group passage schemes. It is expected that the coming Continental immigrants of a good class under the new arrangement whereby the authority and responsibility for this new amount of new settlers has been delegated to Canadian transportation agencies.

Many thousands of Mennonites who are the best farmers in Russia, have been brought out to Canada. Strenuous efforts have been made by Mr. Noman, who is in charge of refugee activities under the League of Nations, to induce Canada to accept white Russian exiles as new citizens.

IMPORT OUR CATTLE BY WAY OI EAST COAST

London, April 1'.—Farmers in the North of England who are interested in the importation of Canadian cattle have submitted proposals to the City Corporation of Hull concerning the feasibility of rendering that port capable of handling Canadian importations. It is asserted that railway companies are unwilling to provide the desired accommodation, therefore a private company ought to be formed to lease land on the river banks and provide a pier and cattle yards and that this could be done at small cost.

Australian Wheat Crop Failure Sends Ocean Freight Rates Down

Sydney, N.S.W., March 19 (By The Canadian Press Australian Correspondent).—The wheat freight market in Australia today is exceptionally bad and has reached the lowest point since before the war. The crop is below expectations and no tramp ships are here to take away the wheat that something approaching a freight-crushing war has begun.

Yesterday a Norwegian motor ship, after completing the discharge in Sydney of a cargo of coke, oil loaded in the Gulf of Mexico, contracted to load a full cargo of wheat from West Australia for the United Kingdom or continent at 26 shillings and three pence a ton. That rate is the lowest quoted for years.

At least twelve vessels secured 40 shillings a ton from Western Australia for full wheat cargoes this season, aggregating about 80,000 tons, and the majority of the season's fixtures have been at 32 shillings, nine pence, or more, with an occasional one and three-pence extra for two ports of discharge. Some weeks ago when the freight market felt the effects owing to River Plate fixtures, 35 shillings and sixpence was considered a very low rate from Western Australia. Somewhere, and an auxiliary sailing ship which accepted thirty shillings a ton for 4,000 tons, was looked upon as having secured a charter which must result in loss. The market has fallen further still, and 26 shillings and three-pence for a steam or motor ship cargo still exceeds the limit of the most pessimistic shipping broker.

There are more serious consequences to be faced by the tramp shipping lines trading to Australia, in view of the present wheat position. The first sign of weakness in Australian wheat freights came as a result of a collapse of the River Plate markets in January. The collapse came to ship-owners as a bolt from the blue, but was forced to some extent by ship-owners having sent tonnage out to the River Plate, without having fixed a return freight. When a large quantity of tonnage thus situated was offering to the limited number of grain charterers operating in the River Plate market, the latter, aided by partial spoilation of crops through rust, stampeded the wheat freight market. Within a few days, the rate from San Lorenzo, for instance, to the United Kingdom, had fallen from 20 shillings to 12 and 6 for January-February shipments, and even May and June positions dropped from 22 to 18 immediately. This collapse had far reaching effects, which about ship-paying freights all over the world. Tonnage, finding no chance of employment in South America, has come even to Australia. One steamer was able to get a linseed fixture to Australia at 30 shillings a ton but has to face a losing voyage away from Australia again.

The fall in Australia wheat freight has been accentuated by the quality of shipping which came out under charter, principally across the Pacific, relying on getting a payable rate homeward only to face a certain loss. Australian wheat-holders are almost out of the market so far as the United Kingdom and continent are concerned, owing to a drop in grain quotations; and India, South Africa and Japan are the only markets still open. Japan has absorbed a considerable tonnage of Australian wheat.

From a shipping standpoint, the outlook now is very bad. Only a small portion of the wheat already exported this season has been taken by ships belonging to regular Australian shipping lines. Tramp tonnage has lifted most of the wheat, and tramp tonnage is now forcing the demoralization of the freight market. Apart from this, figures now available show that the regular lines will receive little or no wheat parcels during the winter months.

Usually the regular lines require 60,000 tons of wheat a month during the off season between March and September. Allowing for exports to India, South Africa and Japan there will be practically no wheat parcels at best until August and September. The regular cargo loading berths are glutted with tonnage, to which has to be added a quantity of idle tonnage still left from the big strike, and reports are coming to hand daily which indicate that shipments of other classes of exports are not likely to reach expectations. A leading shipping man in Sydney said yesterday that this winter promised to be the worst on record.

NATURE AIDS THE MUSKRATS

Bad Weather is Making This Practically a 'Closed' Season for Fur-bearers

Nature is working with the muskrats this season by sending along the poorest kind of trapping conditions which has ever confronted the men who usually go out on their trap lines along the streams and lakes throughout this and adjoining counties, according to statements made by a number of them to a Kingston Standard representative. Many who spend the spring months in favored haunts in pursuit of the furry game, have not moved out at all this spring, while others who were on the ground early, anticipating a favorable season, now wish that they had left their traps in the cellar or in the loft in the woodshed.

All of which means that muskrat fur, either in the skin or made up, will increase in value, and those who are fortunate enough to have a coat or other fur on hand will do well to guard it as something precious.

The open season expires on April 21st, though efforts are being made to have the government extend the season in view of the fact that the weather has been so unfavorable for trapping that there has not been really any open season yet, and whatever conditions prevail between now and the closing date the trappers will not have time enough to repay them for the trouble of setting their traps or getting out on their trap lines. If there is no extension of the closing date the season of 1926 will go down as a trappers' tradition as the year when there was really no open season at all.

It is interesting to note that a few trappers in this vicinity, while not greeting the fall of 1925 as a season to bad for their business, point out that in the spring it may be as well, and that they made a profit thereby, in

Larry Gains, burly negro, put the "Dixie Kid" away in two rounds at the Shamrock Athletic Club in Toronto on Monday night. The black boy from New Orleans was no match for the Toronto pugilist who broke through the Kid's defense to better him unmercifully. Gains had a decided advantage of 20 pounds over his Southern rival. He is being primed for the heavyweight classics in the U. S. by Toronto backers.

"Duke" Hennessy, well known in these parts through his visits here with the Hillcrests, has been signed by the North Toronto Seniors. He is a great blow to Hillcrests as the "Duke" has been their main backstay for some years. Hennessy is rated as one of the classiest receivers around Toronto and is largely responsible for "Cannonball" Scott's success.

"Danny" McPhee former St. Thomas pitcher, has again popped up and is now pantoming with the Waterbury club. He pitched four innings against the Toronto Leafs and did fairly well.

Miss Whalen was high lady of the night with 566 for her three string and 194 for her single, while Miss McIntosh was high for the Trailers.

Great Battle For Opening Day in American at U.S. Capital

New York, April 14.—New York's stylish baseball opening took place up at the Polo Grounds with 45,000 people sitting around watching the Brooklyn Robins perform a startling commercial by speaking the Giants 3 to 0. While it was hardly the proper wa yfor visitors to behave at somebody else's party, the Robins monopolized all the attraction in sight. The Giants were there resplendent in their new uniforms, eager and waiting for the admiration and applause of the multitude, but all they did was to play the role of the innocent bystander.

Jess Petty, a fellahanded pitcher, cast a sinister shadow over the festivities and permitted McGraws supposedly hard-hitting athletes the sum total of one hit.

Virgil Barnes pitched for the Giants and, although he fanned seven of the Robins, they were able to punch holes in his pitching at just the moments when they meant most. It was a well played snappy ball game for a chilly spring afternoon, and it was first rate pitching for this early stage of the season.

FIFTEEN PLAYS OF 191 UNDER BAN IN LONDON

London, April 14.—Fifteen plays have been placed under the ban in London since the beginning of the year.

In making this known at a luncheon the Earl of Cromer, Lord Chamberlain and censor of plays intended for the London stage, declared that he did not know whether the fact that this number had to be refused licenses out of the 191 plays submitted was due to advanced views or whether the people were becoming more daring.

Three Outstanding Improvements in Balloon Tires

The most advanced and important improvements that have been made in tires during the past five years are represented in Dominion Royal Cord Balloon Tires. These outstanding improvements are:

First— LATEX-TREATED WEB CORDS—eliminating internal friction and heat.

Second—SPRAYED RUBBER—the purest and most lasting form in which rubber is used.

Third— LOW-PRESSURE TREADS—for Dominion Royal Cord Balloon Tires, which give maximum comfort, to be had only from low inflation, without undue wear

These improvements, exclusive features of Dominion Royal Cord Balloons, result in greater mileage, more tire value and greater comfort in driving.

Latex-Treated Web Cords

Patented and used exclusively in Dominion Royal Cord Tires. Each cord is saturated with pure Latex (milk of rubber) and the cords are held together flat and evenly, as webs of Latex without strands through. Friction and internal heat, the greatest enemies of tires, are eliminated. Latex-Treated Web Cords add to the life and mileage of Royal Cord Tires and this extra advantage costs the user nothing.

How do you know its good?

WHEN you buy any product, you expect to get full value for your money.

But how do you know you're getting it? No wise person wants to take a chance every time he buys something new—or something he has not tested personally,

Here is a test you can rely upon for safe quality and full value: "Do you see the product you want advertised consistently and persistently?"

If you do, it is good value. No sane merchant or manufacturer would continue to spend good money advertising poor merchandise. Every advertised product has been tested for you—by hundreds of other people. They have bought and approved it—else it could not continue to be advertised.

Read the advertisements to know what is best to buy and where to get it.

WHEREIN A PRINCESS LEARNS WHAT A PRINCESS SHOULD WEAR

London, April 14.—Four-year-old Pearl Hay is not willing to believe that a princess can exist without a golden crown and a sparkling crown.

The little miss was commissioned to hand a bouquet to Princess Marie Louise at the opening of the Ideal Home Exposition at Olympia.

"But you are not a real princess," the little girl protested.

"Yes I am", Princess Marie Louise laughingly replied.

"Where's your white gown and your sparkles? And where's your crown?"

"Oh they only show at night", the princess replied.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

Today, "the great middle class" will have an opportunity of witnessing a realistic version of how the two classes of the other side live.

In Love's Highroad," the Cecil B. DeMille supervised production, directed by Robert Julian, which opens today at the Belle Theatre for a two days run, the locale of the story ranges from life in the lowly tenement districts of New York and Chicago to the lavish Long Island estates of the upper rich.

Lucille Ley, who plays the starring role of Judy Nichols, portrays a young girl who has been brought up in a life of poverty and want. Deeply in love with Ronald Merkam, a struggling young engineer, she feels that a marriage without money would wreck both of their lives. Judy determines to make him rich, and succeeds, only to find that when money comes, loves flies out the window.

The novel manner in which this situation is handled and the unexpected climax of the story is proving a source of praise in this dramatic narrative of love versus money.

The leading male role supporting Miss Ley is played by Edmund Burns. Others in the cast include Robert Edeson, Julia Faye and Helene Sullivan.

KING GEORGE ECONOMIZES

London, April 14.—Buckingham Palace and the other royal residences of King George and Queen Mary have come within the range of an economy campaign inaugurated by the Conservative Liberal Party Ltd., speaking at the opening of Parliament, emphasized the necessity of "economy in every direction" and has now brought his suggestions into practical effect. It has been announced that the upkeep of the royal palaces for the financial year will be $10,000 ($50,000) less than last year. The royal residences, which are maintained out of the civil service estimates, include Buckingham Palace, Marlborough House, Windsor Castle and Frogmore House.

In furtherance of the scheme for cutting down expenses, it was announced that the King had reduced the number of gentlemen-in-waiting to the royal household and has dismissed four ladies in waiting.

While rather extensive alterations will be made at Sandringham and Balmoral, no provision is made in the estimates for the work, as these estates are the private property of the King.

WELCOME "NO, NO, NANETTE"

It is only once in a very great while that local amusement friends are stirred to the highest degree of enthusiasm such as has marked the state of feeling which has prevailed ever since it became known that "No, No, Nanette" was coming.

The inquiries about seats is conclusive evidence that the musical comedy will enjoy a profitable engagement and will be recorded a deserved success. Belleville theatre-goers will especially glad to have a chance to enjoy the manifold pleasure features of "No, No, Nanette", an entertainment rich in tunefulness replete with dance novelties and above all else, telling a consistently funny story, one fraught with comedy laughter.

This city was fortunate in getting it on the ground floor, as it were, as "No, No, Nanette" comes following its six months triumph in Philadelphia, and 28 weeks in Boston, with a solid year's run in Chicago, and before New York gave its overwhelming approval and has bidden it to remain there until goodness knows when, as all signs point to its breaking musical comedy records in the Metropolis.

The "No, No, Nanette" Company which will be seen here, is one of the five organizations which are necessary to cover the demand from coast to coast, any one of which is absolutely guaranteed to be the equal of the other in every respect. adv.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"You are very good to me," she said, faltering; "but, indeed I could not. Oh, how can I say it without seeming ungrateful? and believe me, I am not that! But I could not marry—unless I told you. It is just think I owe you that," and she smiled up at her.

Mrs. Mervyn's hand pressed Constance's.

"Yes, I understand," she said, in a low voice. "Forgive me for saying what I did; but—but I could not bear to see you looking so unhappy. I—I remembered that I was young once myself."

"Why, you are not old now!" said Constance, trying to speak brightly.

Mrs. Mervyn shook her head.

"I am worse than old," she said simply. "For I didn't come in to speak of myself, Miss Grahame, but to try and cheer you."

"And you have done so," responded Constance gratefully. "I feel twice as brave now. After all, I have scarcely tried to find anything to do yet, and I am not quite unprovided. To-morrow I will put an advertisement in the papers, and—"

They both started as a double knock sounded at the front door.

Mrs. Mervyn was the first to recover herself.

"Perhaps it is good news for you already," she said, nodding encouragingly as she left the room.

Constance, as she bent over her book again could not repress a sigh at the improbability of the suggestion, and she was considerably startled when Mrs. Mervyn re-entered the room and said:

"At any rate, whether it is good news or not, it is some one for you, Miss Grahame."

"For me?" exclaimed Constance. "Oh, surely not!"

"But it is. It is an old gentleman of the name of Thompson."

Constance shook her head and stared.

"I do not know any one of that name," she said. "It cannot be me he wishes to see—unless—" She broke off as she thought of the registry office—"but that seems so impossible."

"He has asked for you, and by your name, said Mrs. Mervyn. "You had better see him, Miss Grahame.

"Very, well, said Constance, and she stood up and waited, watching the door with an anxious curiosity, which was not diminished when she recognized the old man who had accosted her in the street.

He bowed then as he peered at her, gave a natural little start.

"Dear me," he said, "how extraordinary! The young lady I spoke to this morning."

"Yes," said Constance, too astonished to offer him a chair.

"Now this is very singular, quite a coincidence," he said, genially. "Quite! I little thought when I asked my way of you this morning that we should met again so soon. But you are waiting to know what has brought me here?"

Constance's face assumed most cheerfully.

He smiled and rubbed his hands after the manner of good-natured old gentlemen, and taking the chair which Constance now offered him, leaned his arms on the table and peered up at her amiably.

"My name is Thompson, my dear young lady," he said, "and I have the misfortune to be enthusiast."

Constance began to fear that she was in the company of a lunatic, and could not help glancing at the door.

"Don't be afraid, Miss Grahame," he said, 'I am no more mad than most persons who are ridden by an idea. My idea is—botany."

"Botany," echoed Constance, helplessly.

He nodded.

"Yes. I have spent all my life in the study of that absorbing science, and I am writing what I hope will be a great work on the subject—"

As he paused as if he expected her to say something, Constance murmured "Yes?"

"You. But you don't see, you would say, how this concerns you?" he said, nodding and smiling. "And yet it's very simple. The fact is, when I spoke to you this morning my dear young lady I was inquiring my way of a young person who was to have been with me in my work. But I found that she was engaged, and I was wondering what I should do when I chanced to go into a registry office—"

"Oh, I see!" murmured Constance.

"Of course you do!" he exclaimed; "and there I found your name and address as that of a young lady who want ed employment. The rest is easy. As I have no time to lose, I ventured to call upon you. Won't you sit down?"

Constance sank into a chair, her color coming and going. It seemed too good to be true, and her spirits began to rise; then as suddenly her face was overcast.

"But—but I am afraid you have taken the trouble for nothing," she said, timidly. "I do not know anything of botany."

A curious smile came into the old gentleman's sharp eyes.

"I shouldn't have come to you if I thought you had," he remarked, with greater candor than Constance suspected. "I mean, that is why what I want. I don't want any one who knows or thinks he knows anything about it. Oh, dear no! We should always be quarreling. What I want is some one, some one of intelligence, who will copy out extracts for me, and—and work of that kind. I suppose you could no that?"

"Yes, I think I could do that," replied Constance, modestly.

"Quite so," he said, with a nod. "Now, see here," and he dragged a book from a capacious pocket. "Here is a work in question. You will see that I have marked certain passages—a great many, in fact. Do you see?"

"There, and there," and he turned the leaves rapidly.

"Yes, I see," said Constance, still marvelling. "But—but couldn't you buy two copies of the book and cut the passages out?"

For a moment, a moment only, Mr. Thompson seemed nonplused; then he chuckled and shook his head.

"No, no, that wouldn't do!—I want them copied just with a wide space between the lines so that I can write what notes I please between them. Do you understand?"

Constance's face brightened.

"Yes, I understand now," she said.

"Very good, and can you undertake this for me, Miss Grahame? I ought to say that it may prove a long job."

"It cannot be too long for me," she said. "I only hope I shall not make any mistake."

He nodded.

"I am quite sure you will not, and can you begin at once—to-day, say?"

Constance smiled.

"I can begin at once," she replied, eagerly.

"That is right," he said, cheerily. "And now we come to the important question of remuneration."

Constance flushed and shook her head.

"I don't know anything about that," she said.

He eyed her for a moment, and Constance thought he was carefully considering how little he might offer her, whereas it was the other way with him.

"Wait—let me see," he said; "I shall keep you working, say—well, probably three hours a day. Would three pounds a week be enough?"

It seemed a great deal too much to Constance, even though she did not know that such work would be well paid for, in the market open, by half that sum.

Mr. Thompson, the detective, looked at her with a faint trace of anxiety. Had he offered her too much and so roused her suspicion?

But Constance met his gaze frankly.

"It seems a great deal for so little," she said."

"Then we are agreed," he said, promptly. "I was afraid you would think it not enough. Very well then. I've only to leave you the book and—oh, let me see, I will call for the work at the end of the week."

He rose and laid down the book on the table. Constance rose, too, her face flushed.

"And—and you do not want any references?" she said.

He shook his head.

"You may consult I? And, if you'll pardon me, my dear young lady, your face is sufficient for me. I am a student of human nature as well as of flowers."

Constance looked down.

"Oh, let me see, it'd better say your handwriting," he said.

Constance took a sheet of notepaper and wrote her name as distinctly as she could and handed it to him. He laid it down again with a "Yes, yes," of satisfaction. That will do very nicely. The end of the week then. Oh, my, you will remain here, I suppose; I mean that you do not think of leaving for any cause?"

"No—oh, no," replied Constance.

"If you should," he said, "please let me know at once. Telegraph if necessary. There is the address," and he took a piece of paper from his pocket and handed it to her.

CHAPTER XIV

Constance stood for a moment or two as if in a dream, staring at the book as if she expected to see it rise from the table and vanish into thin air.

Then she ran to the door and called to Mrs. Mervyn, and told her all that had happened.

"And now I shall be able to stay!" she said. "It is for that reason, as much as any other, that I am so glad. Do you know how poor I am—or was, for three pounds a week are riches! I was so poor that I should have only been able to stay a very, very short time. And now I must go to work at once. I must go and buy paper and pens, and—oh, my brain is in a whirl!"

She put on her hat and jacket, and made her way to Westbourne Grove, purchased some foolscap and other writing materials, and came back all eagerness to begin. She sat to work at once, and wrote away, copying the marked passages, and hardly stopping to drink the cup of tea Mrs. Mervyn brought her. She scarcely understood a request as Mr. Thompson had fully counted on, or she would have known that the most elementary botanist could not possibly find any use for such passages.

But she was happy. Success her fingers ached and her eyes burned, for was she was not keeping that dreadful wolf from the door who, once he entered, devours without mercy?

BOUGHT GIN AT $7

Tale of Transactions Related to Court—The Evidence

The police court room was crowded this morning to hear the proceedings in the cases of Horace Yateman and Owen O'Brien each charged with a breach of Section 40 of the Ontario Temperance Act, namely selling intoxicating liquor. After a lengthy trial Yateman was found guilty and assessed the minimum penalty, a fine of $200.00 and costs plus one month in the County jail.

O'Brien pleaded guilty without a trial and received the same sentence.

LOUIS ROMANCHUK

Louis Romanchuk was the first witness called in the case of Horace Yateman. He swore he was a special officer in the service of the Provincial Government in his duties being to investigate any violations of the O.T.A. He first came to Belleville on the 8th day of March and first met Horace Yateman on the evening of his arrival at the automobile house on Station Street. He next met him at the home of Gilbert Deline, Cath erine Street, March 11th where he sold Yateman delivered a bottle which after words proved to contain dry gin. Yateman's errand was the result of a phone message from the witness requesting him to deliver a bottle to the above address. Romanchuk said he bottle was handed out himself and later taken to the home of Inspector F. J. Naphan where it was sealed and the receipt taken. Special officer Shurck a co-worker was present at the time and accompanied Romanchuk to the Inspector's home.

A bottle was produced in court and witness identified it as that which was purchased from Yateman.

FROM A CAPE

On the night of the 23rd March he phoned Yateman from a Cafe and asked him to bring another bottle there. Yateman appeared in a few minutes with the gin and received $7.00 in payment.

A second bottle was purchased by the Crown and it was identified by the witness as that purchased from Yateman on the second occasion. Romanchuk referred often to a note book in which he had jotted special memoranda of the events during the days here.

On the 25th of March he called Yateman, a third time, from the Cafe and re

GREAT LANDED DUKES ADOPT A NEW SYSTEM

London, April 16.—The Duke of Rutland, like many of his fellow peers has formed a public company to take over the ownership and management of his great estates, including the famous Welbeck Abbey, one of the finest country seats in England. The company is capitalized at £780,000. In taking this action the Duke has followed the example of the Dukes of Marlborough, Grafton and Buccleuch, and other titled personages, who formed companies in order to counter the enormous taxation and death dues which land owners nowadays have to pay.

Mr. A. Wood, who is connected with the Provincial Highway Accountant's Department, was in the city today and had a conference with some of the County Councillors and officials in regard to the new system of accounts pertaining to expenditures on roads and bridges in Hastings County.

Those who met Mr. Wood were Mr. G. B. Abbott, the Warden; Mr. J. A. Moore, Reeve of Elzevir Township and Chairman of Roads and Bridges for the County; Mr. S. Fox, County Superintendent; and Mr. Jas. Hagerty, County Treasurer.

Mr. Wood explained in an explicit manner the new system, and what kind of statement was needed from the County Council in order that the Government grant might be properly apportioned.

Attached to the roads and bridges of the County, Mr. Moore, chairman, and Mr. Fox, superintendent, have arranged to do the annual inspection of thoroughfares and bridges in the County which will take some days to complete.

At the June session of the County Council when the estimates are presented, they will include the requisite amount to be expended on roads and bridges. Some of the roads are by no means in the best condition with the passing of winter.

HYDRO CONTRACT WITH GATINEAU TO HELP LOCALLY

Belleville Will Then Have All Available Power Necessary

The Hydro announcement today of the Ontario Commission's agreement with the Gatineau Power Co for 220 and horsepower annually means according to a local hydro expert, that once this is in operation there never will be anything resembling a power shortage.

It will be a big tie-up of Niagara and the Gatineau so that if there happens to be an over load at one point power could be "pumped" in from another not so stressed.

Also it means a big thing for Belleville and Eastern and all Northern Ontario. This big line from Gatineau to Toronto will have stations along it link ing up with the Trent System. And in Belleville for instance will have all and more than all the power it can possibly use.

It means that industries here are safe and new ones more likely.

NIAGARA POWER

Hydro Commission negotiations which have been carried on for some time past in view of the threatened power shortage in the Province, finally issued forth yesterday in the announcement by Premier Ferguson of arrangements whereby Ontario secures by purchase from Quebec, 220,000 to 260,000 additional horsepower annually. The arrangements constitute the power deal, which the Hydro Commission has been able to carry through since it constructed the great Chippewa development, and is the tangible fruition of the labors of C. A. Magrath, since he became the Commission chairman.

INSURANCE

Various features of the arrangements entitle them to rank as of historic importance in public interest, as well as in the history of the hydro enterprise. In the first place the Province is receiving a power supply which will be second in volume to that obtained from Niagara, and in receiving it without the necessity of making any capital expenditure for its generation. Furthermore, the price which is being charged for the power by the Gatineau Power Company, the vendors, is $15 per horsepower, which will enable the commission to deliver it in Toronto and Western Ontario at about $25 per horsepower, or some $5 per horsepower cheaper than the present cost of power from the Niagara developments. The investment which the commission will be required to make for transmission lines, will be from ...10,000,000 to $12,000,000. The latter figure is in terms of 70 years delivery of the power to commence in 1928.

ANXIETY LIFTED

In view of the power shortage which has hung seriously over the Province for some months past, with a consequent burden of anxiety to industry, Premier Ferguson expressed great personal satisfaction with the contract which the Commission has made, regarding it as one of utmost importance to Provincial prosperity. It means, he pointed out, that the anxiety of the Province during the present situation was quite removed, as sufficient power existed to handle the situation until the new supply would become available, following which the needs of the Province would be adequately catered for until the Chippewa development could be prosecuted.

THE WEATHER

Fresh northwest winds, fine and cold. Friday, southwest winds, fair and warmer.

BOOTLEGGING IN MARITIMES TO BE PROBED

Rum-Running Has Demoralized Adult Population

CUSTOMS MEN HONEST

But Their Handicaps Must Be Removed—Must have Clearances Cancelled

Ottawa, April 15.—Wholesale rum-running and bootlegging from Canada's own rum row and the gallant struggle against both which honest customs inspectors are making under innumerable handicaps will be bared before the Stevens' committee to-day when, figuratively, the M.P.'s will ask Quebec and Journey down to the Maritime provinces.

A. J. Doucet, the keen Conservative member for Kent, N.B., will be at the helm when the probe ship cleans for the assault designed to link the rumrunners of rum row and cut off the liquor supplies of the Maritimes bootleggers. Ever since the customs probe convened, Mr. Doucet has been quietly collecting ammunition now he is ready to shoot.

As objectives Mr. Doucet had above all, abolition of a virtually open prohibition, by declares, is demoralizing the adult population of the Maritime provinces, driving teen children to drink, and generally creating a scandalous condition now causing the better citizens doyn east to say "what are we coming to?"

"All of the cases from the Maritimes will be about liquor," Mr. Doucet said today. "and I want to make it plain that there will be no charges that customs officials in the Maritime provinces are dishonest. On the contrary they are honest, sincere, earnest and zealous in every respect. But they are handicapped.

CLERK OF PEACE RETURNS $20,000

Represents the Estreated Bail on Which Province Makes Claim

FIRST AUDIT IN YEARS

Naturalization Fees to Value of $11,000 Go to Federal Government

Toronto, April 15.—A judgment of the Exchequer Court of Canada which was received at the Parliament Buildings, brought to light for the first time the details of one of the most interesting of the audits which the present Ontario Government made upon its accession to office, namely the audit of the office of the Clerk of the Peace in Toronto. In common with the other legal offices of the Province, the office of the Clerk of the Peace f Toronto, A. T. Irwin, was inspected for the first time in years by qualified accountants, and discovery was made of estreated bail to an amount in excess of $20,000 and of naturalization fees to the amount of $11,000. The Government immediately demanded the estreated bail, which Clerk Irwin thereupon refunded, and the judgment of the Exchequer Court received yesterday awards the naturalization fees to the Federal Government.

Upon the accession of the Ferguson Government to power, it was discovered that no audit of the legal offices of the Province had been made for many years and one was accordingly instituted. Mr. Irwin was found to be in possession of estreated bail to an amount in excess of $20,000, placed in a bank account in his own name. The Government straightway demanded the money, which had been clearly estreated to the Crown. Mr. Irwin paid over the money in response to the Government's order. It represented an accumulation of some years.

Naturalization fees to a total of $11,000 were also found in charge of Mr. Irwin, also representing the accumulation of several years. In the case of this sum, however, the question was raised as to whether it belonged rightfully to the Dominion or to the Province, although there was no question that it did not belong to Mr. Irwin. The question was referred to the Exchequer Court, which has now decided in favor of the Dominion.

AMERICANS PAID MORE BUT DO NOT WORK VERY HARD

London Mail Delegation Has Been Making Inspection of the U.S.

LABOR EASIER IN U.S.

Standards More Certain and Operations Become Routine

New York, April 15.—The American laboring man, despite his higher wages, does not work as hard at his cousin on the British Isles, according to T. Murray, one of the eight English trade unionists who came over here to find the secret of the full American dinner pail. This discovery, Mr. Murray indicated as he and the others sailed on the Cunarder Aquania complicated considerably what they thought would be a simple problem.

None of the men seme willing to talk much after their weeks of investigation in the factories and plants of the East and Middle West. They were sent as guests of "The London Mail," and that journal's desire to publish the first reports of their findings closed the mouths of the English workingmen. None knew, however, just what that report would be, for they have not compared notes since the tour of America started and none is certain of how the others feel.

Nor would the men discuss problems that seem to be particularly American. When they were asked how it seemed to be in a dry country, they said instructions had been given them not to discuss prohibition for publication.

SYMPATHY WASTED

A. Browning was the only one who would comment on this question at all, and he only said: "After looking over the country I've decided that we wasted a lot of sympathy on you people." All of them declared solemnly that they had abided by the law without a single lapse.

Murray, who for 18 years has been a pattern maker, thought the comparative ease of the laborers life on this side might be the result of the better organization making things easy and production much more rapid.

"We can't standardize in England the way you do here," he said, "because at least 50 percent of our products are manufactured for export, while about 90 percent of yours are for home consumption. That means that we have to manufacture to suit the particular needs of the different colonies, while you manufacture on a single pattern."

The laborers found the American dinner pail just as full as they had been led to believe. They were startled at the wages and short hours, the welfare work in the factories and the harmony that seemed to them to exist between employer and workman.

F. McPherson, who is not one of the labor group, but who had charge of the party as a representative of the London newspaper, said that the question of high wages over here had been put bluntly to President Coolidge when he received the delegation in Washington. The President is quoted as having said:

"Well, the American workmen earn high wages because they work."

That, to the visitors, was not the answer at all, for to them it appears the American does not work nearly as hard as the Englishman who is paid less.

MAY BUILD NEW CHURCH

Beaverton Presbyterian refused the offers of the United Church which would give them Knox Church and the manse for $5,000. It was pointed out at the meeting held in the town hall at Beaverton by the churchless Presbyterians that it would be cheaper to provide a new building than to make Knox Church habitable. The manse was also referred to as being too large. O nthe advice of Rev., Dr. A. S. Grant, Chairman of the Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church, this new plan of building a church was decided upon unanimously. Rev. A. H. Hare, Chairman of the meeting, advised the same decision. John Ross and Charles McCaul moved and seconded the motion, which read: "A meeting shall be called two weeks from today to consider ways and means to build a church." It was carried unanimously.

Edward M. Smith, 57, president of defunct Wayne County bank, was found dead in abandoned well, near Greenville, Mo.

JOHN ELLIOTT AT DESERONTO INSPIRES BOARD

Annual Meeting of Trade Organization Re-elects Its Officers

Deseronto, April 15.—At the annual meeting of the Deseronto Board of Trade, all the officers of the Board that served since the last election were again elected for the ensuing year.

They include: G.—H. Harper, President; B. H. Smith, recording secretary and treasurer; F. M. Rathburn corresponding secretary, and C. W. Mabley, James Fairburn, R. Miller, J. C. Burns, E. W. Barroughclough, E. C. Metcalfe, E. A. Rivers, L. M. Rathburn as members of the council.

President Harper spoke of the work of the board since the first of the year. From his interesting remarks it would appear that Deseronto is at the path for advancement and that with the united support of the citizenship and interprises of the town much can and will be realized for the building up of the town.

Following the adjournment of the board White Hall rapidly took up to listen to speeches by James F. Hill M. P. P. and John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank, Shelleville. Prof. Eppes rendered a selection at the piano.

After a song by Capt. V. G. Pearce, Mr. Elliott was introduced amid much applause. The speaker started right out with a most stimulating and inspiring address. He carried the audience all through with the keenest of interest. Mr. Elliott knew his subject well, and spoke with an Irish accent. He has long been associated with business and with the Board of Trade at Belleville, and elsewhere. He is a worker and has been one of the big spokes in the production of cheese in the Province. He is strong for agriculture in connection with industrial towns, and has the strongest faith for the future of Canada.

He told his audience to "let the people know what you save." He told them to advertise and all work together in co-operation and harmony.

The resources of the country were held up before the audience in glowing and eloquent terms. The great progress of Canada during the last 25 years was comprehensively shown to an inspiring interest such as only Mr. Elliott can create.

The speech was timely and greatly appreciated, and will serve as an everlasting stimulus to the Deseronto Board of Trade.

At the conclusion the speaker was loudly cheered and after a few appreciative remarks by Messrs. J. R. Bright, and A. E. Rivers, a rousing vote of thanks was given Mr. Elliott.

Following a song by Rathburn the successful meeting was closed with God Save the King.

SELLING ORDERS FLOOD WALL ST. IN BIG VOLUME

New York, April 15.—Selling orders poured into the stock market in large volumes today depressing the prices of United States Steel and more than a score other prominent industrials, shares in the few levels for the year. Motor issues were especially hard hit. Unfavorable interpretations were placed on several trade developments including reports of falling off in new orders for finished steel and declining production. Statements that sales of automobiles were not keeping pace with shipments to dealers and fears that restriction of the Cuban sugar output, while probably beneficial in the long run, might cut down current earnings of sugar companies.

U. S. Steel sold as low as 117 and Hudson Motors at 61 both new minimum figures for year.

Orne; consolation prize, Miss H. McDonald. Gentlemen's 1st prize, C. Doyle; 2nd prize, G. A. Darragh; consolation prize, Mr. Banfield. After the luncheon had been partaken of, dancing was indulged in for some time, appropriate music for dances being provided by the Moo Too orchestra. It was to every respect a most successful affair.

TRIUMPHANT DEMAGOGY

For ten years, from 1914 to 1924, Modesic Martin was mayor of Montreal. He was a city-maker by trade and a political agitator by preference. He obtained popularity by posing as a champion of the workingman and by the usual arts and practices of the skilful demagogue. In office he made himself "solid" with the masses by his picturesquesque poses of an ultra-democrat and by lavish and discriminating though costly distribution of patronage. A shrewd and resourceful politician, Mr. Martin continually played on popular sentiment. For example he appealed to the racial prejudices of the majority by declaring that the majority of Montreal people being French, no person of British race had any moral right to be mayor.

But the long Martin regime proved to be a disastrous one for Montreal. The mayor was an autocrat, armed with veto power, and he used his power in many questionable ways. Graft and extravagance abounded in the administration of civic affairs and the city floundered in a financial bog. Conditions became so desperate that the Quebec legislature responded to appeals from leading citizens, passed special legislation appointing a commission to take over the civic government and reduced the mayor to a mere figurehead. Mr. Martin's prestige was dimmed and two years ago he was beaten at the polls.

Now he has come back with a vengeance. In a three-cornered contest he was elected for another two-year term by a tremendous vote, being a majority of 17,000 and a plurality of more than 22,000 over his nearest opponent. He appealed to the electors boldly with a program which called for the restoration of all his old powers.

It would almost seem that the reaction against representative institutions and the rise of dictatorship which are so conspicuous in Italy has extended to other countries. A majority of Montreal citizens are evidently willing to entrust the whole government of their city to one man, and a man at that who has proved himself to be unreliable, to say the least. However, it is by no means certain that the provincial legislature will be dragooned into removing the safeguards against the arrogance of arbitrary authority by Montreal's mayor.

CAPT. MOSLEY'S PLEA

In a published letter Sir Oswald Mosley, father of Captain Oswald Mosley and his wife Lady Cynthia, millionaire Socialists, takes his son and daughter-in-law to task for insincerity. If they were loyal to their avowed principles, he writes, they would not keep their hogs for tune, but would put it back into the common stock. In reply Captain Mosley says his father's suggestion is absurd. He and his wife, he says can do better by keeping their money so that they can be "effective for the benefit of the cause which they have at heart."

Unwittingly the patient captain has provided a strong argument against the capital levy, in which all good Socialists believe. If, as the captain claims, it is better for him to keep his money and use his interest for the promotion of good causes wouldn't it be unwise for the State to confiscate the money of all rich persons? Would not that money be better employed by allowing it to remain in possession of its present owners and utilized as a source of tax revenue?

A PARDONABLE ERROR

From Le Figaro, Paris:

Nine o'clock in the evening. The sidewalks of the Avenue de Wagram are thronged. The entrances to movie houses flame with light and in front of the Salle Wagram, great posters announce a cohtume ball. A luminous limousine rolls up and stops before the doors and from it two figures emerge—a majestic personage in a voluminous scarlet robe followed by a second, clad in violet. Revelers, no doubt. The crowd presses closer to see. But the masks reveal themselves as Cardinal Dubois, and Mgr. Roland Gosslin, attending the closing session of the diocesan congress. The ball is scheduled for the following night.

DIG GRAVES OR PAY

From the Kansas City Star:

A curious law relating to the traffic in cemetery lots, has recently been promulgated in Peru, according to I'Opinion, Paris. The authors of editors of books of this nature are to be fined a sum equivalent to the sales price of 1,500 copies of the pertinent publication. If they are unable to pay this fine they will be forced to perform the duties of grave diggers in a cemetery for a period of four months.

MENDERS

Fishermen along the old shore bending
Above their nets—the pioneers of mending.

Builders around old shantles with their tools,
Measuring to make improvements by the rules.

Brown, grizzled fellows by the boats Re-calking and re-tarring—here they're burned

Holes for new bolting; she'll be fine again,
The old hull mended like the hearts of men.

Road workers at the bend below the tree
That has been struck by lighting—if you can see

Difference already in the stretch they cover,
Rounding it up and smoothing out all over.

Oh, to be menders of the crude and rough!
It may be yet. It is ambitious stuff,
This art of making old material seem
New as the pristine morning of a dream.

In a hurry? Eat SHREDDED WHEAT the man-sized meal

Here's What They're Wearing In the Very "Centre" of Fashion

New York.—Judged by Fifth Avenue window and Fifth Avenue walkers, the fashion edict that this was to be a season of capes is being carried out.

Ballooning full length in the spring breeze or fluttering just to half mast, the new capes are of many lengths and materials. Shoulder capes give a new face to coats of kasha or serge.

Hip length capes, which may be pleated, make an ensemble with a dress of the same material.

Even dressee carry a bit of shoulder drapery suggesting an abbreviated cape, which is particularly flattering developed in the flowing chiffons of the evening gown.

London.—Designers of women's spring fashions have gone to the farmyard for inspiration and come back with what they declare is a novelty.

This is a "cocks-comb" hat, close fitting, and made of satin the color of copper, a typical farmyard shade. Shaded coral-colored ribbon on the crown makes a realistic looking cocks-comb and looks very smart.

New York. — Never has New York's lady of fashion run to meet Spring so gaily shod as this season.

Shoes of all the natural lights leathers, lizard, snake, alligator, creamy kids, now compete with dyed leathers in subtle pinks, yellows and roses. Smart shoemakers have dyed shoes in plaid patterns and in shadings of the same color.

Shoes may match any gown, or may give an ensemble its sharp accent of color.

London.—The swallow tail coat has become a bit more pointed in keeping with the effort toward creating an impression of slimness as now practiced even by the men.

The new evening tailed coat popular with the London dandies, like the new double-breasted waistcoat, owes its inspiration from the garments worn by the "swells" of the Beau Brummel period.

Its predominating feature is a very small lapel, which rolls short and a very long line to the waist; the length of the coat front is, perhaps, shorter than heretofore.

Dublin.—Irish women to a large extent nowadays wear crepe satin, shine, taffeta and other foreign fabrics and their frocks, despite an import duty of 16 per cent, are almost all made up outside of Ireland. On this account the Irish Industrial Development Association has started a movement to revive the demand for all Irish woolens, linens and poplins.

Stockholm. — Skirts must fall within six inches of the ground at the conservative Swedish court.

In fact, all the ladies who are actually attached to the Court wear black gowns with trains three yards long on official occasions. Their sleeves to these official gowns are short and of white satin. This style was introduced by Queen Desiree who was the sweetheart of Napoleon before she married the grandfather of the present King.

Foreign women appearing at the Swedish Court may wear any color they prefer, but they are very supposed to fall safely down to the ankle regardless of what Parisian dressmakers say.

London. — Coming fashions for men's wear will be really masculine styles, say Savile-Row tailors, who contend the rivalry of the opposite sex has become so keen that men have got to do something toward holding their own in clothing, have decreed.

"With women's clothes becoming more like men's every day", the experts stated, "and men's styles slipping up a little in the same direction, we are faced in the future with the indistinguishable sexes.

"So for the coming season man's masculinity will be cunningly emphasized by such details as square cut shoulders. The effect of a broad chest will be also one of the aims. This will be done by having coats much cut in at the waist with close-fitting hips."

HAMBURG—NEW YORK IN TWELVE HOURS?

Akron, Ohio, April 15.—Twelve hour air service between Hamburg and New York, the aim of a new Berlin aviation society investigating flying conditions in higher altitudes, is seen as a problem of interest but with a solution far from early realization by Dr. Karl Arnstein, dirigible expert.

Berlin advices say the society, known as "The Society for Investigation of Aviation in High Altitudes, hopes to reach a cruising speed of 200 miles an hour at 16 to seven miles. This, they say, would solve the problem of trans-oceanic aviation.

It is pointed out that at the lower atmospheric regions, planes are seriously hampered by vertical gusts, fogs, thunder clouds and other atmospheric interference which do not exist in the high-er strata. Increased speed, as high, possibly, as 270 miles an hour, would be made possible, they believe.

THREE BOAT LOADS TO LEAVE THE CLYDE

Glasgow, Scotland, April 15.—During the coming week-end the Canadian emigration season proper will open on the Clyde, three liners leaving with practically 1,000 emigrants. It is expected that, even with the keen competition among the liners for the honor of being first up the St. Lawrence, Two liners are leaving Friday with the largest compliments of the season, and another steamship is sailing at Greenock on Saturday from Liverpool for a large number of migrants.

MISS CARTWRIGHT DIES AT HALIFAX

Kingston, April 1.—The death occurred in hospital at Halifax yesterday, of Miss Mollie J. Cartwright, youngest daughter of the late Sir Richard J. Cartwright. Miss Cartwright had been spending the winter in Halifax. Her death was due to heart disease. Deceased is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Frances and H. C., of Kingston; and six brothers, Col. A. D., of Ottawa; Dr. R. C., of Kingston; Dr. Con. of Lancaster, B.C.; Col. Frank, of England; Col. R. W., of Summerland, B. C.; Henry, of Toronto. The body will be brought to Kingston for interment.

There were nearly 4,000 entries for the championship dog show organized by the Earl of Chesterfield, committee for the Middlesex Hospital.

NORTH AFRICAN TRIBES PAY MUSSOLINI HOMAGE

Visits Territory Conquered by Ancient Rome as King's Envoy

Tripoli, April 19 —Premier Mussolini of Italy, today moved over territory conquered by ancient Rome, to receive on behalf of King Victor Emmanuel, the homage and allegiance of the wild tribes of this North African district. By motor car the duce traveled rapidly from village to village receiving with great interest the barbaric dances of religious fakirs, the superb horsemanship of the famous Bedder riders and the Libyan woman fighting for the privilege of kissing his Italian hand.

In the afternoon he visited the ruins of the ancient Roman City of Sabra Tha, recently excavated. As he examined the temples and statues he exclaimed, "beautiful, beautiful" then he sat for several minutes with folded arms and head bowed among the scattered remains of a fourth century amphitheatre.

Some one said to him "Some day your statue will be erected in Africa." Modestly he replied: "I am not in favor of that."

NO MONKEY GLANDS NEEDED BY MUSSOLINI

Rome, April 16.—Premier Mussolini who is now in Tripoli, doesn't need monkey glands to keep up his energy, says Dr. Serge Voronoff, famous French Surgeon who is noted for his rejuvenation experiments through transplanting of glands.

ROBERT W. EDDY LUMBER KING, DEAD

Bay City, Mich., April 15.—Robert W. Eddy, 48, prominent in lumber manufacturing circles in Canada and the middlewest, was found dead at his home here today. It was believed he killed himself in despondency, caused by ill-health. The Eddy family played a leading role in the early days of Michigan's lumber industry.

DRINKS ARE BANNED

Critchfield, Eng., April 15.—Lloyd George's golf club here has decided not to mix drinks with its game.

Proposals to make the club "wet" were defeated by Lloyd George's brother and a majority of the other club aldermen who decided that the golfers should refrain. Intoxicants would adversely influence the caddies, and have a bad effect generally on the standing of the organization.

AT NEWMARKET, ENG.

Newmarket, Eng., April 15.—Lord Woolavington's 3 year old colt Coronach won Colueu Produce stakes here this afternoon by three lengths from M. W. Singer's Lance Gaye. Lord Derby's Rainbow Bridge was third by half a length.

A GALLOPING DOCTOR

London, April 14.—The galloping doctor, so called because he gallops on horse back to some of his most urgent cases, has appeared at a race track near here.

He is Dr. D. Irmie, who assumed his new duties with the opening of the steeplechasing season at Hurst Park race course. The track directors decided when the steeplechasing season started to have a doctor, mounted on horse-back ready to attend casualties and Dr. Irmie, who is an experienced horseman, puts in his riding kit on a horse in the centre of the course and watches the races.

Dr. Robert H. Cowley, head of the health department of Berea college announced the discovery of a serum which defeats measles. The disease can be shortened from 12 to five days, and he also claims that dangers of bad after-effects can be eliminated.

A crowd of 15,000 gathered in London on Sunday when six communists were released from prison.

quested the delivery of another bottle. On this occasion Inspector Napban and Provincial Officer Keasey were seated in a restaurant across the street where they could be in a position to watch the settling of the accused.

Yateman brought the bottle and was again paid the initial fee of $7.00 CROSS-EXAMINED

The bottle was placed in the hands of Inspector Napban whom the prohibition agents met at the corner of Coleman and Bridge street a few minutes after Yateman's visit. This completed Romanchik's evidence and he was then subjected to a vigorous cross examination at the hands of Mr. Chas. Payne who acted on behalf of Yateman.

Romanchik stated he had entered the U. S. from Russia in 1912, he served in the Canadian Army during the war. On his return he entered the employ of the Provincial Government in the role of prohibition agent. Paul Skupek corroborated the evidence submitted by Romanchik outlining their movements during their campaign here.

Inspector T. J. Napban on the stand testified that he saw Yateman enter the Cafe on the night of the 25th March and emerge a few minutes later and drive away in his car.

SPORTOGRAMS

By The Observer

The Kingston Club are holding a meeting to discuss baseball prospects for the season. There is current feeling rife in the Limestone City that the C.O.B.L. will not pan out as anticipated. Kingston were rather adverse to the trio group and some of the officers are of the opinion that it will result in a financial loss for the different clubs. That remains to be seen but it is hoped that the management of the Ponies will stick to the ship and that save a possible breaking up of the Central League. The teams as they line up at the present time shape up as an evenly balanced circuit with no one team stronger than the others. In another year things may look brighter when some of the other clubs may see fit to come back into the fold. Great rivalry has always existed for supremacy by different lines of sport between these three cities and this year should be no exception. When Belleville, Kingston and Queen's formed a three-team hockey group the clubs got as large a gate as in the last three or four years when it has been a four or five team circuit. Why shouldn't the same rule apply to baseball? The added expense which has been regarded as maybe's expenses has been considerably lessened through the home attendance.

"Dick" Nallin, who will be remembered by many Belleville people through his connection with Griffin's three here some years ago, is umpiring in the American League and handled the opening game in Washington, with the Senators and Athletics went fifteen innings to a 1-0 score.

Toronto Lakesides nosed out the Edmonton "Grads" in the first game of the Arena the other night before 3500 fans, the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a basket ball game in Toronto. The famous "Grads" lost to Cleveland last week in a hard-fought series.

The game between Point Anne and the Juniors in the Soft Ball League at the Armouries on Friday night, promises to be the thrill of the schedule. The Juniors must trim the cement mixers in order to figure in the play-off for the championship. O'Donahue and Cleaver are the two premier pitchers in the league and the game will no doubt resolve itself into a pitcher's battle.

"Babe" Ruth, king of swat, opened up promisingly by clouting two doubles and a single in the initial game of the season. The Bambino has been training hard all winter and this may be his big year. His contract expires this fall and Yankee owners will not again retain him as his stupendous salary if he does not show the goods this season.

Howie Morenz, Pete Lepine and Dave Munroe, of the World's Champion Maroons, are undergoing slight operations in Montreal for minor ear and throat troubles.

E. U. Beatty, President of the C. P. R., has written a letter to Wm. Northey, Allan Cup trustee, in which he objects to the importation of hockey players to take part in the Commercial Railway League games. This is the league in which Griffin and Dolson of the Stratford Indians and the well-known "Gunner" Appleton of Preston and Belleville, played at the conclusion of the "Big Six" group. These games were played at the Forum in Montreal and drew bigger crowds than the Stanley Cup games.

Recreation Alleys

The Dorys No. 1 won the C.N.R. Bowling League at the Recreation Alleys last night when they played the final game with the Shops No. 3. Shops No. 1 went right out in the first game to count one point, and in the second, by rolling a 1062 score really won the second point, also putting the league championship on ice and the fight to hold the J. D. McMillan cup for the next year. In the third game the Shops No. 3 came through with their best score to win one point but without doing any good. Walt Gerow was the big noise with a single score of 300 and 624 for his three strings. For the losers Randle was the best.

C.N.R. League

In the Men's Junior League the High School boys had an awful setback when they lost all four points to the Ponies, the Ponies rolling up a total score of 2830 against the High School's 2481. Drumm for the Ponies and Mason for the High School were the highest bowlers.

The National Castings counted three points and the Cisco were one in another junior game when the Cisco men were playing a man short and no doubt this helped to hold down their score. High bowlers were P. Cornell 636, and Plumpton 543.

In a ladies' junior league game the Ciaco won three points from the Alemite who had one point. The Ciaco winning the first two games and being beat in the total score while the Alemite counted their one point in the last game. Miss Ballis and Miss Flagler were the best bowlers.

Junior League

The "Why" of the Optometry Laws

They were enacted to safeguard the rights of Optometrists and to prevent the public being imposed upon by unskilled practitioners. Optometry is now recognized in all the states and provinces as a profession of such importance that it should be protected by law. I adhere to all the legal requirements of Optometry and render a considered, satisfactory service to every patient.

TORONTO STARTS WITH NICE WIN OVER READING

Orioles Also Rang the Bell With Victory Over Rochester

At Reading, Pa., Toronto defeated Reading 8-2 in the opening International League game. The smallest crowd in the history of opening baseball attended, about 2,500 being in the stands. Erwin Beane, former Athletics pitcher, who started the game for Reading, was wild. Toronto scored 5 runs off him in the 4 1-3 innings he worked.

POINT ANNE, 15 CIACO TEAM 6 SOFTBALL THRILL

Christ Church Nine Also Defeated by B.H.S. 13 to 8

High School defeated the Christ Church by a score of 13 to 8 and the Point Anne bunch trimmed Ciaco 15 to 6 in the feature league last night.

These were two of the most closely-played games to date in the league and the winners were never in danger.

Unless the teams get around to start the game on time the league will develop into a farce. The High School and Christ Church did not get away till 8.15 and this means the curtailing of the second game to five innings and there was some dissatisfaction among the players on this ruling. Although the Ciacos were on the short end of the score, a ball game is never won until the last man is out and no telling what might have happened in those extra two innings.

High School 13, Christ Church 8.

The students were the better with the bat and easily stuck it over the Church boys. The H.-S inning was the big one for the H. S. who scored six runs in this frame. After this it was easy sailing for the students.

Johnson pitched a fine game and was in good support.

Twig Woodley and J. Mastele umpired. Score—S. Curry.

Ciaco 6; Point Anne 15

The cement-mixers managed to gain a good start and were never in danger. The Ciacos displayed a weird brand of ball at times and would have held the Pointers to a much closer score had it tightened up in the pinches.

Bertram made his first appearance on the Ciaco line-up and did well for his initial start.

"Stoney" Green was taken out in favor of Sanbon in the third inning. Green is being saved for the next game with the Juniors which will have considerable bearing on the championship.

The Point Anne Junior game was to have been played on Friday night, has been postponed.

The schedule has been switched and Wednesday's games will take place on Tuesday and Friday's games on Thursday.

Line-up:

Although there have been a number of couples trying for the prize at the Recreation Alleys in the mixed doubles competition, no one has been able to raise the score that Miss Whalen and G. Anderson put up last week. Several have been very close to it but its always one bowler or the other that falls down at the critical time. The score that is high to date is 1141.

GIANTS CONTINUE WINNING STREAK AGAINST ROBINS

Pirates Also Pounded the Old Sphere to Beat St. Louis

At New York, the inaugural of James Ring, the Lone Islander from Maspeth, as a Giant pitcher, transpired without any untoward incidents at the Polo Grounds and Brooklyn was reprimanded with a 9 to 5 defeat. It was a sort of secret occasion, for the cold weather kept many folks away who would otherwise have been interested. There were something like 40,000 fewer people there than at the opening on Tuesday.

The high spot of the Giants' attack came in the fifth when Travis Jackson swung into line and belted a home run into the upper left field stand, and shoved Tyson home in front of him, thereby tying the score at 3 to 3. From that moment the Robins receded down the chute rapidly.

Brooklyn	5 11 3
New York	9 12 0

Batteries—Barnes, Mitchell, Ehrhardt, and Hargreave; O'Neill, Ring and Snyder.

PITCHER HAINES INJURED

At St. Louis the Pittsburgh Pirates went on a batting spree in the fifth and eighth innings after Haines, Cardinal pitcher, had been hit by a batted ball and retired, and the champions won 10 to 3 from St. Louis.

FOUR TIES ON TUESDAY'S DEAL

At Philadelphia the Phillies hit three Boston pitchers hard and made it two straight from the Braves. Dean held the Braves to four hits.

MAYS KNOCKED FROM BOX

At Cincinnati the Cubs took the measure of Cincy Chesterfield series, defeating the Reds 9 to 2. Carl Mays was knocked from the box in the fifth inning.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

At Washington—Philadelphia bowed again to airtight pitching and Washington took the second game of the specific series 3-1. Cloveleskie held the visitors to six hits while Harris and Cuyler were touched for ten.

Philadelphia	1 6 2
Washington	3 10 0

Batteries—Harris, Quinn and Cochrane; Cvveleskie and Ruel.

IT WAS A PRESENT

At Boston—The Yankees played Santa Claus at Fenway Park with such effective zeal that the Red Sox won their first victory of the season, 8 to 7. It was the Yankees' first defeat in 19 games and much can be forgiven, yet it is worth pointing out that the Metropolitan pitching was again mediocre and the fielding very muddy. A wild toss by Mark Koenig in the third inning gave the Red Sox two runs and it requires no education in the higher mathematics to determine instantly that three two runs won the ball game for Boston.

NO, NO, NANETTE

Lovers of clean, stimulating musical comedy should be on hand in "No, No, Nanette" tonight at Griffin's, very exceptional offering from every point considered. It tells an exceptionally funny story while sprinkled a succession of song and dance numbers, characterized by absolute newness and freshness. It will be remembered that to "No, No, Nanette" belongs the credit of such phenomenal song hits as "I Want To Be Happy" and "Tea For Two," which have set a pace such as is seldom established and will remain affection-ately remembered for a time indefinite.

Aside from its alluring song and dance features, "No, No Nanette" as a production has no superior, and is even said that for beautiful girls and exquisite gowns, one marvels how it was possible to attain the results which have been declared so extraordinary.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

Action! That's what the public wants on the screen or in real life.

That's the declaration of Maurice Tourneur, noted director, whose latest production, "Sporting Life," comes to the Belle theater to-morrow.

By action, Tourneur declares he means movement—physical action of the characters in the play. It is for this reason Tourneur does not believe "Peter Ibbetson" is possibly the best picture material he ever has had with which to work.

The picture includes prize fights, horse races, physical combats in large quantities, an automobile wreck. Melodrama possibly, but intelligent, plausible melodrama.

The noted director explains, pictures which appeal to the public must be full of action. That has been responsible for every possible variety of action in "Sporting Life" is evidenced by advance reports on the picture.

"The company engaged in acquiring the many attractive qualities of 'No, No, Nanette' and which is headed by no less important personages in the musical comedy than Lulu McConnell, Lelia McIntyre, contains the names of such exceedingly clever singers, dancers and actors as Mahlon Hoffman, Mary Vaughn, Helen Case, Dorothy Newell, Floyd English, Eulalie Young, Myrtle Hiller, Mildred Joy and others of equal celebrity.

WOMAN COULD HARDLY WALK

Mrs. Horn Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and would say that I could be without it now. I had a female trouble so badly I could hardly walk and was all run down and could hardly get around to do the work. I would be laid up four days at a time. I was advised by a friend to try

Your Vegetable Compound. I did so and by the time I took two bottles I was beginning to get stronger. I took three bottles in all, and now I am all right and can do my housework. I have six grown-ups to work for, so I have plenty to do. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I think it is good. Yes, I owe my health to the Vegetable Compound, and I think if more of it was used women would be better off. I would not be without it if it cost much more."—Mrs. EMILIE HORN, 38 St. Matthews Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario.

Do you feel broken down, nervous and weak sometimes? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is exactly just to take at such times. It helps, and if taken regularly and persistently, will relieve the condition. c

A Spring Tonic An Aid to Health

You Can Lay the Foundation of Good Health Now by Building Your Blood as a Strengthening Tonic Never Known through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The good old fashion of taking a tonic in the Springtime, like most of the customs of our grandparents, is based upon sound common sense and good medical practice. Winter is always a trying time for those who are not in rugged health. Many men, women and children go through the winter on reserve strength they have stored up during the sunny summer months and grow increasingly pale and languid as the spring days approach. A tonic is needed—blood and nerves at this time will do much for such people, by putting new life into the blood and building that tired feeling that worries thousands of people at this season of the year.

It is impossible to be energetic if your blood is thin and weak or if your nerves are frayed or shattered. You cannot compete with others if you do not get refreshing sleep at night, or if your appetite is poor or you are troubled with sour food and tonic at this time to add to your efficiency now, as well as to save you from suffering later on. And in all the realm of medicine, there is no safer or better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make rich blood and enrich the blood which circulates through every portion of the body, strengthening jaded nerves and bringing the glow of health and a feeling of new strength and energy to weak, easily tired, despondent men and women and children.

Miss K. Sirois, Kamouraska, Que., says:—"I would feel that I was going to have an epidemic of headache some other poor sufferer if I failed to tell you how much benefit I had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before taking the pills, I was in a badly run-down condition. I was very weak, pale and breathless and the least exertion often had headaches and my appetite was poor. I began taking the pills and they soon began to better health than I had enjoyed for a long time; in fact, my health is now the best, and I can say that what the medicine has done for me it will do for all weak, ailing people."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment of ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete starvation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was one of the first to know and called his prescription HEMROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with 98 per cent and 100 per cent of success in 28 per cent and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McKeown's drug store today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

Members of the tramping fraternity are conspicuous by their absence at present judging from the number who nightly apply at police stations for shelter. Last night no less than 16 were housed at the police station here, filling up the cell room. The great majority were under 30 years of age being only 17. The oldest was 36 years of age. The Marquis

BY
CHARLES GARVICE

At last, after Mrs. Mervyn had been in once or twice begging and imploring her to desist, Constance dropped her pen. It was past midnight and panting for a little fresh air, she went to the window and opened it a few inches. As she did so a man who had been standing on the pavement opposite looking up at the house, started and turning his head aside, walked quickly away.

Constance scarcely noticed him, and if she had done so she would not have recognized in the tall figure with its face half concealed by the upturned coat collar that of Rawson Fenton.

On the morrow, directly after breakfast, she was setting to work again, but while she was arranging her papers, Mrs. Mervyn crept in and laid her hand on her shoulders.

Constance looked up with an expression as near impatience as it was possible for her to wear.

"Not just yet," said Mrs. Mervyn gently.

"Oh, why not?" exclaimed Constance. "I must get on, you know," and she laughed.

The pale-faced woman looked down sadly on that ivory face with its eager flush.

"Not this morning," she said. "You still look yourself ill. You were writing till quite late last night. At this rate you would be worn out in a day or two, and then——. You must go out for an hour at any rate. Will you do as I ask you, to please me, Miss Grahame?"

Constance laid her pen down with a wistful glance at her paper.

"Yes, I will," she said. "I would do a great deal more than that to please you, who have been so kind to me, Mrs. Mervyn, though I am not in the least tired."

"Not yet, perhaps," said the wise woman, significantly. "Go into the park and take a good walk, and when you come back you will be fresh, and will be able to work twice as well."

Constance knew that it was good advice though she followed it reluctantly enough.

A great many people were in the park, and she paused now and again in her brisk walk to look at the ri ers in the Row.

Was it days or months, or years, since she rode beside the marquis and Avol; since she lay senseless in the shepherds hut? What were they saying of her at the castle? What was he thinking of her?

She threat the question from her as firmly as she could and, timing herself exactly, got back to Mrs. Mervyn's at the end of the prescribed hour, and fell to work.

In the afternoon Mrs. Mervyn persuaded her to take sweet rest, and Constance walked through some of the large thoroughfares, and looked at the shops; but her mind was fixed upon the past, as it always was except when she was at work. And so it came to pass, as it always does, that she flew to the work as a positive relief; but even while she was writing, the face of the marquis would sometimes rise between her and the printed page, and she would hear the echo of his deep musical voice, ——.

And at times a strange sadness fell upon her; a yearning so vague and shadowy that she could not analyse it. But it was dangerously like an intense longing to see that face and hear that voice again.

It was a lonely life! Day after day passed with scarcely a break in the work, excepting that of a walk in the park or a call upon Mrs. Mervyn. She read a little, but the books seemed vapid and tame beside her own experiences. She began to feel a craving for something she knew not what; she thought of Arul, and longed with an intensity of longing beyond all words for the sight of his face, the sound of his loving prattle. The loneliness was telling upon her, as Rawson Fenton he dealculated it would. She was paler and thinner and there was gradually creeping into the lovely eyes, like a shadow an expression of sadness and apathy. The end of the week came, and the results of her toil were apparent in the pile of carefully-written sheets.

"I cannot think I have earned my three pounds!" said to Mrs. Mervyn as she showed her the heap of paper.

Mrs. Mervyn smiled sadly.

"Thirty!" she said in her subdued voice. "You have been working too hard. I knew you would."

"No, no," said Constance, eagerly, "I wanted to show Mr. Thompson how much I could do. I do hope he will come today. If he should not——"

She turned away with an impatient sigh.

The morning passed. She would not go out, in case her employer should arrive during her absence and all the afternoon she sat and waited.

She had forgotten the day, or had mistaken it, for Mr. Thompson did not come.

She misunderstood him!

Mrs. Mervyn brought her up a cup of tea as the evening closed in, but Constance could scarcely find voice in which to thank her, and when after a few words of encouragement she left the room, Constance paced up and down, feeling utterly dispirited and sick at heart.

Suddenly she heard a knock at the door and hurriedly getting her papers together, she stood and waited her heart beating fast with the reaction of hope.

Mrs. Mervyn came in.

"A gentleman——" she began.

But Constance interrupted her.

"Oh, let him come up, please. I am so glad."

"But it is not Mr. Thompson," said Mrs. Mervyn, doubtfully.

"Then it must be some one from him," exclaimed Constance, after a moment's sinking of the heart. "Did he say? Did he give you his name?"

"No," replied Mrs. Mervyn. "He only said he wished to see you on business."

"Then he is from Mr. Thompson," said Constance, eagerly. "Please send him up."

Mrs. Mervyn went down again, a moment or two passed and the door opened.

Constance looked up, then started back with a low cry, for there stood Rawson Fenton. ——

For a space in which one could count twenty they stood regarding each other in silence; Constance pale and open eyed with astonishment, he with the look in his face which she remembered "to well; the expression of quiet determination and inflexibility of purpose.

"Mr. Fenton!" she said at last.

He closed the door, and came toward her, a certain suppressed eagerness in his eye and manner.

"Yes, it is I," he said, and his voice, for all it studied calmness had an under current of excitement, "You are surprised, Constance? You are not—sorry to see me? You will not say that?"

"I—I am surprised," she said, and her voice trembled. "I did not expect—I thought it was some one else."

She did not ask him to sit down, and he stood leaning his hand upon the table which separated them, his dark eyes fixed on her face with a strange mixture of scrutiny and entreaty.

"I have alarmed you," he said, after a moment's pause. "I ought to have sent my name up. But I thought—well, I feared you would not see me."

"Why should I refuse to see you?" she said, with a gentle dignity which called up before him, as if in a flash of light, the old time, the time in which he had heard her voice; the time when he had knelt to her —and then threatened her.

"I did not know," he said, "I was afraid. And I could not risk it. I wanted to see you too badly."

Constance looked at him, her self-possession coming back to her gradually.

"How did you know that I was here, Mr. Fenton?" she asked, and she tried to put the question indifferently.

Another man would have told a glib falsehood, but Rawson Fenton was too clever, and he knew Constance too well to be guilty of an error.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad for the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best; be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo which is pure and greaseless and is better than anything you can use.

CORINNE GRIFFITH
Charming Film Star
Uses Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff, and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified, beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

"Yes," he replied, quietly, and with no trace of vaunting in his earnest voice. "There are few men even in this London, richer than I am."

"Then," she said, flushing upon him—"then my father," her voice broke slightly, "was not deceived, and you have grown rich on the secret, for which he gave his reward and life!"

He did not flinch for an instant.

"You mean the secret of the jasper," he said, quietly, almost sadly. "You forget that, if secret there was, it lived only and died with him. You wrong me, Constance. I left the hut immediately after you. I was carried away by the rangers. Had I stayed and known the discovery your father fancied he had made, I should not have robbed him of you. The place was mine."

He spoke quietly, with an air and tone of patiently-borne injury that almost shocked Constance.

"Do you doubt me?" he said. "It was mine from the beginning. I have the deeds—you shall see them——"

She put out her hand.

"It does not matter," she said.

"No," he responded, calmly. "But I do not want to be under a suspicion. What! I rob you, for whom I would lay down my life; of whom I have thought day and night for all this long and weary time! Ah, Constance, do not treat me so coldly. Surely, sure by such devotion, such faithfulness as mine, deserves better treatment. I come to you with the same love, as true and passionate as ever, and lay it at your feet."

He moved nearer to her, and stretched out his hand as he spoke, his passion breaking down, or rather breaking through, his artificial calm, his face pale and working, his lips trembling.

NEW TARIFF DEATH BLOW TO MOTOR CAR INDUSTRY

PROTECTION ON AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY WIPED OUT IN ONE STROKE

INCOME TAXES COLLECTED HERE MAY TOTAL HIGH

All Dividends Now Taxable —Surtaxes Are To Be Woped Out

While the apparent reductions in income taxes are very considerable there will be no great loss in revenue collected by the Department in this district, according to officials at the local income Tax office.

This will be the case for several reasons.

For one thing there is the decrease in exemption where both husband and wife are in receipt of taxable income from $4,000 to $2,500.

And there will be very considerable abortion of the decrease in taxation because of the fact that all dividends will now be taxable. Dividends from corporations will be taxable and this according to income tax authorities will balance alone a vast amount of the amount dropped by higher exemptions to the moderate tax payer.

There are to be no surtaxes.

Mr. W. L. Doyle said today to The Intelligencer that he had as yet no instructions as to how to proceed and warned the public that for the present they should carry on with their returns to the income tax office. If there were later rebates to be made they would be made when instructions to do so had arrived.

BRITAIN LOYAL TO FREE STATE IN ALL DEALINGS

Prof. Smiddy Tells Club at Toronto of Current Affairs

Toronto, April 16.—The economic condition of the Irish Free State was reviewed by Professor A. A. Smiddy, representative of that country at Washington, in an address at the Empire Club here. He detailed what the Irish Free State Government had done toward laying the foundation of sound industrial and agricultural development, and declared that its chief concern was agriculture, as this was the basic industry of the south of Ireland.

Free State public finance was in a flourishing condition, Professor Smiddy said. The Government avoided borrowing and made capital expenditures out of current revenue. Taxes, however, were high, almost as high as in England.

Educatio was on a Gaelic basis. "We mean to be bi-lingual, but we have not intention of abolishing the English. We are on very friendly terms with Great Britain. She has loyally carried out the treaty."

In an interview Professor Smiddy declared the constitution of the Free State declared the state definitely co-equal with Britain. England no longer had any supremacy over Ireland, he said. He asserted that the Free State's representation at Washington meant, not the state's independence of the British Empire, but its independence of the British Parliament. However, this Government had the most amicable relations with the British and Ulster Governments.

"SERGEANT MURPHY" DIES

Bogside, Scotland, April 16.—Sergeant Murphy, steeple chaser, owned by Stephen Donoghue, winner of the Grand National in 1923, broke his hind leg in West Scotland Handcap here today, and was destroyed.

DIRIGIBLE NORGE AT LENINGRAD FOR TWO WEEKS

Will Be Re-Engined Before Attempt is Made For Pole

Leningrad, April 16.—The giant Italian built Nobile dirigible Norge of the Amundsen-Ellsworth expedition is being refitted with three new engines here today in preparation for her flight to Spitsbergen. After having been lost for the better part of seventeen hours yesterday on the voyage from Oslo, Norway, the big bag arrived at Trotak airdrome at 3.30 o'clock last night. Little difficulty was experienced in safely housing her in the Trook hangar where she is likely to remain for a fortnight. Throughout yesterday representatives of the Government, Foreign Consuls in Leningrad, members of social organizations and crowd of peasants from the surrounding villages waited for the arrival of the airship.

ASSERT BUDGET IS DISASTROUS TO MOTOR TRADE

Reduction of Duties Greater Than the Margin Manufacturers Paid

Toronto, April 16.—Representatives of all motor car manufacturing industries in Canada, as well as the makers of parts and tires, meeting in Toronto today, at 1.10, issued a statement regarding changes made in the tariff yesterday in which they stated:

"It is the unanimous view of those present that the budget is disastrous to the industry and threatens both the domestic and export trade. An analysis of the situation discloses the fact that the whole of the protecton afforded to the automobile industry has been wiped out in one stroke because the reduction of duties is greater than the margin that existed between the duties paid by the manufacturer on his material and that collected on cars export. ed. The automotive industry finds itself today with the entire protection removed against the mass production of American factories and with an actual premium on imported cars."

The statement says in part: "Operation of the new tariff will result immediately in certain cars and models which have heretofore been manufactured in Canada being forthwith imported. The effect of this will be felt in a wide number of sections of Canada during the present week and the unemployment which will result can not be accurately forecasted at the present time.

"The change has been made at a time when dealers' stocks of new and used cars is greater than at any other time of the year and automobile dealers will suffer losses of millions of dollars on their stocks or used cars."

FLURRY IN PROBE OVER SHIP'S RELEASE

Ottawa, Ont., April 16.—Release of the Lunenburg Schooner, W. C. Kennedy and her cargo was severely criticized in the commons this morning. W. J. Blair, legal adviser to the customs department was called as a lawyer to explain his justified in recommending cancellation of the penalty imposed on the liquor schooner, much less return of the cargo.

DRYS COMMENCE COUNTER ATTACK AT WASHINGTON

Call of the Hour Is For Thorough Law Enforcement

Washington, D.C., April 16.—The call of the hour is for such a thorough-going work of moral propaganda and legal enforcement as will give the policy of prohibition an adequate opportunity to demonstrate its full value to the nation and the world, said a statement presented today to the Senate Liquor Committee by the administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches.

This declaration by the spokesmen for 20 Protestant communions opened a drive by churches on the attack of the wets against the dry law.

REALTOR DROPS DEAD

Toronto, April 16.—William Pimblett, a real estate dealer, fell dead in his office yesterday.

MOTOR DEALERS ALL MUST WAIT FOR NEW PRICES

Dealer More Likely to Take Loss Than Anyone Else

Automobile dealers in Belleville were decidedly "up in the air" today.

On one point they are unanimous; that the new tariff means a general reduction in motor car prices and a practical suspension of business for a few days until the situation clears. They are waiting for the announcement of new prices and policies from their companies and until these are received can make no comment on the situation.

VALUE OF TRADE-IN

The man who has bought a car this spring has not, nothing, the dealers claim, because in practically all cases he traded in an old car and the value of his trade-in has dropped indirect proportion to any drop in the new car prices. The loser in every case is the dealer who had on his hands a used car which has suffered a serious loss in value since it came into his possession.

WAITS FOR WORD

Major Ames, manager of the McLaughlin Motor Car Company, was not yet in a position to say much. He is waiting for word from his head office in Oshawa, though he thought that it was poor business to throw a monkey wrench into the trade just at the height of the selling season. Such drastic changes, he thought, should be made before the season opened so that manufacturers and dealers could plan their business intelligently.

Mr. Kelley Wilmott of Belleville Motors has a good proportion of his 1926 allotment of Ford cars in his garage and will suffer a serious loss unless the Government arranges some readjustment on cars in the dealers' porsession. He has not yet received word from Ford Motors in Toronto.

LOSS ON USED CARS

Mr. J. Dert Boyce of the Hudson-Essex was inclined to be philosophical. "It probably means lower prices for used cars," he said, "but we will perhaps sell more cars. We are away ahead of last year anyway."

Mr. Warren, handling the Chevrolet and Oakland, said that he was unable to make any comment today and left later for Oshawa to see what he could learn at headquarters.

Wills & Gribble were completely in the dark as to what will happen though they looked for a considerable drop in prices.

REVISED PRICES

Mr. Rumbold of Riggs' Garage said that they were in the happy position of having sold everything they had and were behind in deliveries. They also have disposed of most of their trade-ins so they have nothing to do but sit back and wait for revised prices on Studebakers and Cryslers.

Buckley & Legge, local agents for the Dodge Bros. cars and Graham trucks, would make no announcement this morning.

AIR PIRACY CASE LOST BY U.S. GOVT.

Chicago, April 16.—The United States Government lost its first air piracy case today when Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson found for the defendant, the Zenith Radio Corporation, and its president, E. F. McDonald, Jr., who had been accused of violating the wireless act of 1912 by broadcasting on a wave length apportioned to two Canadian stations, one in the East and another in the West.

CRISIS AHEAD MAKERS FEEL

Toronto, Ont., April 16.—The plant of General Motors Corporation at Oshawa suspended operations today and three thousand employees were temporarily out of work. On arrival at at the factory they found the following notice displayed:

"On account of tariff changes entire plant is closed indefinitely until company is able to arrive at an intelligent conclusion as to what future course may be considered advisable."

R. S. McLaughlin, President of the Company, declined to make any comment The comment of motor car manufacturers on the tariff changes which they claim will result in a crisis in the Canadian motor car manufacturing industry, was strictly withheld pending the outcome of the meeting which assembled at the Lumsden Building, to-day, of members of the automotive industries of Canada.

T. R. Russell, the president was in the chair.

TARIFF CHANGES IN EFFECT TODAY OTTAWA SAYS

Changes in Sales Tax Apply To Goods For Consumption

Ottawa, Ont., April 16.—Tariff changes provided in budget, including reductions in duties on motor cars go into effect today. Changes in sales tax also are effective as from today and applying to all goods imported or taken out of warehouse for consumption on and after that date and all goods previously imported for which no entry for consumption was made before that date.

Change in tax on playing cards from eight and fifteen cents to twelve per cent a package goes into effect today. Budget provides that income tax changes are applicable to income for year 1925 and each year thereafter. Revision limiting British preferential tariff to goods when conveyed without transhipment to sea or river ports of Canada becomes effective on January 1.

HEAVY DAMAGES CLAIMED FOR DEATH OF HUSBAND

Nellie Biraus, of Trenton and her three children are plaintiffs in an action against the Canadian National Railway company, and A. E. Asis, which is presiding before Chief Just ice Meredith and jury in the Court of Assize at Toronto.

The plaintiff claim $20,000 damages for the death of John Biraus, husband of Nellie Biraus and father of the children, who was fatally injured when Asis's truck, in which deceased was riding, was struck by a locomotive at the Seaborn and Kingston Road crossing. Plaintiffs claim that the combined negligence of the defendant company and Asis was the cause of the accident. The railway company denies all negligence and alleges that neither the deceased nor the truck driver took proper precautions.

GENERAL MOTORS PLANT IS CLOSED INDEFINITELY 3000 MEN ARE JOBLESS

"Motor City" is Stunned and People and Tradesmen do Not Know Where They Stand

Oshawa, Ont, April 16.—(Special to The Intelligencer)—Yesterday Oshawa was a thriving, prosperous Canadian city. To-day it lies hopeless, workless, under a black pall of gloom. Over three thousand men—most of them with wives and children—went to their work this morning at the General Motors plant only to find, staring them in the face, a placard announcing the indefinite closing of the whole enormous works. The directors of the General Motors, Limited can see no hope of a resumption of domestic manufacture under the tariff as announced yesterday by the King Government.

The throwing out of work of General Motors' thousands of employees and their probable emigration to the United States is only the beginning of Oshawa's disaster. The Pedlar People, Fittings Limited, Oriental Tapestries, Limited are only three of many similar concerns working in whole or for the most part on General Motors orders and of course all contracts are cancelled this morning and many more hundreds of men and women are looking hopelessly for some means of earning a living.

There are over six hundred manufacturers in Canada who get orders from General Motors. The closing of the Oshawa plant means more or less serious loss to all of them. Included in the list are such well known firms as The Hayes Wheel Co., Ltd. of Chatham, The Goodyear Tire Co., of Oakville and The Dunlop Tire Co. of Toronto. The ramifications of this industrial catastrophe are endless.

OSHAWA IS STUNNED

Oshawa merchants, property owners, and the civic officials are stunned. They are unable to see a ray of light unless the Government restores the tariff on automobiles to its former level. An Oshawa mechanic who purchased a home this week said this morning that it was not worth five cents on the dollar of what he paid for it.

General Motors directors were in private conference all day, to-day, but not a wheel is turning. Canada absorbs, after all, only a comparatively small number of cars and it appears now that it will be cheaper to manufacture for this country in the United States factories and ship the cars here complete. In that case only sales rooms would be maintained in the Dominion.

The rebate of twenty-five per cent. of the tariff on parts of cars made in Canada does not affect the issue in the least as the enormously larger output in the United States will enable the factories there to produce cars at a sufficiently lower price to pay the new Canadian duties on the finished cars. . . . . .

LOSS EXPORT BUSINESS

Canada will lose, too, the big export business which has grown up in the past few years. The automotive industry now provides the third largest item of Canada's exports, being exceeded only by farm products and the pulp and paper industry. This profitable business has been fostered by the British Empire Preferential Treaties, but with the withdrawal of factories from Canada this trade will disappear.

The action of General Motors may be followed by similar action on the part of Ford Motors, Star-Durant and Willys-Overland, though no announcement has been made at yet.

Belleville, fortunately is not directly affected as yet, though it may finally mean the closing of the factory branch of General Motors here and the substitution of a dealer. Major Pratt could make no definite announcement as to the policy of he company in this respect.

AUTO TAX CUT WAS ASSAILED BY OPPOSITION

Hon. Hugh Guthrie Replies to Mr. Robb's Budget Speech

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Budget Has Good News For Great Body of Tax-Payers

Ottawa, April 16.—Good news in large volume for the taxpayers of Canada at large offset to some extent by a distinctly pronouncement for that section of the community exposed in the automobile trade, made the financial statement and budget of the Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, delivered to the House of Commons today the most notable in many years. The financial statement was a welcome one in what it showed a surplus toward debt reduction in the country's accounts for the past fiscal year of twenty-two million dollars and a total surplus of revenue over expenditure on Government services of over thirty-three millions. The budget itself was outstanding among all those of the present Government in providing an estimated reduction in taxation of twenty-five million dollars. The tariff feature of the budget is a cut to 20 per cent. in the duty on low-priced motor cars and to 27½ per cent. on the higher priced cars.

Mr. Robb has dealt out taxation relief with a lavish hand. He first cut the income tax substantially all the way from the lowest to the lowest income and wiped out the super income tax five per cent. entirely. Heads of families now be exempt up to $3,000 instead of $2,000 as formerly, and the rate of the tax on all incomes is reduced. These reductions apply to last year's income on the taxes on which are due April 30.

He then proceeded to wipe out the tax on receipts entirely and to make some reductions and exemptions in the sales tax.

The most welcome of Mr. Robb's announcement, as evident from the attitude of the House, was the reduction in the income tax and the abolition of the three-cent letter postage, while the feature that attracts greatest attention is the drastic change in the tariff on motor cars. The tariff reduction is the phase of the budget upon which the Opposition in the House is centring its attention. Replying to the budget speech in the absence of Sir Henry Drayton, official financial critic of the Conservatives, Hon. Hugh Guthrie bitterly condemned the change in the motor car duty and charged the Government with exposing the industry to serious injury and to possible destruction. He took the ground that the fifteen per cent. reduction more than wiped out the profit made by Canadian manufacturers and declared that under the new duty they could not operate at a profit.

Mr. Robb, in announcing the change in the automobile tariff, referred to "a pronounced sentiment throughout Canada that the automobile industry enjoys more protection than is needed to maintain it on a reasonably profitable basis," and he declared that "it was in deference to that statement that the Government made the re-adjustment instead of the general 35 per cent. duty."

Motor cars and trucks, the retail price of which is not more than $1,200, will pay 20 per cent under the general tariff, 20 per cent under the intermediate tariff, and 12 1-2 under the British preference. Higher priced cars will pay 27 1-2 under the general tariff, 25 per cent under the intermediate, and 15 per cent under the preference.

A drawback designed to assist the motor car manufacturers is granted of 25 per cent on materials used in the manufacture of the cars where 30 per cent of the cost of the finished vehicle is produced in Canada.

Attacking this feature of the budget, Mr. Guthrie, for the Opposition described it as a nonsensical performance and a stultification of the Government.

Taxation Changes Proposed by Robb In Budget Speech

Taxation changes in addition to those published in Thursday's late edition follow:

It is proposed to remove the duty on belt and cap lamps for part of miner's safety lamps.

Machinery for use only in production unrefined oil or fertilizers from shales is to be placed on the free list, and is also exempted from sales tax.

Aircraft engines and complete parts are to be free under the British preferential tariff and to be dutiable at the rate of 7 1-2 per cent. under the intermediate tariff and 10 per cent. under the general tariff until July 1, 1928.

Ethylene glycol, used in the manufacture of explosives, is to be made free.

LIST OF DRAWBACKS

It is proposed to grant the following drawbacks:

99 per cent. on sugar used in the manufacture of loganberry wine. A similar drawback is now allowed on sugar used in making grape wine.

50 per cent. on artificial silk tops and waste until January 1, 1928.

80 per cent. on artificial silk yarns enumerated in tariff item 582 —when imported prior to January 1, 1926, and further manufactured before January 1, 1927.

99 per cent. on cellulose acetate in powder form when imported after April 30, 1927, and before November 1, 1927, and manufactured before December 1, 1927.

80 per cent. on yarns produced from cellulose acetate, dry spun, when imported after October 31, 1926, and prior to August 1, 1927, and manufactured before September 1, 1927.

BRITISH PREFERENTIAL

It is proposed that after the first of January, 1927, the benefits of the British preferential tariff shall apply only to goods conveyed direct without transhipment to a sea or river port of Canada.

It is proposed to repeal the tax on carbonic acid gas specified in schedule II. of the Special War Revenue Act.

The sales tax will be removed from a number of articles and will be reduced to 2 1-2 per cent. on canned fish.

"Of the taxes imposed in 1915, under the special war revenue act, none affected all the people more than the 5 per cent. increase on

WORK IS STARTED ON 'HOLLANDIA' LEAD DEPOSITS

Mr. W. J. Neale Says Organization is Almost Complete

The following is an extract from a letter received by W. H. Nugent, County Clerk, from Mr. W. J. Neale who is interested in Galena deposits in Tudor and Madoc Township.

"We have now practically finished the organization of the Neale Hollandia Lead Mines and I expect to leave for the mine within a few days to activate the operations. I have some men at work now overhauling the machinery and getting things ready for dewatering the mine."

Advices from the North co-aborate this.

The Bancroft Times says:

The first crew of workers have commenced operations on the lead mine to be reopened by the Neale Hollandia Lead Mine Co., Limited. This mine is situated about two miles north-east of Bannockburn. The first work will consist of repairing buildings and machinery that are now at the plant and installing such other machinery and erecting such other buildings as are necessary for the resumption of work. It is expected that the first shipments of ore from the mine will be made about the first of May. It is not intended to utilize the smelter now at the plant for some time to come, as the lead will be shipped in its crude form to a market which is seeking large quantities of it.

It is reported that the gentlemen from the United States were in Madoc the latter part of last week seeking lead properties for which there seems to be a considerable demand owing to the strength which has developed in the mar- that the best-known properties have al- kets for that mineral. It is understood ready been curtailed by the Neale Hollandia Lead Mine interests.

An Artist's View of the Rockies

Cathedral Mountain, from the Yoho Valley

Leonard Richmond, R.B.A., R.O.I., is the well known British artist is among the latest to succumb to the lure of singing the praises of the Canadian Pacific Rockies. In Apollo, a magazine of the arts, Mr. Richmond writes of the Rocky Mountains as one of the most magnificent sights of the world.

Towards the end of March 1925, the artist made his first journey into the heart of Canada. He writes, "As the train advanced from Calgary, the 'Foothills' of the Rockies gradually emerged in a new, suggesting the appearance of a body-guard, or sentinels, guarding the strange mountains beyond.

"It is not considered desirable for me to describe in detail the emotional sensations that my feelings experienced as the train approached the actual Rockies themselves. It is enough to state that my highest imaginative thoughts had never visualized so much impressive force and dignity as those austere mountains conveyed that late afternoon in March.

"The general color on that particular afternoon was monotone in effect. I have not seen any Japanese wood-cut print that equalled the superb draughtsmanship of the finely designed groups of pine trees which were almost black in tint, contrasting sharply against the virgin snow.

"The mountains of Canada suggest many forms of expression for artists, in that respect they are probably unique. The intellectually endowed modern painter has scope enough to create works of art, based on the immense suggestions of dramatic innumerable suggestions of form caused by ancient volcanic eruptions, and occult feelings, too, can be awakened by close contact and communion with the soul of the mountains.

"It is impossible for any artist to sketch more than a fraction of such a vast area of varied subjects. Once the artist is situated right in the mountains there is no occasion to seek for subjects or to walk any distance for desirable views. There is something interesting to paint from any angle.

"Some of the most interesting pictures that I have seen recently of the Rockies are those where the artist has improvised in colour and form on the original theme in nature by this means Nature can be made to look more natural in a picture and the artist's thoughts can be crystallized into positive expression."

Mr. Richmond, who painted a number of beautiful views, claims that although Lakes Louise, O'Hara, Moraine, and Emerald are famous in the lake world of Canada, he was intrigued by the smaller sisters, Lake Mirror and Lake Agnes, known as the "Lakes in the Clouds," above Louise.

DUCHESS FETED BY WINNIPEGGERS GIVES ADDRESSES

Winnipeg, April 16.—A public welcome was extended to the Duchess of Atholl on her arrival in Winnipeg.

Speaking on conditions generally in Great Britain, the distinguished visitor said that unemployment was steadily declining. There were 900,000 more people employed than a year ago. The vote of the women had already proved an important influence in the British political life of today.

"I am particularly anxious to see women give service on all public bodies which now are open to them." Men welcome the co-operation of women in public affairs when they know that women do not claim special privileges and are ready to play their part," the Countess asserted.

The Duchess addressed several clubs during her stay in Winnipeg. She continues her western tour constant.

HAYWORTH CASE WAS SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Action to Upset Will of Madoc Man Started This Morning

In the County Court this morning before His Honor Judge Wills a case of considerable interest was started. The action was one to set aside a will of the late James Hayworth of Madoc, it being alleged that the will was executed while he was ill in a frame of mind capable of probating it.

Mr. Ch. St. White of Madoc appeared for the executors of the will and Mr. A. G. Slaght of Toronto on behalf of Alfred Field Hayworth, son of the deceased man.

There are in the neighborhood of fifteen witnesses most of whom reside in the village of Madoc. Mr. Hayworth it was declared by Dr. Harper in his evidence to be losing his mental facul ties during his declining months. Hayworth has executed three different wills during 1925.

He was being cared for by Mrs. Edith Cadman who acted as a housekeeper and nurse. She was deeded the house and lot, in the final will. The house had been only recently erected.

Dr. W. S. Harper the first witness for the executors of the estate testified he had been a practising physician in the village of Madoc for thirty years.

He said he attended the late James Hayworth who passed away on the eleventh day of January 1926 at Madoc. Dr. Harper told of his various visits to the deceased for a matter of two years previous to his death. He attended his every few days during 1925 up till the sixteenth day of December when another physician was called. Dr. Harper treated the aged man with hypodermics throughout the year and gradually his mental faculties became weaker. He was present at the time three wills were drawn up by Mr. Haywards. The first was drawn up in May 1925 by Frank Beahm an attorney of the village. The other two were drawn up in October and November of the same year by Mr. Bailey. The Doctor said symptoms indicated that Mr. Hayworth was mentally deranged when the final document was drawn up as he did not remember the names of his children and had to be told.

Dr. Harper said that Mr. Hayworth was literally a little child in the hands of Mrs. Cadman who hoodwinked him and he did practically as she wished.

The physician said he had been an adviser to the old man on numerous occasions and was a witness to all three wills.

He took a decided dislike to his son Alfred during the Autumn of 1925 and wished to exclude him from any portion of the property and the third will bequeathed his only $200. (Court adjourned.)

The parties concerned, together with the lawyers and judge made a settlement in the case out of court shortly after two o'clock this afternoon. The settlement was not made public.

A Poem on Spring

Mr. Harry Leavens former pupil of the Belleville High School, and son of Mrs. Leavens, formerly of this city, now of Hamilton, Montana, who has written several short poems of some literary promise, is the author of the accompanying poem, written while attending the continuation school in Hamilton, Montana:

RAVINGS WHILE IN A FEVER (SPRING)

The lofty hills with their wooded rills
And the snow capped peaks above
The blue of the sky, billowy clouds on high
Bespeaks of His Almighty love.

The sun in its gladness, shines thro' all of the sadness
In this busy old world of ours
And the breeze blows away the remains of decay
Left by yesterdays sorrows.

The dial at peaks, the restless eye seeks
In its quest for pleasure or pain
Until it meets, and with pleasure greets
The sight it had looked for in vain.

The joy old "Sol" brings to the dark breats of kings
Cannot be valued in dollars or cents
But what of we mortals who stand by his portals
The joy of our love is immense.

As the brown fields turn green, it can still be seen
Old "Sol" is not asleep at his post
For the rain and dew would turn even think blue
If it wasn't for the warmth of his ghost.

As the frogs croak in the evening glow
And the cows object with their soft mellow low
And the swallows swoop to the earth below
In the late spring time.

As the sickle clacks in the early morn,
And the fields of their golden harvest are shorn
And the cool dewy morning is early born
In the late summer time.

As the years pass by in the wink of an eye
And I think of the years to come
Will I think with a smile, of the last lily of the mile
When I was out and done.

Will I credit this thought to the fame it had brought
And apply it again and again.
Will I use this fame as a means of gain
Or use it as food for my pen.

GENERAL MOTORS HIGHER IN PRICE

New York, April 16.—Stock prices made further recovery in to-day's stock market, but later were dull and featureless. Short covering operations again appeared to furnish much of the buying power, particularly in motors and other speculative industrials.

Chief interest in the railroad group centred in the activity and strength of Rock Island and Pere Marquette common stocks. U. S. Steel common was leader in industrial group, selling as high as 119 3-4 in the early afternoon, as against year's low of 117, established yesterday. Hudson rallied over 3 points and General Motors, Mack Truck and several others in that group sold one to two points higher. Substantial recoveries from yesterday's low levels also were recovered by Pullman, U.S. Cast Iron Pipe, General Electric and Columbia Gas.

ANSWERS PLAINT OF DISCONTENT ABOUT CANADA

London, April 16.—A letter written by Frank Fleming, Toronto, on the subject of migration to Canada is given prominence in the Evening News today. The letter warns intending emigrants that Toronto is "burdened with 20,000 unemployed," and it reiterates other familiar assertions such as that there is little farm work in the Dominion in the winter, and it alleges that former settlers have not been satisfactorily established on farms under the Soldiers' Settlement Act.

The Canadian emigration department here is reply to Fleming's letter, states that no responsible Government or shipping official ever suggest that emigrants go to the cities, w1ve it is admitted that there is much unemployment. All emigrants are advised to make annual contracts for work the summer days. It further says that the Government guarantees employment on the land for five years.

As to ex-soldiers on the land, the emigration department states, they have orders, a frequent cause of trouble being that their wives become discontented with their lot. The department refers to an assertion that 6,000 ex-soldiers have utterly failed to make good on farms in Canada, and the department states that this is not correct. In the majority of cases where ex-soldiers have left the land, the department says, they have left the country and their farms have been taken by others, who seem satisfied.

With reference to the unemployed in Toronto the emigration department says that last winter work on the land was found for 1,100 of Toronto's unemployed, but only four of them accepted the positions offered.

"Let there be harmony in things essential—liberty in things not essential—Charity in all."

EASTERN ONTARIO'S DAY

The new power agreement between Hydro and the Gatineau Power Co., is heralded as a great thing for Eastern Ontario and it can be turned into that very thing, and may be—if Eastern Ontario seizes the opportunity.

Now is the time for the good men of Eastern Ontario municipalities to get together on the proposition similar to the stand taken by municipalities of Western Ontario some years ago and organized themselves into prosperity. The Power will be available for all manner of industries. What is wanted is leadership and initiative.

Let Eastern Ontario have that leadership and that initiative and to this part of the province shall come the long overdue share of the natural prosperity enjoyed by other areas now better endowed with natural riches or with resolute and brainy men.

Eastern Ontario's day is dawning.

MILNER'S GREAT CONTRIBUTION

When the whole history of the great war of 1914-18 can be viewed in proper prospective, it will probably be seen that Lord Milner contributed as much as anyone to the victory of the Allies. It was on his initiative that the Allied commands were unified early in 1918.

On the town hall of the village of Doullens, a few miles north of Amiens, a tablet has been placed bearing this inscription: "In this town hall on March 26, 1918, was confided the sole command of the western front to General Foch. That decision saved France and the liberty of the world."

It was one of the most critical periods of the war. Ludendorff had made huge preparations for an offensive which, he hoped and believed, would break the resistence of the Allies and end the war with a victory for Germany. The British and French commands acted across purposes. Petain and Haig could not agree upon a unified control of the reserves. Haig refused to place several British reserve divisions at the disposal of a committee of the war council at Paris, and Petain also opposed the plan of a unified control under the war council. But something had to be done. Lord Milner was sent to confer with Clemenceau and Poincare. They as followed a free hand. There was a conference at Doullens, Poincare presiding. "The hour of opportunity had struck," as a historian of the war describes the scene. "Milner rose and asked permission to speak to Clemenceau, and this being accorded, the two withdrew. Would Clemenceau agree to give Foch authority to co-ordinate the action of the Allied armies? He would, but he must first speak to Petain. While Clemenceau drew Petain aside, Milner did the same thing with Haig. Then Clemenceau wrote a few lines and handed them to Milner: 'Gen. Foch is charged by the British and French governments to co-ordinate the British and French armies on the western front. He will come to an understanding to this effect with the two chief generals, who are requested to furnish him with all the needed information.' Milner showed the paper to Haig, who not only accepted it, but suggested that 'Allied armies' should be substituted for 'British and French armies.' Clemenceau agreed; and all four returned to the table. Then the document, thus amended, was read out, approved by the conference and signed by Milner and Clemenceau. Foch summed up. Area of the Allied armies on March 26 and at once brought up the French reserves which barred the German advance on Amelens.

They are going to erect a memorial to Milner in Westminster Abbey It will be a deserved national tribute to a great man, whose life was devoted to the service of the empire and who achieved much not only for his country, but for humanity also.

E. F. MILBURN, B.A.

The death of Mr. E. F. Milburn, for many years teacher and principals of the High School here brings strikingly to mind that which is after all the very highest of the highest citizenship. His life was one of service to others.

Among his teacher associates and by the thousands of pupils who passed under his eyes in the half century of his great career here he was beloved and respected for the wisdom and generosity of his views on those matters on which men may reasonably differ at times and the composing the courage of his convictions. He was at that, of somewhat retiring disposition and never forced his views on the public and indeed shunned publicity.

The late Mr. Milburn's influence on the life of the community through the High School was tremendous. His quiet gentle effective power was drawn from a reservoir of a fine native sense of justice; he practiced what he preached in his daily walk and conversation.

In the retirement from active duty some time ago of Mr. Milburn, Belleville and the district suffered a great loss, and now his death is sincerely mourned.

Letters to the Editor

A REPLY TO MR. BOGLE

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Sir,—Mr. Bogle wants Belleville's name changed to "Shoalcove." I know not what language it is derived from. It is not euphonious, therefore it is not acceptable. If we change the name, let us adopt a musical one. Perhaps Mr. Bogle has failed to make Belleville rhyme in some poem he is writing. If so he would do well to publish the verses in The Intelligencer) we shall try to help him out of his troubles.

There is another word equally as harsh as Snookum. It is a word not found in the dictionaries, the lexicographers have ignored it; but it is in our language and what is in a language belongs to the language. A dictionary not containing it is deficient. It is a word that would baffle the science of an editorial department—even the "printers devil" could not explain its definition. Fortunately I am in a position to throw light on the subject. The word is "Grumps." It is the name of an ancient tribe that lived during the glacial period. They were a race of mournful looking people, and those of other tribes when they found one of their own people sad and gathering shadows, "bidding goodbye to the devil before he appears" (a Scottish saying) they called him in derision "Grumps." By some strange process the word has been carried from the dim past and been embodied in our language.

To change the name of a place if there is anything radically wrong with society or its administration would be foolish; better a change of heart (figuratively).

It is said "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." Quite right, and everyone knows if we changed the name of the Moira the river would smell no sweeter in the sweet summer time.

There are also some people "with noses in their bonnets," (another Scottish saying) who want Front street renamed, but have we not all got "bees in our bonnets and some of them queer bees?

If a name is adopted for a place let it be striking and comprehensive, not clumsy or fantastic. For a town can not afford to tolerate the fantastic.

There is a better word than "Shoalcum." It is more syllabic, and so good that we should adopt it in our language if it had six syllables. It was used by Aborigines when the redfaced hunter roamed the primeval forest that existed where Belleville is now placed. The word is KA WAN TE KWAS compounded of WAN TE (light of day) sunshine (KA WAN TE) the full licht of day inflected further to KA WAN TE KAS (KAS WAN DAY GWAWS). She collects or accumulates light or sunshine.

It is from a "she" language and will do for man or woman to render it decidedly explicit in gender. WA WAN TE KWAS feminine or man, WA WAN TE KWAS masculine or a man. The word is idiomatic, idiosyncrat and figurative. It expresses a cheerfulness gathering light or sunshine dispersing clouds. The enemy drives us back today; we will defeat them tomorrow. Let us all be "KA WAN TE KWAS". Summer is peeking over the southern hills, the birds are beginning to sing.

NO, NO, NANETTE BEAUTIFUL SHOW LOCAL VERDICT

Elaborately Staged, Gorgeously Gowned—Dancing a Treat

Rapking with the first-class shows of a generation back for beauty of ensemble, perfection and flawless dancing, for scenic effects and for fetching musical score, "NO, NO, Nanette" which played here last night at Griffin's to a house that was practically packed from pit to roof proved a great treat to the eye and to the ear, also.

Belleville theatre goers, male and female have not glimpsed a more refreshing show for these many years and while the principals were not noted for vocal accomplishment they were most satisfying each and every one of them to their several parts.

Miss Lelia McIntyre who was the Nannette was spritely and fetching and danced beautifully. So did all the other twenty-two girls in the show.

The men were all exceedingly presentable people and also were "beautifully" dressed in up-to-date evening, sport and evening clothes. And they were drilled to the fineness of a hair's breadth in their dance numbers. It was a snappy show from first to last, the score being played by a most competent band carried by the show under the direction of Mr. Russell Tarbox, at the piano.

John Hyams was the leading funny man, well seconded by Leland Woodruff. They both are past masters at pantomime and pulled some very funny antics as part of the regular business of the piece. Mr. Hyams' "take off" of Tom Mix, the movie hero was a hit, while Mr. Woodruff did a dance specialty in the final act that was a sidesplitter all the time in Tex and bolled and all trepidation in the shape of clothes which one wears for a swell party.

The song "I Want To Be Happy" and "Tea for Two" are of course the basis of the musical end of the show. One may have heard them a hundred times only a record but not until one had heard them and "seen" them sung by such a talented crowd as is this show, knows what a real inkling of their haunting beauty.

Even Pauline, the cook (Miss Lelia McIntyre) was a joy with her own system of philosophy. She combined with the two leading men to get in turn.

Helen Case and the eight bachelors did the "Who's the Who" song very effectively and won a trio of recalls.

The musical score is of course haunting and very charming through out and for the most average current output. That is one reason there are five companies doing the show in Canada this season.

"No, No, Nanette" will stick in the memory.

Judge Landis, Czar of baseball, has signified his willingness to attend the opening ceremonies at Toronto's new stadium on the 28th. The Leafs have the strongest team in many years and Toronto is having extraordinary efforts to wrest the title from the Orioles.

HEAVY FREIGHT CLAIMS

Montreal, April 13.—Claims for damage to freight in transit, paid out by railway companies of the United States and Canada, amounted to a grand total of $39,000,000 in the year 1925, it was stated by C. M. McDonald, freight claim agent of the Boston and Maine Railway, addressing the Canadian Railway Club, last night.

DANCING CHIEF THRILL IN LONDON

London, Eng., April 13.—(Canadian Press Despatch)—"Since the armistice dancing has become a craze, and a large section of the people have been dancing thoughtlessly on our soldiers' graves," was the opinion expressed by one speaker at a meeting attended by sixty ministers of all denominations, in Aberdeen to protest against the decision of the city magistrate to sanction the opening of a dance hall on Sunday afternoon and evening for certain hours, instead of for the sale of light refreshments. A resolution was passed protesting against the decision as raising a grave moral danger, and asking for its withdrawal.

The Rev. A. W. S. Forbes remarked that it was in the highest degree inconsistent and even incredible that men who dealt with young offenders should countenance the inauguration of a movement which may know from bitter experience as an influence for evil extravagance, vice, the breaking up of homes, and the besmirching of character.

Rt. Rev. Dr. F. L. Deane, (Bishop of Aberdeen and Orkney) said he was the first step upon the slippery slope which must land them sooner or later into a kind of Sunday which those who were supporting the misguided magistrates would come bitterly to regret.

The Baptist minister, the Rev. E. Hopkins, said he was convinced that refreshment and amusement had its place in life, but when a hall was opened merely for promiscuous dancing without any registered membership, simply for the purpose of gain, and where they might be provided with a dancing partner for 6d it was an unhealthy peril.

A deputation was appointed to confer with the magistrates on the subject.

FASHION 'SHOW' AT PARISH HALL WITH TINY AIDES

Little Girls Were Very Dainty as Mannequins —Details

Anything more charming than the amateur "fashion show" at Christ Church Parish Hall put on by the ladies of the Guild of the Church yesterday would be extremely hard, to imagine. Clad in party dresses, rompers, school dresses—in fact dresses for any and every occasion little Misses Helen Pepper, Marion Cochrane, Dorothy Cochrane, Betty Jenkins, Margery Taylor, Betty Morgan, Loraine Smith Audrey Thomas, Athol Crozier, Mary Vere Thomas, and Margery Wheeler, the tiny mannequins displayed the dresses so cleverly made by the ladies of the Guild, with the grace of a professional mannequins and each and every one won the hearts of the big audience by their beauty and deportment which contributed very materially to the rapid subsequent sale of the dainty dresses they had displayed.

THE CONVENORS

Wife Mrs. H. L. Smith as convener to the ladies assisting in the mannequin show were Mrs. Ivis, Mrs. Trude Bigger, Mrs. George Meagher and Mrs. Boyd. The ladies very cleverly managed the dressing of the little ones and the mile and display. Mrs. Beckus supplemented the musical programme. In the tea room Mrs. Millard and Mrs. Bonnycastle acted as convenors assisted by Mrs. Bruce Bottum, Mrs. (Dr). Edwards, Mrs. Lorne Green, Mrs. Jack White, Mrs. Canning, Mrs. R. Bolton and Miss Irene Thomas, also Mrs. Weese, Mrs. Simmons, and Mrs. Dewart. The room carried out a charming color scheme of mauve and yellow while the tea table at which Mrs. C. E., Clarke presided was centred by spring flowers of the same shades.

At the family table Mrs. Ree and Mrs. Watkiss acted as convenors while Mrs. Fred Chamberlain, Mrs. E. Thomas and Mrs. Herold looked after the home cooking.

The financial as well as the social results of the entertainment were very satisfactory to the ladies in charge.

DUCE'S OUTBURST IN THE TRIPOLI ALARMS PARIS

Paris, April 15.—Premier Mussolini's outbursts in Tripoli are causing some worry in certain quarters here. Well wishing to take his grandiloquent phrases too seriously, French politicians insist the Italian dictator's Napoleonic gestures might well inflame the patriotism of an excitable people like the Italians with disastrous consequences to the peace of Europe. It would be a grave mistake therefore to pay no attention to his utterances or acts.

What the members of the French Cartel Des Gauches majority think is expressed by Le Quotidien in an editorial:—

"Mussolini knows he can only maintain his dominion by keeping national feeling at a fever heat, and he does so by means of grandiloquent phrases and the gestures of a gladiator. Therein lies the danger.

"What are the limits of the delirium of a people cleverly drugged by intoxicating enthusiasm and patriotism? Tunisia is not far from Tripoli. The Duce's lieutenants claim Corsica. What will they not claim if the Roman Empire be reconstituted as it was in the day of Cesar?

"France is not the only nation menaced. The hegemony which the dictator, drunk with success, intends to establish over the Mediterranean affects all the powers whose coasts are washed by that great 'Italian' lake. Moreover, Italy is a member of the League of Nations. How can the Locarno and Geneva policy be reconciled with the enterprises of this unbridled megalomaniac? We need not take these Lybian performances tragically, but let us be wary of the madness that might seize the entire Italian people, blinded by their glitter."

AGED LAWYER DIES

Kingston, April 16.—William Henry Sullivan aged 83 years, one of the oldest lawyers in Canada died this morning at residence of his nephew here.

LEFT KINGSTON

Provincial Officer Maclachlan, who has been stationed in Kingston for the past eighteen months, left for Belleville this afternoon on transfer. The new officer is Kingston, V. G. Clubbe, was expected to arrive this afternoon from Brockville.

SEASON VERY LATE

Kingston.—Crop conditions in the county, according to Mr. A. W. Birrell, agricultural representative are quite good. On the high land the clover is making good progress, but it is too early yet to say how it came through on the low land, where it is still covered by snow and ice.

Strawberries are making a good showing, where they have been properly covered covered during the winter. There is not much fall wheat in this county, but what little there is, seems to be doing well.

It is doubtful if the farmers will be able to get on the land before the last of this month, which is rather an exception to the early start. Last year some farmers of this district had seed in the ground on the 10th of April, but April 20th, is the usual date.

Deseronto.—Local fish buyers are preparing their large boats for the coming season. Some fishermen have already placed their nets in the bay.

TO INSTALL THE NEW DEAN

Kingston—The induction and installation of the Rev. Dr. W. W. Craig, M. A., D.D., as Rector of St. George's Cathedral and Dean of Ontario, has now been announced to take place at 7.30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 28th, and notice to this effect have been sent out by the Secretary of the Synod to the clergy of the Diocese. The preacher on this occasion will be the Ven. Archdeacon Snowdon, of Ottawa, while the actual installation and induction ceremonies will be performed by Rt. Rev. Dr. E. J. Bidwell, the Bishop of the Diocese.

FIRE AT COBOURG

Cobourg.—Fire, which was of unknown origin destroyed a garage at the rear of Mrs. W. R. Thompson's residence, Havelock street, one night recently. A car, that was in the garage, was burned, and some heat that were in an adjoining building were suffocated by the smoke.

POWER FOR KINGSTON

Kingston.—"It will certainly mean a great deal for Kingston if we are able to get all the power we want" said R. N. P. McFarlane, chairman of the Public Utilities, when interviewed regarding the announcement that the government had authorized the completion of an agreement for the delivery to Ontario, by the Ontario Power Company at the Ontario-Quebec boundary in the vicinity of Ottawa, of 230,000 to 300,000 horse power of hydro-electric energy at a price of $15 per horse power.

North Bay.—Fire of unknown origin totally destroyed the Lake Joseph station of the C.N.R. early Sunday morning. Efforts of the fire fighters to save the station were unavailing but the baggage room, platform and stairway leading to the dock were saved. The damage is estimated at approximately $5,000.

North Bay.—Rev. J. J. Quilty, who has just completed two years of service with the colonization department of the C.P.R. was in the city over Monday evening and spent a short time at St. Mary's rectory. The Rev. Father has been engaged in bringing immigrants from the Hebrides for settlement in western Canada. He returned to Douglas this morning and will take his former duties of parish priest.

Orland.—On account of the Misses Gilbride handing in their resignations to the Brighton Municipal Telephone Commissioners after building the position about ten years, the Commissioners called for tenders, and out of the many applicants for the position J. A. Dunn was awarded the coveted position. Mr. Dunn was one of the three Commissioners who organized the system and has had it in the lists as one of the best municipal lines in Ontario. He will start on the job on May 1.

Kingston.—No less than thirteen men were given shelter in the police station for one night, for the past two weeks an average of ten men have been given protection in the city's "lock-up" each night. It looks as if many men are on the move now in the hope of seeking employment at the opening of spring.

Peterboro.—A horse which was driven into the city from one of the townships, was seized by Inspector Smith of the Humane Society at a local hotel stable and destroyed yesterday. The poor beast had only one eye and was in an undescribable condition.

NUTRITION TEACHING FOR HEALTH IN EVERY DAY LIFE

By Barbara Brooks

(Home Economics Dept., Kellogg Company of Canada, Ltd., London, Ont.)

Nutrition is the keynote of modern health teaching, of magazine and newspaper writing, even of advertising. It is a popular subject,—the words "calorie", "vitamin", and "mineral" hold no terrors even for the lay person. Old and young discuss diet with ease and assurance. The interesting part of it all is that each housekeeper thinks she is absolutely right and that she is consciously following certain rules which will bring health to the members of her family. There is no phase of home-making about which women are more sensitive than their meal planning. "Oh yes, we have only the best nourishing foods—plenty of milk and vegetables." But if these same women will show us their itemized food bills for the month, in many cases out of ten they will not check against the standards nutrition teachers give of as much for milk as for meat, and as much for fruit and vegetables as for milk.

A careful study of the menus actually served in families often shows an abundance of meat and potatoes and a lack of foods containing minerals, vitamins and other regulating dietary disturbances such as rickets, anemia, gastric ulcer, constipation and diabetes. Why is it so hard to convince the unspecialized woman that she is responsible if her children have these diseases—which should be easily avoided.

We teach nutrition in the schools; it is too soon for us to tell if our work is functioning. When today's pupils have married and are raising families we know if the nutrition inoculation really "took". But we will have lost track of most of the girls by that time—and our authority as the teacher may have lost weight. It will again be as in the case of the mother speaking accordingly of the married social worker, "What does she know about raising babies. Its buried three."

What a the solution of the problem of teaching nutrition for health in every day life? Our foremost duty is to give both girls and boys an appreciation of the importance of food selection—and a sincere feeling of personal responsibility.

Whenever we see women or girls eating a lunch of ice cream soda, or a breakfast of griddle cakes and coffee, or a between meal portion of candy or rich cookies, or a dinner of meat, potatoes, coffee and pie, we feel that their nutrition training has not been entirely successful—and we see far too many such meals. Perhaps enough emphasis has been laid on the relation between food and good looks. Wise selection of meals means a clear skin, bright eyes and a general feeling of well being.

FIRE DESTROYED KINGSTON BLOCK

Kingston, April 15.—Fire of unknown origin broke out in the third floor of the Harrison Building, Princess Street, early this morning, practically destroying six alleys of the Frontenac Bowling and Recreation Academy and damaging stores in the same building by smoke and water.

Complete damage is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $25,000. Frontenac Bowling and Recreation Academy is the property of Messrs. Carson and Pappas, Ottawa, and the loss to them is between $15,000 and $18,000. The building is the property of C. E. Taylor and the loss to him is approximately $10,000, covered by insurance.

The Classic Ladies' Shop, a ready to wear shop, suffered a fifty percent loss. The stock which is valued at $4,000 was badly damaged by water and the loss is easily $2,000. It was insured.

Archdeacon Beamish, Rector of St. Thomas' Church conducted the burial services of the Anglican Church. Relatives and friends were in attendance in large numbers. At the grave Ven Archdeacon Beamish conducted the committal service. Although there was a request that no flowers be sent a number of beautiful designs were contributed by friends. Bearers were Messrs F. E. O'Flynn, A. Gillen, C. N. Sulman, W. Langham, H. C. Thompson and Thorpe Carman.

SPORTOGRAMS

By "The Observer"

The Trunks should be able to take to the great open spaces next week and iron some of those kinks out of their flinging arms. Johnny Oulette upon whose shoulders the burden of the pitching duties reside, says he is feeling fine and rarin' to go. The big boy has cut four into the hearts of a good many players around the C.O.B.L. with the use of his speed ball and Belleville should be well-fortified in the pitching department this year.

"Chummy" Gerow, who has gained considerable experience in Junior ranks, has been working out at the Ardburies' and should be able to thaw them over when the team takes the outdoor diamond.

The pitchers did not measure up to expectations last year and many a ball game was lost through their ineffectiveness.

Peterboro haven't uttered a word in regards to prospects there but it is known that they are casting their eyes in the direction of the pennant.

According to advices from Los Angeles Jack Dempsey is not idling his time and will not be caught napping in the matter of condition when he meets Wills or Tunney (if he ever does).

Mickey Roach, member of the New York hockey club, who are staging a series of games in the California city, says in a letter to the Sport Editor of the Hamilton Herald, that the champion has lost none of his old time form. He takes his daily training in all seriousness and prospects are shaping up brightly for a championship tilt this summer.

Odie Cleghorn, manager of the Pittsburg Yellow Jackets of the National Hockey Club, has started to rebuild his team for next year. He is anxious to get "Hap" Day, Toronto Pat's great goal-getter and will probably turn Conacher loose before the "pro," league start again. "Conie" does not relish the idea of Cleghorn for a boss.

"Rabbit" Maranville, short-stop of the Brooklyn National league team, despite his declining years, is making brilliant strides towards regaining his old form. The "Rabbit" was largely responsible for the Dodger's win over the Giants in the opener. Maranville does not believe in the old prophecy that "they can't come back."

Recreation Alleys

Two games were played in the Ladies' Senior League at the Recreation Alleys last night. In the first game the Breezes won three points from the Rinky Dinks, the latter team counting their lone point in the last game when they rolled their best score. Miss Harris and Mrs. North were the two highest bowlers.

In the second ladies' game the Poppies won three points and the Crescents one. In the first game only three pins separated the teams, the Poppies winning this game. In the second the Crescents came back strong and won their game, also on the total. High bowlers were Mrs. Bryd ges and Mrs. Singer.

In the men's Junior league the High School had a sweet revenge on the Rovers and won all four points with a nice total score of 2599, these four points putting them a tie at the top of the league. Allen and Taylor were the leading bowlers for their respective teams.

KINGSTON TEAM WILL CARRY ON IN CENTRAL LOOP

Eight Regular Games To Be Augmented by Exhibition Matches

Any fears that were entertained as to Kingston's position in the Central League were dispelled when the officers and executive met and decided to carry on for this year. This is welcome news to the fans in Belleville and Peterboro who are now assured of some good baseball. If the weather man decides to give us a few warm days.)

The Kingston Standard says in part:

"The local C. O. B. L. executive, after considering the local baseball situation from all angles at considerable length, decided to carry on this season with Peterboro and Belleville, and endeavor to give the fans the best baseball possible.

"The situation was thoroughly gone over, and it was only after all angles had been gone into that the executive decided the fans each were what baseball it was possible to give. It was felt that eight scheduled games a the league were not quite enough for the fans, but it was pointed out that eight games were better than none at all.

EXHIBITION GAMES

"At the same time it was decided to arrange to have exhibition games played here with high-class American college teams. Already the executive is in communication with teams across the line, and the fans can rest assured that everything will be done to bring fast teams to the city for exhibition encounters.

"Owing to his duties as president of the league, W. L. Kennedy resigned the position of treasurer of the Kingston Club and Mr. George Hunt was appointed to fill the position. Mr. Hall has rendered most valuable service to the club during the past couple of years, and should make a very capable official.

AS TO THE TEAM

Manager Daly reported that the team this year will be as strong as it has last year, with the likelihood of being stronger. The 1925 team will be here intact, with the addition of Gerber Britton, one of the best infielders in Toronto, who is attending Queen's University and also two or three other players. It is the intention of the executive to have the best team possible on the field, and with the in view Manager Daly has already started in his work for the season."

AND WHAT ABOUT LACROSSE HERE AGAIN A QUERY

The Intelligencer is in receipt of a letter today from Mr. A. H. Cox, President of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, regarding the great revival of the National game which is taking place all over the Dominion. The great American colleges are introducing the game and it is rapidly being recognized as one of the major sports of the country. Lacrosse is one of the best physical and mental developers of any game known to the athletic world and every kid should be taught to handle a lacrosse stick from the time he is ten years old.

This is one of the features we have been advocating through these columns for the past fortnight. Why is it the Yanks adopt our National game and we are doing nothing here to foster it? In Ontario some of the old centres have adopted soft-ball while lacrosse which reigned twice the stamina and ability, has been tossed into the discard.

What is being done locally to-ward reviving the game to the young er generation, and it is they who must be reached if the game is to be introduced.

There hundreds of kids around this city who are learning the rudiments of baseball out on the lots and many of them possess rather play lacrosse if given the chance.

In 1923 when "Bing" Hayes start ed the ball rolling, it proved a very successful season, but when that booster left the city, the lustre went dead and nothing has been done since. Baseball is a great game but many players who have taken part in both games prefer the Canadian National.

Sticks and sweaters were purchased two years ago and with but small effort these could be gathered and get the boys started on their way.

The Sporting Editor of The Intelligencer would like to hear from any interested parties around Belleville and let's have an inaugural meeting some night soon and go over the situation and see what can be done here.

MANY THRILLS IN BIG LOOPS TORONTO AHEAD

At Reading, Pa., Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross pitching star, made his debut in the International League here yesterday by holding Reading to three hits for Toronto, 6 to 1.

Jacobs' double and Whitman's single gave the Keystones their only run in the first inning.

Swazey was effective for Reading until the ninth, when Toronto's bunts bewildered the portly pitcher.

Batteries: Carroll and O'Neil, Swazey and Lynn.

Newark, April 16.—Aided by a high wind that carried the ball for nineteen extra bases, six of which included home runs, Newark outslotted Buffalo 18-10, for the second straight victory of their four-game series yesterday.

Batteries: Auer, Chase, Fisher and Lake, Unsman; Smallwood, Hankins and Wilson.

Jersey City, April 16.—Jersey City made it two straight over the Syracuse Stars here yesterday afternoon.

SOFTBALL DATES AGAIN CHANGED AT ARMOURIES

The schedule of the soft ball league playing at the Armouries, has been revised so as not to conflict with other activities on the floor.

Starting tonight the games have been altered. Wednesday nights' games will take place on Tuesday while Friday' games on Thursday nights.

Alemites, Juniors, Point Anne and C.N.R. have the edge on the remaining teams with Point Anne favored to cop the laurels.

Next Tuesday the Juniors and the Point Annes clash and odds are on the former, but Colling's team should they win, will tighten things up considerably.

O'Donahue and Green, the two leading pitchers, will face each other and a battle royal will no doubt follow in the new schedule:

SINGLE G. LOOKS GOOD FOR A WINNING SEASON

Cleveland, April 16.—Winner of more races than any other horse—trotter, pacer or thoroughbred—Single G., sixteen-year-old sensation at pacer, apparently is due for another successful season.

older men think of jokes of baseball and baseball players.

A former pitcher for the New York Giants has been a successful college coach in the South for several years. A South Carolina institution honored the visiting team, coached by the former Giant, with a dance and much against his will the pitcher, a southpaw by the way, was prevailed on to attend.

"I was dancing with one of the girls," he said, "when some guy steps up and takes her away from me.

"I didn't want to walk over to the bench like I was struck out, so I grabs me another one.

"Have you ever been to New York, Coach?" she asks me.

"That was a laugh. I didn't have the heart to tell her I had been around the world with the Joints."

Another former big leaguer changed coaching jobs and was telling a friend about his new assignment.

"This is the finest place you ever heard of," he said. "Believe me or not you can dress in the gym and go out to practice and when you come back every stitch of your clothes will be right where you left 'em."

A third coach was complaining to a newspaper man that the college players do not think from a baseball standpoint. "Of course," he said, "I don't expect these lads to be as smart as I am, but I leave it to you they don't have to be as dumb as they are."

Bred, owned and raced by W. B. Barefoot, of Cambridge City, Ind., this will be the thirteenth year on the track for the son of Anderson Wilkes—Little Gyp. Beginning his successful career as a three-year-old his record shows that he won ninety eight out of 153 races and has only been put out of the money twice—both times last year. In addition he has won four of five attempts against time.

Of 431 heats contested he was in front 202 times.

His sojourney shows thirty-three seconds; tied once for second and third money; was third fourteen times; fourth three times, and placed fifth and sixth in the summary one time each but finished in the money in both which were raced on for the three heat plan.

Single G. made his fastest record and won race in 1923, when in his first start as a thirteen-year-old, he turned in miles of 1:58.1-2 and 1.58 3-4 at Syracuse. This time stands as a world's record for the fastest first and third heats in the same race; and also for the fastest third heat ever paced. He was second in the second heat in 2.01 1-2

He also holds the world's record for the fastest three heat race paced turning in miles of 1.59, 2.00 and 2.00 3-4 at Atlanta, in his last race of the 1920 season. His 2.01 at Des Moines, in 1918 is the world's record for a mile paced on a half mile track.

Despite his wonderful record, the "iron horse" led the list of money winning pacers only once—in 1921. In that season he won thirty-six of his thirty-eight heats, his only defeats being to Peter Massing, world's champion trotter, in a match race at Hartford, Conn., Single G. was then eleven years old and Peter Manning five. His winnings total more than $100,000.

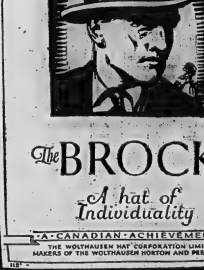

Brantford.—Announcement was made that A. Kohn, Manager of the Brantford branch of the Bank of Montreal has been retired.

Montreal.—"We have developed the technique of war, but we have never developed the technique of peace. Increase the purchasing power of a people and you will stimulate commerce and end unemployment. War brings good times, but with a terrific depression afterwards," said Agnes Macphail, M.P. for Southeast Grey, who addressed a meeting here today.

Stratford.—Murray Graham, of Toronto, has been added to the teaching staff of the collegiate. Mr. Graham will have charge of the physical training. The salary will be $2,200.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

Large sections of England were realistically reproduced at Universal City for "Sporting Life," the sensational stage play directed by Maurice Tourneur, which comes to the Belle theatre today.

Street scenes in London slums; mining pits in London supper clubs; a vast country estate; the famous annual derby at Epsom Downs, and over all an authentic atmosphere of England, are to be seen in the screen production of "Sporting Life" is the title of the picture, and the director decided that it should be real sporting life that appeared on the screen. Consequently, thrilling horse race scenes, a boxing bout with Ted "Kid" Lewis, a real champion, and many scenes about of a musical revue and many other gay scenes have been included in the production, which combines in picturesqueness any Universal-Jewel release of the season.

AT GRIFFIN'S

With many brilliant spectacles of the past, such as "Ben Hur," the Comedian," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which opens at the Griffin Theatre today, bids fair to outdo them all in the march of events of the colorful first quarter of the twentieth century.

Women will be especially interested in the clothes worn by members of the cast since the story opens in 1902. Brilliant balls and parties of that day are brought out in startling contrast to modern modes of life. Men will also find amusement in the fashions that were in vogue at that time for the male sex.

The cast of the picture is headed by Lew Cody and Mae Busch. The part played by Mae Busch is said to afford her more opportunity than any role in which she has ever played. Cody offers one of his most finished villain roles, the portrayals of which have made him famous with picturegoers.

Here and There

Lord and Lady Allenby have left Canada, on board the Canadian Pacific liner "Montrose," for home. The distinguished general was received enthusiastically in every city throughout his tour of the Dominion. He delivered addresses showing the importance of the capture of Palestine to the Allies in the Great War.

V. C. Vickers, managing director of Messrs. Vickers Ltd., London, England, who arrived in Canada recently on board the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Canada," reported that the shipbuilding industry boom in China and Japan was in a healthier condition than for many years past, with shipbuilders favoring the latter ship.

Travelling right across the Dominion, exclusively on Canadian Pacific lines and in the palatial special car "Loch Lomond" the Grace and Duchess of Atholl, whose family seat is at Banff, Scotland, will make acquaintance for the first time in her life with the world famous resort in the Canadian Rockies, which took its name from her Scottish home.

A. Hatton, general superintendent of transportation for the Canadian Pacific Railway, has announced the intention of the company to raise the embargo against the loading of grain to Fort William and Port Arthur and the milling companies and elevators at Winnipeg. This is due to the anticipation of the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes about April 26.

The total yield of wheat in Canada for 1925, as finally estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, is 418,049,700 bushels, the second largest on record, having been exceeded only by the 1923 crop. The value of this crop is estimated at $465,116,200, or over $53 per capita of Canadian population. The average wheat yield was 19.3 bushels per acre.

A general survey of reports by the Canadian Pacific Railway on agricultural conditions throughout the West shows that farmers are pleased with present conditions and speak optimistically on the season's outlook. Sufficient moisture for spring crops seems to be assured. Livestock wintered well. Adequate supplies of seed are available and no shortage of labor is expected.

A special C. P. R. train carrying 430 settlers from the S.S. "Montcalm" reached Winnipeg from Liverpool. Among the passengers were thirty-one British families who came under the 3,000 family settlement scheme. There was one party of 10 German-speaking Catholics, and the Salvation Army, under Captain Hoggard, brought out a party of twenty young lads going to British Columbia.

It has been announced by the passenger department of the C. P. R. at Winnipeg that negotiations have been complete with the Central Canada Air Lines Limited, for an air service between Kenora and the new gold fields at Long Lake and Red Lake. A regular daily service is to be inaugurated about May 1st in connection with the C.P.R. from Kenora and during summer services will be run between Kenora and Duluth.

The recent fire at the Banff Springs Hotel, which resulted in the destruction of the north wing with its seventy seven rooms, will have little effect on the coming tourist season. During the past winter the company has built an annex with 100 rooms with baths and, with the central steam tower and the south wing of the old building that were saved, there will be a total of 318 rooms available by July 1, or more than were in use last year.

The Marquis

BY
CHARLES GARVICE

Constance shrank back as she had shrunk from him in the hut, and then as now his face grew set and determined.

"How you nothing to say to me?" he said, humbly. "Does the constant love I bear you count as nothing with you? Won't you say one kind word to me when I tell you that through all the time we have been separated I have thought of no other woman than you, that I have worked with no other object than that of gaining a fortune worthy of your acceptance? If my success has been sweet, it has only been because of the hope—the hope that never left me, and that nerved and strengthened me—that you would consent to share it. Listen to me, Constance. He my wife, and I will place you in a position which any woman might envy. There is no desire you can form that I will not gratify. Wealth I possess already, rank is within my reach. Give me but your love to encourage me, and I will not rest until I have gained a coronet for you." Ah, Constance, don't turn from me! There are many better men I know, but the best, the highest could not love you more dearly, more truly more devotedly than I do!" ...

He stopped at last, breathing hard his eager eyes fixed on her face as if by mere force of will he could melt her heart and turn it toward him.

Constance, pale, white to the lips, stood with one hand pressed against her breast, the other hanging the back of a chair. No woman could listen to such a passionate avowal, such an outpouring of a man's heart, unmoved; but the last passionate words only made her shrink from him with deeper repugnance.

"I—I will not listen to any more," she said at last, her voice coming with difficulty. "As I told you long, long ago, I—I— Mr. Fenton, if you have any regard for me, if you have any pity for me, please leave me!"

He stood and looked at her, his breath coming and going heavily.

"Do you realize all that is meant by your rejection?" he said in a low voice. "If you were a woman you could not dismiss me more heartlessly, more scornfully—"

"No, no," she said, "not scornfully."

"But yes," he retorted. " I am no boaster, but if I begged the hand of one of the noblest in the kingdom, I might not have the word refused."

"Ah, why then do you come to me?" she said, with weary impatience.

"Because I love you and can love no other woman," he responded, passionately. "Do you think I have not tried to crush my love for you out of my heart, that I have not fought hard against it, and tried to forget you? Yes, I have struggled as few men have struggled, but all in vain. You are necessary to my happiness. Life without you is not worth living, and I cannot, will not, give up all hope of winning you."

His voice grew hoarse, and he raised his hand with a passionate gesture across his brow.

"Think what you are refusing, Constance," he said. "You are a woman now, not an inexperienced girl. You have seen something of life, of its trials and misfortunes. It has been a hard life for you till now. Come to me, be my wife, and I will make it all happiness for you. There is nothing you can ask that I will not give you."

He looked round the room.

"Think! In exchange for this poverty and squalor I offer you a place among the best and highest—"

Constance raised her head.

"You say you know me, said you ask me to—tell myself," she said, it, a low voice of indignation. "No not my another word. Even if I were as nervers as you think me, I am a girl yet helpless," and instinctively shape unconsciously, her glance fell upon the pile of paper she had corrected so laboriously.

He looked for a moment as if he did not comprehend, then a smile crossed his face.

"My poor Constance!" he murmured.

Startled by the significance of his tone, she looked at him with a vague sense of trouble.

"You are, my offer with room because you think me in comfort. How little you know of the hard world if you think it so easy to earn the right to live in it."

"I—I don't understand," she faltered.

"No!" he said, drawing a little nearer, with the same smile of pity and condescension in his eyes. "You never suspected my ruse?"

He pointed to the papers.

She looked down at them in him.

"What—what do you mean?" she breathed.

"You do not see, even now?" he answered. "Can you not guess that it was I who sent the man to you with the fictitious offer of work?"

It all flashed upon Constance's mind in a moment. She sank upon the chair and hid her face in her hands.

He was by her side in a moment.

"Constance," he murmured, "forgive me! I wanted to keep you near me. I wanted to spare you the bitter disappointment which comes to all those who, like you, think they can find work in this hard world. Forgive me! it is all past now; there is no more drudgery nor happiness!" He sank on his knees and for you, dearest; nothing but peace and got hold of her hand as he spoke. 'Constance, say the word; be my wife—"

She had torn her hand from his grasp and had sprung to her feet in an instant.

"Never!" she panted, "Not if the world and me from starving. Your wife! I would rather beg—or die. Oh, why did you come? You love me, and deceive me so cruelly! You do not know what love means. Please go! Go this instant!"

She stood clutching the curtains with one hand and pointing with the other to the door.

He had risen, and, white to the lips, regarded her fixedly.

"Is that your last word?" he said, almost inaudibly.

She raised her hand and again pointed to the door.

"Heartless!", he exclaimed, hoarsely, his face set and rigid. "Do not be afraid"—she had moved toward the bell —"I am going. I leave you to discover and reap the misfortune you have made. Perhaps—who knows?—the time may come when you will admit it—yes, even to me." His manner changed swiftly. "I will wait till then. I ought to hate you"—he paused, as if his emotion must need him for the moment—"but I can not, I cannot. As surely as there is heaven above us, as surely as you and I stand here, the time will come when you will be glad—yes, glad to listen to me."

For a full minute he stood looking at her, his face eloquent with the storm of passion that raged within him; then he took his hat and slowly left the room.

CHAPTER XV.

With a low cry of relief Constance sank to the ground, and rested her head upon her arms outstretched upon the sofa. She was physically and mentally exhausted. Then suddenly she rose, and seizing the papers, tore them into fragments and flung them into the fire-place. And as she did so the art seemed to bring home to her the full sense of her helplessness.

The Circular Cape Plays the Rôle of Sleeves

The cape as cape, as the major part of an ensemble, the minor theme of a frock or the major cut of a coat are tremendously chic.

Paris tops the new modes with capes—long capes that take the place of long coats, short capes worn instead of jackets, shoulder capes that do nothing practical but make a fine sartorial gesture. In the French coat illustrated the circular cape takes the place of sleeves and body, while the lower part is attached to it at the front and back. This is an excellent coat for the home coat-maker, for it takes very little material and is very easily made. The original French coat was made of soft au lait homespun with a pale, pinkish flower on the lapel.

She carried liquor from St. Pierre Miquelon billed to Nassau.

She was short 185 cases when she was seized and it was admitted that this amount had been taken off by a motor boat eight miles from Pictou, N.S. which returned to Canadian shores.

Here's New One

St. Catharine, April 9 — In Police Court today, J. P. Haverson put up an ingenious defence for five city stand and hotel proprietors charged with selling over-strength beer. Samples of beer taken from taps showed it to be about double 4.4 strength. Haverson's line of defence was that the beer had become frozen in the taps. The alcohol content did not remain in the ice but was discharged into the beer not frozen which made it stronger.

Magistrate James H. Campbell reserved decision.

Belleville City Greatly Improved Over Ten Years Ago

PRESENT NAME GOOD

Discussion at Final Open Forum Meet of Chamber of Com.

"Civic economy and how it may be obtained," was the chief topic of interest and discussion at the final open forum meeting and banquet of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce held at the Queen's Hotel last evening.

Ex-Mayor H. F. Ketcheson presented a series of clear-cut facts and figures dealing with the city's financial position now, as compared with a few years ago. Following his address the various members expressed their views of the situation as it remains today and it was the general consensus of opinion that the Chamber of Commerce and citizens at large should co-operate with the council in regard to expenditures and improvements and thus save considerable money for the city treasury.

This was the third and final open forum meeting of the Chamber of Commerce for this season but these will be resumed in the Autumn.

Mackenzie Robertson spoke at the recent letters appearing in the press regarding the changing of the city's name and the members were of the opinion that Belleville had been suitably named and consequently there is no reason for changing it. Mr. Robertson made a motion which was seconded by Mr. W. B. Deacon, that representatives of the Chamber interview the editors of both local publications in an effort

G.M.C. Plant Still Closed

Oshawa, April 17. — (Special to Intelligencer) — The situation here remains the same—the General Motors plant is closed. The only ray of hope is the semi-official report that operations will be resumed next week on a temporary basis to clean up stock in process of manufacture. Strength is lent to this report by the fact that there is over a million dollars worth of partly manufactured material in the works which must be finished and this will probably be done at once.

AMERICAN DRYS RECRUIT RANEY TO COMBAT WETS

One Time Attorney-General of Ontario Witness at Washington

Washington, April 17.—The "dry" interests in drawing up witnesses to carry forward the bombardment against the modification measures at the Senate prohibition hearings, had today listed the aid of the Hon. W. E. Raney, one time Attorney-General for Ontario. Prohibitionists believed the former Provincial Minister could be placed in a position to combat the testimony of other Canadians put on stand by the "Wets" last week.

NOW CLEVELAND TAKES UP FIGHT IN WATER STEAL

Sees Move to Make River Illinois a Navigable Stream

Cleveland, Ohio, April 17. — The Chamber of Commerce here has taken up the fight to prevent the passage of a rider to rivers and harbors bill at Washington which would permit further diversion of lake water to the Illinois River. Letters have been sent to all Great Lakes cities asking them to enlist additional forces in the fight to "keep the lake levels up and the freight rates down." The letter declares, "powerful interests are making a strenuous effort to secure a passage of the rider," adding that the move to secure water to make the Illinois River navigable, is the sinister effort that will be repeated in future to justify Chicago's water diversion.

NEW COLLEGIATE TO COST NOT MORE THAN $400,000

BOARD OF EDUCATION APPROVES OF REPORT BY SPECIAL COMMITTEE AND WILL ASK CITY COUNCIL TO PROVIDE THE MEANS FOR THE ERECTION OF THE BUILDING

According to sketch plans presented at the School Board meeting last evening by Architect J. A. Thomson of the proposed new collegiate, it is estimated that the cost of he building will be $400,000. It will be on the present B. C. S. Site, St. Agnes was found unsuitable. The City Council will be waited upon by a deputation from the board and requested to provide the means for the erection of the building.

The report of the special committee of the Board which visited several urban centres where collegiates are established was presented and is as follow:

Belleville, April 16, 1926.

To the members of the Board of Education—

The special committee, consisting of Col. W. H. Ponton, Jamieson Bone, Principal MacLaurin, A. Thomson, Architect, and myself, appointed to visit Collegiates and Technical Schools have asked me to report.

TORONTO TO LONDON

We visited the Department of Education and had an interview with Dr. Colquhoun, Deputy Minister of Education also with Mr. Rutherford and Mr. Campbell of the Technical Branch. We then called on Mr. Dyson, Architect for the Toronto Board of Education, who took us through the New Jarvis St. Collegiate, a very fine collegiate costing about $650,000. We next visited Guelph Collegiate & Technical School—a good sufficiently large to take care of Belleville requirements for some time. This school cost $134,000 to build. The whole equipment (we were told that they had to spend about $30,000 additional on foundations of which the Government pays about 30%). In addition to this they get the County grant. We then visited the Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate & Technical School. Here they have a very fine Technical and Collegiate serving a population of about 22,000. Their building cost $230,000 of which the Government is assuming

FORD STOCK DROPS SHARPLY

New York, N.Y., April 17 —Stocks of the Ford Company of Canada continued their toboggan on the New York Curb exchange this morning, the theory of sellers coming to be that the proposed reduction of the Canadian tariff rates on automobiles would largely wipe out the advantage of the United States companies operating in Canada. A recession of 25 points was registered at the opening. Since Thursday Ford stock has receded 160 points from 610.

GIRL IS CLEARED OF BABE'S DEATH

At Brighton village last night before Thos. Dare, the coroner, an inquest was held to ascertain if possible how, when and where an infant came to its death.

Shortly after the 9th inst. the body of a child was found under the floor of a disused house in Brighton and it had been mutilated by dogs. Three physicians who were called gave it as their opinion that the child met a violent death by having its skul fractured.

The jury in the case gave it as their opinion that they were unable to say who was the mother of the child or how it came to its death.

Norma McDonald against whom there was a suspicion that she knew something of the occurrence, was exonerated from any blame.

Mr. W. F. Kerr, K.C., County Attorney of Northumberland County, conducted the examination of witnesses.

Considerable interest was manifested in the proceedings and many spectators were present at the hearing. Provincial Inspector C. E. Currey and Sergt. Ray of this city were in attendance at the enquiry.

Maple Syrup Quite Plentiful 'Taters High; Eggs Cheaper

Despite the fact that the weather during the past week has been cold and by no means ideal for sap weather, there was considerable maple syrup and sugar upon the market this morning.

Syrup sold at $3.50 per gallon and 65 cents by the quart. The ruling price for maple sugar was 30 cents per pound.

Eggs were exceptionally plentiful and reasonable in price. Specials sold at 24c per dozen, while fresh sold at 25c. A number of basket lots were secured for 23c and 24c per dozen.

Fresh dairy butter was offered for sale in considerable quantities. The ruling price was 40c per pound. Cream sold at 30c per pint.

Good prices were realized for dressed fowls. Chickens sold from $1.50 to $2.50 a pair according to quality. A few ducks were sold at $1.50 each.

The only change to note in prices of vegetables was that of potatoes which still maintain a good square namely $3.75 and $4 per bag.

Lettuce was sold at 10c and 15c per bunch, and rhubarb at 10 cents a bunch.

Apples are apparently a drug upon the market, selling at 25c and 35c a peck for first class fruit.

A vendor of cut flowers soon disposed of his stock. Pussies were sold at 25c a bunch and daffodils 25c a bunch.

A number of loads of hay were disposed of at $12 per ton.

FRANC CONTINUES TO DROP DESPITE VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS

MAINE AND VERMONT BURIED IN SEVERAL FEET OF SNOW

New York, April 17.—Maine, Northern Vermont and Northern New York today were digging from under a snow blanket left by a blizzard that established a new record for tenacity of winter in the section. The storm came as the climax of several days of near zero weather and in some places in Vermont drifts are piled five feet deep.

FAMOUS BEARDED LADY FEMININE AND SENSITIVE

New York, Apr. 17.—The shyness which Krao, the ultra-feminine bearded lady of the side shows overcame for thirty years to turn misfortune into prosperity, holds sway with her death. Krao, known in the circus as "The Missing Link", died yesterday of influenza, leaving instructions that her hairy body be cremated so that her peculiarities could no longer be exhibited. Despite her appearance, she was exceedingly feminine, according to her friends in the circus.

Thick hair on Krao's arm grew upward, monkey like; she had no cartilage in her nose; there were pouches in her cheeks and her fingers would bend backward as far as forward. But she spoke four languages. Captain Farini, who found her while exploring in Siam in 1888 was told by Siamese villagers that Krao's mother was frightened by a baboon shortly before Krao was born.

SPANISH AIRMEN LOST IN DESERT BOTH ARE FOUND

Cairo, April 17.— Both Captain Estevez, leader of the Spanish-Manila flieru and his mechanician, Calvo, have been found. Messages received here say they are in "fairly good condition" despite their wanderings in the desert since last Sunday when their aeroplane was forced down about 100 miles from Aman, Palestine.

Captain Estevez was found by Flying Officer Coghill of the British Air Force, forty miles from his abandoned machine. His feet were blistered but otherwise his condition was said to be fair. He was taken by the aeroplane to near est medical station. Mechanician Calvo was found twenty-five miles further away from the plane. If his condition permits he will be taken by aeroplane for medical treatment. Authorities are at loss to explain how the airmen subsisted during the long period between their forced landing and their rescue.

MEN IN CAR ARE CARRIED ALONG TRACK

Tim O'Ray and Percy Milligan Victims of Noon-time Tragedy

A PRIVATE CROSSING

Train Was Going About 35 Miles an Hour —Details

A tragic accident occurred at 11.30 this morning when C.N.R. passenger train No. 27 struck a motor car at Mitchell's Crossing three and a half miles east of the city, instantly killing two men.

TIMOTHY O'RAY, son of Patrick O'Ray of the 6th of Tyendinaga, and PERCY MILLIGAN, son of Mr. Peter Milligan, of Bloomington.

NO ONE SEES IT.

There were no witnesses to the tragedy and the exact way in which it happened could not be determined. Mr. O'Ray together with his companion had driven across the track from the road into the home of Mr. Arnold Mitchell where he remained a few minutes. Leaving Mr. Mitchell on the premises he came out of the drive way apparently, drove his car onto the track directly in front of the Canadian train which was travelling at a speed estimated at about 35 miles an hour.

The two occupants of the car were almost instantly killed and were found on the track some fifty or sixty feet from where the train struck the car. The car itself was a total wreck, pieces being scattered along the track a distance of 200 yards or more.

First on the scene of the catastrophe was Arnold Buston, young man employed by Mr. Mitchell. At the time of the accident he was behind the farm house about 100 yards from the crossing. He stated that he had distinctly heard the train whistle when it was some distance away possibly half mile. When he arrived at the scene Clarence Milligan was already dead but R. was stated that Mr. O'Ray lived a few moments.

Dr. Dafoe was shortly on the scene together with Dr. Boyce, Coroner, and an inquest into tragic affair will take place this evening.

Mr. O'Ray was a married man and is survived by a wife and seven small children. He was about 35 years of age. Clarence Milligan was single and about 25 years of age.

Just how the accident could happen at this point is something of a mystery. In front of Mr. Mitchell's property a clear view of the tracks is possible in each direction for a distance of at least half a mile. The occurrence is the more peculiar as the train was travelling on the north track so that Mr. O'Ray had to drive his car first over the track to the south which should have given him ample opportunity to see the train that might be approaching. The car as stated, was an open model and it is thought that the side curtains which must have been on made it impossible for Mr. O'Ray to see the approaching train. This seems to be the only reasonable explanation of the disaster as otherwise there was absolutely nothing to prevent a clear view in each direction.

The train which was in charge of Conductor Garry and Engineer Welsh of Brockville, was stopped within a distance of 1250 feet.

Mr. James O'Ray, brother of one of the unfortunate victims arrived on the scene an hour or so after the accident and identified his brother and Clarence Milligan. The bodies were later removed to Tickell's undertaking parlors.

NOW IN FORCE

Ottawa, April 17.—While the budget has still to pass the Canadian Parliament, the reduced tariff on American made cars went into effect yesterday. This is the usual course here in regard to tariff changes. If however changes are made in the budget proposals by parliament before they formally become law, readjustments are made with the importer.

NEW SCHOOL FOR $400,000

about 25%. They spent about $100,000 on equipment and site, of which about $20,000 was spent on the site. The Gov ernment does not recognize the money spent on the site but have taken care of 27.80% of the total. As we had about an hour between trains at London, we visited the London Central Collegiate, but as we had no appointment did not get any figures on costs, but were shown through the school by the principal and gathered considerable other information that would be valuable to us in building.

LONDON TO SARNIA

From there we went to St. Thomas, where they are building a New Technical School which will cost about $220,000 of which the Government will pay about 50%. This will give you some idea of the difference assumed by the Government between a purely technical school and a composite school.

Col. Purdon was called home and could not accompany us the rest of the way, but the rest of the Committee went to Sarnia where they have a very large and expensive Collegiate and Technical School, a very fine building costing about $675,000 for building and equipment, of which the Government is paying slightly over 30%. Here we met Charles Greenleaf in charge of Auto Mechanics and Charles Keeber in charge of Physical Culture and both making good.

AT ST. CATHARINES

From there we went to St. Catharines, Mr. Bone finding it necessary to leave the Committee at Hamilton. At St. Cathaines they have a very elaborate Collegiate and Technical School costing about $810,000 for building and equipment of which the Government paid about $140,000. Malcolm Parks, a Belleville boy, is in charge of the Wood working Shop at St. Catharines and is doing good work.

After our return we looked over the present High School site again, which site has been approved by the Department of Education. We also visited the St. Agnes School site, the main site of which is approximately the same size as our present grounds. In addition to this there is quite a large lot extending from Ann St. to William St. and adjoining Queen Alexandra School and connected with the main lot by a lane. The Architect is of the opinion that no part of the building on this lot could be incorporated in a new building suitable for Collegiate or Technical School. As we have no price on this property, the Committee has not arrived at any definite conclusion. The members of the Department of Education interviewed stated they would not make any grants on old buildings. Whether they would be induced to change their attitude is uncertain.

Our Committee gathered a lot of valuable detailed information (too much to incorporate in a general report) that will be very useful, if the proposed Collegiate and Technical School is proceeded with.

WELL RECEIVED

We were well received, and royally entertained at every place where it was possible, and we were freely furnished with all information required, by members and Secretaries of the respective Boards, as well as by the principals of the schools. Everyone was very enthusiastic about their schools, everyone had "the best school for the least money," and I did not find a single instance of any one complaining about increased taxation. On the contrary the chairman of St. Catharines stated to us he went on the Board prejudiced against their New Collegiate and Technical School, but had completely changed his opinion.

While there was perhaps some difference of opinion of the branches of technical work to be taken up, (a great deal depending on the industries in the different cities) all recommended Woodworking, Machine and Electrical Shops, also Domestic and Household Sciences, and some Auto Mechanics. All cities attended a good sized auditorium and two gymnasiums where at all possible, with separate gymnasiums for boys and girls. There was, however, considerable difference of opinion about swimming pools. Personally, I would suggest leaving it out of present building and if we found it necessary or sufficient demand, place it outside of the main building, as at Sarnia, at a later date.

WAIT ON COUNCIL

From information gathered I believe a Collegiate and Technical School suitable for the requirements of Belleville for some years to come could be built and equipped at a cost not exceeding $300,000, of which the Province's and County's share would be 45 to 50%. As the Government grant is not likely to be increased and will no doubt be decreased when the Federal grant expires next year, I believe it would be good policy to wait on the City Council, immediately the preliminary plans and estimates are ready, and ask for a grant, in order that the building may be gone on with at an early date, as it can be enclosed before the winter, so finishing work can go forward during the winter, thus supplying our mechanics and laborers with work at a slack season of the year. H. W. Ackerman.

ST. AGNES UNSUITED

Mr. McGie—It is pretty well understood what is needed now in regard to a collegiate. It would be wise to get the collegiate started this year. The St. Agnes school grounds and building were visited. The present site of the high school is well adapted as a play ground. None of the St. Agnes School buildings could be utilized for a collegiate. He would like to have a committee appointed to go on with the collegiate.

Mr. Bone was in favor of the proposed new collegiate being enclosed before next winter arrives. The City Council should be waited upon to make a grant.

Mr. P. C. McLaurin spoke of the student body of Belleville and the necessity there was of going on with the new collegiate as soon as possible.

In reply to an enquiry Mr. J. A. Thomson architect stated that the cost of the building designed after the sketch plans shown would be $400,000.

Some discussion took place as to whether the new building should face on St. John or Church street. This will be decided later.

On motion the report of the special committee was adopted.

HEARD OTHER REPORTS

Business transacted at the School Board meeting last evening was, out side of the special report on the new collegiates, mostly routine. The Schuster Company was awarded the contract for the supply of coal for the ensuing year, the test to be tested.

Members present were Mr. J. Elliott ,chairman, Messrs. D. O. Bleeck, H. Jamieson, A. McGie, G. O. Smith, A. F. Stillman, H. W. Ackerman, J. W. Cook, W. Harvey, Mrs. Florence Bayes, Mrs. Agnes McFee, A. R. Schryver, F. B. Smith.

Mr. George T. Woodley, an ex-chairman of the Board who was present, was welcomed by Chairman Mr. Elliott.

The Board went into committee of the whole on reports. Trustee J. W. Cook in the chair.

A number of accounts recommended to be paid by the finance committee were passed for payment.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT

Mr. H. J. Clarke, School inspector, submitted his report for the half year and it was of a satisfactory nature. All teachers were qualified and the organization was gratifying. The teachers are all doing good work. Discipline was satisfactory on the whole. The pupils work was of a satisfactory nature. The registration and average attendance was as follows:

	Registered	Average Attendance
Q. V. School ..	493	453
Q. M. School ..	448	421
Q. A. School ..	444	405
K. G. School ..	353	317
Total	1737	1596

The public schools were in a very efficient condition, but some improvement might be made in regard to attendance.

A motion prevailed to grant that the request of the Inspector to use King George School for some examinations and that he purchase some necessary stationary.

HEALTH REPORTS

Miss A. V. Sinclair, school nurse, presented a monthly report as to what had been done in reference to assisting children who needed medical attention. The clinics held had been of great benefit.

The report of the attendance officer, Mr. Wm. F. Ashley were on motion sent to the chairmen of the various schools in the city to ascertain if any improvement in attendance can be secured.

WANT INSTRUMENTS

The members of the bugle band of the High School asked the Board to assist them in securing two drums and three bugles. The cost would be $415.70.

After Mr. P. C. McLaurin, principal of the High School, had spoken in reference to the Board assisting in this matter, the Board decided to give a grant of $31.35, one half of the expense.

Prof. V. P. Hunt thanked the Board for sending him to Montreal to attend a musical convention in the city. The

Much Suffering Follows Influenza

An epidemic of influenza, such as is always leaves widespread suffering in its wake. The disease itself is dangerous, but the danger is seldom over when the characteristic symptoms of the trouble have passed. There is left behind depression of spirits, weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and overmastering nervousness. Men and women who were robust before stricken with influenza find their bodies racked with pain previously unknown to them. This is due to the abnormal thinning of the blood and leaves the system an easy prey to other serious troubles. This is the time when the convalescent from influenza should build up the blood with a reliable blood-making tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When the blood regains its rich red quality the nerves recover their strength and the organs of the body function naturally and the dangerous, depressing aftereffects of influenza disappear. Proof of the undoubted value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood-builder and nerve tonic is shown by the case of Mrs. R. O. Stromberg, Cobalt, Ont., who says: "I had a very severe attack of grippe, or influenza, which confined me to my bed for a week. On getting up again I did not recover my usual strength. I was very weak, had a severe pain in my back and a constant backache. I had to get a woman to do my work for me as I had neither the strength nor the ambition to do anything. At this time remembering the great benefit I had through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in girl hood, I began taking this medicine, and soon my strength began to return. I am now able to do all my own work again, and have been for some time. I am very grateful for what the pills have done for me, and hope my experience will be of benefit to some other sufferer."

If you need a blood-building tonic be sure to get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to-day. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50c. a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"More rope" wanted

Some years ago a heroic girl gave her life in rescuing women and children when a tidal wave overwhelmed her home city.

She could have saved many more victims and probably her own life if she had had more rope. As it was, her body was found later with those of seven little children lashed to her's. But her rope was not long enough to enable her to reach safety.

The Salvation Army is engaged in rescuing the souls and bodies of men and women and children who have been caught in the raging waters of sin and misery. The Army throws its rope to as many as it can reach, but there are always more to be reached. The work of rescue never ceases.

Money is The Army's rope. Won't you give The Army "more rope" by contributing to the Self-Denial Fund?

The Soldiers of The Salvation Army are themselves givers according to their means. They give their lives to the work. You can give your dollars.

Some little child or some poor heart-broken mother will benefit by your money. You can put money to no more practical and helpful use than by giving to the work of The Salvation Army. The work never ceases, night or day.

NICK PICCION IS NOT GUILTY

Magistrate Gave Him Benefit of Doubt on Liquor Selling

Nick Piccion an Italian store keeper on Station Street was on trial all day Friday before Magistrate Mason on a charge of selling liquor on March 22nd. A bottle of liquor was produced by Romanjie and Stukup two Russian employed as special O. T. A. officers, which they swore they bought from Piccion that date. They also produced an other bottle which they swore they had previously purchased there, and a part of a bottle was produced that Officer Napban, Garnett and Fry found on the premises when Piccion was arrested. Piccion swore that he was in Toronto on March 22nd, which was corroborated by his wife and by Mr. Baker timekeeper at the C.N.R. who said that Piccion was not at work that day and he had issued him a pass for Toronto the day before.

HIS BUSINESS

W. C. Mikel, K.C. on behalf of the accused took objection that Romanjie and Stukup must prove their appointment as special officers in the regular way. B. O. Donnan for the prosecution urged that it was sufficient for them to swear they were special officers and the Magistrate took their evidence subject to the objection. Romanjie said in answer to Mr. Mikel acting for the defence, that he "only knew a little about the duties of his office."

"Your business is to come to a town find out the names of persons who are suspected of being weak in observing the O.T.A., tempt them to break it, and then bring them to Court and punish them for what you have tempted them to do?" asked Mr. Mikel. "Yes, and I also make observations to enforce the law."

"Do you know the Lord's Prayer?"

"Yes."

"You remember it says 'Lead us not into temptation?'"

"Yes."

"Do you repeat it on your knees?"

"I do."

At the close of the evidence argument was heard and the Magistrate held that while there were suspicious circumstances in the case, still on the evidence there was a reasonable doubt and the accused was entitled to the benefit of that doubt, and dismissed the charge.

ON OBSTRUCTING CHARGE

At the conclusion of the case Piccion and his wife were arrested on a charge that they did obstruct License Inspector Napban and Sergt. Ray, of the Provincial police while in the discharge of their duties. The accused pleaded not guilty and the case was enlarged for a week. Mr. Mikel will defend the accused and Mr. B. O. Donnan will represent the Crown.

Hair Dry, Brittle from Constant Waving, Curling

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, usually burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle and full of dandruff; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

Since girls just must curl and wave (to hair to appear their prettiest, try "Danderine" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, become incomparably soft, wavy and appear twice as thick and abundant. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing "Danderine" from any drug store or toilet counter will do wonders for any girl's hair. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

SCOUTS PROVE THEY CAN ACT

In Concert at City Hall Are Assisted by Talent Among Grown-Ups

Company No. 1 Boy Scouts, "The Old Originals" last evening in the City Hall put on one of the finest entertainments as amateur organization has yet staged in the city. The programme was so varied, so well chosen and arranged and so finely managed not a moment lagged and the audience present enjoyed a really interesting evening.

THE PROGRAMME

The programme opened with selections by the Bon Ton Orchestra which were appreciated. This was followed by stunts which rivalled some of the circus ring exercisements by Arnold Ridley, trainer; Earl Day, Malcolm Blakeley, Bob Graham, Will VanTassel, Bruce Lattimer, Harvey Brown, Ernie Mouck, Bob Chadwick, Clare Countryman, Archie Boyd, Jack Graves. After this Mr. Hugh Middlemiss sang a splendidly received solo, the Radio Four quartette, a selection, Clem Allen and Jim Lattimer a very splendid duet, Dr. A. B. Haffner, a solo.

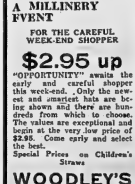

The Wolf Cubs drill was an interesting feature and all the little fellows went through the various drills most cleverly and accurately. This was followed by a playlet "The Blind Man" in which an old blind man groping along was rescued from boy tormenters by Boy Scouts and after Malcolm Blakely had read the tormentors a lecture, Bob Graham told them the scout promises, and Bruce Lattimer the laws of the organization, the mischievous boys joined up to become scouts.

GIRL GUIDES

A company of the Girl Guides under the direction of Lieut. Miss Evelyn Bull sang some very well received camp fire songs, Miss Doris Ventress gave some splendid readings, Miss Ida Folwell a costume dance, Mr. Harold Barrett a solo, decorated the rooms in white dance was held and a large "C" was hung upon each wall. Refreshments were served in the organate room and the music supplied by a four piece orchestra under the direction of Mr. Reg Hinchey.

"C" COMPANY HELD A SUCCESSFUL DANCE

At the Armouries last evening "C" Company were hosts at the last of the series of dances to be given by that company for the year and the large assembly present had a thoroughly enjoyable evening. A committee composed of the officers of the company Captain H. Abrahms, Lieut. Hubert ones, Lieut. George Faulkner and Mrs. Hubert M. Jones very efficiently looked after the arrangements for the evening during which Mr. Red Doran gave a splendid exhibition of the Charleston. The dance was a pretty feature. The company which is largely composed of students from the High School had every

All the artists were most heartily encored. The concluding number "The Boys' Club" another playlet which demonstrated a club meeting in which some clever local hits were made, was very interesting and embodied in this a debate "Resolved the Cow is of More Use to Man than the Horse" proved wide its varied argument rather adespiltting.

THE OFFICERS

The Cubs who contributed a very interesting item to the programme were trained by Mr. F. R. Brason and the officers who assisted were Mr. Robert Santer, Mr. Brason, as well as Max Conners, Dwight Wells, and Clem Allen. Rev. Dr. F. S. Mallott occupied the chair. "Let there be harmony in things essential—liberty in things not essential—Charity in all."

THE BUDGET

The Government in its subservience to the Progressives has succeeded in injuring the Canadian motor industry. The statement issued yesterday by the Automotive dealers reads very pessimistically and they must indeed have seen their work of years go on the rocks with feelings that were anything but cheerful. That the Government even in its great plight would go to this length to keep in power is surest evidence that it is not a practical or a business Government that it has no regard for the welfare of Canada but has only its love of power in mind.

The General Motors of Canada would not go to the extreme limit of closing their plant except in the face of a crisis. That crisis is upon Canada. It remains to be seen what is to follow. Certain it is that a howl of protest will go up against the change made by the powers that be at Ottawa and indeed it is possible that before the smoke clears this band of office-holders at the Capital may have been made less complacent than they seem to be at the moment.

It is an astonishing thing to have done—indeed a highly dangerous thing—this throwing out of employment of thousands of people with the consequent uncertainty and loss not only to employees but to trades-people to whom they owe normal accounts and to their families who see their bread taken out of their mouths, even temporarily.

The House of Commons is certain to be the battle ground of a considerable amount of high-tension campaigning in the immediate future. The Budget may yet prove to be just the "straw that broke the camel's back". A Government that was defeated last Fall at the Polls but has stuck to office in spite of that defeat may yet be driven helter-skelter into outer darkness.

COAL AND THE FUTURE

Addressing the convention of Retail Coal Dealers in Toronto, Richard F. Grant, American coal expert and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said some pleasant things about the relations of American anthracite producers with their Canadian customers. He assured his hearers that there is no danger of an embargo on anthracite, and that Canada will have all the anthracite it wants for the next five years."

That is very good so far as it goes. The agreement between the anthracite miners and operators guarantees steady and continuous production for five years, and it will be in the interest of the operators to sell in Canada all the coal that Canada wants—to sell it, of course, at a good profit. But what about the supply after the five-year agreement has expired?

There is no guarantee that in 1931 the people of this province will not have their anthracite supply suddenly cut off. It is not too early to prepare for a Canadian source of supply for domestic fuel.

A GOV'T. BLUNDER

The ways of the Immigration authorities are past understanding. There have been expensive efforts for many years past to induce British settlers of the right type to come to Canada—that is to say, people with farming experience of a class which can make itself immediately useful and self-supporting after arrival—and now that the movement has at last set in, a halt is being called. According to a despatch from Ottawa many of the British emigrants who are quite prepared and anxious to come, under the scheme which provides for the settlement of 3,000 families on Canadian land, have been asked to defer their departure for another year, the explanation given being that the department is anxious that none but the best farms should be offered to the newcomers. That is an entirely worthy desire, but it certainly seems strange that so comparatively small a number of settlers could not be accommodated without delay families were settled last year and probably another thousand will be placed this year, the remainder, however, will have to wait. One thing seems to be clear—there is no lack of suitable farm emigrants in the Old Country, as generally supposed. Here are these people all ready to come and Canada eager to have them, and yet officialdom finds it inconvenient to hurry itself for their benefit. The excuse that land is not available is derided by the Edmonton Journal, which says "If the department really wants to bring them out, the full 3,000 could be accommodated on suitable land right here in Central and Northern Alberta." It would seem to be very unwise to check the movement just before it has really got under way

GULLIBLE PEOPLE

Because of the alertness of the manager of a branch bank in Toronto, two Russians who are said to have confessed to raising dollar bills to "twenties", were taken into custody. They had been carrying on a profitable business for many weeks, not because of exceptional craftsmanship, but because a lot of people in the Queen city "don't believe all they read in the newspapers". Their method of realizing on the alleged currency was to engage a room in a rooming house, tender the raised bill in payment and receive their change in good, spendable money. The first landlady victimized reported the occurrence to the police and the newspapers wanted rooming house proprietors to be on their guard, yet the swindlers operated day after day, without detection; and it remained for a bank teller, to whom a genuine $20 bill had been tendered for change, to turn the pair over to the police. The fact that the bill passed over the counter had a corner torn from it did not effect its face value, but it did create suspicion in the mind of the bank teller and he acted upon his hunch. Over in Buffalo two nests of counterfeiters have been invaded by the police, three arrests made and equipment and various bales of the "paper" seized. Examination reveals the currency to have been rudely fashioned—and yet it is believed that circulation of it netted the counterfeiters more than $100,000 in the last few months. Despite the odds against them, counterfeiters depend upon the carelessness of the public to make the game profitable for them. The average man or woman takes but cursory notice of currency coming into his or her possession, being only interested in the numerals in the corner. The chances of escaping arrest are all with the counterfeiter until the phoney money gets to the banks, where the fraud is immediately detected. After that, the counterfeiter's period of freedom is usually brief. The prisons are full of men who have tried to compete with the government printing presses—and the streets are full of people whose gullibility is a standing invitation to the dishonest.

FRENCH-CANADIAN FRENCH

If a French savant were to come to Hamilton and, in a public address tell us that the English spoken in Ontario is not the true English as spoken in England, but only a dialect, we should probably be impelled to tell him he would do better to confine his remarks to something that he knew something about. Sir John Adams, an English educationist of note, gave just such an exhibition of bad taste and bad judgment. At the Educational Conference in Montreal to which he was a delegate he said that the French language as spoken in Quebec is not true French, but only a dialect, a patois. As if his French-Canadian hearers were not better qualified than he to dogmatize on that subject.

Senator Belcourt was amply justified in politely but firmly letting the distinguished visitor know that he was mistaken. The French spoken by educated French-Canadians is at least as pure French as that which is spoken anywhere in France, and much purer than that used by the average Parisian. Eminent Canadians like Sir Wilfred Laurier, Sir Adolphe Chapleau, Honore Mercier or Senates Beahien, who have addressed audiences in old France were listened to with delight and the purity of their diction and the beauty of their accent were extolled by fastidious critics.

True, the language of the uneducated French-Canadian habitant is not pure French. But would Sir John Adams be willing to admit that the vernacular of the farm laborers of Somersetshire or Yorkshire is pure English? Would he not think it rather strange for a visitor to England to point out that they do not speak the language of Oxford or Cambridge?

12 ORANGES A DAY KEEPS DOCTOR AWAY FOR PREMIER OLIVER

Victoria, B.C., April 17. — If John Oliver, veteran premier of British Columbia, says he never felt better in his life than he does now, and he will because he eats a dozen oranges a day. That is his explanation, of it, anyway, and he adds that such a diet is a sure panacea for all ills.

"I buy oranges in bulk and keep a box in my office all the time," Premier Oliver stated. "I just help myself during the day. No specific results; I eat an orange whenever I feel like one, and I usually average a dozen every day."

Premier Oliver hasn't been able to reduce his menu to oranges entirely, although he thinks it would do him good if he did. But he is gradually tapering down on other foods. Instead of the enormous meals which he used to eat when he spent most of his time on his farm, he consumes about one pound of meat a week and about the same amount of vegetables.

"As a man grows older the less he should eat, especially when he is not working with his hands in the open air," he declared.

Oranges mark the premier's third attempt at finding the ideal diet. First he tried goat's milk, then apples—and now oranges. Fruit juice has all the others beaten, he declares.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

To those doubting Thomases, who believe that all western productions are cast from the same mold and are, therefore, as alike as the proverbial peas, visit the Belle Theatre, Thurs., when "The Painted Hill" plays Monday and Tuesday.

This picture, based on Peter B. Kyne's latest novel, not only blazes a new trail in outdoor photoplays, being possessed of a plot that develops along entirely original lines, but it is modern and up-to-date as the newest Paris gown, dating as it does with the West Coast oil boom and employing such startling innovations as airplanes and machine guns.

A story of action, romance, mystery and intrigue is "The Enchanted Hill" which gets its title from the fact that the ranch house, around which the action centers, has been built on a very high hill commanding a magnificent view of the country for miles around.

The central character is Lee Pugh, a bold, brave and romantic young fellow who comes to New Mexico buys a cattle ranch and makes discoveries. In that Gail Ormsby, owner of the adjoining ranch, is just about the most beautiful girl he has ever laid eyes on.

Each 15-cent package contains directions so simple any woman can tint or dye delicate shades or dye rich, permanent colors to fingerve silks, ribbons, skirts, waists, dresses, coats, stockings, sweaters, draperies, covers, curtains, hangings—everything.

Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—and tell your druggist whether the material you wish to color is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.

AT GRIFFIN'S

If one loves beautiful gowns, silks, satins, frills, and flares, it is best not to miss Colleen Moore's "dress," her latest First National feature.

Colleen promises to make everybody sit up and take notice when her pictures are flashed upon the screen at Griffin's, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Sixty of the pick of Hollywood's prettiest girls form the background for her appearance in these scenes.

"It's the most wonderful picture I have ever made. I am sure," says Colleen to Cora McGeachy, the woman designer who is responsible for the beautiful costumes that are being worn by the star and her many associates in the film.

And old timers around the dreaming shops of Hollywood, who are more or less used to creating beautiful females mates, really admit that the "frens" order was one of the finest they ever let go out of their hands.

Mrs. Partia Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health

Toronto, Ontario.—"My daughter is 16 now and has been an invalid ever since she was six months old and has been a helpless cripple to remain in bed most of the time. We have tried different kinds of medicine, but never much. I had taken Lydia E. Sometimes school every day now and goes skating, and does other outof-door sports. I recommend this medicine to any one who is run-down, and nervous and weak." — Mrs. PARTIA, 106 Reid Street, Toronto, Ontario.

TRAIN SERVICE

Secretary Hertly said he had noted that the Canadian National Railways were seriously considering the changing of the present schedule and cutting two trains on this division, numbers 29 and 30. Supt. McMillan explained that this meant the saving of $50,000 a year to the railroad as these trains have not been operating on a paying basis for some time. A new train would leave Belleville at 6.25 a.m., arrive in Toronto at 10.30 and returning would leave the Union Station at 4.30 p.m., reaching here at 8.25 p. m. The train will take the place of the 4.05 one and he was assured that the Chamber would not interfere in this move since it meant a considerable saving.

retary Owen Hertly's birthday fell on the day of the banquet and Mr. Hertly graciously accepted the congratulations of the members and made a suitable reply. He said he had nothing but pleasant recollections of his association with people of Belleville and although many other tempting offers had come his way, nothing could induce him to leave the place where he had made so many true friends.

Mr. W. J. Deacon introduced the subject "Civic economy and how it may be obtained". He dealt with it briefly, outlining a few suggestions where money might be saved by working in league with the council and putting new ideas up to them and advising them on different matters.

H. F. KETCHESON

Ex-Mayor Ketcheson declared that the city and its finances were in very complicated state and have been during late years. He said he was in favor of extending the period of office for aldermen and mayor to three years. "For the most part they are generally green men with no previous experience in handling the city's business and spend a good deal of the year learning to transact the affairs, then in many cases they are ousted from office and someone else is substituted", he said.

"The council are the men who impose direct taxation on the ratepayers and it is they who should devote time and thought to the problem and place the right men in office."

Mr. Ketcheson asserted that the council spends annually $400,000 of the city's funds.

"We have the finest set of civic officials in the Dominion, but they cannot do their best in the interest of the city if they do not receive the co-operation of the people."

He stressed that efficiency should not be sacrificed to secure civic economy but expenditures must be watched closely and no money wasted and made assurance doubly sure that anything is being derived on every transaction. He cited several instances of waste paper which had been laid and then torn up later to dig sewers and gas mains. These should have undoubtedly been laid before the street was paved and the money saved.

Mr. Ketcheson reviewed the paving of West Bridge St. when plans were drawn up and work proceeded with without the signatures of the ratepayers and as a result the work was halted at intervals.

All jobs started by the Public Works should be bound by a hard and fast contract.

Mr. Ketcheson showed that the population had increased approximately 500 in a space of ten years while the expenses in 1916 were $212,936 and in 1925 they jumped to $461,081.

He admitted that most of the increased cost was warranted such as the addition of Mothers' Allowances, Old Age Pensions, celebrations and city hospital which is now grant ed $10,000 a year.

The 1916 cost of watering the streets was $541.00; in 1925 it was close to $7000.00. Oiling of the streets in 1916 cost $2,144.00 while it ran to $9,000.00 in 1925.

"We must be particular in selecting our council. It is said in closing our remarks, of experience to handle our city's affairs. We have this year a fine body of men, let us re-elect them next year and we will eventually profit by so doing."

EX-MAYOR HANNA

Ex-Mayor Chas. Hanna said that old councils had left a heavy debt undone and the time has arrived when these things had reached a point where they must be done and this meant the spending of a considerable amount of money.

H. W. ACKERMAN

Ex-Mayor Ackerman declared that we, in Belleville, must not let the idea run to other towns that Belleville is being overtaxed. Cities all over the Dominion have taxes that are equally as high as that of Belleville's.

"We demand luxuries and must expect to pay for them; the city cannot do things for nothing and the ratepayers must pay", said Mr. Ackerman. "Let us have improvements, sewers extended and other improvements and these cost money."

EX-MAYOR BENNET

Ex-Mayor C. A. Bennet claimed there was no comparison to the Belleville of 1916 and that of 1925. The councils of recent years tried to get through with the least expenses possible but new improvements had to be made and these had inevitably fall to the lot of the taxpayer to face.

"Oftentimes councillors spent money rather lavishly during the closing months of the year in order to get the confidence of, the electors."

"We cannot stand still but must keep up with the times and economize the best we can," he said in closing.

JAMIESON BONE

Ex-Alderman Bone read a letter regarding the desirability of holding a convention of urban municipalities between Ontario and Western Ontario have organised associated boards of trade who have done much to improve conditions in these sections of the province.

A grant of $5,000.00 was recent ly given by the Ontario government to the association in the north country.

Ex-mayor Ontario receives no such grants and an organization of this kind would undoubtedly do a great deal of good in fostering the development f water pwer and manufactures.

Concerted action of this kind would create many benefits and improved roads would induce American tourists to visit this district.

C. A. Cameron, chairman, referred to the development of water power at Merrickville which would mean that manufacturers in Eastern Ontario could operate at a much lower cost.

The matter was left in the hands of the directors of the Chamber.

W. B. Deacon proposed the erection of sign boards at various points along the highways informing tourists of the distance to Belleville.

This lead to further discussion and different ideas were advanced as to the inscriptions on the signs.

Mr. J. A. Cokers suggested the advertising of Belleville's tourist camp.

The erection of signs on the city limits was also mentioned.

The Chamber of Commerce will endeavor to seek the co-operation of the Ontario Motor League in this matter.

Fifty members were present at the meeting which was presided over by C. A. Cameron.

Anderson by 93 pins in the mixed doubles competition that is being put on at the Recreation Alleys and which closes tonight. The high score that was made by Miss Whalen and G. Anderson had been standing since the first night and although it wasn't a high score to beat, somehow or other the bowlers always fell down. The following are the scores that Miss Lynch and D. Barrett for the Tigers were the highest bowlers.

In the ladies' junior league the Alerts upset the dope and won all four points from the Shamrocks, the Alerts rolling a nice score of 2209 which would do any senior team credit. Miss I. Ebber for the Alerts rolled a single score of 275 and 620 for three strings. For the Shamrocks Mrs. Tracey was high bowler.

In the men's junior league the Claco and the Hardware broke even, each team counting two points. The Claco only won the first game, but piled up enough pins in this game to give them the total. High bowlers were Smith 645, and S. Tobe 622.

TALK DISTRIBUTION OF ALCOHOL STOCK

Montreal, April 17.—In the autumn it was given out that the shares of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol were held by 1,000 people. Since the above mentioned data, a further distribution has been in process and today the shareholders' list has been increased to nearly 2,000, as compared with 291 when the stock was listed in October, 1924. Thus the technical position has been greatly improved, and the stock has of late become more popular with the investor.

From well-informed sources it is learned that the business of the company is better than it was a year ago, and profits are higher. The month of March was one of the best as far as net profits are concerned, in the history of the company.

WARNS OF EARTHQUAKE WRITING ON EGG SHELL

North Bay, April 17.—"Earthquake; beware April 21," is the terse warning on the shell of an egg found by Mrs. Alfred Turner, on the floor of her boy's home. The inscription is in raised lettering which is slightly darker than the remainder of the shell. Neither pen or pencil has been used, and as the egg is full of meat it is impossible that the lettering was done from the inside. When a light is held to the under side of the egg the lettering appears to be much thinner than the surrounding shell. Otherwise the egg is normal, being of the usual shape, size and coloring.

Sinical Sadie Sees

Even some of the Liberals are pulling "their" up with the policy of the King Government. The following is from the "Ontario" of April 14th.

"How much longer has Canada to suffer from the flesh of small price policy of the Govt. at Ottawa."

"Stratford theatre fans got their money's worth when in a broadcasting act the lion jumped on the trainer and clawed him rather badly." (News Item).

Sinical Sadie says quite frankly her sympathies are with the lion. One has only to watch one of these "animal acts" at circuses and shows to realize the cruelty of the thing.

One of the most cold-blooded arrangements in the business world is that whereby the rates on ocean-going steamers include meals.

Diogenes was once asked what beasts had the most dangerous bite. He replied: "If you mean wild beasts, the slanderers; if tame ones, the flatterers."

Sinical Sadie suggests we send the Oxford eight some of our maple sugar next year.

THE MUMPS

Have you ever had the measles,
Or the chicken pox or mumps?
Has you skin come out in specules
Or your neck come out in lumps?

Last year I had them every one,
The measles made me red,
The mumps gave me the swellings,
But 'pox kept me most in bed.

When I had these diseases
I couldn't play or eat or rest.
But with mumps I looked the funniest,
So I liked the mumps the best.

—Florence B. Stetner.

CONCLUSIVE

"Can the dead communicate with us", was the subject of debate the other day. "They can not," said one of the company, "How do you know?" he was asked. "Well," was the reply, "I once borrowed five dollars from a Scotsman. He died a week later, and I've heard nothing about it since."

SEVEN MISTAKES OF LIFE

"There are seven mistakes of life that many of us make," said a famous writer, and he gave the following list:

1. The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.

2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.

3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.

4. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.

5. Neglecting development of the element of the mind by not acquiring the habit of reading.

6. Refusing to set aside trivial preferences, in order that important things may be accomplished.

7. The failure to establish the habit of saving money.

Poems Old And New

FIRE WOOD

Oak logs will warm you well
If they're old and dry;
Logs love of pine woods smell,
But the sparks will fly;
Beech logs for Christmas time,
Yew logs heat you well;
"Scotch" logs it is a crime
For anyone to sell
Birch logs will burn too fast,
Chestnut scarce at all;
Hawthorn logs are good to last
If cut in the fall.
Cedar logs will burn like wax,
You should burn them green;
Elm logs like smouldering fire,
No flame to be seen;
Pear logs and apple logs,
They will scent your room;
Cherry logs across the dogs
Smell like flowers in bloom;
But ash logs all-smooth and grey
Burn them green or old,
Buy up all that come your way,
They're worth their weight in gold.

ALCHEMY

Sometimes my day so sordid seems,
So blank and colorless, devoid of dreams;
That like the grains of sand in oyster shells,
It seems it, too, must irk the place wherein it dwells.

Then through the hours, monotonous and gray,
There comes affectionate, quickening and gay;
The proven love of friends, the gain of right,
The surging forth of all the heart's pure might.
And, as the oyster to a pearl has turned the sand,
The alchemy of Truth shows treasure close at hand.
—Mary Chase Wharebee in The Monitor.

MOON CHILDREN

When with fingers all uncertain, tiny stars have torn the curtain
And are peering down the avenue of dreams,
When the night is soft and tender, then the moon is in his splendor
And his silver brothers swim in all the streams.

And he looks into the valleys, into city streets and alleys,
But no beauty snatches his in any place;
Till into the small rooms creeping he beholds the babies sleeping—

And for shame he draws a cloud before his face.

—Michael Lewis.

By Martha Ostenso

The shoe of little Tillie,
That is, Tillie's little shoe,
Stood straight one night 'neath Tillie's bed,
As proper shoes should do.

But where, then, was the other one?
How could she do without it?
Oh, it was there, but stayed all night,
So we won't talk about it.

Now Tillie's little shoe rebelled
Because he had to go
Wherever Tillie went all day,
And O, he wanted so

To go abroad alone and see
The wonderous everywhere,
To climb the wall, to jump the ditch
That Tillie didn't dare.

As soon as all was still and just,
The goldy moon was peeking,
The shoe from 'neath the prim small bed
Was softly, swiftly sneaking.

He nimbled out the window and
Then down, and down, and down
He danced into the garden where
Baby beets were sown.

He knew Tillie was forbidden
To tread that damp, black spot,
And he laughed until his strings
Felt shook
To do what she could not.

There stood a tall, rough oak tree
The garden gate beside,
Tillie couldn't climb it
Cause Tillie never tried.

The shoe just bent him double,
And not once did he stop
Until he saw the whole wide world
From its leafy, greeny top.

"Ooh! How big it is!" cried he,
"A hill! A lake! A tower!
And I'm the only shoe on earth
Abroad at this late hour!"

Then sudden terrified grew he,
Alone in the high, black night:
A fat bat hurtled, a cricket chirped
And his instep quaked with fright

He shook so that he slipped and fell
To a feathery fount below
It shot him high, and he came down wet
On a rock and stubbed his toe.

It hurt and hurt, so bobbled he
Back to Tillie's room,
Climbed in the window crookedly
And sat him in the gloom.

'Neath Tillie's bed. When morn broke blue
And Tillie looked about,
She was shocked to find the little shoe
Was all worn out.

—From Canadian Magazine.

AUTHOR OF "WUTHERING HEIGHTS"

In an interesting little volume, Emily Jane Bronte (published by the Old Parsonage Press), Alice Law discusses the authorship of "Wuthering Heights," attributing its authorship to Emily's brother, Branwell Bronte, for whom she has made out a very good case. She mentions that for a young woman living the retired and lonely life of Emily Bronte in a country parsonage, the creation of this great novel was nothing less than a miracle. Branwell had the experience necessary; he also had talent; he was in distress of mind and body. The strange, wild characters of "Wuthering Heights" may—what is more likely!—be the creations of his own madness, she maintains. Miss Law's thesis is interesting, even though it may not convince us. She does not, however, wish to detract from the recognized genius of Emily, for whom she expresses enthusiastic admiration, and whom, deprived of her claims to the authorship of the book she leaves to us as a "great mystic, a profound thinker, and a lyric poet of the first order."

The Marquis

BY
CHARLES GARVICE

Alone and unprotected, how could she escape the further persecution of this man whose love proved as relentless as hate? She knew him too well now not to be aware that he could not leave her in peace. He had set detectives on her track; he would continue to watch her every movement. A life led with the ever-present consciousness that she was being perpetually spied upon and dogged would be intolerable. What should she do to escape him?

BIT O' VERSE

"Too close life crowds. There is no place to hide.
Let us take time to know the thoughts of men;
Time to know people; and time to feel again.
Calm and content of soul—the quiet power
Of meditation through a gentle hour;
Time for the book, the song the golden weather
Made for the happiness of friends together;
Let this hour be still. Let us take time—
Take time."

ANTIQUES

An old sofa in Ottawa which had been the courting place for seven daughters in the family yielded all kinds of relics when it was broken up recently. Here's what Mr. Blake, the owner, found:—"47 hairpins, 12 needles, 8 cigarettes, 3 photographs, 217 pins, 6 pocket knives, 15 poker chips, a bottle of headache wafers, 34 lumps of chewing gum, 9 toothpicks and 4 buttonhooks.

BROWN SUGAR WINS A RACE

"A little hot water with sugar in it is better than whisky for the cure of a cold," once caused by work" said Sir Charles Symonds, the famous surgeon recently. "You will have noticed the amusing foot race match between Cambridge and Oxford this spring. Just before the race each Cambridge man was given two teaspoonsful of brown sugar which, according to experts, would become effective just when the stirs might set in seriously. Cambridge arrived at the goal five lengths ahead of their rivals with the crew fairly fresh, it is said, while the Oxford crew were badly exhausted. It would seem as if 16 teaspoonsful of brown sugar won the race!

A CANADIAN NOVELIST

The delightful poem in another column "A Shoe" by Martha Ostenso, the young Canadian school teacher who wrote "Wild Geese". This novel was a first one and won a big money prize.

The rooms seemed to spin round and become sliding. Passing and breathing she hurried up her hat and jacket, and went down the stairs and into the street. For a little while she stood gasping as if for air. Rawson Fenton, with his determined face, rose before her, and his hoarse, persistent voice rang in her ears. Even now he might be coming back to urge some fresh argument, to utter some new threat. "The time will come when you will be glad to listen to me," he had said, and as if he had spoken the words of prophecy, she shuddered.

She felt as if he were weaving a net round her, in which sooner or later she would be fast bound and at his mercy.

Where could she go? Where could she find refuge from him?

In this terrible condition of mind, which not only the scene she had gone through, but her hard and unaccustomed toil of the last week was answerable for, she started off, walking, not knowing or caring in what direction she was taking.

Her sole desire was to get as far away from the solitary room which his presence had made unendurable, and the cool air, the crowded streets, seemed a paradise of rest and quiet as, with her veil drawn over her face she hurried on her purposeless way.

Constance was in terrible straits. The scene with Rawson Fenton had unnerved her and the London streets through which she walked with hurried and purposeless steps only impressed her more deeply with a sense of her helplessness. If you are out of heart and miserable and are desirous of making yourself utterly wretched go into the streets of London in which you are a stranger and friendless and you will drag the cup of misery to the bottom.

Constance walked on, heedless of the direction she was taking, until, suddenly overcome by the weakness of exhaustion, she stopped and looked about her.

She had, all unknowingly, reached St. James' street, and had stopped outside one of the large clubs, the lights from which fell across the pavement on which she was standing.

She felt faint and giddy, and was wondering where she was and how she should get home—the home that would be home for so short a time.

A policeman came up with his inconsiderate tread and eyed her at first suspiciously and then with an air of surprise!

Constance, feeling as if she were about to fall, clught the railings of the club and put her hand to her brow.

"Anything the matter, miss?" asked the policeman not unkindly.

"No, no," said Constance in a low voice, "I am tired and—and rather faint. Will you call a cab for me, if you please?"

The policeman hailed a hansom and offered her his arm—a London policeman is a person of some discernment, and has not learn to know a lady.

Thanking him, Constance was getting into the cab, when a gentleman came down the steps of the club. He looked up and down the street, and his glance rested upon her for a moment; then with an exclamation, he sprang forward and laid his hand upon Constance's arm.

She looked up and uttered a cry.

It was the marquis!

For a moment he stood looking down at her and she up at him, as if neither of them could realize that they were there; then he recovered from the shock of surprise.

"All right, officer," he said, "I know this lady," and the policeman, touching his hat in acknowledgment of the coin the marquis put in his hand, tramped off.

The marquis drew her arm within his, and signing to the cabman to follow them, led her a little way in silence.

Then he looked down at her and in a voice struggling for composure, said:

"Constance—Miss Grahmor, you here, and alone?"

Constance remained silent.

He stopped for a moment as if sheer pain what to do, then led her to a quiet restaurant, and made her sit down.

"You are ill, he said, gently, and he gave the waiter some order and poured out a glass of water for her.

Constance, pale and weary-looking, fought hard for strength, and presently the color crept back into her face.

He made her drink a glass of wine, and waited, with true delicacy looking away from her, for some minutes; then he asked:—

"Are you better?"

"Yes my lord," said Constance.

Instantly the question arose in her mind, how to get away fro mhim!

"Then tell me all—everything that has happened," he said, quietly. "I can scarcely believe that it is really you who are sitting there, that only a few minutes ago I was half mad with the disappointment of my failure to find you, and that now—

Answers to Correspondents

Stepmother—The child will be lucky indeed and happy I'm sure. "May I suggest the following books as a beginning for her:

"Alice in Wonderland" by Carroll.
"Dr. Doolittle" by Lofting.
"When We were Very Young" by Milne.

"Jungle Book" by Kipling.
"Just So Stories" by Kipling.
"Child's Garden of Verses" by Stevens
No. 1 Jay Street (a collection).
"Peter Pan" by Barrie.

Beatrix Potter's little books, especially "The Tailor of Gloucester" and "Jeremy Fisher" which are prime favorites with my own youngsters. Then add any or all of Thornton Burgess' books, too loved by kiddies. May I add a word of admiration for your pluck and wish you happiness and success.

Young Mother—Rickets is a disease of infancy and childhood. Two symptoms are restlessness and sweat eg of the head find teeth. The disease appears most frequently among the very poor in cities and is due to the absence in the diet of certain vitamines—the lack of sunlight. Treatment consists in supplying the necessary vitamines and sunlight. The cry you mention is child to utter a certain cry without delay.

Troubled—In carrying on a conversation in public it a never wise to mention names. It is wiser still to avoid all conversation when in a public place. Reserve gossip for private. Not long ago I sat in front of two women who for nearly three solid hours gossiped freely and sometimes maliciously about every one they could think of. I tried to bury myself in a book, but they were like mosquitoes buzzing in the air. Frankly I'd rather sit near men on a train for they are more apt to discuss current events and then I listen shamelessly.

M. J.—Two or three years ago I clipped out the formula for making real Turkish coffee and here it is.

Put into receptacle 1 1-2 tapsu pulver into which could (not) measure 3 cups of water, and let come to a boil. Pour a little at once into a cup. Let it come back again and pour out a little more. Repeat until the coffee has boiled up five times. Then pour out what is left. This means of course that the grounds are poured with the liquid. By the time the coffee is cool enough to drink, it has settled. I never tried this myself, as it seems rather a lengthy process in a busy household. The coffee can be emptied and strained later. Sugar in coffee is anathema to the writer of this page.

All Canada Has Taken The Incomparable Chrysler To Its Heart
The Chrysler "70" sells itself every time it exhibits its dashing appearance on road or highway. The contrast between it and other cars is so marked that the desire to own one is bred then and there.
But that desire is as nothing compared to the delight induced later on. For the Chrysler is just as far beyond comparison in performance, roadability, ease of handling and durability as it is in looks.
That Canadians have taken the Chrysler to their hearts is no surprise at all—it is a very natural thing.
They are almost extravagantly enthusiastic about the Chrysler because the Chrysler has shown them long-lived motoring delights beyond all comparison.
We are eager to demonstrate the Chrysler's many advantages.

SURGEON FAILED TO DETECT RUM ON COL. WILLIAMS

Witness Says He Noticed Nothing to Justify Accusation Officer Drunk

San Diego, Cal., April 17. — Lieutenant-Commander Errol W. Willard, navy surgeon, first witness for Col. A. M. Williams at the latter's court-martial on a charge of drunkenness, testified he noticed nothing to justify classifying the colonel as intoxicated at the Hotel Del Coronado on the night of March 6 last. He said he spoke to Colonel Williams at the hotel and smelled no liquor on the colonel's breath.

Defense counsel immediately wanted to know if the witness had smelled any liquor on the breath of Capt. Charles Rice, a member of General Butler's staff, who testified that he was at the hotel and saw Colonel Williams "slightly under the influence of liquor."

COURT OVERRULES OBJECTION

Vigorous objection to this question asimmaterial and irrelevant was entered by the judge advocate, Capt. Leo Herink.

The court adjourned to think it over, but came back a moment later with the announcement:

"Objection not sustained."

The witness again was asked if he detected the odor of alcohol on the breath of Captain Rice or of Captain Stokes, another guest of Colonel Williams at the hotel.

DETECTED NO ODOR OF LIQUOR

"No, I did not," replied the commander.

"Are you qualified by experience to recognize the symptoms of intoxication in a man by looking at him?" he was asked.

"I don't think anyone is qualified to say a man is intoxicated on the ground of casual observation alone. One can only say a person appeared doped."

"Would you say from your observation that Colonel Williams was intoxicated?"

"No."

DENIES COLONEL STAGGERED

"What was the condition of his eyes?"

"Normal."

"Did he stagger?"

"No."

"Did you see him leave the hotel?"

"Yes."

"Just what did you see?"

"I merely saw the colonel leaving with Mrs. Williams and two officers."

"Did he stagger as he went out?"

"I have already stated that he did not stagger."

Shocking Conditions Unearthed on Farm in Caledon Township

Orangeville, April 17. — With about 20 dead cattle and 53 others nearly dead, the farm of Hilton Dale in Caledon Township, half a mile west of here on the town line is a gruesome sight. Neighbors attracted to the farm buildings by the cries of the stock, notified the local police. Yesterday Inspector Baird of the S.P.C.A., Toronto, assisted by Provincial Constable C. F. Barrow, confirmed the story of passers-by.

The stable was nearly a foot deep in muck and the dead cattle were lying about. Five carcasses had been dismembered by dogs. The stock still alive presented a pitiful sight. Two small bales of hay was all the feed in sight. A pump is in the building, but according to the officers the animals had not been watered for several days. The officials, on returning to town with Dale had a large dray of feed rushed to the farm and two men are in charge for a month. Dale was taken to Brampton, where he will stand his trial.

The prisoner, who is unmarried and 28 years of age, and his mother conduct the farm. Lack of fodder and ill-health are Dale's excuses for neglecting the stock. This is not believed, as the officers found five horses in good condition and 300 bushels of oats in another part of the barn.

"Burning the Candle At Both Ends"

THERE is an old saying about "burning the candle at both ends" which seems to apply to modern life.

How is a girl or boy, or man or woman to enjoy social life to the limit, keep up their daily work and escape a breakdown of health.

The nervous system will not stand the strain. There is too short a time for recuperation, too little rest and sleep. The energy consumed in daily activity is not replaced—bankruptcy is sure.

You find yourself nervous, irritable and sleepless. You are worried, have nervous headaches and spells of dispondency.

A restorative is necessary and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food exactly fills the bill. Most women and many men know this from personal experience and use it as occasion arises.

Prevention is by far the wiser plan with disorders of the nerves. By using this great restorative at the first indication of trouble you avoid a physical break down and weeks of tedious treatment. Keep the vitality at high water mark and you will know the joys of healthful living. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 60cts a box, all dealers or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto 2, Can.

Strength and Safety

Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are built to protect passengers.

That is why Dodge Brothers pioneered in introducing the all steel body, and why they have continued to pioneer by recently improving and perfecting it.

Like the all steel sleeping car—now insisted upon by public opinion—Dodge Brothers all steel bodies are fireproof and as near shock-proof as motor car bodies can be built—an armor of protection in emergencies.

Electrically welded and staunchly braced and reinforced at all points of strain, they are noiseless and built to endure permanently. They also provide unparalleled vision. The menace of thick corner pillars—blocking the driver's vision at street intersections—is eliminated. Slim, steel pillars take their place.

One-piece windshields and exceptional window areas further increase driving vision and safety.

And while safety cannot be measured in dollars, it is gratifying to know that these improved steel bodies exact no penalty from the purchaser.

With production vastly increased, these and many other vital improvements were announced coincidently with the most attractive schedule of low prices in Dodge Brothers history.

"We would like to have you see how we Gum-Dip our Cords"

We wonder how many car owners actually know that the greatest enemy to tire life is heat, which is created by internal friction. Heat not only weakens the fabric, but also softens the rubber and causes blowouts and tire failures.

The earlier type of tire—the fabric—was of a tightly-woven construction that was extremely difficult to insulate with rubber.

The cord tire—a later development permitted much greater insulation of the cords because of its more open construction. This materially reduced friction and internal heat and doubled the tire mileage.

Firestone chemists and engineers felt that if they could find a way to insulate and impregnate every fiber of every cord with rubber, they could further increase the life and mileage giving qualities of the cord tire, and such a method was found which we have called "Gum-Dipping."

We would like to have every car owner see how we carry out this extra process in our special Gum-Dipping plants, and see the Gum-Dipped cords before they are sent to the tire factories for the usual process of calendering.

You would then understand why Gum-Dipped Cords have won all of the important national races during the past five years and established such remarkable records for speed. In fact, experienced race drivers insist on equipping their cars with Gum-Dipped Cords as a matter of personal safety and to increase their chances of winning.

In commercial use—on taxicabs, buses and trucks—where mileage and dependability are vital factors, you will find that these fleet owners—because of the careful cost records they keep—are among the largest users of Gum-Dipped Cords.

Firestone dealers—familiar with Gum-Dipping and its advantages—will gladly explain to you how thousands of extra miles are built into Firestone tires by our exclusive method.

There Is Only One Marvelube

The Lubricating Oil Discovery of the Age —On Sale April 20th, Everywhere in Canada

ON the morning of April 20, the new motor oil will be no longer an interesting laboratory experiment but will become a commodity of commerce. Therefore, its story may be told.

Marvelube is the achievement of four years of patient scientific research, and back of that more years of preparation. The source of Marvelube—the crude oil fields of Peru, South America—came under the control of Imperial Oil Limited thirteen years ago as the first step towards the marketing of Marvelube in Canada in the year 1926.

Every crude oil field possesses distinctive characteristics. Some have a high naphtha content, some are ideal fuel oils, some are valuable in a greater or lesser degree for the manufacture of lubricants. Peruvian crude is at the very top of the latter class. In the world of oil it is recognized as being as different from other crudes as No. 1 Canadian hard wheat is different from the American and European soft wheats.

Other crudes may look like Peruvian just as other wheats may look like No. 1 hard, but the sturdy qualities which make No. 1 hard wheat pre-eminent give to the Peruvian product a similar distinction in the domain of crudes.

Imperial Oil Limited in 1913 commissioned one of its vice-presidents—now its president—to investigate these qualities of the Peruvian fields and largely as a result of his favourable report, the fields were acquired by the International Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of Imperial Oil Limited. Thus Imperial Oil Limited was placed in exclusive possession of the most valuable raw material for the manufacture of lubricating oil that the petroleum world has ever seen.

For four years the staff of the research laboratories of Imperial Oil Limited, at Sarnia, have devoted themselves to the perfection of a lubricant from this crude, a lubricant that would be different from any other lubricant that had gone before. In these years young Canadians have gained distinction in the petroleum industry, not only at home but abroad, and have won advancement in the Imperial Oil service by their notable contributions to this work. New refining processes have been evolved, new refining equipment invented and new formulae created until, step by step, Marvelube was made ready for commercial use.

The secret of this process is locked away in the vaults of Imperial Oil Limited; and without this secret and without the raw material, the duplication of the merits of Marvelube is impossible. Imperial Oil Limited has not divulged the secret of the formula to any other company nor has any other company access to the Imperial's raw material—Peruvian Crude.

Marvelube is sold only by stations of Imperial Oil Limited and authorized dealers in Imperial products. If the public knew as much about the lubrication of cars as experts on lubrication know, the demand for Marvelube could not be supplied. If the public knew as much about the lubrication of cars as the experts on lubrication know, the various "golden" oils which masquerade as Marvelube would be in the same class as last year's almanac.

Marvelube represents in short the most significant event in the history of motor lubrication in the past decade. It has arrested the attention of eminent automotive engineers, scientists and petroleum refiners everywhere. After months of secret tests by designers and builders of motor engines, it has been pronounced by the most competent and impartial court that could be assembled in the motor industry, as marking an epoch in motor lubrication. Its merits are not a subject of controversy in any group of unprejudiced and informed oil men. Its new and distinct properties and its superiority to any other lubricant hitherto achieved in modern petroleum refining, is an admitted and impeccable fact.

The real test is in the motor. The Canadian motorist will realize what this all-Canadian, all-Imperial product will mean to him when he has 500 miles of driving behind him and finds his crank-case still filled with the low-carbon-content, minimum sulphur-content, non-emulsifying oil. Marvelube will be placed on sale at all Imperial Oil stations and at good dealers everywhere on April 20.

Be ready to make a test on April 20.

OSHAWA PLANT RE-OPENS: TORONTO FACTORIES CLOSED

GENERAL MOTORS RESUMING WORK TO FILL ORDERS

Situation Still Overcast According to Word From Oshawa

TORONTO PLANT SHUT

Dodged Closed — Willys Cars Stop Manufacture

Oshawa, April 19.—Work was resumed at the plant of the General Motors Corporation of Canada here this morning after a cessation of two days following reductions in the tariff on imported motor cars. The situation was still overcast as the plant was resuming operations according to its General Manager, merely to fill standing contracts.

TO AUTO PARTS

Toronto, April 19.—The head offices of Canadian Manufacturers' Association was notified from Ottawa today that tariff reductions proposed in the new budget will apply also to tops, wheels, chassis and complete bodies for automobiles and motor trucks.

For motor trucks and for cars retailing below $1,200 duty on these parts is reduced from 35 to 20 per cent. and from 35 to 25% per cent. on the more expensive cars.

The British preferential rate is reduced from 25% to 17½ per cent. on these parts when used for motor trucks, and for cars retailing under $1,200, and from 22½ to 15 percent in the case of more expensive cars.

DURANT TO RE-OPEN

Durant Motor Car Co. of Canada will reopen its Toronto plant tomorrow for the purpose of liquidation of stock. Officials of the parent organization in the United States were here today for a conference with local officials to decide the future policy of the Canadian factory as the situation after the present shocks have been disposed of, is said to be doubtful.

DODGE STAYS SHUT

The Dodge Motor Car Company of Canada plant remained closed today and the time of its re-opening is uncertain. At the Willys-Overland plant, manufacturer of Willys cars work was discontinued thus making a necessary reduction of about 100 in the number of workmen employed.

STEWARD'S HOME AT GOLF CLUB BURNS TO GROUND

Ignited From Burning Grass and Was Quickly Consumed

Limited from the burning of grass on the north side of the building, the home of Mr. Andrew McGowan, caretaker of the Belleville Country Club, on the Trent Road, was burned to the ground this afternoon.

Mr. McGowan first noticed evidence of fire about 2 p.m. when embers lodged on a roof of an adjoining building on the north side. He procured a number of pails of water from the pump on the property, but the little water he had bring to the blaze proved inadequate to quench the now seething building. The flames soon spread to the house, the walls of which were very dry and all efforts to save it were fruitless. In a few moments the entire building was crackling and blazing, rendering any saving of the furniture impossible, otherwise than a small amount of bedding.

WAS INSURED

The house and building were insured but not the furniture which belonged to the property occupant.

Included in the property destroyed was the personal property of Mrs. Chakwelick, Mr. McGowan's housekeeper, which was also without insurance.

A few moments after the alarm was rung in, many residents of the city, more particularly those interested in the Country Club, were at the scene of the blaze. It was at first thought the Club building was on fire.

A voluntary fire brigade stamped out the burning wood shingle building in order to prevent the further spread of the fire.

One wagon from No. 2 Fire Hall and Chief Brown were on the scene but were unable to help.

CANADA LUCKY SAYS MR. YEIGH IN ROTARY TALK

Dominion for One Thing Does Not Know What Famine is

"Canada is one of the luckiest countries in the world, despite all the references to the contrary", was the claim Frank Yeigh made as his opening sentence of his address to the Rotary Club luncheon—lucky in its historic background, its racial stock, its geographical situation as the half way house between the Occident and the Orient, its climatic conditions, its degree of self-government along with Empire connection and its regard for law and order, Sabbath observance and temperance laws. It is lucky when compared with almost every other country, especially the mid-European, Balkan and near East ones he had recently visited and which still exhibit signs of unrest. Canada does not know what famine, plague or pestilence are, nor has it a million or more of refugees like Greece. We have no boundary disturbances, no standing army to offset an enemy or have hardly any labor unrest. The Canadian farmer is better off than any European peasant and the Canadian is the richest man in the world per capita based on national wealth.

We possess a degree of self government within an Empire few countries possess, we enjoy freedom of religion and education, we have a wide franchise, our good and peaceful neighbor.

Further evidences of our luck as a Dominion were given in an interesting portrayal of our present and potential wealth in every department of natural resources in the high percentage of development during the last quarter of a century, and the ever-brightening future.

We should have the blues after such a stimulating talk.

Sr. Johns, Nfld.—Hon. W. J. Ellis, member of Legislative council died of pneumonia in New York this morning, while on his way home from wintering in California.

TWO MEN HOME SAFE AND SOUND LOST FIVE DAYS

Stinson Hyatt and Claude Dulmage Had Engine Trouble on Lake

DRIFTED FOR 24 HOURS

Efforts to Find Them Hindered by High Wind and Waves

Stinson Hyatt of Cherry Valley, and Claude Dulmage, of South Bay, lost on Lake Ontario from Wednesday April 14th when they set out from Long Point on South Bay (as it is variously called) returned to South Bay point on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock after terrifying experiences on the Lake.

The two men both of whom are married set out from South Bay for the purpose of setting their nets. When about three and a half miles from shore the boat became water soaked and the engine went dead. The boat drifted farther and farther from shore, the men helpless against the waves and engine trouble.

DRIFTED TO GALLOUP

After drifting for about twenty-four hours the boat at last struck Galloup Island on the north shore of Prince Edward county on account of the ice still in the Lake they finally made a landing and remained until Sunday. Fortunately, according to persons who have talked to the men since their arrival in the Point, they had taken enough provisions to tide them over any such situation as confronted them. They immediately proceeded with the work of drying out the contents of the boat and engine and were able to cross the lake to return to their anxious families at South Bay.

FISHERMEN SEARCH

All the fishermen along the Prince Edward shore formed themselves into a search party but their activities in searching for the lost fishermen were curtailed by the fierce wind which had whipped the lake into a seething fury, meanwhile the wives of the men and the little child of Claude Dulmage anxiously awaited word of them, fearing at one time the worst had happened and drifting little to the attempted comforting of the neighbours. TThey were assured all day Wednesday that three motor boats were patrolling the lake and that as both men were expert and experienced fishermen there was little to fear. A darkness fell however their anxiety became the more intense.

BIG WELCOME HOME

On Thursday the Main Ducks and other points which it was thought might have sheltered the men were searched with negative results. On Friday, the sea became so heavy the fishermen were forced to remain ashore. Early on Saturday the sea was still rolling. Sunday's anxiety was almost unbearable to the men's families and friends but at five o'clock word was received the men had been sighted and every resident of the vicinity was on hand to welcome them. They are said to be little the worse. Their story of engine trouble and strug gles with the elements were heard with the most intense interest by all.

The Save The Children Fund

The addresses of Mr. Frank Yeigh in the city yesterday and today were a vivid reminder of the Greek refugee situation which Dr. Philip Gibbs describes as the greatest human tragedy in the worlds history. The graphic descriptions Mr. Yeigh gave of the existing need of thousands of children, the victims of Turkish cruelty based on his recent visit to the Near East, not only makes us realize the blessings we enjoy but reminds us of a duty we owe to the innocent sufferers, from post-war conditions and treaties. It is a matter of satisfaction that Belleville is maintaining a refugee kitchen in Salonica from which thousands of little ones receive a daily supply of food.

His appeal that this city continues its support of the kitchen for a few months longer, will, we feel confident, be generously responded to. The local treasurer of the Save the Children Fund, Mr. John Elliott, of the Standard Bank, will be glad to receive subscriptions and forward them to the honorary treasurer of the Canadian Committee.

CRY OF CHILD AT LAST HEARD IN MID EUROPE

Mr. Frank Yeigh Speaks in Two Churches on Relief Work

A BELLEVILLE GIFT

Mr. R. J. Graham's Contribution Largest in British Empire

Belleville citizens and children had the Greek refugees appeal brought forcibly to their attention again yesterday by Frank Yeigh, of Toronto, the Canadian representative of the British Save the Children Fund, who has just returned from an inspection of the refugee camps in Greece and Macedonia. Belleville is one of the Canadian cities that is supporting a refugee food kitchen in Harmankoy Camp on the outskirts of Salonica and a distributing centre of a daily meal of bread and soup to long lines of hungry women and children.

Mr. Yeigh occupied the pulpit of John Street United Church at Sunday morning's service, speaking on "The Cry of the Child," and the great Brotish and Canadian philanthropy of Save the Children Fund.

The first world's child congress, held in Geneva last summer under the auspices of the League of Nations, was largely the creation of this Fund. A remarkable gathering of nearly a thousand delegates from over fifty countries. The child was at last set in the midst of the nations; among them the refugee child. The Fund is carrying on its beneficient programme in the work schools of Budapest, for Hungarian refugees; in a children's hospital in Belgrade for Jugo-Slavia refugees and for refugees from Asia Minor in Macedonia, Bulgaria, Greece and other Balkan and Near East countries.

The speaker referred to the conviction of a million and a half of the Christian population of Asia Minor by Turkey, which Sir Philip Gibbs describes as the greatest human tragedy in the world's history. This vast refugee fleet of Greece, where one out of every five of the population is a refugees England is a homeless, hungry and helpless condition.

Mr. Yeigh who recently visited the scene of the tragedy, gave a vivid word picture of the queeue of unfortunates lined up for the daily dole. While over a million of the original number have become to a degree self-supporting, he found hundreds of thousands of a million still in a distressful condition, and needing the elementals of life.

Belleville was praised for its beneficence by maintaining a kitchen, while the food contribution of Mr. R. J. Graham was the largest individual gift in the entire country, amounting to a quarter of a million nations. The Canadian committee of the Fund has sent out to the Near East a shipload of food and clothing, and has also established a hospital for refugee children in Athens.

BARELEGGED FRAULEINS RESULT OF NEW KULTUR

Berlin, April 19.—One of the amusing features of the great parade celebrating the opening of "Health Week" on Sunday, was the presence in line of five thousand unclad girls and young women striding along rythmically in their gymnastic suits, sleeveless waists and black or white cotton pants, ending three or four inches above the knee. They were a fine exhibit of normal bodily fitness and strength produced by the new culture of sport in Germany.

CANNING PLANT AT FRANKFORD PREY OF FLAMES

Fire from an unknown origin destroyed the main building of the canning factory at Frankford village, owned by the Canadian Canneries. The cannery which functions in the summer months only has been idle for several months and for three days, preceding the fire no one had been in the building, leaving the only probable cause, defective wiring. The blaze which started near the roof of the corrugated iron building was first noticed by Mrs. Mayhee who was attracted by the bright light just as she was about to retire at about eleven o'clock. She immediately notified Mr. Charles Rose, manager of the factory, and the neighbours formed a bucket brigade which did really effective work in checking the spread of the fire.

SAVED THOUSANDS

The prompt action of the voluntary fire fighters saved the warehouse office and corn shed and in the latter fifteen thousand cases of corn was stored.

Had the wind been blowing in the opposite direction undoubtedly the entire block of buildings adjoining the factory would have been destroyed.

NEW BUILDING

The building which was practically new, having replaced in 1931, the old factory owned by the Dominion Canners, which was destroyed by fire that year, was considered fire proof, built as it was of corrugated iron and was valued roughly at about $30,000. The interior, however, had many inflammable fixtures, and the blaze lasted about two hours. It is expected the Canadian Canners will rebuild at once. The factory is a great asset to the village, employing as it does, many of the villagers during the canning season.

London, April 19.—The British Government has a plan for assisting the United States to tighten its control over rumrunners. A meeting will be held at the Spanish club at which resolutions will be adopted expressing regret over the death of two British aviators while searching for Estevez.

CARNAL O'CONNELL TALKS OF SUDDEN RICHES

Boston, Mass., April 19.—"Sudden wealth often leads Roman Catholics to the silliest kind of pride and vanity" Cardinal O'Connell believes. Riches for Protestants, on the other hand, means greater opportunity for charity and in the end, Divine blessing. The Cardinal yesterday told a conference of the St. Vincent dePaul Society that he had ceased to hope for material prosperity for Catholics because too often they were not ready for it.

"I wish I had not to say it, but it is a common sentiment of all of us who know, that some Catholics had much better have remained poor than to have acquired large fortunes much larger for their own lives, for their prospects of Heaven, better for their own characters.

"Ou people get suddenly rich and lose their heads and hearts. The Protestestant people of today if they seem to be lacking in external—what shall I say—demonstrations of religion, here become wonderfully charitable. If they do not go to Church they give to every worthy cause and do not close themselves up and hold tight to every dollar that is coming to them."

ASSEMBLING OF SOME CARS TO BE SUSPENDED

R. S. McLaughlin Announces Four Makes to be Imported

Oshawa, April 19.—Oshawa is planning a monster delegation to Ottawa to demand abandonment of the proposed tariff amendment regarding automobiles.

Oshawa, April 19.—We have definitely decided to discontinue the manufacture and assembling of the Oakland, Cadillac, Oldsmobile and G. M. C. Truck immediately and all these cars will now be imported complete from the United States," said R. S. McLaughlin, president of the General Motors of Canada Limited, The General Motors plant here, employing 2,000 hands, closed down temporarily last Friday morning.

Mr. McLaughlin made the following statement:

"I assure you there is no bluff in connection with the closing of the plant, and no bluff in regard to the seriousness of the situation of the plant in Oshawa. We have definitely decided to discontinue the manufacture and assembling of the Oakland, Cadillac, Oldsmobile and G.M.C. truck immediately. We were preparing to manufacture the Pontiac in July, but have cancelled all arrangements to do so. All the above-mentioned cars will now be imported complete from the United States. The great volume of the business we handle in the above line is considerable and has been giving employment to a large number of men.

"Regarding the Chevrolet, we have recently been manufacturing over 200 a day, with the natural consequence that our inventories are very heavy and our commitments which have been made over a period of ninety days in advance are quite important.

"It is our intention to liquidate our inventory, clear up all our obligations and commitments, and then import the cars completely finished from the United States. The proposed tariff makes this necessary. The duty on the finished Chevrolet cars is 20 per cent. The duty on any parts which we have to import varies from 17½ to 35 per cent.

"Regarding the McLaughlin car, it might be possible to continue its manufacture on an exceedingly close margin of profit, but the plant is too large and there is too much money invested to carry on with a studio line of car in which the volume is so comparatively small. I would again repeat, if the tariff goes into effect the future of the industry is doomed as long as this tariff lasts."

"There is a clause in the new tariff a drawback of 25 per cent. on imported parts if 50 per cent. of the cars were made in Canada. A close inspection makes us believe this is only a subsidy, and is not practical, and amounts to practically nothing in the picture.

"If I am correctly informed no Government has ever put manufacturers in such an impossible position where the duty on the finished product is lower than on the component parts. If any when the manufacture in volume of domestic Chevrolet cars ceases, our entire export business which at the present time amounts to 25 per cent. of our production will entirely disappear."

MARRIAGE IN THE CARD OF AFTERNOON CLERGYMAN'S MONOPOLY

Ottawa, April 17.—Marriage by religious ritual rather than by civil ceremony is still by far the more popular way of acquiring a mate in this city. Mayor Balharrie has never married a couple and never will, he says. "I have had a few requests," said Ottawa's chief magistrate, "but I turned them down. I think marriage is too solemn an affair and the ceremony should be performed by a clergyman. One 'sic-looker' came to me once with his 'intended' and asked me to marry them. I found out he was shy, but finally he acted on my advice and a minister tied the knot." Magistrate Hopewell, like Mayor Balharrie, never has, and never will perform a marriage ceremony. "There is no need of it", said the magistrate. "There are plenty of clergymen to do it, so I always refuse and send the couples to the clergyman of their particular denomination."

EXPLANATION BY ROBB OF TAXPAYERS LIABILITY

Ottawa, April 17.—In reply to enquiries as to the effect of the income tax proposals, Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, has issued the following statement:

"The changes in the income tax Act announced in the budget will apply to incomes of 1925 and thereafter, but cannot be acted upon until after an Act has been passed by both Houses of Parliament and Royal assent has been given.

"Taxpayers may, however, on their own responsibility, estimate their own tax liability under the existing law or the budget proposals of April 15, 1926, and pay accordingly on or before the 30th of this month, but no assessments will be issued until after the bill becomes law. When approved, refunds will be granted in cases where overpayments have been made.

BRITISH WOMEN DEMAND PEACE IN COAL CRISIS

Great Parade of 20,000 in London Arouse Reds—Critical Fortnight

London, April 19.—Groans and hisses from groups of Red sympathizers mingled with the cheers from the crowds of the supporters of the Women's Guild of the Empire as a long procession of women, organized by the guild in protest against strikes and lockouts, marched Saturday through the fashionable west end of London to Albert Hall.

The 20,000 women marching under command of their "general" Mrs. Flora Drummond, reminded London vividly of the old suffrage days.

On the whole, they received a very friendly reception from the crown. Underneath the Charing Cross bridge, however, certain booing and some paper balls were thrown at several of the mounted demonstrators.

The riders were members of the famous Whaddon Hunt and included Miss Betty Carter, the bridesmaid at the Duchess of York's wedding. Some of the horses took fright when the paper balls were thrown at them, but superb handling by their capable riders prevented any untoward result.

A good deal has been made of the fact that miners' wives were marching in the procession with the women of the Communists refused to believe it was anything but a demonstration planned and participated in by the upper class.

"Have you seen a miner's wife?" they demanded scornfully in intervals of singing. "The Red Pigs."

"Are you a miner's wife?" one Red asked a Whadden Hunt member.

"I should like to be," she answered smilingly.

There were actually many hundreds of miners' wives in the procession.

FOR THE HOME FOR THE AGED

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

May we make an appeal through your columns? An invalid's chair is needed at the Belleville Home for the Aged. One of the old ladies would be greatly benefited by the use of a chair, also it would make matters easier for the matron is taking her from one room to another.

Perhaps some one has a chair not in use that they would loan or perhaps some kind friend of the Home would donate one so that it would be there when needed for others. Telephone the Home or Mrs. Stewart 1052.

The finest steel fabric spring in all Canada, leads in value

There isn't any mystery about the superiorities of the Slumber King. It is more than a mere claim when we say it is the finest steel fabric spring in all Canada.

You can check its advantages yourself. Compare it with any other fabric spring built. See the four rows of sensitive coils joining its 26 flexible steel strips. TIMOTHY MURPHY

Mr. Timothy Murphy, well-known to many in the city, passed away on Sunday evening at his late residence, 18 Wharf street. Deceased who had lived beyond three score years and ten, had virtually been a life long resident in the city. Mr. Murphy was a member of St. Michael's Church. His wife predeceased him some years ago. He leaves a daughter, Miss Mary, at home, and a sister, Miss Mary Murphy of this city.

MRS. E. P. FREDERICK

Many citizens were on Saturday afternoon in attendance at the obsequies of the late Mrs. E. P. Frederick. At the family residence, 57 Bridge street west, an impressive service was held, conducted by Rev. Dr. F. R. Malott, pastor of Bridge Street United Church, assisted by Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, Principal of Albert College, and Rev. L. S. Wight, pastor of Holloway Street United Church. At Belleville cemetery the committal service was taken by Rev. Dr. Malott. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful in effect. Bearers were: Messrs. Geo. Hall, F. E. O'Flynn, C. N. Simmons, H. W. Greenleaf, W. B. Deacon and A. E. T. Cleary.

We have all heard of rub-dusk, mouse bane and other such bases, but a new one to us is the bane which Mr. Mc-Laurin calls dust-bane. It is largely due to the procuring of the aforesaid dust-bane that the school scores in a better state of cleanliness.

Can Wordsworth possibly have dreamed that there would be examinations in High Schools, that some examinations would be set at Easter, or that the Easter examinations would have such terrible results as to cause him to say:

"Such sights, or worse, as are before me here
Not without hope we suffer and we mourn.

AROUND THE HALLS OF THE B.H.S.

"Summer is coming, is coming, my dear,
And all the winters are hidden."

This is quite evident around the little red school-house" up on the hill. The boys make life almost miserable for the girls with their basketball playing. The danger likes itself, to that caused by the heavy traffic at the junction of Bridge and Front streets on Saturday. However, several girls have arranged an inter-form schedule and will begin as soon as the weather permits. The boys also have a fine schedule of games.

Mr. McLaurin says that there is more sickness in the school just now than there has been for some time. Even the staff is not exempt for Miss Saunders is ill also.

The Literary Society is continuing its inter-form debating series. The final debate will take place in the City Hall on April 30. Forms 3 A and 3 B will contribute stunts to the programme.

BUDGET VIEWS

MR. ROBB'S SPEECH

Mail and Empire:

Mr. Robb's budget was not expected to be highly stimulating to the industrial prosperity of the country and it is not designed to be. Tariff protection is forbidden by the guarantors of the King Government's possession of office. The Progressives are the foes of the National Policy. The injustices of the income-taxes is not an illogical step on the part of this Government. As Mr. King and his colleagues have done nothing to promote the production of Canadian wealth, they must see the impossibility of going on bringing out of the mass of the people who have to live by their earnings. The income tax has in very many cases not been earned; it has been taken by the Government out of the quivering capital resource of many of our producers. The bleeding had to be moderated. The people could not continue standing for it. They had to have as an escape from it some alternative to the seeking of refuge and work in the United States. Say what the Government likes about it, the source of income had been stricken by the bad policy at Ottawa and were gradually shrinking. How could it be otherwise when the exodus to the United States was going on as it has been for the last five years?

THE BUDGET SPEECH

London Free Press:

Canada's natural advantages are such that not even a weak ad incompetent Government, or political chaos at Ottawa, can stop our progress. Hon. James Robb, finance minister, was able in his budget speech in Parliament on Thursday to present an optimistic statement. Naturally, he claimed the credit for the improved national financial situation. Mr. Robb would not be human if he had not. However, the Government cannot point to any startling legislative action, or achievement, which has in the slightest degree added to the prosperity of the country. Canada was favored last year with wonderful crops at improved prices, and we have the natural resources for which the world is clamoring. No matter what party is in power at Ottawa, or how confusing the political situation, we are bound to go ahead. Nothing can stop the development of this country. However, if there was a stable government and an administration with "a Canada for the Canadians" policy in effect, the next 10 years would see unprecedented progress in the Dominion.

FAR FROM RUIN

Great Britain is evidently still some distance from the verge of ruin towards which some of the pessimists would have us believe she has been heading. According to the London correspondent of the New York Times, Britain's recovery from the effects of the Great War may be described as complete, as compared with some, if not most, of the countries of continental Europe. The continental European, according to the correspondent, still remembers acutely. "His outlook is still blood shed. His neighbors are still potential enemies, or only friends as far as he and their interests run together." Great Britain is forged with no such struggle. She is thinking in terms of commercial improvement, social reconstruction and general betterment of conditions left by the war. There is still some hope that even the coal problem may be settled without an industrial struggle.

Great Britain is favored by her insular position, but she is also favored by the character of her people She has still her serious difficulties, such as unemployment and the heavy burden of taxation; but she had her own way of facing them, and she has always a large measure of common sense and traditional moderation to draw upon. She will probably continue, in the future as in the past, to "muddle through."

THE "CO-OP." PASSES

The largest farmer-owned elevator corporation in the world changed ownership when the shareholders of the Saskatchewan Elevator Company Limited voted to sell out to the Sask atchewan Wheat Pool, says the Winnipeg Tribune, in discussing this very important move. It is an interesting development, for it has decidedly a bearing on the future attitude of the farmers toward their economic problem. The world is watching today, in the Canadian West, the largest and in many respects the most remarkable experiment in co-operative marketing it has ever seen. The purchase by the co-operatives of the elevator company which was farmer-owned but not co-operative, is a furtherance of that experiment and one of its most important developments.

The elevator company was of itself a development from an earlier idea, which was government ownership of elevator and marketing facilities. The idea of a farmer-owned company was not accepted by the farmers without a great deal of persuasion. A commission comprising George Langley, M.L.A.; Charles A. Dunning, then the active young vice-president of the Grain Growers Association, and F. W. Green, secretary of the Association, evolved the scheme by which the farmers were to subscribe the stock and pay up 15 percent., whereupon the government would loan 85 percent. and construction could be proceeded with. The government accepted this proposal, but whether the farm ers who wanted government elevators—would accept it or not was a matter of touch and go for a couple of days when their convention was held in the city hall at Regina.

Messrs. Langley, Dunning and Green finally won the day, with their pleas in which the magic word "co-operation" was plentifully used.

This convention, 15 years ago, has its counterpart in the convention held last week. Ideas of government ownership of elevators have long since gone overboard. The idea that a private company in which the shareholders were farmers instead of ordinary investors would be really a co-operative enterprise with the welfare of the farmers first in mind has also now been discarded in Saskatchewan. The new watchword is real co-operation, the complete pooling of interests.

The elevator company has been taken over rather as a matter of sentiment than of business. Satisfactory arrangements to put the company's facilities at the disposal of the pool could have been made, but the sentiment of the farmers has proved overwhelming. The elevator company goes into the pool lock, stock and barrel.

Whether the pool is wise in leading itself up with so much in the way of physical assets is another question. Because the pool has enjoyed complete prosperity up to the present does not establish its permanent success. Thoughtful pool leaders will admit it is still in the experimental stage, and the wisdom of heavy investments in physical plant at this stage may be questioned. However, the die is cast now, and the people of the West generally will wish the pool success in this latest venture.

OUR MUNICIPAL INSTITUTIONS

High taxes reach everywhere and burden everybody. They bear most heavily upon the poor. They diminish industry and commerce. They make agriculture unprofitable. They increase the rate of transportation. They are a charge upon every necessary of life.

It is a question if our Municipal Institutions have not outlived their usefulness. Modeled after the old Mission, Chestis Town meetings they did very well for the days of the early settlement of our country. The present civilization has made, certainly, our urban requirements more complex. So many and various duties and requirements are now imposed upon the Councillors of our different towns. Our municipal corporations may well be compared to a joint stock company. Every tax payer may be compared to a stock-holder and the councillors and aldermen directors. Suppose the executive duties of a large manufacturing company were delegated to the different directors, each and everyone having a separate charge and every one acting independently in his own sphere of duties to the other. Should this principal be adopted, how long would that manufactory be in existence?

But every director is also a business man and has his own private business to require his close attention, so is every alderman and, his municipal duties are only a matter of intermittant attention. The aldermen are elected for only one year. Having been elected he comes new into his duties, he has only an occasional exhibition to accept in addition to his municipal duties. By the end of his term of a year he has acquired experience in his work, when a new man is elected in his place and has to learn these duties over again, and so it goes on mostly from year to year. What is the result? Men of large business who consequently have large interests in the municipality, have not the time or inclination to take up city management and the consequence is, the management of civic affairs falls toward the politicians and the opportunist. Result, municipal indebtedness is increasing every year with leaps and bounds. Taxes have, during the past ten years, increased from one hundred to one hundred and fifty percent. yet, the municipalities keep right on spending more money and add more taxes to fill the bill.

Many cities of the neighbouring Republic have adopted the system of electing one or more managers according to the population to perform the executive duties of the city and have thereby saved more than one half the expense of the old system. These managers are elected or appointed for a term of years and with their subordinates are on the job the whole year round. Why not try it in this city? Each alderman is the head of a department, he has a subordinate under him to perform his work and the management in the city is over manned with officials and hesitancies.

We have a good set of men in our council this year, let them earn the thanks of every tax payer.

E. B. FRALICK.

Dated April 17th, 1926.

FROM DR. THOS. WICKETT

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Sir,—Looking St. George's Day draws nigh, and perhaps here are some facts of more than ordinary moment to the English and their descendants living throughout Canada, and even beyond.

The census of our country in 1911 showed a population of 7,206,000 people, racially descended as follows:

English—1,833,150.
French—2,054,890.
Irish—1,956,284.
Scotch—997,850 etc., etc.

Another decade has passed, and such a census has been completed—in 1921—and we learn that Canada has almost 9,000,000 people within her borders, racially as follows:

English—2,545,681.
French—2,452,782.
Irish—1,107,317.
Scotch—1,173,874 etc., etc.

From the above official returns there can be no doubt about the numerical position of the English in this Dominion.

Should we care to turn to the record of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the late war, it would be found that the English were strongly represented—a striking tribute to their loyalty.

However, when positions of trust and honor, conferred at the hands of government, are reviewed, we find an unaccountable, inadequate representation of the English and their descendants. How is this to be explained in this country of mixed nationalities? The forgetting fata, boddy, proclaim an injustice somewhere.

To speak concretely, during the last few several Commissions were formed by the government, and out of 37 appointments, 2 were Scotch, 6 were Irish, 3 English, etc. Why?

Before the Dominion of Parliament, in 1925, many positions were filled and promotions made—an acknowledged course of governments. Now, among the many appointments there was a noticable paucity of English names, and the mystery of it is how it could escape notice.

Are we English not equal to these tasks? Do we not measure up?

Just take a look at the new "Tariff Board." Why are they? Gibbons, MacKenzie, MacKinnon and Lambert. Is this at all representative?

Or the "Maritime Rights Commission." Strange indeed! There we find all Scotch names—Duncan, Wallace, MacMillan. Is this "playing up and playing the game?"

Where are the English who out-number any other race in Canada? Are they to be ignored still; when commissions are being appointed? It would seem so! They are not "tagged to the war. Will they submit to such treatment? Scarcely, when they are fully awakened.

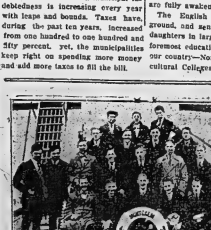

The English must take higher ground, and send up their sons and daughters in large numbers at the foremost educational institutions of our country—Normal Schools, Agricultural Colleges, and the Universities with their various Faculties. This is imperative if we are to take our places with the others.

Canada is still young, and she needs the English in the "Higher Things" in this great new country; besides allowing their appreciation of the advantages bestowed by their education in fitting them to serve their Country and Empire at their highest and best.

Let the English move forward, say the Ironsides of old, to do nobler and greater things for Canada.

Yours truly,
THOMAS WICKET.

Fine British Types for Canada

The emigration of families from Great Britain to the Dominion is rapidly increasing. The 25 fare and generous arrangements under the 1,000 Families' Scheme are inducing more to travel. Fifteen of these families sailed recently from Glasgow to Canada on the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm, and on the occasion there were quite a number of young fellows who were going to try their luck in the Land of Promise. The above group is a good indication of the type of sturdy energetic young men that Canada wants and which Canada is certainly getting under the auspices of the British Immigration and Colonization Association.

UNION OF VETS. IS MADE NEARER SOON COMPLETE

General Lake Reports on Work of Canadian Legion Committee

Ottawa, April 7.—Prior to leaving Ottawa last night, Lieut.-Gen. Sir Percy Lake, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., national president of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, stated that the work accomplished by the special committees of the Legion in Ottawa during the past week had brought the final accomplishment of complete unity appreciably closer. He summarized the results of the meeting as follows:

"1. The Legion has assumed responsibility for and direction of the legislative and adjustment bureau at Ottawa, formerly maintained by the Great War Veterans' Association. Temporary direction has been arranged pending the establishment of the Legion in a sound financial position. Legislative and adjustment work of other uniting organizations will be co-ordinated at Ottawa, as well as in Legion provincial offices.

"2. Officers of the Legion placed before the Government and other groups in Parliament the more pressing legislative requirements with regard to pensions appeals, soldier settlement and employment.

"3. Plans were devised for the financing of the Legion's national work during the period of transition from the old organizations to the complete establishment of the new organization.

"4. Tentative plans were made for calling a national convention of the uniting groups within the next six months, to be constituted into the first Dominion convention of the Legion."

SOVIET SHIFTS PROPAGANDA FROM ORIENT

Geneva, April 17.—Russia has again shifted her program of propaganda from the Orient to Eastern received by League of Nations intelligence circles here.

The collapse of Bolshevist efforts in China and the encouragement the Soviets derived from the first various league session last month, when Germany failed of admittance to the league, are responsible for the new intrigues, it is said.

Russia has made definite offers for mutual security to Finland, the correspondent is informed. These offers are similar to the treaties negotiated between Soviet Foreign Minister Tchitcherin and Foreign Minister Twafik Rushki Bey of Turkey. Russia has also made overtures to Latvia, Esthonia and Lithuania and negotiations with Poland are under consideration.

THREE OUTSTANDING FEATURES

At least one Baltic state has consulted the league regarding the proferred Russian treaties. The emissary of this country declared M. Tchitcherin's offer is trilateral. The first part includes non-aggression pledges. The second provides for strict neutrality and refraining from political, economic or military alliances with power hostile to either party. The third feature creates conciliation boards to deal with future disagreements which might lead to war.

Moscow is steadfastly dodging anything resembling arbitration but is willing to go the limit in conciliation.

One stumbling block has been M. Tchitcherin's desire to deal separately with the Scandinavians. He has now modified his stand somewhat.

CANADIANS ARE STILL LEAVING FOR THE STATES

Col. George Ham National Figure Born In Trenton; A Great Career

Records at Toronto Show How Many Get Birth Certificates

GO TO BORDER CITIES

Detroit or Buffalo The Points Where Most of Them Enter

Week March 1st 708
Week March 8th 716
Week March 15th 756
Week March 22nd 812

Toronto, April 19.—Dr. Bell, of the Provincial Department of Health, under whose department birth certificates are issued, has made out the above table of applications for birth certificates in the month of March, for the perusal of the Minister of Health and Labor. This table is headed "Presumably for Emigration to the United States."

Fifty people a day, 50 percent of them Canadian born, are going through the United States' consul's office here to live across the border. The counters and the office staff of the consulate are growing steadily.

Most of them head directly for Buffalo or Detroit. Officially, some of them have American positions when they leave Toronto. There is no bar against them.

Possibly they dress up to go and see the consul. Whether or no, the appearance of people sitting or standing, waiting for official attention, is distinctly above the ordinary. The majority would appear to be under 30 years of age. About 20 percent of them are women. They are all well dressed and efficient.

FINE WEATHER TRAFFIC

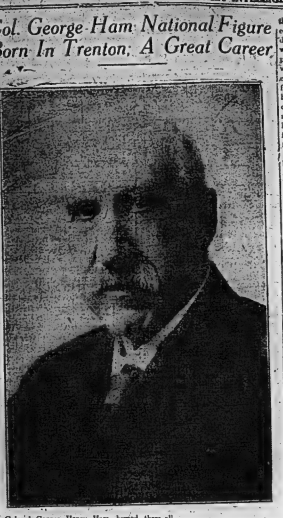

All day there is the hum of constant human traffic about the office. There is a steady stream of humanity to attend to, and there are piles of letters and telegrams, and also telephone calls, in connection with Canadians or other nationalities wishing to go across. The fine weather has caused a rush.

It is on the books that an American immigration inspector will become stationed at Toronto, with the duty of examining the papers and pretensions of those who want to go over. In terms, put down, he will save them the trouble of buying tickets and riding to the border, where they would be turned back, anyway.

IRISH ARE FAVORED

There is a waiting list of 7,000 born in Great Britain or the north of Ireland trying to get through in conformity with the quota. The total number of British born allowed in in a year, is 150,000, which quota is based on the census of 1890 showing the British born then in United States. The allotment from this district is only 800 per year, so it will take some time to pass them all.

Citizens of the Irish Free State enjoy these privileges. Their proportion of population in United States, when the quota census was taken, was so great that their quota allowance is about 70 percent of the British, and as the population is so much less they go through easily. There are only 100 Free Staters now on the waiting list.

Colonel George Henry Ham, buried at Whitby Saturday, and familiarly referred to by most people as "George Ham" was not only one of the best known and most popular men in Canada. He also enjoyed the distinction of having probably been called more names than any other citizen of the Dominion. Let us hasten to add the names were friendly and complimentary to the highest degree. They include: "A large body of supreme humanity entirely surrounded by the Canadian Pacific Railway" (Newton MacTavish); "A great national asset" (Sir Thomas White); "The greatest unpriced white unbound in Canada" (Collier's Weekly); "Ambassador-in-Chief of the C. P. R."; "The Mark Twain of Canada"; and "Canada's Laughing Philosopher". Opinion is unanimous that he deserved them all.

George Henry Ham came most into the public eye through his connection with the Canadian Pacific. But his career embraced far more than his service with that company, long as it was. Outside his mark in a great number of fields other than that of entertaining visitors and handling publicity for the railway. The records of his biography show him at one time or another to have been soldier, sailor, reporter, house agent, clerk, editor, printer, alderman, school trustee, license commissioner and several other things. All of which goes to prove that he was nothing if not versatile.

The career of this remarkable man who was the friend and confidant of princes, statesmen, generals, parliamentarians, men and women world-famous in every sphere, and yet who was also big enough at the same time to be the friend and confidant of nobodies, began on August 23, 1857, when he was born in Trenton, Ontario. He was the son of a country doctor of United Loyalist stock. His father later took up the more congenial occupation of lawyer, and in time became a business associate of Sir John A. MacDonald. His parents moving to Whitby while he was still but a few years of age he "decided" like Stephen Leacock "to go with them". He was educated at the Henry St. High school, and Whitby Grammar School.

His first experience as a soldier was in 1871 when he entered the Canadian Militia for service at the time of the troubles over the Trent affair. In 1866 and 1870 he again served with a view to sharing in the defense of Canada against the Fenians. Sir Sam Hughes made him Honorary Lieutenant Colonel in the Canadian Militia in May, 1911. The first newspaper he worked for was the Whitby Chronicle. Guelph, Uxbridge and Toronto in turn knew him as a member of the staff of papers published with in their limits. Then, in 1873, hearing the call of the West which then attracted so many thousands of young Canadians, he went to Winnipeg, which he was destined to brighten with his sunny presence for many years. Within a week he had secured a position as printer on the Free Press, and in less than four years became City Editor. Next he branched out as publisher of a paper of his own, The Tribune, later amalgamated with the Times. From this work he had to retire owing to ill-health and for some years he held various civic offices in Winnipeg and the neighborhood. When the North-West Rebellion broke out in 1885, George Ham acted as correspondent at the front for the Toronto Mail. He had many exciting experiences, not the least of which was a share in the running of a blockade at Batoche by the steamer North-West and participated in the succor of the white prisoners released by Big Bear after the Chief's defeat by the cavalry, of Strange's column at Loon Lake. In 1891 the big opportunity of his life came, Sir William Van Horne met him at Winnipeg and offered him a position with the title of Travelling Passenger Agent but with duties similar to those he always carried out for the company. He accepted and thenceforward with but one short break, remained on the pay-rolls of the Canadian Pacific Railway being steadily advanced, having his official title occasionally changed and the scope of his work widened until at last he really was "Ambassador-in-Chief of the C.P.R."

So it came about that for year upon year George Ham travelled to and fro over the fast-flying rail and steamship lines of the great company, in Canada and Europe and down through the United States, carrying the doctrine of goodwill towards the Canadian Pacific far and wide with his pen and his laughter and helping to give distinguished visitors a good time. Soon his name was known from the Arctic Circle to the Gulf of Mexico and from China to the Old World and not to know George Ham was to be altogether outside the pale.

George Ham's foremost success as a Canadian Pacific missionary was due above all to his kindliness, his sense of humor, his ability to tell a good story. Not for nothing did he receive the attributes which were his. Some of his wittisms—notably his three books, "The New West", "The Flotsam of the Gods", and "Reminiscences of a Raconteur"—give glimpses of his wit and his gravity philosophy. A few of his bright sayings follow: "Look out for the man who crowds all his religion into the Sunday"; "Talk is cheap! That is why it is so prevalent"; "Young man, when you think that you know more than the boss it is time to quit"; "Never offer an anchor to a drowning man"; "What some people need for a stimulant is a good swift kick"; "Unkindness is a worse crime than theft".

If is worth recalling at this moment that Colonel Ham had pronounced views upon the problems of the hereafter. "I spread the Gospel of good cheer, despite the caprice in the universe, in order that men and women may love and enjoy life and do so abundantly. Even if it should happen to prove in the end that death ends all, men can make themselves at home on earth by thinking evil away." That he himself did not believe that death ends all, but had faith in the benevolence of God is seen in his declaration: "Ours is a show worth but behind it all there is a beneficent Showman."

Certainly, the hosts now mourning the passing of this dispenser of "the Gospel of good cheer" will have no doubt that the Showman will prove him self beneficent to George Ham whose exit from the stage leaves such a gap in the ranks of genuine, kindly humorists and whose distinguishing presence among Canadian Pacific officials, with the spot normally allotted by either the when he continued to serve long after Secretary to the company, will be ab missed.

A ROMANCE

The work of the office is to deal with statistics and humanity, blended. A rosy-cheeked country lass tripped into the office, and said that she was going to Washington to meet her fiance and be married there. At the request of officials she produced correspondence on this subject. Busy clerks read more or less impassioned love letters, penned by a young man whose photograph was attached, and who somewhat resembled what might be called a drug store cowboy. The young woman, who did not know much about a city, also produced a certificate from a doctor that she was in good health.

There seemed something peculiar about the episode, but as the romance was involved, they let her through. A week later she was back again. She had been examined at the border carefully, and was pronounced insane, or so near being feeble-minded that Uncle Sam did not want her, even as a bride.

But how do you know you're getting it? No wise person wants to take a chance every time he buys something new—or something he has not tested personally,

Here is a test you can rely upon for safe quality and full value: "Do you see the product you want advertised consistently and persistently?"

If you do, it is good value. No sane merchant or manufacturer would continue to spend good money advertising poor merchandise. Every advertised product has been tested for you—by hundreds of other people. They have bought and approved it—else it could not continue to be advertised.

They're slick at beating board bills,
Because they're taught to slide.

Is Belleville to have a city baseball league this season? Nothing has been said or done about the formation here who are not of senior calibre yet they play a fair brand of ball and derive considerable enjoyment out of these games. Other towns are organizing their mercantile and industrial groups. Why not one here? With only three teams competing the Central League the Intermediate games will be fewer than in former years and there should be some form of athletics to fill in. There is plenty of playing space available with the new agricultural Field, Queen Mary School, Pine St. School and Coleman Field. A real up-to-date six team city league would be in order if the interested parties would start the ball rolling.

Lets hear from some of the managers around town.

Soft-ball fans are looking forward to Tuesday night when the Junions and Point Anne meet in what will probably be, the one deciding factor for the championship. If the Juniors win the Point team a three cornered tie will be created with C.N.R. Point Anne and the Juniors, on the other hand if they defeat them this game they will have four straight and an excellent chance of coming out ahead. The Alemites have played and won both of their games and are still in the hunt. Ken Collins has strengthened his infield with the addition of Walt Green at first base. The Christ Church and Alemite tossers take the floor at 7.45 sharp.

Odling has O'Donohue cocked and pointed to do the heavy while "Sunny" Green is tip-top shape to breeze them over for the Pointers. It is bound to be a close game.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK

Marvelous beyond conception inaptly describes the glories of Canada's Rockies To be fully appreciated they must be seen To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but far-famed paradise-ocean, to many appears quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sindair Laird, of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipegers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain resort; by motorcoach for 104 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Revelstoke, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Okanagan country to Penticton; along the lovely Okanagan Lake, and to Vancouver, thence by steamer to Victoria.

FAR-SIGHT IN CHILDREN

—is very likely to be overlooked. Nothing but a careful examination can detect this error in children. A far sighted person sees well, may be too well, in the distance, and a far-sighted child may be able to read perfectly, but the strain in doing so is often excessive. To overcome this strain glasses are needed. This is a duty that I render with satisfaction almost every day.

Belleville's new rink was evidently only a pipe dream long since forgotten.

Hamilton promoters are trying to get another franchise in the National hockey league. Percy Thompson former manager of the Tigers says a new rink will be erected and the folks in the ambitious city want to see pro hockey played there again.

I has been announced that Stan Burgoyne former Belleville boy will again coach the Fort Arthur Seniors next year. It has built up an enviable reputation as a hockey mentor in the western part of the province, and is regarded as one of the best.

Toronto's new park will be the best in the baseball league when it is finished. Workman are busily toiling night and day to have the new stadium in good shape for the opening game April 28th. The present Leafs appear to be about the classiest bunch of ball tossers that have represented the Queen City in some time. A champion team with the new stadium would be a great combination.

MOTHER PLEADS PARDON FOR MAN WHO KILLED SON

One of the Strangest Cases on Record Comes Up at Trenton, N.J.

Trenton, April 1.. — Mrs. Sophie Niemeo, of No. 272 Fifteenth avenue, Newark, has appealed to Gov. Moore to urge upon the Court of Pardons the release of Bolesław Dumbeck, of Newark, who is serving a life sentence in the State prison for the murder of her son.

Dumbeck was received at the prison from Essex County on May 14, 1919. Believing her son's death to have been accidental, Mrs. Niemeo petitioned the Court of Pardons to Free Dumbeck but the filing of her petition did not become known until Gov. Moore made public today a letter he recently received from her.

Gov. Moore said he would personally present Mrs. Niemeo's letter at the next meeting of the court of which he is a member.

SOME LIBERALS SHOW ALARM AT AUTO DUTY CUT

Felt That Government Has Done Harm to Its Prospects

TALK OF DISSOLUTION

Reported Premier Consulted Governor-General Before Budget Presented

Ottawa, April 19.—Members of the Commons were more interested in canvassing one another's views on the Robb budget than in participating in or listening to the debate on old age pensions and other matters in the House. Mr. Robb's offering was everywhere the subject of discussion. The general opinion, it is gathered, is that the feature of it which will make the most lasting impression on the public mind is the reduction in the duty on motor cars.

NOT FORGOTTEN

It looks as if the Government's treatment of the Canadian automobile industry would be remembered long after the tax remissions are forgotten. In fact it is the belief of many politicians that the manner in which the important motor car industry has been dealt with will do the Conservatives a greater measure of harm when its effect is realized than any benefit it can derive from its taxation reductions, especially in view of the fact that increased revenues which made the reductions possible were due to improved economic conditions for which the administration was in no way responsible.

LIBERALS ALARMED

Members are not only of the Opposition, but of the Liberal party also, are alarmed over the effect of the radical slash in the protection under which the motor car industry in this country was built up. But what principally impresses many who have been discussing the matter is the apparent indifference of the Government to this effect. Mr. Robb in his speech offered no suggestion that in his opinion such a reduction in the tariff was warranted or desirable. He said nothing about having considered the matter at all or about having given any thought to the condition of the industry.

The only reason he gave for his action was that there was a sentiment in the country that the industry enjoyed more protection than it needed or did not bother, apparently, to investigate the question of how far that sentiment was justified.

A PROGRESSIVE DEMAND

No one here, of course, is in any doubt as to the consideration which influenced the Minister. The Progressives demanded the cheaper cars regardless of the effect on the industry, and the Government was more interested in gratifying them than in doing justice to the industry.

News despatches from Toronto tell of the closing of the General Motors plant at Oshawa and of the abscissions made in the name of the Automotive Association that the industry could not sustain the tariff cut were noticed here with keen concern. Members of parliament having a close knowledge of the industry confirm the opinions of the spokesman of this association. They say that all over Ontario orders for motor car parts will be cancelled.

FOR DISSOLUTION

The belief that the Government prepared the budget for the express purpose of securing advantage in any early election is becoming more general. In the connection it is reported the Prime Minister actually consulted the Governor-General regarding dissolution at the end of the session before the budget was presented. According to this report Mr. King secured a definite assurance at the time.

MOTOR DEALERS' VIEWS

Ottawa, April 19.—Motor dealers' and garage keepers in Ottawa, who have been interviewed concerning the effect of the reductions of rates on automobiles, express the opinion that any car on which the duty value at 20 per cent. duty, is under $1,200 is entitled to the lower tariff, stated a prominent customs broker.

If that contention is correct it means that dozens of makes of American cars, especially the touring models, will come in under the lower tariff as their "duty paid" value is under the $1,200. Some of these cars now sell as high as $1,500 retail here.

This wide variance in price between the "duty paid" value and the retail price here is accounted for by the fact that "duty paid" value means the United States wholesale price plus the United States three per cent. war tax, plus 30 per cent. customs duty. The retail price here is the "duty paid" value, plus five per cent. excise tax on all above $1,250, plus freight and plus dealers' profit.

According to one authority the "duty paid" value of any motor car in Canada is just about the same as the list or advertised price in the United States. The United States advertised price is the factory wholesale price plus dealers' profit. It is stated that practically all cars which are advertised in United States magazines as selling at $1,200 will come in under the new 20 per cent. duty.

CAROL RESUMES HIS ROYAL POST SOON TO RETURN

British King Responsible for Reconciliation in Rumanian Ruling Family

Paris, April 19.—Prince Carol of Rumania, who last Christmas renounced his rights as heir to the throne, has made up with his family and it is understood he will soon return to Bucharest. He is still in Paris.

On his return to the Rumanian capital he will resume his rights as crown prince. This decision has been reached in correspondence between Prince Carol and his father and mother, King Ferdinand and Queen Marie and the prince's friends point out that the fact that Queen Marie has made peace with her elder son is most important.

It is said here that the King of Great Britain helped to bring about the reconciliation.

Prince Carol's friends here say the fall of the Bratiano government, against which the prince fought, makes his return feasible. The opposition to ex-Premier Bratiano, which now holds power, was supported by the crown prince, whereas his mother supported M. Bratiano.

Rumanians are asking: Will Queen Marie continue to hold the whip hand in Rumania, eclipsing the power of the king, or will Prince Carol's return result in the king, through his son, becoming the dominating figure in Rumanian political life?

Prince Carol's return to Rumania and his resumption of his rights as crown prince will probably dispose of the suit for $1,000,000 francs brought against the prince by Mme. Zizi Lambrino. The basis of her case was that under her separation agreement with Prince Carol, her rights as his wife returned when he ceased to be heir to the throne. If he becomes again heir to the throne her suit is, of course, weakened.

However, Prince Carol's acquaintances in Paris predict that before he returns to Bucharest the Lambrino suit will be settled out of court by payment of a sum of money to be supplied by the Rumanian king.

You Need Most the "film of protection" While Your Motor is New

To use any but the highest quality oil, suited to the mechanical requirements of your new motor, is simply to invite motor troubles.

Any oil will lubricate your motor, after a fashion but Tide Water engineers spent years in study and research to obtain, in Veedol, an oil which offers maximum resistance to heat, and friction; an oil which forms a "film of protection" over all the vita parts of your motor; a film thin as tissue, smooth as silk, tough as steel.

This "film of protection" has reduced to a minimum the ever-present danger of burned-out bearings, scored cylinders and lost power. Put the "film of protection" on the job safeguarding your motor and conserving its power.

Wherever the orange and black Veedol sign is displayed, you will find The Veedol Motor Protection Guide. This is a chart that tells which Veedol oil your car requires. Have your crankcase drained and refilled with Veedol to-day. Be sure and ask for Veedol by name.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

Readers and admirers of Peter B. Kyne novels have something to look for ward to, for Paramount has transferred to the screen his latest story, "The Enchanted Hill," and the photoplay is scheduled to make its local appearance at the Belle Theatre to-day.

The picture has much to recommend it for it boasts the direction of Irvin Willat, who jumped into the limelight some months back with "North of 36," and it presents a brilliant cast headed by a number of outstanding players, Jack Holt, Florence Vidor, Noah Beery and Mary Brian.

The action centers around Holt and Miss Vidor, who are neighboring ranch owners in New Mexico. Circumstances force them to be enemies for a time but they are finally compelled to unite against a common enemy who would take their land away from them.

AT GRIFFIN'S

Critics who have already seen Colleen Moore's latest film, "Irene," pronounce it the greatest motion picture fun show ever exhibited.

For the production a fortune was expended in designing and creating original gowns for the little star and a troupe of sixty Hollywood beauties who appear with her in the picture.

The making of the episode in the production is said to be heightened by the fact that it is filmed in natural colors. The National release is the picture which was made by John McCormick.

The story of "Irene" is based on the colorful career of a girl who made that name. Many of the song successes of this show now enjoy a wide popularity. "Alice Blue Gown" is one of the ballads.

"Irene" comes to Griffin's theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday. In addition to Miss Moore the cast includes Lloyd Hughes, George K. Arthur and Charles Murray.

TO HONOR MR. CORNISH

Arrangements are progressing for the ceremony of presenting the testimonial from the Royal Humane Society of Canada to Mr. George Cornish of this city who it will be remembered saved a little child's life at the Sandbanks in the summer of 1921. It has not been decided whether the presentation will take place in the City Hall or the grounds. The date has so far not been selected as several prominent railway officials have expressed a desire to take part providing a suitable date can be set.

Mr. Cornish who is an employee of the Canadian National was spending the day at the Sandbanks and noted the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hunt, Glenwood Ave., in difficulties on the shore. Promptly realizing the little one's danger he went into the water and after some difficulty managed to bring her safely to shore.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"You were looking for me, my lord?" said Constance, wonderingly.

"Yes," he said, "I have been looking for you for days. Where have you been? Tell me everything."

Constance half rose, looking round her vously.

"I cannot stay here, my lord," she said, tremulously.

He put his hand upon hers gently, soothingly.

"A few minutes longer," he said; "you are not yet quite recovered. Why did you not write to my mother, to Lady Heath?" he asked. "Why did you not send them the address of the relation you have been nursing? Did you think that we—that they—were utterly indifferent as to what had become of you?"

Constance leaned her head upon her hand. She did not know what to say, for every word she might utter seemed fraught with danger.

He waited a moment, his dark eyes fixed upon her with an intense expression.

"When I came back to the castle that evening I learned that you had been sent for suddenly, and that you had gone without a word to any one except-ing Ruth and she appeared to know very little. What has happened? Will you tell me?" he added, with deep earnestness.

Constance shook her head.

"I am in London, my lord," she said, speaking with difficulty. "There is nothing to tell. I—I came out to-night and—and lost my way. I must go now, at once," and she rose.

"You do not ask me why I have been searching for you," he said, as they paused out, and he drew her arm within his. "I have some rod news for you."

"For me?" said Constance, with a sudden vague apprehension of fresh trouble.

"Yes," he said, with sad gravity. "And—"

She stopped and looked up at him with a little cry.

"Don't be frightened," he said, gravely. "He is not dead, but he is very ill."

"And ill? Oh, my lord!" was all she could say.

"Yes," he said, pressing her arm tightly against his side, so as to render her all the support he could. "He caught the day you left and rapidly grew worse. He has been, is still, very ill, and they are afraid.—"

He stopped.

"Oh, poor, poor child!" murmured Constance, brokenly; her tears falling fast as she forgot everything but the bright boy who had so readily learned to love her, and whose love she returned with all her tender heart. "Oh, my lord, my lord!"

"I have just received a telegram," he went on, "They say that the fever is at its height, and that he is still unconscious. The day he was taken ill he began to fret for you. Your name was on his lips continually and ever since, in and out of delirium, he has called for you and begged you to come to him."

Constance could do nothing but cry silently.

"My mother is half distracted by anxiety," he said, "and she begged me to try and find you and implore you to return if you could possibly leave your sick relative. But I should have started in search of you even if she had not sent me. I got to London four nights ago, and have been looking for you ever since. I found out that you had come to Paddington, but I lost all trace of you there, and to-night I was wondering what I should do next. Did you not see the advertisements in the paper?"

"No," said Constance, almost inaudibly.

"No; I need not have asked. You will not?"

"I would have come from the other end of the world to him, my lord," she said, still forgetting everything else but the sick child.

"Yes, I know that," he responded, "and you will come now?"

"Yes, I will come," she replied, at once and unhesitatingly. "How can I go, my lord?" she added, eagerly.

"There is a train tomorrow morning, an early train; it leaves at eight o'clock. Can you go by that?"

"Yes, oh, yes," she answered.

The need for action had banished all her faintness and weakness.

"Very well," he said. "And now let me take you back to—"

She stopped short, her color coming and going.

"No, my lord," she faltered. "If —if you will call a cab for me."

"You will not let me come with you?"

She shook her head.

"No; I would rather go alone, she said.

"You shall have your own way," he said in a low voice. "I will not worry you with one more question. I know you would go to the poor child if you could."

"Oh, yes, yes," she said. "Is there no earlier train I can go by Lord Brakespeare?"

"There is one at twelve I might, he said; "but—"

"I will go by that, please," said Constance, firmly.

He looked at his watch.

"No, no," he said, "you will be hurried and you are not strong."

"I feel strong enough to walk all the way to him," she said, eagerly. "Oh, let me go by that, please. Call a cab, my lord! Every moment will seem hours to me!"

He looked down at her earnestly with a veiled, passionate tenderness in his eyes.

"Very well," he said, gently. "The child shall thank you himself, I cannot."

He beckoned a cab and put her in. The night had grown chilly, and her hand, as he held it, felt cold. He took off his overcoat and wrapped it round her, paying no heed whatever to her remonstrances.

"Paddington at twelve," he said. "Keep the cab while you get ready but I will give the instructions. Now, your address?"

She told him.

He went and spoke to the cabman gave him some money and took his number. Then he came back to her

"Do not fret," he said, "he may be better; while there is life there is hope—good hope for a healthy child."

His hand held hers for a moment with a strong, encouraging pressure then he released it, and signed to the cabman to drive on.

Mrs. Mervyn opened the door as the cab drove up, but Constance gave her no time to express her anxiety.

"I must get ready to go at once," she said, eagerly. "I have had bad news," and she gave a hurried explanations as she packed a box. "You will keep the rooms, Mrs. Mervyn," she said; "I shall be back as soon as I can, and I will come to you if you will have me."

She put some money on the dressing-table with a little blush, but Mrs. Mervyn pushed it away.

"That will do when you come back," she said, in her timid way, "I am not in need of it, and—Well, it will be a reason for coming to see me again, if only to say good-by, Miss Grahame."

Constance kissed the sad patient woman;

"I should have come back without that," she said, "and I will not take the money again."

Feeling half bewildered, but thinking only of Arol, she got back to the cab and was driven to Paddington.

As the cab pulled up at the station the marquis' tall figure came toward it, and he helped her out.

"There is plenty of time," he said. "You will not be more anxious than you can help."

Constance said nothing.

He had already taken the tickets, and he put her in a first-class carriage, on the seat of which were half a dozen magazines and a dainty lunch basket of sandwiches and fruit. He spread a fur wrap over her knees.

"You are to sleep as much as you can," he said. "I am in the next compartment, if you should want me," he added as he put on his coat which he had taken from the cab, and Constance understood and appreciated the delicacy which caused him to refrain from riding with her He treated her as if she were a princess.

The guard whistled, and having remained beside the door to the last moment, he left her and jumped into his own carriage.

The train had got some distance on its way before Constance could realize that she was going back to Brakespeare Castle and in charge of the marquis! What would Lady Ruth say? But she put the question from her. What did it matter what any one said under the circumstances? It was of Arol, and Arol only she thought.

After a time she grew calmer and took up one of the magazines. How careful the marquis had been of her! What consideration he had shown her! He had not insisted upon questioning her, had studied her feelings, her comfort in every detail. Was it any wonder that her heart should feel full of gratitude to him?

Presently the pages of the magazine grew dim and blurred, and resting her head against the padded cushion, she fell asleep.

The train stopped at one of the large stations, and the marquis came to the carriage and entered it.

He stood for a moment looking down at her with an inexpressible tenderness that had something strangely sad and melancholy in it, and he took up the fur rug, which had slipped to the floor, and softly wrapped it round her. Then, with a sigh, he looked at her again, and left the carriage seeing that the guard locked it after him.

Constance did not awaken until the train steamed into Berrington. The marquis had telegraphed along the line to the station master to procure a carriage from the castle, and it was waiting for them.

"You have had some rest?" he said. "That is right. Let me draw that wrap round you more closely; the air is cold."

A footman in the livery that seemed so familiar to Constance, got her bag and opened the carriage door for them, and they were soon on their way to the castle.

She had left it a few days ago under circumstances which Lady Ruth had tried to make ignominious; she returned to it escorted by its master. But this view of the situation was lost upon Constance, whose mind was fixed upon Arol.

The carriage rolled up the avenue and the great door was opened. By the dim light burning in the hall Constance saw the stately figure of the marchioness standing by the stairs.

She came forward in her noiseless way, and took Constance's hand and kissed her.

"I knew you would come, my dear, if you could," she said, simply Then as the marquis bent and kissed her, she said, "You found her then, Walter?"

"Yes, mother," she responded, "I found her. She is tired out and not strong—"

"She shall go to bed at once," said the marchioness.

Constance shook her head.

"Let me go to him at once," she said. "Indeed, I am not tired. I could not sleep. I have slept all the way down. Please let me go to him."

The marchioness hesitated, but the marquis, after a glance at Constance, said:

"Let her go, mother."

"Come up to your room, my dear" said the old lady, affectionately.

They went to the room, which Constance noticed, as she entered, had crept heart in the world." And she not been disturbed or altered, as if wiped her eyes. "But are you sure the mistress of the house at least you will not take some rest, my dear? It is such a terrible journey!"

"No, I would like to go to him at once," said Constance.

They went through the familiar rooms, the sight of Arol's toys making Constance's heart ache and entered the sickroom.

The nurse rose from beside the bed, and Constance saw the pretty face, all flushed and fevered, the golden brown hair streaming over the white pillow.

Constance, too moved to speak, bent down and kissed him, and took one of the hot hands that quivered on the coverlid.

OSHAWA TO SHOW GOVERNMENT IT IS NOT "BLUFFING"

HOME IS ENTERED BY MASKED MEN ALL SCARED OFF

Kingson Children Were Frightened But Saved Family Jewels

Kingston, April 20.—It has just leaked out that a daring attempt at burglary was made on Friday night in a house situated on upper Barrie Street between Queen and Colborne Streets, when four men—three masked and one unmasked—entered the house evidently with the intention of ransacking it thoroughly and probably in the belief that all the occupants were out at the time, which, was shortly before 10 o'clock. As it happened, while the father and mother were out the two children were left and when the two masked men they ran screaming from the house and made such a commotion that the would-be burglars were frightened away and beat a hasty departure.

According to the story of these children, two of the masked men entered the house from the rear door and they thereupon rushed to the front of the house, just in time to see two other men enter the house from the front door and immediately switch off the electric light, while at the same time one of them produced a flashlight from his pocket. Terrorized as they were, the young people retained their presence of mind and seeing the men, from the movement of their flashlight, made their way into a side room the youngsters rushed through the hallway and out of the front door, at the same time loudly screaming for help.

TRAVELOGUE BY MR. YEIGH THRILLS LOCAL AUDIENCE

Last evening in conjunction with the Bridge St. Church Young People's Society, Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto, Canadian representative of the Save-the-Children fund, delivered a large gathering with a word picture story also accompanied by beautiful lantern slides of his trip last summer to the World's Christian Council at Geneva under the direction of the League of Nations, and his subsequent tour of the Balkan territory, Macedonia and Greece.

This final appearance of Mr. Yeigh in connection with his week-end visit been proved to be a fitting climax to his many addresses covering lucky Canada and the needy near East.

Mr. F. B. Bracon the new president of the church society, occupied the chair.

With the grace of a professional, Mr. Yeigh fashioned his address with a description of old classic Athens, Salonica (the Thessalonians of the Bible) Macedonia and the contained refugee scenes with views of Canada, depicting high spots in our progress and colossal resources.

It is indeed fortunate that such a talented speaker experienced in Governent department, newspaper connection; statistical publisher V. M. C. A. leader; B. S. and Mrs's Classes teacher, college, university, Rotary and Kiwanis lecturer, international traveler, is found possessing the heart and soul for the care of those suffering so from after-the-war affliction and Turkish domination of Christians evicted from the cradle of Armenian home life.

Much applause was evoked last evening as many dozens to Near East philanthrophy saw among the touching slides that of the Belleville Kitchen, designated among those of the globe, be ing maintained in handing out daily rations of bread, soup and clothing to the thousands of unfortunate children in old palaces once sheltering kings, form er places of entertainment patronized by past nobility, old military hospitals,tents and barracks again serving worthy purposes. The pathetic trek of pioneer Christian descendants across plain, improvised railway and water transportation, carrying with them only what they might in the hurry, the looting and burn ing of old Smyrna just a few years ago by the Turk, is a revelation that is heart-rendering. Despite the fact that these refugees are still wearing the clothes with which they escaped tatter-ed and in rags, with often times no covering for the feet they submit to con ditions of zero or cold food and shelter quays and in the open with a humorous smile but are now benefiting by the even scanty food at their disposal. Many are tilling the soil, learning handi craft and other trades in schools and orphanages and it is expected that after the next harvest the Greek Government will not need further assistance to handle the unexpected situation. Contributions to assist in carrying on the cause may be made to Mr. John Elliott, of the Standard Bank, free of exchange to this fund on Belleville's part in the undertaking. There was a nice financial response to last night's appeal and the Christian people here are keenly concerned about helping out the great challenge.

His Honor Judge Deroche closed the meeting with a few apt remarks.

Explorers and scientists, on a scientific venture which will occupy the entire summer. The expedition will collect zoological, geological and botanical specimens for the institution from the sub-Arctic region which is now considered virtually unexplored in the Museums relation.

Mayor Graham Awarded $194 In Damage Action By Court

Toronto, April 20.—Automobiles belonging to R.J.E. Graham, Mayor of Belleville, and Mrs. Mary Davies of Ottawa, met at a cross roads at Britannia Heights near Ottawa on July 12 last, and both cars were damaged. Mayor Graham and his wife were injured and sued Mrs. Davies for $3,500.

Mrs. Davies counterclaimed for $35. In case, was tried by Mr. Justice Grant who finds both parties were negligent. Mayor Graham in running at from 20 to 25 miles an hour, "with a roar like an airplane", when approaching a crossing and Mrs. Davies in not keeping a proper look out.

Under the contributory negligent act, His Lordship finds Mayor Graham 75 percent responsible for the accident and Mrs. Davies 25 percent. Though Mr. Graham was responsible for a greater degree he is awarded higher damages as the injury to his Pierce Arrow car was more extensive than those to Mrs. Davies Ford coupe.

On adjustment between the claims and counterclaim, Mr. Graham is awarded judgement for $194.04 without costs.

OSHAWA ISSUES DOMINION-WIDE APPEAL FOR HELP

Business Men and Citizens Fear Personal Loss in Hasty Legislation

Oshawa, April 20.—Prominent citizens of Oshawa, fearing that disaster is about to overtake the motor car industry here through tariff reductions to-day issued an appeal to "the people of Canada" to support their proposal for delay in the inauguration of the new schedule until the advisory tariff board has had an opportunity to go thoroughly into the question of tariff adjustment.

It is pointed out that the appeal is not made on behalf of the automotive industry but comes from the business and municipal interests and from owners of homes in Oshawa. Under a reduced tariff, it is said thousands of citizens will lose their jobs and also their homes in which they have staked all their savings and are now trying to clear of debt.

MUSIC DAY AT KIWANIS CLUB

Well-Known Local People Assist in Programme—Mr. Hunt Talks

The strains of music, songs and laughter echoed through the Queen's Hotel today when the Kiwanians were there in full force staging a musical meeting at this week's luncheon by way of variety. Chief among the musical selections rendered by members and guests were vocal solos and duets by Messrs Jimmy Bankier and Jack Thomson, accompanied at the piano by Wm. F. E. Hunt, and their efforts were well received by the Club. Everett Stephens and Albert Adams contributed some catchy numbers with violin and piano and the ever-ready "chorus" added to the volume—if not the quality—of the entertainment.

Mr. Hunt outlined briefly to the club the musical work being done in the city schools. Results were gratifying and he hoped to have a demonstration in May on the part of the children of all the schools.

Messrs. Reg. Hinchey and A. F. Stillman gave the Club some ideas with regard to the proposed organization of a boys' band in the city. This had been carried out in other places with success and it was suggested that Rotary and Kiwanis get behind the scheme. Boys' Work is also being planned for the latter part of May, to be sponsored jointly by the two Service clubs.

Would "Welcome" Completion of Work Begun in 1921

New York, April 20.—The United States policies on outstanding international issues were bared to-day by Frank B. Kellogg Secretary of State in an address at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press.

On the question of armament limitation, the Secretary said the United States Government would "welcome an agreement which would complete the work begun in Washington" at the 1921 conference "particularly as there is danger that the competitive construction which formerly existed, particularly with respect to capital ships, may still be continued in a less aggravated form, it is true, with respect to cruisers and other types of naval craft not dealt with by the Washington Treaties.

Secretary Kellogg pledged in this connection that delegates from the United States to the preliminary armaments conference in Geneva would help to the utmost of their ability in preparing the way for agreements for further limitation of naval armament at no distant date."

Regarding the limitation of land armaments, Mr. Kellogg said this country already had "voluntarily reduced to the minimum', and added "We would naturally welcome any steps which other powers might take toward the limitation of land armament."

This will mean command of the unit for 7 years. Col. Vanderwater was given command on his return from overseas which coincided with reorganization of the Regiment.

Having passed the Senate last week by a similarly decisive vote, the measure today is before Governor Smith.

BOXER IS DEAD FROM KNOCK-OUT

Second Opponent to Die after Scientific Beating by Bud Taylor

Milwaukee, Wis., April 20.—Clever Seneio, Philippine contender for flyweight boxing championship died here this morning. The boxer who was defeated by Bud Taylor of Terre Haute in the ninth round an hour here, last night was taken to the hospital this morning. Hospital authorities said he was dead when examined for admittance. Senio's death marks the second such tragic affair in which Taylor has figured. Frankie Jerome, promising New York bantam-weight died in January 1924 from effects of a knockout by the hands of Taylor at New York. Taylor later was exonerated from all blame.

SIAMESE TWINS BORN TO HAMILTON WOMAN

Hamilton, April 20. Siamese twins, still-born, were born to a non resident of the city at the General Hospital yesterday. It was learned today. The twins are joined together at the breast bone, something previously unknown in Canadian medical history, it is believed. It is thought that the twins shared several vital organs in common, one of these being the heart, and it is understood that a request has been made of the parents to allow medical men to perform a post-mortem examination.

TORIES, LIBERALS LEAVE COMMONS BORED BY TALK

J. S. Woodsworth of Winnipeg Orated to Empty Seats

Ottawa, April 20.—J. S. Woodsworth, of Winnipeg, has discovered that he has bored the House of Commons somewhat beyond the endurance point by the delivery of his academic resolutions and speeches on questions somewhat removed from the immediate interest of Parliament. Mr. Woodsworth has been occupying most of private members' days this session with his various proposals for the economic and social reform of the nation, and although Monday was understood to have been allotted to the Conservatives for resolutions they had not had opportunity to present, owing largely to Mr. Woodsworth's verbosity, he bobbed up again with his annual argument in favor of the nationalization of natural resources, particularly coal and water power.

Conservatives were first disinclined at Mr. Woodsworth's intervention and usurpation of their time, and then their emotion apparently merged into indifference. At any rate they left the chamber almost in a body. The Liberals evidently equally fed up with the labor member's yearly excursions, did likewise. The result was that Mr. Woodsworth was left to read copious extracts from obscure periodicals to an almost empty chamber.

SEEDING IS BEGUN ON THE PRARIES CONDITIONS GOOD

Considerable Spring Work Already Done—Farmers In West Optimistic

Winnipeg, April 20.—Seeding has commenced at a number of points in the prairie provinces, and a number of reports issued by the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway here today. While low lands in many sections of the provinces are not in working order, the heavy and the lighter soils are in excellent condition for seeding.

Farmers throughout this west are very optimistic. Practically all districts report sufficient moisture to take care of the immediate requirements of crops, and the labor supply is ample and all conditions are favorable for the start of the 1926 crop year.

Following the snowfall of last week, conditions in Manitoba today are very favorable and seeding will be general during the week. Many districts, especially in the south, have commenced seeding and there is plenty of moisture.

BARON BYNG SUFFERS INFECTION IN HIS FOOT

Port Arthur, April 20.—Suffering from a slight infection in one of his feet Baron Byng, Governor General of Canada, was unable to leave his train on arrival here today. The Governor General's condition is not serious but because of the infection he is unable to walk. Dr. J. Gillie, of Fort William is in attendance. Col. Duncan Campbell, secretary to his Excelency, stated that infection developed after the vice regal train had left Ottawa. Baron Byng will continue his tour.

George Cornish Kiwanis Guest Heads Of Railway Are Interested

George Cornish, C.N.R. yard foreman, was a guest at the Kiwanis Club luncheon at the Queen's Hotel today and was introduced by Kiwanian Bill Mikel, who said proper had he formed the acquaintance of the genial Cornish as one of the heroes of peace. He was proud that George was a citizen of Belleville. He had seen the life of Jean Elliott a little girl from drowning in Lake Ontario at the Sandbanks in July 1924. The Royal Canadian Humane Association had investigated the matter and had issued a parchment testimonial which would be presented to Mr. Cornish a little later. President Sir Henry Thornton, Vice-President S. J. Hungerford and Superintendent J. D. MacMillan of the C.N.R. had written Mr. Cornish expressing their approval of his noble conduct and also intimating their intention of being present at the presentation. W. J. Robb, Vice-President has charge of the matter for the railway. Mr. Cornish in a few words expressed his thanks to the Kiwanians of Belleville.

Millions Are Thrown Away By Great Annual Bonfire

The fire season is once more at hand. From April 16 to 23 a call to every Canadian is being sent out under the auspices of a nation-wide committee to make himself a forest guard for 1926. One-tenth of the whole population of Canada is directly or indirectly dependent on the wealth of the forests, yet every year they are being ruthlessly slaughtered by aeration carelessness and a nation's richest heritage has become the prey of a series of big bonfires.

OTTAWA'S DUTY

In Ottawa the appeal of Save the Forest Week must come with particular emphasis. The wealth of the woods made the Capital what it is today. It is surrounded by forests and in the Gatineau District it has as its doors the most perfect winter and summer woodland playground in the world. Hardly a year passes that part of that paradise of green places does not become a prey to the fire fiend. These and other fires are preventable with ordinary care. Will Ottawa people exercise that care when they go camping, hunting, fishing or motoring on their own rich estate?

The necessity of the campaign is well summed up by "H. B." in recent issue of Forest and Outdoors. He says:

FORESTS AND JOBS

Forests are jobs. Trees mean trade. Logs are the first material, not of lumber or paper, but of pay cheques. It is an incidental matter that the forest gives us telegraph poles. It is a very important matter that the forest gives us 120,000 workmen, supporting a half million of Canadian dependents, and contributing $500,000,000 to maintain Canadian prosperity. Conservation would never bother itself with trees if trees were not the substance of human employment. The Forest Protectionist would not sweat a drop for a square mile of spruce if he did not know that vast industry, a thriving town and a thousand contended homes are tied to spruce treetops as inescapable bonds.

We Canadians set 6,000 forest fires a year and nine-tenths of them through human recklessness, but those hundreds of fights of prodigality mean nothing if they do not tell us that we have put the torch to the livelihood of thousands of men; we have signed an unrenewable note for our children and our grandchildren to pay. Let it be laid down as an ugly and undisputable fact that in the present situation with forest demand hammed hard against dwindling forest supply, every forest fire must be paid for. Every mile of spruce or pine or fir given to the against bonfire will have to be bought back by the next generation in higher costs of lumber and paper, in forested industries, in dwindling public revenues, and in ulcerice of population.

PLAGUE OF FIRES

Why the ringing of alarm bells over forestry? Why does Sir Clifford Sifton say: "If the plague of forest fires in Canada is permitted to continue the exodus of population from our timbered growing areas cannot very well be prevented. If we allow the ravages of forest conflagrations at the present pace it is only a question of a relatively few years until we force from our northern areas the great body of population and all municipalities subsisting on forest manufacturers."

Why does Sir Lomer Gouin say: "One of the greatest menaces facing Canada today is the progressive destruction of the forest resources? Surely we are willing as co-partners in Canada's progress to put a stop right now to a form of public robbery that must be checked if the nation is to survive."

SIR HENRY'S APPEAL

Why does Sir Henry Thornton say: "If any man wants to add to the burdens of the Canadian National let him start a forest fire? The forest is a main pillar of our freight and tourist traffic. I appeal to every Canadian to protect the forest."

Why the note to alarm from one of the most conservative financiers of Canada, the late Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce: "The enormous destruction of our forest resources as a direct consequence of human recklessness is one of the most unsettling elements in the commercial future of Canada? We cannot pretend to be a business people and at the same time continue to regard apathetically the red holocaust which is robbing the nation of one of its most indispensable resources. Without the forest only a very small portion of our business activities in Canada could continue a twelvemonth."

What is the meaning of it all? Ask that eastern lumber company, that lost, in a season, by human set fires, enough pine to keep their huge mills running for fifty years. Ask that other company that lost twenty years' supply of pulpwood because of the devastations of prospectors.

LATCH KEY GIRLS ARE CRITICIZED IN LIBEL ACTION

Guardian of Murdered Dancer Wins Case Against Paper

London (By Mail).—Questions and answers on the modern girl and one present-day "laxity," compared with bygone "disciplines," were a feature of a High Court action recently.

The action was brought by Captain Charles William Richard Langmaid of Nevern Square, Earl's Court, against Odhams Press, Ltd., for an alleged libel published in John Bull of May 16, 1925. Captain Langmaid was awarded £750 damages, with costs.

Captain Langmaid was the guardian of Grace Diana Blakiller, a 16-year-old dancer, who was murdered in the street on the night of April 9, 1925.

"INTO THE FURNACE".

He complained of an article in John Bull, in which it was stated: "Today we give a backkey to the girl of 16 and ask no question when she comes back at two o'clock in the morning from a cabaret or night club. We pitch these children into the furnace of temptation and leave them to take pot luck with destiny."

Mr. Norman Birkett, K.C., who appeared for Odhams Press, Ltd., said that the writer of the article was not dealing with the particular case of Captain Langmaid, but with the subject of social tendencies generally.

A number of witnesses gave evidence that they found the article referred to Captain Langmaid.

Mrs. Hearn, of Hogarth Road, Earl's Court, said that Captain Langmaid had lived at her house. He adopted Grace in 1920, and brought her up as she would have brought up her own child. He took the greatest care of the girl.

"I thought the article was a dreadful one," she said in cross-examination. "In so far as it referred to the discipline of bygone days and compared it with the laxity of the present day, I agree with the article."

Mrs. Maud de Vries stated that Capt. Langmaid came to live at her house in Nevern Square, and brought the girl with him.

Mr. Birkett: Did you think the article was correct in its reference to the present day?—I thought it was a slur on the present mothers and guardians in general.

I notice you leave out the fathers? —Well, yes, fathers, if there are no mothers.

Have you seen any change in the life of modern girls?—I think so.

They have more freedom now?—I suppose they have.

FREEDOM ABUSED

You know some of them abuse their freedom?—Oh, yes; but that applies to the public in general.

Mrs. Maud de Vries agreed that there was a tendency at the present time "to sneer at old-fashioned moth-

Marks the beginning of a new Era in Motor Lubrication

The first step in creating Marvelube was accomplished when Imperial Oil chemists discovered a way to remove asphalt from a grade of Peruvian Crude Oil which contains 10% asphalt, carbon and other impurities that adversely affect lubricants. Peruvian Crude Oil is one of the richest base oils found in the world. Imperial Oil controls Peruvian Crude Oil and has sole ownership of the new process by which it is refined.

After four years of diligent scientific investigation, including thousands of tests, Imperial Oil chemists and engineers, the Marvelube Process has been developed. By this special process it was found possible to remove from Peruvian Crude Oil certain substances which could successfully combat carbon deposits in the modern automobile motor.

The final development and perfection of the Marvelube process marked the triumph of lubricating oil refining science over carbon. Imperial Oil company can now offer a motor oil that fully meets the standards set by the Society of Automotive Engineers. Imperial Oil Limited controls Peruvian Crude Oil and is sole owner and operator of the new process by which it is refined.

Today Marvelube, the new process motor oil, fills the needs of the most exacting motorist. Buy it at Imperial Oil stations and good dealers everywhere in Canada.

TODAY you are offered a new and entirely different lubricating oil for your motor--MARVELUBE MOTOR OIL.

Here is a lubricant made by an entirely new process from Peruvian Crude Oil--the world's finest crude oil.

Four years of research, of rigid tests and comparisons in laboratory and on the road, have proved Marvelube superior in every respect to any other motor oil ever produced.

Marvelube surpasses all the old standards that have, for so long, stood as the measure of lubricating value--sets new standards all its own. Outstanding among these is its proven ability to successfully combat carbon deposits in your motor.

It is made in six grades, including Marvelube "F" for Fords, to lubricate properly every make and model of automobile, motor truck, tractor, motorcycle and motor boat.

Marvelube is now on sale at Imperial Oil stations and by good dealers everywhere in Canada.

FASTING RECORD IN BERLIN CITY IS NOW 45 DAYS

Berlin, April 20.—The world's record for fasting now is in the hands of Pastello and Harry who were locked from their glass cage, where they were sealed up and footless for the past forty-five days, thus breaking by one day the record recently made by Jolly.

This form of indoor sport, which the people are willing to pay money to see and which has caused scores of the female sex to burst forth with spring-time poems and leap-year proposals, will soon be history, since the police have forbidden anyone to imitate his meals and collect money for exhibition. There are several more in various parts of Berlin who were already sealed up before the police order was issued, and these will be allowed to continue their fast. Among them is a girl who believes she can hold out at least thirty days and whose case is surrounded by as many suitors who would prefer a wife who does not bother about food, as the men meal misers' cases by girls who want husbands who are not kitchen encumbrances.

In Essen a faster who believed he could beat the record, even though bound up in chains, was removed to a padded cell after fifteen days.

Pastello and Harry do not state the amount of their receipts, since the huge sum obtained by Jolly got very adverse press criticism.

ENGINEERING TRADES NOW TALK OF STRIKE

London, April 20.—Just as the crisis over coal was believed to be near some settlement, there appeared another storm cloud on the industrial horizon. The deadlock in the engineering industry, ranking in national importance with that of coal, because most threatening when seventeen engineering unions decided to issue strike ballot papers which are returnable May 31. The unions are demanding a 20-shilling weekly increase in wages.

MOTOR WORKERS LEAVING FOR U.S. WITHOUT DELAY

Prospect 1,000 Toronto Men Will be Thrown Out of Employment

Toronto, April 20.—The seriousness of the blow that has been dealt the automobile industry of Canada in the tariff cuts announced by the Minister of Finance received additional confirmation when the various firms affected, after a checking up on what the reduction meant in cold figures, found that their early fears were being substantiated and that no other prospect remained than to go to the wall, throwing thousands of men out of work.

1000 MEN INVOLVED

The statement had already been definitely made that the Dodge Brothers plant, employing some 400 men, would have to close in Toronto, and R. Kirby, manager of the Durant Company, announced that this plant, at Leaside, employing some 600 men would also have to close its doors. This announcement was made following an all-day conference with R. H. Moss of Flint, Michigan, one of the directors of the company who came to the city yesterday from New York to go into the situation.

"Of course that's what to close," said Mr. Kirby, "and we are hoping that the Government at Ottawa will see the folly of the step they have taken and make some change. At present the decision we have reached is to liquidate our inventory as soon as possible and then we will close down definitely, failing any change in the tariff."

NO PROSPECT OF RETURN

With this statement it appears that in Toronto a thousand men will be thrown out of employment in a very short time, with no prospect of return while in the other factories the possibility of closure will have to be faced, in addition to the undoubted fact that in any case staffs will be considerably reduced.

In the meantime many workers are losing no time in leaving the city and seeking jobs in automobile plants in the United States, their intention evidently being to get work there before a stampede of workers from other plants in Canada makes even positions in the United States motor factories hard to obtain. The United States consul's office in Toronto was yesterday thronged with men seeking their papers, most of them single men who were able to make a quick move.

TENNIS MEETING IS ON THURSDAY

Proposal to Join League of Towns Along the Lake Shore

Now that the winter is really show ing some signs of leaving off, tennis enthusiasts are beginning to get their racquets out of storage and are looking over the old shoes to see whether they will stand another season's wear or not, and as they pass the Armories, watch patiently to see what effect Old Sol is having on the grounds. The Argyll Tennis Club appealed to the Parks Board this year to build some good cement courts, but as the latter have stated that they cannot see their way clear to provide the courts at this time, the club will be continuing to use the two courts at the Armouries, with the expectation of being able to secure two more fairly good courts elsewhere in the city. The club expects to be in a stronger than ever this year, if all join who have signified their intentions of doing so. Everybody will be eligible for membership whether they can play, or whether they're beginners. Every assistance will be given to beginners if he has also been appointed. Last year the club should enter a league composed of Cobourg, Oshawa, Peterboro and Port Hope, playing a series of home-and-home games. This matter will be discussed along with other business on Thursday evening of this week at the annual meeting in the Y.M.C.A. parlors. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

COAL IN ONTARIO?

That there is coal—of a sort— in Northern Ontario is certain. At least it is stuff that burns and gives out heat and looks like coal. Experts say it is not true coal, but an imitation coal, which they call anthraxalite or some such name. They do not deny that there may be lignite, a very low grade of coal, in the north country; but most geologists agree in the opinion that coal in paying quantities will never be mined up there.

But not so the Canadian Mining Journal, which has an opinion of its own on the subject. "We have in Ontario," says that periodical, "extensive areas of cretacious rocks known to be coal-bearing. What we know of that group of rocks could be told in a very small volume. The cretacious rocks are not well exposed, and the prospecting required is not of the type that can be done by lonely prospectors. Possible before a million is spent we would begin to get returns, but we should be prepared to spend some such sum in exploitation of the formation which can reasonably be expected to supply Ontario with fuel."

This suggestion has fired the imagination of the Sault Star, which urges the wisdom of having the Ontario government appropriate a million dollars for the purpose of hunting for coal in the northern wilderness. Were coal found in commercial quantities, says the Star, Ontario could cut its coal bill in two.

Hardly just now. Hardly until the period of annual deficits in provincial finances has passed and the period of surpluses has begun. A million dollars is too big a sum for government financially embarrassed to spend on a prospecting gamble. But when the province can afford it the expenditure might be worth while. There were geological highbrows who declared that none of the precious metals would ever be found in northern Ontario. Perhaps they were not more mistaken than are those who are equally confident that the geological formation of northern Ontario makes it certain that there is no coal up there.

ONE FOR CANNED GOODS

Some hygienists say that canned fruits and vegetables contain less vitamins than those which are freshly gathered, and therefore are less nourishing. This theory has been denied by others, who hold that if the fruits or vegetables are properly canned, the air being completely excluded, the vitamins in them will retain their vigor for a long time.

In order to settle the dispute, a series of thorough tests has recently been made in the laboratories of the Teachers' College in New York. The researchers report that they found that it is not best which destroys the life-giving vitamins, but oxidization, an that for oxidization the cooking done in the canneries gives less opportunity than does ordinary cooking.

This looks like a triumph for canned goods. Of course it does not dispose of the accusation made by the more extreme hygienic theorists who declare that the cooking of fruits or vegetables in any degree is undesirable because it destroys vitamins and thus impairs their nourishing qualities. But such opinions are not likely to make much headway. Most people will continue to take their asparagus and peas and beans and cabbage and cauliflower cooked in preference to tking them raw, incurring any risk, which may be caused by the absence of vitamins. And young housewives who may have been a little conscience-smitten because of their too free use of the can-opener may now cite scientific evidence in support of the claim that canned goods are really preferable, from a hygienic point of view, to food boiled in a pot after the manner of our forefathers.

AN ASPECT OF MINING

Apart from the direct benefit of the actual output of any mine, or the establishment of the value of any mining area, parts of Mr. G. C. Bateman's speech, delivered to the Winnipeg Board of Trade members and referred to here yesterday by Mr. Frank Yeigh, in his address to the Rotary Club, were most important and stimulating.

How Ontario had weathered the industrial depression of the past several years so well was due, he said, to the all round development of her northern stretches. The mines play a part, but not more so than do the responsive agencies arising out of money diffusion created by this new wealth. This wealth had the characteristics of the rolling snowball in growth and movement. If the mine was the kindling the accessories arising from its product were equally important. They involved lines of enterprise which, in a way, became wealth producers, too.

When Spain was maintained by Inca and Aztec treasure, the emulation of rival nations produced competitive effort. Portuguese and British activities, the one enduring, the former not so, brought India into the trade currents of the world —direct results from the famous exploits of Pizarro and Cortez.

The "forty-niner" in his prairie schooner bound for California ultimately established a Pacific base, an outlook upon the ocean which Perry navigated within a short time to such advantage that Japan threw open her ports.

Australia is another example of what follows in the train of mining for precious metals in a land, selected primarily as a penal station of the utmost remoteness.

Who, then, at this stage in Canada, can vision the potentialities of perhaps not less than 500,000 square miels of almost continuous geologically-considered fit territory for the production of precious metals, of which 7 per cent. of 260,000 square miles in Ontario alone has produced already a bewildering amount of wealth, with pronounced beneficial reactions through the Dominion?

RADIO TEST CASE

When the Zenith Radio corporation, of Chicago, bested the United States' government in the test case it brought on to prove that the secretary of commerce was without authority to allot wave lengths to broadcasting companies, it unwittingly rendered a real service to the radio industry and to the millions of listeners-in on this continent. The United States' government thought it had control of those who were using its air-lanes. Having been informed that it was an assumed authority, without legal basis, it may be taken for granted that it will frame an act that will leave no room for doubt. The authority of the department of marine and fisheries, the "bons of the air" in Canada, has not been questioned, and it may be that the existing legislation in this country will suffice, but it is imperative that a new agreement be entered into immediately with the United States' government. The offense of the Zenith Radio corporation was that it deviated from the allotted wave length and broadcast upon a wave length that was being utilized by two Canadian stations. To the credit of the United States' government it supported the contention of the department of marine and fisheries by cancelling the license of the offending Chicago company, which immediately entered an appeal and carried it through to a successful conclusion. If the matter was allowed to rest chaos in the ether would be inevitable. Broadcasters would suit themselves and change their wave lengths at will. The test case will serve the useful purpose, it may be depended upon, of tightening up radio legislation and it will result in a complete reallocation of wave lengths, which, radio fans will readily testify, is much to be desired.

A MAKESHIFT GOVERNMENT

Winnipeg Tribune:

We are supposed to have government by majority, for the greatest good of the greatest number. What we actually have now is a government up to the minimum demands of the beneficiaries, who are the members of parliament. As long as the present house of commons lives the country, will in other words, have to get along without government, save for the routine dispatch of governmental affairs. Policies there will be none.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

London Daily Express:

If the least of democracy are not to fall it will be through the agency of the newspaper more perhaps than through any one other instrument. The forms of democracy have been fairly securely we have yet to secure the reality. We have given the people the just rights which darker ages denied them; we have yet to teach them to use them. We have freed men and women—even the humblest—from physical bondage; we have abolished physical slavery; we have yet to abolish intellectual slavery. . . . In the realization of that dream, a free, responsible press will necessarily be a most powerful instrument; but it cannot fight for the freedom and independence of others unless it is itself free and independent.

JEALOUS QUEEN SPOILS CAREER OF JAZZ KING

Freddy, Lively Band Leader, Growing Rich Takes False Step

London, (By Mail).—Freddy was the liveliest leader of a jazz band Montmartre had ever known, Master of every musical instrument, he played and conducted with an infectious enthusiasm that delighted the champagne supper parties.

He was admired by all the ladies and often good English sterling or American dollar notes were passed up to him with a request for the repetition of some favorite selection. Freddy was evidently flourishing and growing rich but one night he disappeared and neither the manager nor any member of the band could give any explanation.

But the mystery soon cleared up. Freddy had been arrested by the police as an army deserter, and his imprisonment led to the revelation of an uncommon tale. As a youth of 20, his courage failed him and he slipped away from his battalion rather than face the enemy at Berry-au-Bac early in 1917.

SENT TO PRISON

Sentenced by court-martial as soon as he was caught, he was first of all sent to the army prison at Poesy, and thence transferred to a prison camp at Beaurepaire.

Here his wonderful playing made him a favorite with the warders who gradually relaxed their vigilance until, on a dark night in December, 1918, Freddy vanished away.

Having gained his freedom Freddy meant to keep it, and he did so in a most ingenious and audacious way by sending an official notice of his own death to his regiment. The notice was forged, but it was made out on the proper war office form, and provided with a bogus seal, which deceived the authorities.

Leon Auguste Bouvier, to give him his true name, was then listed among the dead. He came to life as Freddy, the jazz musician, and lived without fear of detection in Paris, where he found ready employment in theatres, kinema orchestras, and jazz bands.

In the winter season two years ago he went down to the Riviera, where he found lucrative engagements and became a great favorite with the ruling set. One well-to-do lady from overseas fell deeply in love with him, and Freddy, one day, being in a confidential mood, quite imprudent brought to tell her his secret. Some months later he jilted his overseas friend, having been smitten with the charms of a beautiful young Paris manneq'in.

AT NIGHT RESORTS

To escape pursuit by his Riviera flame, Freddy, in Paris, was obliged to change his address frequently. Meanwhile he had prospered exceedingly. "Freddy's Jazz" was in demand at the best night resorts, and Freddy himself, now on the high road to fortune, determined to marry his pretty manequin.

He did not forget to announce his forthcoming marriage to his Riviera acquaintance, hoping that it would put an end for ever to that romance. It did, but not in the way he intended.

The jilted woman, in revenge, wrote a letter to the Paris detective service denouncing Freddy as a deserter, and that is how "Freddy's Jazz" came to a sudden end.

Urgent action of the Turkish recruiting bureau is said to be causing considerable nervousness among the people of Turkey.

MAN SEES DEAD SON IN MOTION PICTURES

Thrilling Scene is Enacted During Presentation of Movie Battle

Councillor Eastman has recognized amongst the khaki-clad inhabitants of the trenches the boy whose death he mourns.

Trembling with emotion, the distressed father is gently assisted from the hall. But, before he can gain the exit, he has fainted.

London, (By Mail).—The scene is a picture theatre in the ancient town of Hull. An exhibition of war films, organized by the local branch of the British Legion is in progress.

In addition to the battle-scarred veterans of the Legion, the huge audience includes scores of fathers and mothers who have lost their loved ones in the war. Amongst them is Councillor W. H. Eastman, one of Hull's most respected residents.

A picture flashes on to the screen depicting British soldiers in trenches preparing for a concerted attack upon the enemy.

Suddenly there is a cry from amongst the onlookers.

ADMINISTRATION IS NOW CALLED POSITIVE MENACE

Three Months After Opening of Parliament Work Is Begun

TARIFF BOARD FIASCO

King and His Cabinet at Mercy of Every Whim Of Progs.

Ottawa, April 20.—Three months after the opening of the session the King Government is at last able to make a serious beginning with the routine business in Parliament. It is a literal truth that no measure has so far got beyond the second reading in the House of Commons and the Senate reassembles with no work in prospect except the formal passage of interim supply and the consideration of some 75 divorce bills. Never since Confederation has there been such an appalling record of the waste of Parliament's time as has been caused by the manoeuvres and intrigues incidental to the efforts of Mackenzie King to cling to office in defiance of the expressed will of the electorate. But nothing prospers with his Government; every enterprise upon which it embarks comes to grief, every move that it makes lands it in trouble. It owes its continued existence to a coalition of divergent elements ranging from extreme free trader to high protectionists and when there is no coherance to a Government's support, neither principles nor settled purposes can have any part in its policies.

FATUITY AND OPPORTUNISM

The recent developments about the new Tariff Board provide a signal example of the Government's crass fatuity and chronic opportunism. Mr. King and his colleagues have for months been proclaiming their intention of establishing a competent Board, which would conduct an exhaustive investigation of the workings of our fiscal system and provide the Government with expert guidance on tariff and taxation problems. Upon it divergent interests were to be represented and partisan considerations were to be banished. Indeed in many speeches during the election campaign the Premier gave definite pledges that one place on the Board would be reserved for a woman and this promise reinforced by a semi-official forecast that Mrs. M. E. Smith of Vancouver would be the favored lady. had doubtless the intended effect upon hundreds of women voters. But political exigencies forbade the fulfilment of the promise and when after many months the personnel of the Board was announced it contained no feminine name. The Chairmanship has been utilized a pleasant haven for Rt. Hon. George P. Graham, the Progressives have been allowed to nominate Mr. D. C. Mackenzie, the Secretary of the United Farmers of Manitoba and the protectionists of Quebec were placated by the selection of Mr. Joseph D'Aoust, a boot and shoe manufacturer of Montreal whose tenure of office however has been unexpectedly cut short, for reasons which will be hereafter explained.

SELECTIONS CRITICIZED

The selections made were open to serious criticism. Mr. Graham knows something about railways but beyond a vague partiality for protectionism has never shown any serious interest in economic problems. Mr. Mackenzie is an avowed free-trader and as Mr. D'Aoust is a high protectionist, their views were bound to cancel one another. The Board should have been composed of men of moderate fiscal views, who were allied to no definite interest, either industrial or agricultural and who had made a close study of economic problems from an impartial viewpoint. Numerous people of this calibre exist in Canada but the Government did not want them; the two extreme wings of its supporters had it by the throat and compelled it to place upon the Board watchdogs of their special interests. But no sooner was the personnel of the Board announced than Mr. D'Aoust gave an interview in Montreal in which he declared himself a believer in adequate protection for Canadian industry and announced his hostility to the British preference. This pronouncement brought some comfort to the manufacturing interests, who were convinced that Mr. Graham would not be unfriendly to them but it aroused the rage of the Progressives who sensed that the scales of the Tariff Board had been effectually weighted against their pet economic theories. So they raised a hue and cry and although Mr. D'Aoust complied with orders to make a hasty disavowal of his interview, Mr. King who had previously made a definite announcement of the appointments proceeded to declare that they were not finally ratified and a few days later announced that a more discreet French-Canadian protectionist in the person of Mr. Alfred Lambert had been hurriedly substituted for Mr. D'Aoust.

NOT "STANDING BEHIND"

Now such a performance is the very negation of the normal principles of Government. Undoubtedly Mr. D'Aoust had been selected and notified of his appointment; he may have been indiscreet but he was perfectly entitled to proclaim his fiscal views which were well known to everybody in Montreal and were most certainly known to the Government before they appointed him. He was their own chosen official and it was their bounden duty to stand by him when he became the target of an attack by the Progressives. But it is not the way and habit of Mr. King to stand by followers or subordinates when defence of their conduct becomes inconvenient and evidently. Mr D'Aoust is to be thrown overboard at the dictation of the Progressives. The latter need not imagine that they will get on the Board another French-Canadian who is more sympathetic to their fiscal views. Mr. Lapointe and Mr. Cardin may talk eloquently about the desirability of freer trade but they well use that as a zealous champion of protectionism who will veto interference with any single schedule affecting the industries of Quebec is placed on the Board, in the hands of the Government the Board is not to be an intelligent fact finding body, which could prove a useful instrument but is to be a device for withstanding the pressure of the conflicting economic interests, which are perpetually bailing for the possession of the Ministry's body and soul and also incidentally a piece of machinery which can be profitably employed for political manipulation.

THEN,—RURAL CREDITS

The story of the rural credits legislation offers equally damaging evidence of the inherent vices of the Government. The Progressives were informed that they could virtually draft whatever kind of bill they liked and with the help of Dr. Tory and other experts they duly handed to the Ministry a measure which embodied their desires. But its terms caused great consternation among the mortgage and trust companies which saw their interests would be adversely affected by the proposed legislation and they descended upon Ottawa to exercise pressure upon the Government. Their chief spokesmen were influential Liberals and Ministers whose sensitiveness is proverbial to the claims of what they are wont to denounce in public as vested interests is notorious, lest a friendly ear to their pleas. It is understood that they were induced to submit the bill to the scrutiny of a disinterested financial expert from New York who pronounced it unworkable. So with the help of the representatives of the mortgage companies the bill has been totally redrafted and the Progressives are discovering that the revised version is quite valueless for their purposes. So once more they are applying the screws to the Government and a further redrafting of the Bill will take place. But when a Government becomes as the King Ministry is the sport of every conflicting economic interests, never daring to proclaim either policy or principle, it is then in fact not merely incapable of giving decent administration but a positive menace to public morality.

WILLIS McGRAW GETS BASEBALL'S

A schoolma'am without any skipper,
A bridegroom without any bride;
The heroine without Big Dipper,
An ocean without any tide;
A billiard ball having no table,
A seventh with never a saw;
A race-course without any stable—
This baseball without a McGraw!

A Wall Street without speculation,
A shoe store with never a shoe;
A railroad without any station;
A chimney that hasn't a flue;
A heroine without shy honey;
A widow with divil a cow;
A payroll without any money—
That's baseball without a McGraw!

A Cook's tour with never a guide;
A winter without any blizzard,
A springtime without any thaw;
A chimney without any gizzard—

Phil Rosenberg hesitate champion is coming to Toronto to display his wares in the new stadium next month; against a Canadian boxer who has not yet been selected. Bobby Kisher, of Hamilton, the logical Canuck to stock up against the title-holder.

Kingston Curlers set a new record when they played several games on the 18th and 19th of April, because of the rounds game took advantage of the bald spell to resume the sport.

The Toronto Leafs ran into a snag on Sunday when the Orioles took them into camp in both morning and afternoon games. Joe Bleis have a strong team and with the signing of Dick Porter they will be near the top when the curtain rings down on the Stanley has built up a fast team and appearances in Texas that the International league will be a fight all through.

Soft ball at the Armouries tonight. Alemite vs Christ Church at 7.45 and Juniors and Point Anne at 9.00. The second game is creating considerable interest and a large crowd will no doubt greet the teams.

Recreation Alleys

The score that Miss M. Lynch and D. Doran set up at the Recreation Alleys on Friday night weathered the storm on Saturday night and won the prize for them in the mixed doubles competition that has been going on for the past two weeks. On Saturday night Mrs. Dwyer and A. Wesley rolled 1159 just 50 pins less and a short time after Miss Whalen and G. Anderson rolled an even 1200 or 50 pins below the score that won the prize. Miss Lynch won a cream and sugar set and D. Doran a silver mixed clock. For the next two weeks there will be four prizes instead of two for the same kind of competition.

Last night at the Recreation Alleys the ladies started to bowl for the silver tea cup that the management is putting up and the following are the players and scores:

Miss Whalen 670; Miss V. Bland 538; Mrs. C. Lee 537, Miss Lynch 487, Miss M. Goyer 486, Mrs. Salisbury 410. When all the entries have played in this competition the ten highest bowlers will play off for the prize.

Only one league game was played at the Recreation Alleys last night, the Pepsyes winning all four points from the Rinky Dinks in the ladies senior league. The first two games were very close the Pepsies winning the first one by one pin and the second by 1 pin. Mrs. Bryklew and Miss Ford were the highest bowlers for their teams.

RINKY DINKS—Miss Ford 485;

FAR-SIGHT IN CHILDREN

—Is very likely to be overlooked. Nothing but a careful examination can detect this error in children. A far sighted person sees well, maybe too well, in the distance, and a far-sighted child may be able to read perfectly, but the strain in doing so is often excessive. To overcome this strain glasses are needed. This is a duty that I render with satisfaction almost every day.

AT GRIFFIN'S

A good house greeted the opening presentation of Griffin's Theatre of Colleen Moore's latest screen success "Irene", and perhaps all were agreed that this is Colleen's big picture this season.

Winter with its ice and snow, with its sleighs carrying warmly wrapped maidens, and with snowballs flying—and with dozens of huge archlights playing on the scene, and, from a grand marble staircase, decorated with imposing statuary, the girls appear wearing the garments depicting the four seasons of the years.

A good picture that should not be missed by local theatregoers.

FREEZING AIR BAD FOR BALL MANY CLUBS IDLE

Giants However Got Lead In Race By Beating Shivering Bostons

At New York.—The Giants took another ball game away from the Boston Braves by an 8 to 3 score. When the game was over about 1,000 spectators had survived the cold and hobbled home to get revived. The valuable hand of the New York players were frost-nipped, which was the main reason that three errors were chalked against them. The Braves were so thoroughly frozen that they did not get near enough to the ball to make errors.

Bill Ryan, who pitched for the Braves, did the most suffering. Both the cold and the New York bats got him and got him good. After he had been slammed for four hits and as many runs in the sixth inning, he was hurried to the steam room and Hearn pitched the last two innings without giving the Giants a hit. Zeke Barnes pitched the whole game for the Giants, and had an invitation in hand all the way. The Braves did not get a run off him until the sixth, when Burns clicked a double to left and scored on Tyson's single. By this time the Giants were out in front with four runs.

FIVE HITS OFF McGRAW

At Philadelphia.—Working only five hits, Bob McGraw outpointed Wayland Dean in a slab duel, the Brooklyn Robins nosing out the Phillies by 4-2. Dean's wildness in scoring all their runs.

CARL MAYS BEAT PIRATES

At Cincinnati.—Carl Mays held the Pirates to four hits and the Reds took the third game of the series from Pittsburgh 3-1. Kerner allowed seven hits.

CARDINALS' SECOND LOSS

At St. Louis.—The Chicago Cubs defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 6-4 in a thrilling fourteen-inning contest bringing the second defeat for the Cardinals this season out of seven starts.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

At Boston, Mass.—The Red Sox and Athletics divided the Patriots Day twin bill. While Lefty Grove held the Sox to three scattered hits, his teammates thumped Wingfield for seven safeties and took the morning encounter by a score of 3-1. In the afternoon the home team upset the Mack men 2 to 1. The second game was featured by anemic fielding on the part of the Hub outfit.

FIVE HITS OFF GASTON

At Detroit.—St. Louis finally broke the spell and won a full game when, in freezing weather, Gaston pitched the Browns to a 4-1 victory over Detroit. Three errors by Warner and a triple by Lamotte were factors in the game.

CLEVELAND WINNERS

At Chicago.—The Cleveland Indians drove Blankenship off the mound in the first inning and acquired a substantial lead from then Chicago 5 to 1. The White Sox were unable to solve Smith's delivery until the seventh when they bombed him to score one and save themselves from a shutout.

Here and There

BAILIEBORO

While W. Barnard was pruning the apple trees in his fruit orchard on Wednesday, he pulled a limb which he sawed off a tree over a pile of leaves, and to his surprise unearthed underneath the leaves almost a bushel of Northern Spy apples that had fallen from the tree last fall before the frosts, and had been covered with leaves from the tree before the apples had become frozen. On eating the apples, it was found that they were quite firm, and had apparently retained even a better flavor than the Northern Spy apples that had been safely stored away in the cellar.

Historic Canada and New England Drawn Together

Chateau de Ramezay, former residence of French Governor-Generals of Canada, now a Museum.

In Boston is the cradle of American history, Montreal and Quebec are no less that of Canada's. Strong-holds of the ancient French Regime, they were the headquarters of the gallant soldiers of France in their battles against the British, and later the descendants of these same warriors took their place side by side with the British in the American Revolutionary war. From time to time, too, these warlike soldiers found their way up into Canada and there was an interchange of hard knocks and that was the best basis for the mutual respect and friendship that has grown up between the people of the Eastern States and Eastern Canada. Montreal terms with historical interest, reminiscent of the days of Indian warfare and the gallant struggles of a few settlers. With its wonderful location on the shores of the St. Lawrence, at the base of the beautifully wooded Mount Royal, and its delightful surroundings the ancient French town serves to the tourist scenery thescelled in few cities. The rapid development of travel between these neighboring countries has necessitated greater facilities and the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Boston and Maine have come to an agreement whereby two fast trains will daily ply between Boston and Montreal with connections at the latter point with trains for Quebec. The service goes into effect on April 26.

The night train is called "The Red-Wing," after the celebrated black-bird, familiar to both New England and residents of the Province of Quebec, as the herald of spring. The name is well-chosen because for the first time Boston and Montreal and Canadian Pacific cars will daily flash through the New England States.

The north bound "Red Wing" will leave Boston at 10.15 (11.15 Daylight Saving time), and will arrive in Montreal at 7.30 the following morning. The saving of time on this train over the old schedule is two hours and twenty minutes.

On its trip from Montreal to Boston there is a stop of one hour, the train leaving at 8.45 p.m. and arriving at 7.10 the next morning. For those who wish to enjoy the beautiful scenery of the New England States there will be the day train the "Alouette", in English the Lark. This train will leave Boston at 8 a.m. arriving in Montreal at 7 p.m.; on the south bound trip it will leave Montreal at 9 a.m., and reach Boston at 8 p.m. the same day.

LOCAL CHILDREN WELL PROTECTED AS TO HEALTH

School Nurse Sinclair's Report Shows Progress with Needy Cases

Definite progress in promoting health of children in the schools—milk clinics, weight-gaining, compulsory tooth cleanings,—are interesting, by deals with in a report submitted to the Board of Education by Miss Sinclair, school nurse, in which she says:

"The attendance in our schools kept up well through the first half of March—during the last half, many absences were caused by colds and by the scattered cases of measles in K.O.S.

During the month 1581 inspections were made, and 29 individual examinations, with 16 notices to parents of defects found. Two children secured glasses, five were operated on for tonsils, 64 home visits were made.

Six mornings were spent in dental clinics, at which 66 children received treatment.

Through the interest of the School Health Committee, we are able to report progress in three matters.

First, the offering for sale in the schools of a tooth-brush specially prepared for school children at the very moderate price of 5c. This brush is endorsed by the Department of Education. The fact that fourteen dozen were sold here in the first two weeks shows how this offer is appreciated.

Second, the procuring of scales for K.O.S. similar to those in the three other schools—thus giving to the children in this school the same chance the other schools have for detecting and helping under-weight children.

Third, the forming of a milk clinic in Q.A.S. Through the efforts of the chairman of the Health Committee funds were secured from the Order of the Eastern Star, the W.C.T.U. and several interested friends. The Junior Red Cross in the Senior Room of Q.A.S. also contributed five dollars. A pint of milk was given daily to eighteen such children as were most below normal weight. Most satisfactory gains were shown. At the close of the first two weeks' clinic, sixteen of these children showed an average gain of one pound each—one child gaining 2¼ lbs. (the average gain for a child of this age is from 4 to 6 ozs. per month). The daily carrying on of this clinic has been possible only through the interest and effort of the principal of Q.A.S. Sufficient funds are on hand to carry on into the month of April.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT THE BELLE

Evelyn Brent, star of F. B. O.'s famous crook melodramas, comes to the Belle heatre for a 2 day engagement tomorrow in a type of picture which departs radically from the roles which she has played recently. "Lady Robinhood" is heralded as the finest bit of dramatic acting Miss Brent has ever done, and the story give her the picture star role of a sort of Spanish one of Arc; the temperamental and firy little cedar of a band of brave "Carbonari" who have revolted against unjust bonds rule of a official.

The bounding Dick Talmadge, who recently broke his neck doing one of his neck doing one of his spectacular stunts and whose thought seems to be that he is sorry he has but one neck to give the movies, appears in the latest F. B. O. production, "The Fighting Demon," at the Belle Theatre to-morrow when the picture starts at 1:30, 7:00 and 9:00. Supported by an excellent cast and featured in a story of more than ordinary merit, Mr.

A Bird's-Eye View of the Mode Reveals Printed Frocks

Modern prints make it easy to form and a highly decorative child with very little strain on the needle. ◻

Tan printed frock has all the effect of the hand-scalloped, hand-embroidered French dress, with the work limited to the sewing of four short seams and finishing the neck and armhole. Any Lazy Susan of a mother could make it in a morning, with the bloomers to boot, read a novel and attend to her housekeeping. These robes are printed in charming colors on light-weight linen and the bloomers repeat the scallop and cherries of the print. Bordered prints can be used in the same effortless manner and checked gingham scalloped and bound with white or color makes an adorable frock.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"He is not conscious now?" asked the marchioness.

"No, my lady," replied the nurse. "Not now. I think he was a little while ago, for he looked at me as he said for you and Miss Grahame."

"You see," whispered the marchioness.

Constance knelt down beside the bed still holding the tiny hot hand.

"You will get some rest now Miss Grahame his nurse, my lady?" said the nurse respectfully.

"Yes," urged Constance.

"I will go and lie down for a little while presently," said the marchioness.

The door opened as she spoke, and the marquis entered. He had a silver it his hand upon which was some wine, and he poured out a glass.

"She has had nothing since we started mother," he said, quietly, as he gave the wine to Constance.

He took Arol's other hand and held it.

"Is he better or worse?" he asked, anxiously.

"I think he is the same my lord," replied the nurse. "Dr. Griffin will be here again early in the morning; he has only just gone."

They stood silently watching the little sufferer for some minutes, and presently he began to toss to and fro, and to talk in a low, rambling murmur. Then he stopped suddenly, and, opening his eyes looked round vacantly, but seemed to recognize no one except Arol.

"Grandma!" he said, feebly," has she come—Miss Grahame?" Constance bent and kissed him, and laid her face beside his on the pillow.

"Yes, I am here, Arol, dear," she whispered.

He uttered a weak little cry of joy, and turning put his parched lips to her cheek.

"I am so glad!" he murmured. "You you won't go away again?"

"No, dear," responded Constance, as most inaudibly.

"No, say with me and I shall get better," she said, plaintively."—"I'm always missing you when I wake. Oh, I feel so tired, Miss Grahame, dear! I think I have been very ill!"

"You must call me Constance,"she murmured.

A loving smile flickered over his face "May I? How kind you are to me It's such a beautiful name. Constance

He was silent for a moment, then he turned his heavy eyes on the marquis. "Oh, I say, that's you, father! I'm so glad she has come. "You won't let her go again, will you?"

"No, Arol," said the marquis, gently and he stroked the head that clung to his convulsively. "We've got her now, and we'll keep her ell! Come away mother; and leave them alone."

"Hewill get better now that he has received to rest after her."

"Leave them alone, please God!" murmured the old lady.

She paused a moment as she was leaving the room, and looked toward the bed.

"How beautiful they both look!" she whispered to him.

He looked at the two faces lying close together, and his lips twitched.

"Yes," he assented, almost harshly. "Come away."

"I shall remain with him nurse," said Constance when they had gone. "You ady go and rest. Put the medicine close at hand, and tell me anything I ought to know."

She spoke so firmly that the nurse could not very well refuse to obey and Constance was left alone.

Arol lay motionless now, his eyes fixed upon her dreamily, his cheek pressed to hers; and presently the tight grasp of his hand relaxed, and he fell into the blissful sleep which is all the rest fever allows.

Your true woman is never happier, never so certainly at her best, as when she is nursing those she loves and a feeling of peace and rest fell upon Constance but it was doomed to a speedy interruption.

The door opened slowly, and looking up, she saw Lady Ruth enter.

Constance took no notice, but her heart began to beat and her face grew pale.

Lady Ruth stole up to the bed, and looked down at them with a very differ ent expression to that which the march ioness' face had worn.

"So you have come back!" she said in a whisper that was almost a hiss.

Constance made no reply, did not even look at her.

"You have come back—in triumph as you think. It will be only short-lived, Miss Grahame, be sure of that.

She had raised her voice slightly above the whisper, and Constance looking up, glanced at Arol warningly.

"Oh, not here!" she murmured.

Lady Ruth sneered.

"You play the part of the devoted nurse well," she said. "Confine yourself to that, if you please, while you remain here. It will not be for long.

Constance kept her lips tightly closed and her eyes reverted and Lady Ruth, with a look of mingled hate and jealousy, stole out again.

The hours passed, and the dawn came Arol still lay in the half sleep. Now and again he moved restlessly but Constance soothed him by laying her cool lips or a touch of her hand and a loving murmur, and he always fell off again.

As the sun rose, and caught its way through the curtains of the darkened room she heard faintly the sound of wheels. It was the doctor's brougham, and he entered the room presently with the marchioness and the nurse.

"This is Miss Grahame," said the marchioness.

He bowed.

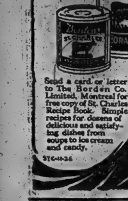

"The young lady he has been asking for?" he said, as he took her and looked at him.

They waited the verdict anxiously.

"He is better," he said. "Yes, certainly there is an improvement," as he felt the child's pulse. "Shall we shave off Uncle Sam's beard Grahame?"

Constance's heart throbbed will great trade and pleasure.

STRATFORD WOMAN

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Stratford, Ontario. — "After my first baby was born I started to work on the tenth day and did a big washing on the twelfth day. Being so young (I was married at 19) I did not know what was the matter, so let it go until I was all run-down, weak and nervous, and had a bad displacement. For nearly two years I could not sleep and I would always complain of having 'not a head-ache, but a brain-ache.' My mother is taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during the change of Life and she recommended it to me. After taking two bottles I began to get a little sleep and to feel better and have never left off since then, except for three weeks months. I can safely say I have taken thirty bottles since my second baby was born. I think it makes child-birth easier as I had terrible pains with my first baby children and very few with my fourth and I was so much stronger. I am now able to do my work alone, but I am still taking the Vegetable Compound as I am nursing baby."—Mrs. Owen Farris, 40 Cherry Street, Stratford, Ontario.

If you are suffering from any weakness which causes such symptoms as pains in the side and back, and nervous feelings, give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial now. C

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings lasting relief from constipation

Don't submit to the terrible ironies of constipation. Read Mr. Davidson's message of cheer: "Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has now been a regular part of my breakfast menu for about a month and, strange as it may seem, this is the first relief I have had. Before that, I, like many, was a martyr to constipation for as long as I can remember. I suffered from frequent headaches as a result of it. My complexion was spoiled by spots and pimples. Constipation is a far more serious matter than forty harrowing diseases. Unpleasant breath, headaches, bad complexion, spots before the eyes—are forerunners of worse to follow! Counter constipation with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Serve it in 100% bran. Money back if it fails.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN comes ready to eat. Delicious with milk or cream, with fruit, or in cooking. Made in London, Canada. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere.

FIRE COMES TO WIPE OUT SCENE OF MANY DEATHS

Theory is That Five Were Killed by an Insane Sixth

London—Mystery surrounds the circumstances of the deaths of six persons at Le Manchs, an old Georgian mansion standing in its own grounds near Malahide, nine miles from Dublin, the victims being Joseph McDonnell, Peter McDonnell, Annie McDonnell, Alice McDonnell, Mary Magowan, and James Clarke. The McDonnells were brothers and sisters, and the other two persons were their servants. It is thought that five may have been murdered by the sixth. Elderly folk, the McDonnells formerly lived at Ballypar, and purchased Le Manche about six years ago. They were reputed to be eccentric.

TRAGIC DISCOVERY

At 8.30 in the morning, Henry McCabe, a gardener, who lives in the vicinity noticed the mansion was on fire. Going to the back he found that a wicket gate and the kitchen door, which usually were locked, were wide open.

The flames made it impossible for him to enter the house. He ran to Malahide for assistance and returned with a section of the Civic Guard, who on looking through a basement window saw Clarke lying on the floor. Efforts from bars on the window were smashed with sledge hammers. Clarke was carried outside and—it was found that his skull had been battered in with some blunt instrument. Bruises on his arms and body indicated that he had made a desperate fight for his life.

NAKED BODY FOUND

In the dining room the guards found the naked body of Peter McDonnell lying face downwards on the floor. There were wounds on the head, and there can be little doubt that he was killed in the same way as Clarke was. The body of Joseph McDonnell was discovered in his bedroom which had been badly damaged by fire. A bed in the room had collapsed, and the dead man lay on the floor with his legs dangling through the hole through which flames were leaping. Charred almost beyond recognition, the bodies of the three women were found huddled together in a bedroom.

The Dublin Fire Brigade arrived at 9 o'clock, and after hours of hard work extinguished the flames, but not before the roof had collapsed. Apparently the floors had been saturated with paraffin or petrol, and a fires had been started in nearly every room.

The fact that grey hairs were found clutched in Clarke's hands suggests that a death struggle occurred between them. Police in the police theory is that some time during the night Peter McDonnell went mad and that he murdered the other occupants of the house with a poker which was found lying near him, as if it had fallen from his grasp.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU WASH YOUR CHILD'S HAIR WITH

If you want to keep your children's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can not possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name, Watkins on the package.

BUDGET DEBATE OPENS WITH A HOT ATTACK ON TARIFF

C.N.R. DEFICIT CUT LAST YEAR BY $13,405,654

Report Tabled in Commons Shows Operating Surplus $15,020,163

Ottawa, April 21.—"Should substantial reductions in freight rates be essential for the wellbeing and development of any section of the Dominion," declares Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, in the Canadian National annual report tabled in the House by the minister of railways this afternoon, "relief should take the form of a Government subsidy without disturbance of a reasonable tariff fabric."

The report shows that last year the operating surplus of the Canadian National for 1925 was $15,020,163 ahead of the previous year. Net deficit after meeting all fixed and other charges was $41,444,764 or $13,405,654 less than the previous year. "It is interesting to note," says Sir Henry, "that the net operating earnings were approximately equal to eighty per cent of the interest payable on the bonds funded debt as compared with about 45 per cent in 1924."

A further encouraging note is struck in the report by an item under the head ing of "finance" which reads: "In the appropriation act for 1925 the sum of $50,000,000 was voted for Canadian National purposes during the (Dominion) fiscal year ending March 31, 1925. It has only been necessary to obtain $10,- 000,000 of this amount from the Government. Payment of the balance has not been required partly because of increased revenues due to larger gross and net earnings than were expected, and partly as a result of substantial reductions in the purchase of maintenance supplies, and also partly by the use of working capital."

In summing up the earning position of the company in 1925, Sir Henry Thornton while admitting that material progress has been made in the direction of producing operating results which will relieve the Government with the people of Canada from further financial burdens, again sounds a warning that a continuance of increased net operating earnings cannot be made in the face of a continuance of reduction in railway rails.

CONSERVATIVE AMENDMENT PUNCTURES LIBERAL POLICIES

Regret That Promises in Election Campaign and in Throne Speech Are Not Carried Out With Respect to Tariff Changes—Budget Debate Started

Ottawa, April 21.—Robert Forke, Progressive leader, placed his benediction on the budget in the House of Commons. He had no complaint to make concerning it. The reduction in the tariff on automobiles particularly pleased him, as he believed the motor car industry could do with sufficient protection, and he thought the lowering of the price of cars was in the general interest. He commended the suggestion of a "blow to the industry" with the effects of a hailstorm which would wipe out a section of farm for the farmer.

SATISFIED

Mr. Forke was even satisfied with the decision announced in the preliminaries in Ottawa had convinced him that the head of a family should have at least four thousand dollars free of taxation. He believed in the showing of the National Railways, predicting that in a few years they would be out of their embarrassment. On the Progressive leader declined the proffer of the Conservative whip that he was funded on a farmer, with increased protection. He did not want it. Because of the surplus production of farm products in Canada and not on the last three years, the injury from United States competition, and he had a sympathetic feeling for the farmers. He feared that protection on butter, for example, would have the effect of keeping it out of the country, and might discourage the use of substitutes.

MR. DE MANION

The budget was examined in a less favorable light by Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative, of Fort William. He refused to admit that the country had reason for gratitude to the Government and regarded certain sections of the new fiscal legislation as an open bid to voters. He believed that the reduction in the automobile tariff would have the effect of increasing the exodus to the United States. Dr. Manion welcomed the improvement in the financial condition of the country and the National Railways, but he attributed this to the bounteousness of Providence rather than to able administration on the part of the Government. The reason the Minister of Finance had been able to show a balance in the budget and the National Railways to better their condition was that the general production in 1925 had been $365,000,000 greater than the previous year, and the mineral production $16,000,000 more. He held that the reductions in taxation could have been extended had the Government made any effort to curtail expenditure. It was spending more year by year and the outlay for the present year would be greater than that for the last.

ALL FOR RICH

Dr. Manion could find little advantage for the poor man in the budget. "Whatever advantages there are in this budget are for the rich, or at least for the well-to-do." He held that the man gets his income tax cut, he gets his high-priced car cheaper and he even gets his auguste purchases for his cocktail is while the Government's hope he will drink their health. The only relief the or-

HOPE OF MILDER DAYS RAISED BY WEATHER MAN

The weather is becoming warmer to the delight of all Citizens. The temperature climbed from 49 yesterday to 58 at 10.30 this morning with prospects of still being higher.

Minimum temperature was 21 degrees above zero yesterday and 26 once did the freezing point reach between sunrise and sunset. This is somewhat of a record as completely freezy days in the last lap of April are rare. In the observatory records back to 1840 show only two April days, that the 19th of the month that have a maximum below yesterday's of 21. In 1919, on the 25th of April, the maximum temperature was 31, and on April 30th, 1926, the highest was 29. Only two days of the month have been above normal.

The "first real warm" out West with the thermometer 80 degrees at Winnipeg, has raised the hopes of people that it will get more summery here.

TUMMON SEES RY. BOARD AS TO CHANGE OF TRAINS

MR. MIKEL WRITES TO SUPPORT PLAN TO JOIN OSHAWA PROTEST

To the Editor of the Intelligencer:—

"Should Belleville citizens join in the deputation to meet the Government next Friday morning to oppose the reduction in tariff" (Special train leaves Toronto Thursday night 10.40). "Yes, certainly. This is an attack on the principle of protecting Canadian industry. Belleville is paying $2,000 a year for an Industrial Commissioner, hoping up a Chamber of Commerce. It is a waste of time and money if the Government proposes to destroy the industries of the country at the demand of a little group of Progressives.

The Progressive in the West seem to care little for Canada. They have from the Hudson Bay Company when it was a wilderness, surveyed it into farms, built railways and canals to bring the Progressives to their homes and carry their produce to market, put down rebel lion and erected provinces at the cost of hundreds of millions of dollars, and now this group of so called Progressives, believing they have the Government by the throat, propose to wreck the industrial condition of the East and send their money to the United States to buy goods there, and thereby keep U. S. workmen employed while Canadian workmen are unemployed or driven to the U.S."

"High prices mean high wages and good times. There is no advantage in low prices and low wages, if the people haven't the money to buy. If they do not get work they cannot earn money. When a man has the courage and ability to embark in manufacture he expects to make money because he has many risks to run. Many do not succeed. When he makes money, he does not bury it in the ground. He spends it or starts other enterprises. Money is thereby put into circulation and every dollar gets a piece of it. If there is no profit in industry, people will not go into it. They will leave their money in the Banks or in Government bonds or similar safe securities instead of circulating it among the people through the industries. It is illogical for the Government to spend money bringing out immigrants and then adopt a policy of closing the industries and throwing thousands of native Canadians out of work. How are we to keep Canadian railways operating and pay railway employees with Canadian industries shutting down? In other places Liberals as well as Conservatives are going to Ottawa to protest. Is Belleville supporting protection the Government's position will be safe because they will be sure of the support of the Conservative members who form the largest group in the House."

Place Net to Retain Bodies But Are They Still in Harbor?

No trace has yet been discovered of the bodies of the lads Bernard Brown and Eugene Ellsworth, who on Saturday, December 19th last, went to their death by drowning in the harbor here. The ice in the harbor by yet intact and at the south end of Victoria Park a net has been placed across the harbor for the purpose of retaining the bodies if they are still within the harbor. The concensus of opinion is that the little bodies have been carried out into the bay which at the present time is clear from the bay bridge to Massassaga Park.

STATEMENT SAYS CANADIAN TARIFF LOWEST IN WORLD

Every Country Making Motor Cars Gives Greater Protection Than Canada

ENGLAND ADDS FEE

France Has Duty of 45 Per Cent—Australia Protects Body Industry

Oshawa, April 21.—That Canada, under the new tariff announced last Thursday, now has the distinction of having the lowest tariff on motor cars of any country in the world manufacturing same, was the definite statement made by Mr. R. S. McLaughlin, President of General Motors pf Canada Limited, today.

Asked for information in support of this statement, Mr. McLaughlin submitted the following other country that has engaged in the manufacture of motor cars provides a greater measure of protection to the industry than is provided for in the new Canadian budget.

ENGLAND

"For example," Mr. McLaughlin said, "in England, the duty on imported cars is 33 1-3 per cent. on landed cost. This means that inland freight, packing, ocean freight, insurance, etc., is added to the invoice price, and duty paid on the whole sum, meaning an actual protection to the British manufacturer of at least 40 per cent. To Canada, England grants a preference of one-third from the above. This formidable duty against foreign cars, while large and important, stabs into insignificance when the real protection which the British manufacturer enjoys, in the way of a license tax to operate the car of all per horse power, is taken into consideration, which means that to drive a Chevrolet car in England, a license tax of £23, or roughly $110 per year has to be paid; a Ford £24, or $116.64.

It is interesting to note that with the preferential tariff given to Great Britain by Canada, the duty on imported cars is now only 12½ per cent, whereas the Canadian made car going into Britain had to pay a duty of 33 1-3 per cent. less one third preference, on the landed cost.

BIRKENHEAD JOKE COST A FORTUNE NEWSPAPERS SAY

London, April 21.—Lord Birkenhead, Secretary for India, is credited by the English newspapers with having made the most expensive joke in history.

Birkenhead was once a great friend of Sir Robert Houston, a wealthy ship owner who died recently at his home on the Island of Jersey, and Sir Robert was said to have made a will leaving the bulk of his fortune, estimated as high as $7,- 000,000 to Birkenhead.

The Houston will, which was protested in Jersey yesterday, however, makes the widow the chief beneficiary and the papers recall Birkenheads joke. When serving as a member of the House of Commons Sir Robert was one of his advanced age always kept his beard a glorious blackish-blue color. One day he made an Anti-Conscription speech which displeased Lord Birkenhead who in private conversation referred to him as "the only genuine dyed hard."

It was this play on the term "Die Hard" which is supplied to Conservative newspapers believes, that kept Birkenhead from sharing large ly in the Houston fortune.

EAST SIDE GIRL CAUSE VENDETTA OF RIVAL GUNMEN

Feud in New York Has Now Taken Toll of 11 Lives

New York, April 21.—A girl of the lower east side transferred her smiles from one gangster to another three years ago, and by so doing caused the flaring up of a bitter feud between two rival gangs of gunmen that has now taken toll of eleven lives.

May Godfrey, known as "Maxe the Lipstick," was the eleventh victim in the warfare between the "Kid Dropper" and the "Little Augie" gangs, a man called him by telephone early yesterday. As he was going to the telephone, in the hallway outside his restaurant on Orchard street, two gunmen all ready opened the door from the street. They fired two shots and ten bullets pierced Goldberg's brain. The gunmen escaped, and the only clue the police had to the crime was the woman's telephone call and the number of the taxicab in which they believed the gunmen escaped.

EVEN SCORE?

Goldberg was a member of the "Little Augie" gang, according to police. His partner, Meyer Albert, also a member of the "Little Augie" gang, was killed in Attorney street last year.

The rival gangs have maintained an almost even score in the notchings on their guns since the warfare started.

TOUCH OF IRON?

There was irony in Goldberg's slaying. Only last Friday he obtained a court decree directing the withdrawal of a policeman who had been stationed in his restaurant to prevent gambling. Detectives doubted whether he would have been killed had a policeman been in the place.

The warfare between the two gangs started in 1923, when Louis Schwartz man, known as the "Midget," and a member of the "Little Augie" gang, was shot down one evening as he was sitting on the doorstep of his home on Rivington street. Beside him was Edna Churgin, who had transferred her affections to him from Louis Kaplan, "the Kid Dropper."

Thereafter the feud was waged in the lower east side streets and so far uptown as East 23rd street.

LAKE NAVIGATION SHORTLY TO OPEN NEAR KINGSTON

Will Be Latest Opening for Many Years—Tugs Reached Cape Vincent

Kingston, April, 21. — Present plans for opening up navigation for this season indicate that today will see the first of the movements heading towards the "big water," for it is planned that, on this day the Wolfe Islander will make a start for the Island shore, and it is possible that the Wahcondah, the Bruling and the Rahne will start out today. The latter three have completed their inspections and are all ready for the start.

If the Wolfe Islander is able to break her way through, and the indications are that she, will, it will mean the opening of the harbor after being closed for 109 days. This does not establish a record, for it was closed for 112 days in 1917-18, and for 119 days in 1904-05, and it will mean that this year will mark the latest date at which the harbor has been opened for many years.

TUGS REACHED THE CAPE

Tuesday afternoon the tugs J. R. Russell and Glide passed down on the south side of Wolfe Island, having in tow the steamer Kenora, which was being taken from Hamilton to Ogdensburg for repairs. A message from Cape Vincent this morning announced that the tugs reached Cape Vincent safely and passed on east to near Carleton Island, where they encountered heavy ice and were obliged to bring their tow back to the Cape.

The A. D. MacTier of the Hall Line, which wintered at Ogdensburg was under orders on Friday to start for Sandusky, Ohio, to load coal for the "Burg, but, as the Russell and the Glide were, apparently, unable to make their way into Ogdensburg yesterday, it is believed locally that the MacTier was not able to get out of there on Saturday.

VOLCANO EMITS ANOTHER STREAM OF MOLTEN ROCK

Second Outbreak in the Crater of Mauna Loa—Villagers Flee

Kona, Hawaii, April 21.—A second outbreak from the crater of Mauna Loa, the largest active volcano in the world, located on the island of Hawaii, sent down a new stream of glowing lava slowly down the mountain slope to the sea.

The lava, which started flowing with the first eruption from the crater, already has wiped out the native village of Hoopulap. The river of running rock, glowing an angry red beneath its dark crust, came down the mountain side and overran the village. Then it streamed onward into the sea. When it struck the water a terrific roar went up and clouds of steam arose from the quarter-mile wide point of contact like gigantic geysers.

Almost at the same time the stream from the first outbreak was making its contact with the sea, the intensity of the activity increased in the main crater, which towers more than 10,000 feet into the clouds. The side of the mountain rises abruptly from the mid-Pacific.

INHABITANTS ESCAPE

New craters, smaller than the "mother crater," broke out at points nearby, and the mountain and the island near it were shaken with earth tremors.

No loss of life occurred in the destruction of Hoopulap, which was a rude native village, composed chiefly of small huts. Knowing their beliefs set in the pain of the eruption morning 5cm flow, the inhabitants had fled when the stream started its course to the sea.

RANCHES ENDANGERED

Hundreds of people sought points of vantage from which to watch the eruption which is said to be one of the most spectacular in recent history of Hawaii's volcanoes.

The flow of the "fire stream" from the renewed outbreak is forcing its way into the "Kau" region and gaining momentum as it goes. Several ranches and homesteads in its path were in danger. It was expected to pass close to the ville of Wai Ohinu and then tumble into the sea, providing another great spectacle.

$50,000 DONATED BY QUEEN'S GRAD.

Amount Subscribed by Anonymous Donor at Luncheon in Toronto

Kingston, April 21.—At a luncheon of Queen's graduates held in Toronto the sum of $50,000 was donated to the Queen's University Endowment Fund by a graduate present who would not consent to his name being published. The University Campaign Headquarters were notified to this effect by telegram this afternoon.

A dispatch from Toronto relative to this luncheon reads as follows: Toronto April 19.—Toronto men and women graduates and former students of Queen's University met at the King Edward Hotel at luncheon to-day and rallied their forces preparatory to their effort commencing next week to obtain $600,000, their quota of $2,500,000 of the additional endowment required by the University in order to carry on.

"We are out to give Queen's a showing that will last her for one generation at least," were the words of Principal R. Bruce Taylor, echoed at the meeting to-day at which were present members of the Executive and General Campaign Committee of Queen's Alumni in the Toronto district. There are six hundred graduates and former students of Queen's in and about Toronto, it is said.

15 83 YEARS OLD

On Saturday Mrs. Arabella Worden, second concession of Elizabethtown, received the hearty congratulations of many friends on attaining her 83rd birthday. She was born April 17th, 1843, at Greenwood Hill, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ira Billings, pioneers of that part of Ontario and descendants of U. E. Loyalists, in the same home where she resides still, and despite the fact of being an octogenarian retains all her faculties in no small degree as when many years younger. On the day of her birth there was good crossing on the ice of the St. Lawrence. An uncle of Mrs. Worden, the late Mott Billings, walked from Brockville to Morristown that day.

BELIEVE OFFICER FROM STRATFORD FOUND AIRMEN

Same Name as That of Lt. Frank Coghill of Ontario City

The Stratford Herald-Beacon says:—

John Bull never sleeps. His eagle eye carefully watches over land and sea, scanning even the sandy wastes of far off Egypt.

On Saturday this newspaper printed a dispatch from Cairo, Egypt, the land of King Tut, stating that the missing Spanish-Moorish fliers, Captain Ferrera and his mechanician, Cabo were found by Flying Officer Coghill of the British Air Force.

This in itself is noteworthy and a tribute to the vigilance of John Bull, but extraordinary interest is added when it is stated that Flying Officer Coghill is none other than a well-known Stratford boy. Frank Coghill, brother of J. D. Coghill and the Misses Marjorie and Dorothy Coghill of this city.

ON SPECIAL SERVICE

This statement may stand verification, but there is every reason to believe that the Spanish airmen owe their lives to the Stratford boy. During the war Flying Officer Coghill went overseas with the first battalion of infantry from Canada. Later he transferred to the Air Force and following the cessation of hostilities returned to Canada and became attached to the instructors' staff of the Air Force at Camp Borden. In January of this year he left for England to engage in some special work. Shortly after his arrival there he wrote to his brother, Jay, in Stratford, and remarked that it might be some time before he would write again as he was going away on some special undertaking. He also mentioned in his letter that so far as he knew he was the only person by the name of Coghill in the service and these facts coupled together lead to the belief that the hero of the dark wastes of Africa is Stratford's own Frank Coghill.

CANADIAN TARIFF LOWEST IN WORLD

FRANCE

The rate of duty, collected on all foreign cars, imported into France is 45 per cent. on the landed cost, which includes boxing charges, inland freight, ocean freight, insurance, etc. The French motor car industry is cared for the oldest in existence.

GERMANY

The duty on all imported cars in Germany is 180 marks per 100 kilogrammes. Being interpreted, on a car costing $1,200 or less this figures up to 74 per cent.

ITALY

An ad valorem duty of 35 per cent. and an additional duty of 116 lire per 100 kilograms is imposed by Italy which, being interpreted, means an additional 43 per cent. to be added to the ad valorem or a total of 78 per cent.

UNITED STATES

In the United States an equivalent rate to the exporting country, with a minimum of 30 per cent. and a maximum of 50 per cent. is provided for.

CANADA

The new Canadian tariff shows an ad valorem duty of 20 per cent. on cars costing under $1,200; 27½ per cent. on cars costing over $1,200.

"The above are the chief motor manufacturing countries," said Mr. McLaughlin.

"What about Australia and New Zealand?"

AUSTRALIA

"Australia," he said, "imposes a duty of 12½ per cent. on all foreign chassis, but grants to Canada a preference of 5 per cent. on the basis of the late Tariff. It is practically impossible however, to ship a complete car to Australia, because if a complete body is shipped, a duty of £55, or $267.30 is collected, while on the labor and expense of packing and the inland freight a duty of 10 per cent. is collected. On, for instance, a Chevrolet car, the rate of duty on a completely finished car is, therefore, 15 per cent., after considering the 5 per cent. Intermediate Tariff."

NEW ZEALAND

"New Zealand charges duty on the invoice price of a car, 26 per cent. On packing, labor, inland freight, etc., 16 per cent. On the body £14, or $71.50. A 5 per cent. preferential is allowed Canadian manufacturers when fifty per cent. of the car is Canadian material and labor.

The above figures tell their own story.

Mr. McLaughlin was asked, why, if Canadian manufacturers can compete with foreign manufacturers in the open markets of the world, they can not sell a car at a much lower price in Canada.

"The answer to this is very simple," he replied, "and lies altogether in the fact that on any cars exported from Canada there is a Customs drawback of 99 per cent. of all the duty paid on imported parts used in the manufacture of that car. Not only that, but the 5 per cent. Sales Tax, which the Canadian public have to pay on all cars sold in Canada, and the 5 per cent. excise tax, which we have to collect for the Government on cars selling at less than $1,200, and 10 per cent. on cars selling at over $1,200. Is not collectible on cars exported. This means that we are practically on the same footing as the United States in the foreign field, less some disadvantages, owing to the more limited production in this country."

From the above, it is quite evident that statements to the effect that Canadian made cars were selling in England and Australia for less money than in Canada, cannot be, and are not correct.

BAD YEAR FOR SYRUP

"This a bad year for syrup" Mr. R. B. Hamilton, of Foxboro told The Intelligencer this morning. The weather has had a great deal to do with the situation. Mr. Robert Reid who lives on the Station Road, has had six hundred maples running for several days but has only had his usual amount. Mr. C. H. King's Loan to Canada House Of Handsome Souvenir Noted Mr. Larkin's Acknowledgement

London, Eng., April 21. (By Canadian Press)—In connection with His Majesty King George's permanent loan to the Canadian headquarters in London of the handsome cabinet which contained the address presented to King Edward by the survivors of the war of 1812-14 at Queenston Heights in 1860 when King Edward as the Prince of Wales, was a visitor in the Dominion, the correspondence that passed between the Hon. Sir Derek Keppel, Master of the household, and Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London, and also fuller details of the casket then were contained in the Canadian Press cable are herewith given.

Sir Derek Keppel's letter, which accompanied the casket to Canada House, was as follows:

Buckingham Palace,
3rd March, 1926.

"Dear Mr. Larkin,

"By command of the King I am sending you the case of an Address which was presented to King Edward at Queenston Heights in Upper Canada in the year 1860.

"His Majesty thinks that this would be a very interesting souvenir of His late Majesty to be preserved in Canada House. If you will be kind enough to let me know that this would be appreciated, The King will be very pleased to hand it over on permanent loan to the High Commissioner for the Dominion of Canada in London.

"Believe me to remain,

"Yours sincerely,

"Derek Keppel,

"Master of the Household."

The High Commissioner gratefully accepted the loan in the following terms:

"Dear Sir Derek Keppel,

"On my return from Geneva, I found your letter of the 3rd instant awaiting me, as well as the very interesting souvenir which The King has been so gracious as to offer me on permanent loan to the High Commissioner for the Dominion of Canada in London.

"I need hardly say how much I appreciate The King's kind thought and should assure His Majesty that the Box will receive every care in my own room, where it will be regarded with the greatest interest by Canadian and other visitors calling here, as a memento of the late King Edward.

"Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) "Peter C. Larkin."

Inside of the casket were two contemporary newspaper cuttings, the source of which was not indicated, but obviously they were from Toronto papers. These contained substantially the same narrative, of which the fuller version runs as follows:

"The address in the form of Wales was presented to the survivors of the war of 1812, will be received by His Royal Highness on Tuesday, the 18th instant, at half o'clock a.m. at the Queenston Heights."

"We had, yesterday, an opportunity of seeing the box in which the address of the Heroes is to be inclosed. It was on view in the window of Messrs. J. G. Joseph & Co., silversmiths, King Street, and is really a most beautiful article. It is made of, carved black walnut, and is inlaid with maple, and was executed by Messrs. Jacques and Hay. The silver plaque which represents a shield, surmounted with flags, cannon, and other warlike trophies. In the centre of the shield is the following inscription, beautifully engraved:—

"Address to His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, from the survivors of the war of 1812-13-14. Presented at Queenston Heights, Upper Canada, 1860.' On each side are silver plates, with the crests of the Prince. The key-hole is surmounted by a wreath of roses, shamrock and thistle, in silver, and the key itself, which is also of silver, is a very pretty representation of the Prince's Plume. The whole of the silver mountings were executed by Messrs. J. C. Joseph & Co., a fact which is itself a guarantee for the good taste of the design and the beauty of the workmanship."

The interesting souvenir, embodying so many Royal and Canadian symbols, is a precious addition to the historical treasures of the Canadian Building.

London, April 21.—It was officially announced that a marquessate has been conferred on the Earl of Reading on the completion of his term of office as viceroy and governor-general of India. The honor thus bestowed on the Earl of Reading, who has just returned home from India, is a tribute not only to his remarkable services he rendered as viceroy during five very difficult years, but also to the Indian Empire, which, under his guidance, surmounted some of the most serious obstacles to its richer and broader development. The Earl and Countess of Reading arrived at Windsor Castle where the King is in residence, and the Earl was received in audience by His Majesty.

SAVE THE FORESTS

This is Save-the-Forest week in Canada and the United States. The whole North American continent combines in this effort at the beginning of the Spring season, to concentrate public attention on the duty of protecting the trees from the ravages of fire. The importance of the lumber industry is not sufficiently realized by the average citizen; it ranks as second only to agriculture as a producer of national wealth. Over $450,000,000 annually is produced from the forests; but it is obvious that this rate of production cannot be maintained indefinitely unless effective means are adopted of preventing waste and renewing destroyed growth. Timber demands are enormous, and it becomes a question as to how long the drain can go on. Just what the ordinary citizen can do about it may not seem immediately apparent; but organized public opinion can accomplish very much, and the individual also has it in his or her power to help in a practical and effective way. Fire is the most destructive agent to be completed. Educational campaigns have done much to minimize the loss so far as the larger corporations are concerned, but carelessness on the part of campers is responsible for a great amount of preventible damage. In 1925 nearly two million acres of forest lands were burned, with a total value of $6,646,889. It is not possible to say just how many of the 5,490 forest fires last year were caused by thoughtlessness and lack of proper precaution, but it is certain that this percentage would be found to be high. The railways are no longer the major offenders. In fact, fires started by the sparks from engines are now comparatively rare. The railway companies have efficient fire departments and well-organized fire-fighting brigades and equipment; rights of way are kept clear through wooded areas and no expense is spared to protect the forests.

The Canadian Forestry association is doing a great work, through propaganda, in informing public opinion as to the requirements and spirit of the law as has been and is being done, however, expenditure on protective work amounts to only 25-100 of 1 per cent. of the value of the forests, one-fourth as much as for private property. This shows the need of a much broader grasping what is described as the "forest consciousness" of the nation. Every square mile of timber land provides winter employment for forty men. The forests, too, play a vital part in water power development. The public should take the keenest interest in this important question and get behind the government in all conservation measures. Every individual must be made to feel his or her personal responsibility in the matter.

TAXATION OF DIVIDENDS

An important feature of Mr. Robb's income tax changes is the taxation of income derived from dividends in Canadian companies. Heretofore such income has been exempt. The exemption has been removed. Not only will the companies pay income tax at headquarters, but their shareholders will pay individually according to the amount of their dividends. It looks like double taxation; but it is defended on the plea that a man whose income up to $5000 is derived wholly from his investments in the shares of Canadian companies has contributed nothing whatever to the nation at revenue, while the man whose income from personal earnings is much less has been paying taxes. It is to do away with such an anomaly that the change is made.

But the change will effect only those with comparatively large incomes. Up to $3000, all income from whatever source derived, are now exempt. Above that figure, whatever income comes from dividends is taxable. The net effect of the changes announced last Thursday are rather unpleasant for persons with large incomes. Most persons in receipt of incomes from $10,000 to $100,000 will have to pay more than they have been paying. Over $100,000 there will be a slight reduction on account of a lower rate of taxation. Another feature of the new proposals in the taxation of corporation incomes derived from investments as well as those derived from earnings. Thus if Corporation A invests part of its surplus in the stock of Corporation B, the income from that stock will be taxed. In the first place Corporation B will be taxed on its total income, and its shareholders will also be taxed on their dividends. Then Corporation A will be taxed on the amount of income it receives from its investment in the stock of Corporation B, and finally the shareholders in Corporation A will be taxed on their share of the income so derived. This all sounds like a drastic cultivation of one source of income-tax revenue. It might be regarded as squeezing taxation.

MENACE TO CHRISTIANITY.

Montreal Star:

There is little doubt that the Rev. Dr. Rose voiced the sentiments of a very large number of church-goers when he told the Congregational Christian theology class recently that poor sermons are a menace to Protestant Christianity.

STANDARDIZED DAIRY PRODUCTS

Saskatoon Star:

The Great Britain it is the standardized article that wins in competition. British consumers buy a commodity which they can rely on finding always the same, not only in quality but in appearance. One reason why Danish butter obtained so firm a hold on the Old Country was that it was always possible to recognize a box or a pound of it. Let Canadian butter-makers put up their products in the same uniform style and half their battle for the British market is won.

SENSE OF HUMOR

San Francisco Argonaut:

A. B. Houghton, the American ambassador to Great Britain, is one ma nthat does not share the general American view that the British have no sense of humor. He recently told the story of buying a newspaper from a London newsboy, who charged him the usual price of one penny. "I guess I would have to pay double the price of this paper if I were in America." Mr. Houghton remarked. "Well," said then rebin, "you can pay me double, guv'nor, if it'll make you feel more at 'ome."

OLD "MOORE"

Halifax Herald:

A native of Canada, one of the most familiar of London characters, A. MacDonald (or "Old Moore of Piccadilly Circus" as he was known), is dead in the Old Country, at the age of 80. With long white hair flowing over his shoulders, he attracted more than passing notice from everyone who beheld him. He was a man of many activities, but never learnt the secret of success in any of them. Travellers and celebrities from all over the world stopped to chat with the old man as he stood at his "pitch" near the Pavilion selling pamphlets. MacDonald had been in turn:

Student. Professor.
Artist's model. Philosopher.
Editor. Film actor.
Author. Accountant.
Tramp.

A Scots-Canadian, he had been a university, student in Canada, Germany and France. He went to England and set up in business for himself as a food manufacturer. But business was not in forte and he retired to a solitary room in Hale street, to study the philosophy of life and write voluminous pamphlets.

Stuart Blackton made him father of the gypsies in "The Bohemian Girl."

McDonald claimed to be known by sight to 12,000,000 people. He was an authority on philosophy and physics, and a keen food reformer. "Mellondism"—or the Science of Conduct—was an invention of his, and he claimed to have invented a new system of mathematics without fractions.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES DARVICE

"A child frets more than a grown-up person," he said, in his quiet, profession al voice. "I am very glad you have come, my dear young lady," and he said it emphatically.

Constance's eyes filled with tears.

"You see, my dear!" said the manchioness, laying her hand upon Constance's gratefully.

"I hope so do like this we are all right," said the doctor. "We have been much of you as you can. Miss Grahame."

"He shall have all of me!" said Constance, fervently."

The old doctor smiled, and in the most natural way gave her his instructions as he sat beside the bed and watched the child's flushed face.

"Your name is familiar to me, Miss Grahame," he said, after some time. "I knew a Dr. Grahame in the Curragh."

Constance flushed, then turned pale. "He was my father," she said, in a low voice.

Dr. Griffin held out his hand with a pleased look that was almost affectionate one as he glanced at her black dress and at her sad face.

"He was a remarkably clever man," he said, kindly. "We were at the Curragh together. Remarkably clever. And you are his daughter? How small the world is, Dear, dear! And you are staying here?"

"While Arol is ill, sir," said Constance with a sudden flush. "I was his governess."

"Wait" he said. "And now you are his nurse. Do you mean to overwork yourself up. You have been ill, have you not?"

Constance shook her head.

"They must take care of you," he said, quietly, and he smiled at the marchioness as she came toward them, and within hearing, "for little Lord Arol's sake."

"And for her own, doctor," said the marchioness, gently. "Tell will go and see mom, my dear."

But Constance refused firmly.

"Not yet," she said; "I cannot resign my post so soon," and she looked at the doctor anxiously.

He nodded approvingly.

"That was worthy of the daughter of my old friend," said Dr. Griffin as he rose. "I have every confidence in you, my dear young lady."

"Oh, my dear, if you know how grateful I am to you!" murmured the marchioness. "But, indeed, you must go and rest. I think Dr. Griffin and I and Lord Wolfe would never forgive any of us if you were to be ill."

Constance turned her face away.

"I shall not be ill, dear Lady Brakespeare," she said in a low voice.

The marchioness entered at the moment, and came noiselessly to the bed.

"You have done more than the doctor could have expected," he said in a voice that thrilled her. "I have not seen him so peaceful yet. Have you tried to thank her mother?"

"Yes, Wolfe," she replied, meekly, "and I want her to go, but she will not leave."

He took out his watch.

"She shall remain another hour," he said, as he glanced at Constance's anxious face. "One hour only, mind. I will go and send her some breakfast. Remember," he added, as he reached the door, "it is a command, and you know I like to be obeyed."

And Constance, who had withstood the doctor and the marchioness, lowered her head and said nothing.

CHAPTER XVI.

The crisis had passed, and Arol had turned the dark corner and on the road to recovery. Since the hour she had entered the castle Constance had nursed him with the devotion of a sister; she had scarcely left the bedside of the child from her hand that he took his medicine and his food, and it was to her that they all looked with the deepest and most profound gratitude.

Since the day she had come back Constance had not left the upper part of the house. There was a balcony running some little distance in front of the windows on the west side, and she had spent out upon this balcony and got a few minutes of fresh air.

The marchioness had urged her to come down at her meals, and the marquis had just stopped short at the point of ordering her to do so, but Constance had resisted all their entreaties.

She had come back, she told herself, for one sole object: to nurse Arol, and she would consider herself to have failed if, as he got well she would return to the lonely life at Mrs. Mervyn's, and begin again the struggle for existence. She had already taken a great deal of her time in Arol's room, and seemed never so happy as when sitting beside the bed and talking to him and Constance. Lady Ruth had come in about twice a day for some days, but soon after the crisis had passed Constance noticed the discontinuance of her visits, and it was explained by the marchioness.

"Lady Ruth has gone on a visit," she said.

"Yes?" said Constance, who could not help a thrill of relief and satisfaction at the news.

"Yes. She has gone to join her father. Poor Ruth!"

"Because she has gone to join her father?" said Constance, with a faint smile.

The marchioness nodded.

"Well, yes. Lord Portraire is a sad martyr to the gout, and—and it is a terrible affliction. For many weeks days when no one excepting his valet can go near him. I am very sorry for poor Ruth, for she is very much attached to a old chamber. She is—is rather restless and energetic," she continued, very gently, "and it is very cruel to confine even such little fact. Now you, my dear have such a quiet, soothing way with you when you like that your very presence seems to soothe one. Will you like Miss Grahame to go and see Arol?" she asked him.

"No!" he said, turning his pale, wasted face, in which, however, already a healthier look was observable. "Who says she is going to? You won't, Constance, dear, will you? I'll get ill again if you do."

"I don't think you could if you tried; nobody could get ill who eats as much as you do, Arol. But I'm not going for a little while, dear."

"Say a long while," said the marchioness, softly.

Constance made no response. It would be time enough to announce her intended departure when she had quite made up her mind to go.

A few minutes afterwards the marquis came into the room. He dropped in several times a day, and sat on the end of the bed, generally talking to Arol the whole of the time, and only occasionally addressing an remark to Constance, in a voice, could not repress a few exclamations of delight.

The next morning and every succeeding day a smaller bunch appeared on the table of her own sitting-room.

She did not ask the maid where they came, nor did she thank him; but she spent what little leisure she had in arranging them, and they stood beside her bed, where she could see them when she woke; she was very fond of flowers.

And speaking of paint-ing, our stock of paints and varnishes is most complete — quality the best — and prices are right.

SINCLAIRS

This afternoon, as he leaned against the back of the bed talking to Arol, Constance stole a glance at him, and she noticed, and not for the first time, an alteration in him.

There had been a certain recklessness in his voice and manner when he had first arrived that eventful night; it had all vanished now, and in its place was a gravity and a thoughtfulness which made him look, in expression, at any rate, utterly unlike the famous portrait in the picture gallery. It seemed to her as if he had passed under the spell of some softening influence. Perhaps Arol's illness and danger had produced the change? To her he appeared handsomer than ever, and his voice, always eloquent of a strong man's tenderness, when he spoke to the child, sounded more full of music than of old.

SCOTLAND YARD SEEKS A CANADIAN SWINDLER

Partner Dead and Money Needed to Develop Fabulous Wealth

OLD TRICK REVIVED

Prey on Those Who Have Recently Lost Relatives In Britain

London, April 21.—Scotland Yard has issued a warning that the old trick of the "sick mine" claiming to have struck a rich gold mine, is being worked by a swindler in Canada in the hope of duping English people.

Obtaining the names of people who have died recently, the swindler writes to relatives, on behalf of miner, suggesting that there was an arrangement between the dead man and the miner.

"It is suggested that the relatives are to share in the good fortune.

"A request is made that a trusted person shall go to Canada to receive some gold, valued at about $50,000.

"Once the victim has arrived in Canada the next step is to induce him to part with a considerable sum of money to develop the alleged mine.

"Always there is a bar of metal looking like gold produced, to gain the confidence of the victim."

WOODSTOCK CORRESPONDENT

Recently a number of people in London have received letters from a man, who signs himself "William Cameron," living in an hotel in Woodstock, Ont. A number of these letters are in the possession of Scotland Yard. A typical one is as follows:

"Dear Sir: On account of the severe illness of Thomas (the miner) I am directed to write you. We are still in Robbins mining district in Idaho, where we have located the richest gold quartz vein I have ever seen. Thomas has declared you in with him, share and share alike, owing his success to you and to the way you financed him. You are to share equally with him in the profits so long as you remain a client. This richest mine is named in your honor, and will alone make you both immense fortunes."

The letter goes on to refer in technical terms to the mining industry and declares that "to give you an idea of the richness of the ore, every ton we have often knocked out of our rock in a single day with an ordinary hammer between 40 and 50 ounces of gold, valued at $20 per ounce."

STOCK OF PURE GOLD

He then states that modern machinery is needed to develop the mine properly:

"I have in my possession about 200 pounds of pure gold, which I am directed to deliver to you in New York City.

"You are to take the gold to England to sell, keeping one half of the proceeds for yourself and depositing the remainder in the bank to Thomas' credit."

He urges the utmost secrecy, and requests that no one be consulted, should a word be said to anyone on the boat on which the person is crossing the Atlantic.

Scotland Yard is co-operating with the Canadian police in the matter.

Tire Easily?

That dragged-out feeling is frequently due to poisons absorbed by the blood from constipated bowels. Headaches, sleeplessness and skin troubles can all be traced to the same source.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of normal lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and then permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike cathartics, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

LENGTH OF COURT DRESS DISPUED

Queen Mary Refuses Request of Modistes for Shorter Skirts

London, April 21— Lord Chamberlain's office and fashionable modistes of the West End of London and in Paris are at great variance as to how long the skirt of a fashionable gown should be.

"Four or five inches from the ground" is the edict of Queen Mary which has remained unchanged for several years, in spite of the repeated knees which Parisian designers have been favoring.

Women presented at the Court of St. James have been compelled to listen to the dress regulations set forth by the Lord Chamberlain's office and there is no indication that there will be any modification in the rule about skirt lengths.

Many dressmakers have made requests that the regulations be altered to allow this year's court dresses to be eight inches from the ground, but their requests have been refused by the Queen who thinks that enough consideration has been shown to present fashions by allowing trains to be eighteen inches long instead of the former regulation of four yards.

Fashionable dressmakers in London however, say eight or nine inches from the floor is the really smart length, especially for young women. The short trains of the court trains has done much to improve the grace of debutantes with just enough material before the royal throne. Long trains have been responsible for many social tragedies at courts one foreign woman became so entangled in her train at a recent court that she fell.

WILL DISCUSS 'LITTLE THEATRE'

Kingston, April 21.—The "Little Theatre Movement" is being discussed by the Queen's Faculty players with the result that before long erection may start on a building to be used for the production of plays by them.

The Faculty Players, who recently produced "Fanny's First Play in Convocation Hall, with remarkable success, have been organized at the Uni. for a long time and for a number of years have been trying to find a way of having a theatre which they could call their own.

Nothing is to be held soon when the "Little Theatre Movement," and how such a plan is financed, will be thoroughly discussed. It is estimated that the building answering up to the requirements of the Faculty Players would cost approximately $15,000, financed primarily by the personal bonds of those interested in the plan and by subscriptions.

If the Faculty players do not accept this plan it is understood that they will probably be forced to look to build a theatre in the new Student Union Building, erection of which is expected to start later this year.

With tennis, golf and baseball and bowling already organized Belleville is looking forward to a great season of sports. The yachtsmen are waiting for the ice to leave the Bay when the craft will again be launched.

There is some talk of the revival of lacrosse in Belleville. If those already interested find that the game can be ensured of sufficient backing a team will be entered in the O.A.L.A. series. The finer of Canadian games is rapidly regaining its proper place in the realm of sports.

Belleville was once famous for its Marathon races but this sport has long since been tossed into the discard. An annual road race from Trenton to Belleville with a suitable trophy for the winner would stir up some interest. Victoria Day, May 24th, is the logical date for such an event.

Rumblings of hockey gossip are still hear throughout the country. Detroit and Chicago want trials in the N.H.L. Tex Rickard has offered to build rinks in both of these cities. Three men from the "pro" league are investigating possibilities in both places. The New York Rangers are building a great team and reports are in circulation that several fast amateur players have been signed.

Toronto sport fans are all agog over the appearance of Rosenburg in the new Leaf Stadium. It will be the best drawing card since the Jimmy-Wilde-Petay Wallace bout some six years ago.

Dempsey has secured a new manager in the person of Gene Normile of San Diego, Cal. Let's hope he shows a little more action under the new manager than he did under Kearns. He should be made to come out of his hole and defend the crown against some of these contenders who have been clamouring for a bout with him.

Gaulin of the Point Anne team favors the ball into the rafters last night and the pesky thing stuck there and all efforts to coax it down were unavailing. There it sat on top of the world with hundreds of faces turned upward in dismay. Evidently it had enough battings at the hands of the Point Anne gang and decided to let its little brother be clouted around for a while. A ladder must be brought into play before the ball can be retrieved.

Ken Colling resembles a modern "Jakie Solomon" when he gets on the coaching lines beseeching, entreating and urging his players to get in there and hit. Cap in hand he uses every bit of baseballstrategem to pull out ahead. However he took his trimming in good stead and acknowledged the Point Anne bunch as the best team.

Earl McQueen who went in the box for Christ Church was greeted with a shower of hits from the side of the Alemites. As a pitcher Earl would make an excellent piano player. Ever try penochle, Earl?

The largest crowd of the year was on deck last night and everybody was thoroughly enthused and will no doubt be back again on Thursday night when Alemite plays the C.N.R. and high School tackle Ciscos.

The games were well handled last night and the crowd for the most part took to the baleony.

Point Anne Team Supreme Easily Beat Juniors 8-1 Green Fanned Eleven Men

The Point Anne team demonstrated that they are the best team of the Softball League by virtue of their clear-cut wh over the Belleville Juniors last night before the largest crowd that has witnessed a game at the Armouries in some time.

The winners scored eight runs off O'Donahue's delivery, while the Juniors were very weak in this department and managed to garner but one lone tally off Sunny Green's masterful pitching.

The Point Anne team got the majority of the breaks throughout the seven inning contest.

The success of the Point team can be attributed to Sonny Green's pitching in a large measure. He had the Juniors eating out of the palm of his hand and only g four of Colling's men reached the initial sack. He retired eleven men via the strike out route which is considered a wonderful showing in soft ball. The Indian possesses a real fast ball with good control and the Juniors were whiffing the air above their shoulders.

In Frank Goyer he has a reliable catcher who can handle his shoots to perfection. "Soup" completes the team from the back-stop position.

The suburbans fielded in excellent style and the Juniors never at any stage of the game seriously threatened to overtake them with the exception of the sixth when two men reached first and Dennis scored.

ODonahue pitched a lovely game but his team-mates simply could not find Green's pitching. Dan sent seven back to the bench after fanning out. The winners found him for thirteen hits.

Latchford on the receiving end played a bang-up game and is one of the smartest in the loop. He has the faculty of chasing all the fouls and his judgment on them is particularly good.

Sunny Green besides hurling a great game, was credited with three hits. Murney Green was on a par with his brother in this respect and pasted out a trio of safeties. Dennis secured two of the four hits made by his team.

The Juniors still have a slight chance of figuring in the play-off should a number of unexpected things happen. Point Anne must be beaten otherwise they are champions. The ruling was made at the last meeting that the first two teams should play off providing the leaders have lost a game. If the Point Anne team are defeated, they will be declared champions. The C.N.R. have lost only one game while the Alemites have won three straight and stand a excellent chance to cop the silverware if they can beat the Point Anne nine. The lubricators have face the hardest games of the schedule and if they come through unscathed they will meet Point Anne.

Woodley umpired at the plate while Stan Nurse and Vern Welr were on the bases. Scorer—Curry. Over $10.00 was taken in at the gate.

Batting Order

Point Anne—J. Maracle c.f., G. Gaulin s.s., M. Green 3b., F. Goyer c., S. Green p., J. Bonthyon 2b, F. Bennett rf., W. Strachan 1b., L. Goyer l.f.

Juniors—O'Donahue p., Stark c.f., Williams 2b., Latchford c., Colling l.f., Post 2b., Latchford r.f., Hibbard s.s., Dennis 1b, Tobe r.f.

ALEMITE 17—CHRIST CHURCH 2

Christ Church were easy meat for the Alemite team who rang up seventeen tallies while the Church boys shoved over but a pair.

The Alemites were entirely too good for their opponents and the losers used two pitchers in an attempt to stop the slaughter.

Kerr on the mound for the Alemite was in excellent form and was given good support. He kept the hits well scattered and his team was never in danger. They scored in every frame with the exception of the third.

The Alemites have won all three but face the fastest teams in the tail-end of the schedule.

Fred Saunders pitched for the losers but was wild at times.

S. Curry umpired at the plate and Twig Woodley on the bases.

BABE RUTH ENJOYED OLDTIME FIELD DAY AGAINST SENATORS

Scored First Homer of Year, Two Doubles and Two Singles in Six Trips

Washington, April 21.—Babe Ruth hit a baseball half way across the District of Columbia yesterday and in the wake of George's first homer the Yankee homicide squad charged into Walter Johnson and the champion Senators for another murderous victory. This give the Yanks the series. The score was 18 to 5.

Besides contributing a homer to the kitty, Ruth slapped a pair of doubles and two singles to distant points, making a total of only five hits in six times at bat. His homer was a gaudy affair. It came in the first inning, with two on, and Combs on third. Johnson had one strike on Ruth when Herman leaned back and stroked a terrific, line drive over the very high fence in right field.

In the other innings Ruth came to find the bases populated and nobody out. With the count three and two, he clouted another line drive that fluted with the left field bleachers, but failed to make the grade and became a mere teabagger. He knocked two past the infield that the infielders never even saw, and he got another double when he poked a fly down the left field foul line. The Yanks generated twenty-two hits, which seems hardly enough, but after the eighth safe blow Johnson was on his way to the showers for the afternoon. Fifteen inning 1-to-0 shutout a week ago did not deal lightly with Walter's right arm.

SIXTEEN GAMES FOR EACH TEAM IN C.O.B. LEAGUE

Locals Discuss Season Prospects and Find Them Promising

The officers of the Grand Trunk ball team together with some of the players held a meeting in the "Y" last night and report prospects for this season exceedingly bright. The new diamond will be available for the opener on the 24th of May providing there is a week of nice weather. The Parks board are cooperating with the team and are endeavoring to get it into shape. A schedule has been drawn up covering dates until Aug. 13. This schedule will be sent to other club secretaries for their satisfaction. The first three rolls in the grand stand will be reserved for theseason season and these will be placed on sale as soon as the official schedule has been adopted. Four games with each team will be played completing a sixteen game schedule.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT GRIFFIN'S

Colleen Moore, screen star, whose beauty has hitherto been garbed in the meagre outfit of the flapper or the modern maid, is resplendent in her latest picture, "Irene," showing for all this week at Griffin's Theatre.

In this film the adorable actress wears the most astonishing fineries. All her gowns are original creations. Sixty Hollywood beauties act as mannequins.

The picture is an adaptation of the famous Montgomery musical comedy hit, "Irene". First National released the picture, which was made by John McCormick. Alfred E. Green directed.

AT THE BELLE

It is well that Evelyn Brent is a versatile actress as well as a dramatic actress, for in "Lady Robinhood" she is called upon to paddle a canoe and to ride a horse in a thrilling race up a tortuous winding trail, with the life of her lover as the reward if she wins, and his death as the penalty if she loses. And she acquits herself with all the distinction of a combination Indian guide and Paul Revere. As the Spanish Joan of Arc who leads her faithful band of mountaineers to victory in their revolt against unjust rule, Miss Brent invests "Lady Robinhood" with a splendid realism; and so vivid is the characterization that it almost seems as if the little actress had actually lived the life which she portrays. The sensational story which is melodrama but not the usual crook melodrama in which Miss Brent has so often appeared, is the work of Clifford Howard and Burke Jenkins, while Tom Hopkins did the scenario. The production, which has been received with enthusiasm at every showing, will be seen for the last time locally at the Belle Theatre Thursday.

THE CORSICAN BROTHERS

"The Corsican Brothers" to be played by Sir John Martin-Harvey at Griffin's Theatre, April 27th, is the story of twin brothers, alike in appearance and so closely knit spiritually and mentally, that even when absent from each other, each one knew the other's doings and thoughts to a great extent, and suffered for each other when there was trouble. They loved or hated the same people, and each one knew that if the other died, the departed one would at once appear to the other. This, with the mysteries and superstitions of Corsica is the groundwork of the story, wherein they both loved the same woman — who married someone else. After opening in Corsica, the home of the brothers, where Fabien del Franchi and his mother lived in the old chateau, the scene is shifted to Paris, where Louis del Franchi is living. The lady who still holds his honorable devotion is foolishly led into an equivocal position by the unscrupulous M. de Chateau-Renaud, and is rescued by Louis. A duel with the former ends by the death Louis, and to the brother Di Corsica he appears, the whole scene and the circumstances leading to it, becoming clear to him as the twin brother. He starts at once for Paris, and there in the same spot, at the same hour of the day, he kills his brother's slayer.

TODAY'S BRITISH COAL CONFERENCE ENDS IN DEADLOCK

STRIKE NEARER IN BRITISH ISLES WAGES AT ISSUE

London, April 22.—A conference of coal owners and the miners' executive called this morning to find a basis for settlement of the dispute over wages ended in deadlock.

The Government coal subsidy which has made possible the maintenance of the present scale of wages, will end within nine days.

Failure of today's meeting indicates that outside influences must be brought to bear to find a way out of the difficulty.

ANY CHALLENGE AT GOVERNMENT SOON, TAKEN UP

Sir W. Joynson-Hicks Hurls Defi at Reds of Gt. Britain

London, April 22.—Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Home Secretary, in closing the debate in the House of Commons last night on the censure motion of the labor side of the House amending the address, said he was fed up by prohibiting the use of troops in connection with trade disputes except when a proclamation was issued, declaring that a state of emergency existed, although Sir S. Saklatvala, the Indian Communist, member for North Batterseа.

"If the Honorable member, Saklatvala, or any other person inside or outside of the House," said the Home Secretary, "thinks the time has come to challenge the right of this democratic Government to maintain law and order he will find the Government not averse to taking up the challenge."

The Home Secretary's reference to the challenge was in connection with the speech made by Saklatvala in the House a week ago when he stated that the Army and Navy were officered by the capitalist class, and were used only in the interests of the capitalist.

"The only way," Saklatvala declared on that occasion, "is to break the law."

In the course of last night's debate, Lieut. Col. Sir Alan Burgoyne, Conservative produced a sheaf of leaflets alleged to have been circulated with a view to undermining the loyalty of the troops.

Fifteen Million White Fish Deposited in Bay of Quinte From the Thurlow Hatcheries

Fifteen million white fish were deposited in the Bay of Quinte, yesterday by the Government Hatchery on Kingston road. This constitutes approximately one-sixth of the total "fry" that have been hatched in the Thurlow "incubator" this winter. It is an enormous number and one can readily imagine what a squirming, wriggling mass this would create if taken collectively.

The process of handling the miniature creatures is rather unique in its nature. No human hand touches the fish either while hatching or after assuming their active stage. The white fish spawn are arranged in grass jars in long rows during the early part of November. Six months is required to hatch this species of the finny tribe. During the early part of April some of the young appear and the live fish are transferred to a tank. It was during the visit of The Intelligencer representative that the Government boat carrying in tow the miniature barge was distributing the white fish around the different shoals in the Bay.

The "fry" lay in the tank outside the hatchery for some time in water which is temperature controlled and plug was pulled from the bottom of the tank and gradually it was drained of the baby fish. They were run through a pipe to the barge which is scrupulously clean and which is divided off in several small compartments acquainted by means of screens. The barge is equipped with openings in each end with the back outlet a matter of three or four inches lower than the front. When it is desired to distribute them the plugs are taken out and the screens removed and gradually the fish are coaxed into their new home. This year the distribution was considerably later due to the fact that the ice left the Bay so only yesterday. These fish will thrive and grow and mature within a space of four years. These white fish after reaching maturity age find their way to Lake Ontario, but eventually come back to quiet waters to spawn.

Mr. Joseph Chaine, the genial superintendent, states the output of white fish from the Thurlow hatchery is sufficiently large to stock Lake Ontario.

A number of men are now engaged in gathering pickerel spawn in the Moscow River.

These will take the place of the white fish in the jars, but the pickerel are hatched within a space of three weeks and are then taken out in Bay of Quinte waters.

The salmon trout are hatched by a process that is known as the "upright system" consisting of three little trays placed on top of one another. These will be fully hatched and ready to place in Lake Ontario by the 15th of May.

It is expected that in the neighborhood of four million salmon trout and three million pickerel will be hatched here.

Mr. Oakes stated that statistics have proved that over 95% of the spawn are developed by means of artificial hatching as against 5% in natural hatching. It completes a very interesting study especially at this time of the year when the finny denizens are in the hatching stage.

Asked what he knew of the proposed change in management, Mr. Oakes stated that no definite steps had been taken as yet.

If the Provincial Government takes over the hatcheries, it is assumed that the equipment at the local plant will be removed to Gimmer. However, nothing to this effect has been officially reported as yet.

OSHAWA PEOPLE LEAVE TONIGHT

Oshawa, Ont., April 22.—A number of parliament will probably be selected to present the case to the government when the huge delegation from Oshawa, Toronto and other cities arrives in Ottawa to-morrow to protest against the proposed reduction of duties on coal, car parts, Gordon D. Conant, one of the active organizers of the protest announced this morning. The delegation, number about 2500, will present the case to the cabinet at noon to-morrow. The delegation will hold a meeting in the Keith Theatre, Ottawa, at ten to-morrow to decide on the speakers and other details.

ONE PAIR SAVED ONE PAIR GO ON

Lisbon, April 22.—The Portugese naval aviators Lieut Mendes and Neves Terriers missing since Tuesday when they began a flight to Madeira and Bathurst, have been picked up, together with their plane by a fishing boat, says a message received today. The airmen will be taken to Funchal. They are being taken to Madeira.

Bangkok, Siam, April 22.—The Spanish flier Captains Loriga and Guzman Collazos who are on a flight from Madrid to Manila arrived here today from Singoon, Burma, a flight of about 870 miles.

CANON ARMSTRONG CLERICAL UNION HEAD

Canon Armstrong of Trenton was elected president and Rev. Mr. Principle of Adolphustown, secretary of the Bay of Quinte Clerical Union which met on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week in Christ Church Parish Hall. The organization which has been in existence for over fifty years, is unique in the history of the Church of England in Canada and meets for the discussion and consideration of subjects pertinent to the well being of the Church. Christ Church Parish provided luncheon for the twenty-six members of the Union yesterday at the Parish Hall.

FIRE DISCIPLINE GOOD IN FT. WILLIAM SCHOOL

Fort William, Ont., April 22.—Three boys were rescued by firemen and fifty-five fled in an orderly manner down fire escapes when fire broke out in a dormitory of St. Joseph's Board School here last night. The fire was extinguished and only $3,000 loss was caused.

CAR CRASHED INTO HYDRANT WATER WAS "OFF" PART OF DAY

The intersection of Bridge and George streets was the scene of a minor accident yesterday when a car owned and driven by G. S. Sharpe crashed into a fire hydrant in front of the residence of Dr. Marshall. It appears that Mr. Sharpe who was proceeding up George street, saw a car coming down Bridge street in a westerly direction. Noting that a collision was unavoidable he steered to the left and struck the hydrant and shattered the right front wheel of his car. The other car was not damaged. One result was that city workmen had to cut off the water connection and residents in the vicinity were deprived of water services part of this morning.

3-MILE LIMIT UPHELD

New York, April 22.—Searching of ships beyond the three mile limit has been declared illegal by a U.S. court.

TARIFF NIBBLES ARE UNSETTLING TO INDUSTRIES

B.C. Conservative Says Protection Needed For Prosperity

Ottawa, April 22.—Enunciating the principle that Canada required an adequate policy of protection in order to create the essential measure of prosperity, C. H. Dickie, Conservative member for Nanaimo, British Columbia, speaking in the budget debate, declared that continued nibbling at the tariff had unsettled the industries of this country.

Mr. Dickie was the outstanding speaker of the day, and from first to last argued for a clear-cut policy of protection which would herald better times not only to the industrial east, but to the timber-producing west as well. He charged that the exodus to United States was still in full swing, and that the drain age of population was reducing the production power of the nation.

Mr. Dickie, who has won a considerable reputation for delivery of original but apt phrases, paused while discussing the exodus of workers to observe that "many men who had left the country who could "lift a cow with one hand and milk her with the other."

In conclusion, he pleaded for unity between the east and the west, and between the English and French-speaking elements, declaring that prosperity through a proper tariff policy and Canada would become one of the great nations of the world.

With the budget debate proceeding in the Commons the Government is experiencing a degree of difficulty outside the chamber. Delegations of business men connected with the automobile industry are on their way to demand an opportunity to state their case, and to secure relief. This in itself would not be altogether too embarrassing, but the truth is that numerous members within the ranks of the Government holding to bring pressure to bear. "

DISLIKES STEP-MOTHER SHOOTS BUT MISSES

Montreal, April 22.—To emphasize her objection to her father taking another wife, Mrs. Rosa Bergeron, 28, today visited her father's home and shot point blank at her new step-mother, Mrs. Alexia Saumer, the bullet just grazing the woman's head and leaving powder marks on her forehead. Mr. Saumer grabbed his daughter and held her till the police arrived. She had a second loaded revolver in her pocket.

"I don't like it", Mrs. Bergeron declared to the honeymooners just before she opened fire. The pair were married yesterday. Mrs. Bergeron was arraigned later on a charge of attempted murder.

ELUSIVE LETTER UNAVAILABLE HOW TRUNKS WERE ALLOWED "PAST"

Ottawa, April 22.—An elusive letter, said to have been the open sesame for Miss Denise Larde and her trunks of Parisian silks, as far as Canadian customs was concerned, evaded the committee which is investigating the customs administration, this morning. Search for this letter was conducted by R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the committee. He placed former customs officer Bolger who was in charge of examination on the Empress of France when Miss Larde arrived in Canada, on the witness stand, and pressed him to give the committee some information about the letter. The witness denied ever receiving such a document. Mr. Calder then read an affidavit from Miss Denise Larde, declaring that after the vessel had left Father Point on its way to Quebec, a letter addressed to officer Bolger was handed to her. This letter according to her declaration, she had given to Bolger who did not have her trunks opened. He had given instructions to his assistant and the trunks were passed without examination.

Belleville Millinery Shop Supplied Exquisite Hats For Kingston Bride-To-Be

Belleville milliners supplied the exquisite hats to be worn at a fashionable wedding to be celebrated in Kingston very soon. Shoppers in the store in which the hats were purchased, were interested to hear the enthusiastic remarks and criticisms of the fair shoppers who declared they had never seen anything to "what could be bought in Belleville."

This tribute follows close upon the heels of another recent boost when the leading lady of a musical comedy told a representative of the press that "she hadn't seen any dropped stores in Canada to beat those of Proat and the lovely thing more courteous then the service" and she backed her words by buying a lot of supplies—to save the "big city prices" fo the same articles. .....

Col. Ponton Writes to Press Regarding New Collegiate

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Through your columns I desire to draw public attention, including that of the City Council, to a very momentous issue in connection with the proposed expenditure of approximately $100,000 for building of a new Collegiate Institute, of which there is I believe present need, though there may be difference of opinion as to the time to be expended and the inclusion or exclusion of the technical and vocational portion of the proposed scheme. As a public school boy any I desire to go before the public and the City Council their representations as in favour of the present need of a new Collegiate Institute, but I do not agree with some of my colleagues on the Board of Education on the following important matters and I believe all citizens who are interested in economy and also the "eternal fitness of things" will agree with me.

1. I protest, as I have continuously protested earnestly and I hope consistently against the unsightly marring down and destruction of the present High School building which while sufficiently inadequate for our present High School and our future Collegiate, is yet a valuable public asset of the City of Belleville, solidly built and easily adaptable to many civic if not educational purposes.

2. I protest with equal earnestness against 60 feet of the front of the splendid structure that is proposed, being made to face on Queen Street and its great back being thrust in the face of the public on Church Street with the open campus (so-called) lying between Church and the blind parts of the School; the "campus" to be wasted by the tearing down of the present brick building, a waste of money and with unsightly results.

3. Provided—please note the condition—that the Agnes School grounds can be bought, as I understand they can, en bloc, for the mere price of the land without including the buildings upon it, then I would favour, as I believe the citizens generally do, the purchase of the St. Agnes School property as the most desirable and available site for the new Collegiate, giving ample grounds facing on three streets and adding an area of one quarter to the Queen Alexandra School grounds in the rear and directly connected therewith. The opportunity seems to be opened up by Providence to secure this most beautiful of all squares in the City for this splendid educational purpose.

4. Not decaying and wholly respecting the opinion of other members of the School Board who differ from me, and regretting that the price of the St. Agnes grounds is as essential element, I desire to lay before my fellow citizens and tax payers my view, hoping that others will express their on this vital issue through your columns as a clearing house of practical ideas. How can we justify ourselves in preaching economy and with the same breath sacrifice many thousands of dollars in the destruction of a great public asset. I trust you will invite a sane and thoughtful discussion and consideration of these matters.

I.O.D.E. REGENTS DISCUSS WOMEN OF EVERY SORT

Allegation Made Undesirables Are Blackballed —Red Tape Scored

Hamilton, Ont., April 22.—Blackballing is used in the I.O.D.E. to exclude proposed members, it was stated at last night's meeting of the provincial chapter.

The discussion, raised by Mrs. H. A. Malcolmson, Hamilton, waxed heated at times and humorous at others. One delegate to the convention declared that she had been present when black balls against a proposed member had been counted.

WANT NO "BOSEYBODIES"

The suggestion that members should be selected by the executive was shouted down, on the ground that personalities should not enter into I.O.D.E. elections. One woman "was barred" from the I.O.D.E. because she was a "heybody", a Toronto Regent declared. In answer to this, Mrs. Goodeve, West Toronto, asserted that she had never been a "heyboody" who was not a "cracking good worker."

NOT MUCH RED TAPE

She warned the meeting that the I.O.D.E. should not be patterned after the Red Cross Society. If it desire wished to exclude a woman, "there was a nice way of doing it." A warning was issued by Mrs. Malcolmson that if red tape and the like order top heavy, that the I.O.D.E. had created something that would topple over and destroy it. Instead of foreigners in Canada, Miss Richards of Fort City, said, "We don't want them very much, but we must put up with them." Even if we only give them enough English to let them go to United States and keep our own at home, that will be something!"

THOSE FOREIGN GIRLS

The immorality among young girls of the foreign born was appalling, she said; "Their idea, brought from their native lands was that girls were married for money. When very young they were married off to middle-aged men with whom they did not stay for long.

BACK AT MOIRA AFTER 44 YEARS ASSISTS IN WORK

Remarkable Night at Old No. 11 A.F. & A.M.—A Fine Program

"It is forty-four years since my first visit to this Lodge," said Mr. Thos. Read, of Stirling Lodge, who with twenty-two others of that lodge visited Moira Lodge on Wednesday night to hold the brethren of Moira. "Since that time, when Wor. Bro. Hambly occupied the chair of Moira Lodge, I have visited and now hold red and ninety lodges in Canada and the United States."

At the meeting Wor. Bro. Watson expressed the hall degree assisted by Wor. Bros. Boardman, Botford, Heath, Bailey and Johnston and other officers of Stirling.

The visitors present at the meeting included W. Bro. A. S. Cooper, of Corinthian, Peterboro; W. Bro. H. A. Dyrne, of Perth, and Bro. MacLachlan of Scotland. Wor. Bro. George Dellenaugh read an address which "Little Lisa Jane" had been sung and called up on Bros. G. Cornish, W. Cook, W. C. Mikel, V. Graves and E. L. Dune to give it a rendition and sang by Bro. Eddie George was enjoyed also as a solo by Bro. Thomson.

PROVINCIAL GAS REVENUE ESTIMATED AT $3,500,000

Toronto, April 22.—Revenue from the Provincial tax of three cents per gallon on gasoline will total about $3,200,000 this year, Hon. Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer said today. The estimate is on basis of returns already received.

OPPOSITION TO TAILLIGHT MOVE

Red Signal Favored and the Reasons For It Are Given

Supporting the stand of the motor clubs in favor of the red taillight on automobiles and believing that the current practice in this regard is sound, the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce have gone on record opposing the move in some quarters for yellow taillights. The issue was introduced at the recent convention of the American Automobile Association, and red as the proper color for automobile tail lights was overwhelmingly endorsed. The manufacturers advance the following arguments for the retention of the red tail-light.

EXTENSIVELY USED.

1. It is now in use on 20,000,000 vehicles.

2. The extent of such use creates a tradition and familiarity to a much greater degree than any one lighting tradition that may obtain.

3. To change forty-eight State laws, and the habit of the motoring public is an unwarranted interference unless the value as a safety measure can be thoroughly demonstrated.

4. There are no extensive or conclusive data to indicate that the red taillight is the cause of accidents.

5. Railroad officials have stated that motorists have run around red lights at crossing gates, thinking that the light has indicated an automobile. This could be remedied by putting more lights on the crossing gates, and in any case the motorist who would cut around any light without seeing where he was going would probably not be affected by the matter of color.

6. Yellow light is regarded by many as confusing. With eyes trained to a red light as a tail light, the presence of the yellow light in that society gives the impression of a parking light or some other signal which is confusing to the driver.

CUSTOMS PROBE BATTLING WITH A NEW MYSTERY

Seizure of Silk Gowns Led To Withdrawal of Mounted Police

Ottawa, April 22.—Way seizure of three trunks full of smuggled silk gowns, brought by a Parisian modiste in to a Quebec hotel in October, 1925, should be magnified by the powers that be into a reason for withdrawing the Royal Canadian Mounted Police from anti-smuggling work in the port and district of Quebec, is the mystery around which the Stevens committee still encircling.

On the surface, the whole affair is very common-place. Mlle. Denise Larde, representative of an exclusive Paris dress atelier, was caught with the goods, which she valued at 72,000 francs. She pleaded guilty to possessing merchandise on which the duty had not been paid, was fined $50 and finally got her goods on a deposit of $1,500, Ottawa taking the view that it would be unfair for her employers to be mulcted of the previous cargo because of a crime for which they personally were not responsible.

There are the bald facts. Behind those facts were all kinds of mysteries which the committee, so far, has been baffled in endeavoring to fathom. First of all, the Parisienne promised to bribe a customs officer on the liner carrying her to Quebec. Then, that customs officer swears, the senior customs examiner ordered him to pass the trunks without examination because of a "memorandum from Ottawa" which he had. There was mention of a letter requesting the senior officer to "facilitate" passage of the baggage. The senior himself height ened the mystery by flatly denying he had ordered the trunks passed unopened and laid on his junior the blame for not having examined them and reported to him. After the seizure, too, a sergeant of the R.C.M.P. declared both Mlle. Larde and her counsel intimated it would be better for him if he released the gowns; this the counsel later denied.

With all this unexplained testimony and the mass of contradictions, the committee will try and find out whether the Royal Canadian Mounted Police blundered grievously or whether Mlle. Larde wanted, now as a witness, but reported to be in France, was such an important personage that in trapping her, the Mounties trod on some even more important person's toes.

FOUR BIG TRAINS TO CARRY MEN 'ON TO OTTAWA'

Toronto Board of Control Voted $3,000 to Help Pay Fares

Toronto, April 22.—Four special trains will leave Toronto tonight with members of the great deputation to protest to Premier King and his Government against the tariff reductions on the motor industry.

There hundred men will be the Toronto quota and from Oshawa there will come one thousand more from the allied motor and other industries there.

The C.N.R. has arranged for seven Pullman coaches. The C.P.R. was making preparations for a similar provision of cars.

CITY VOTES $3,000

Three thousand dollars was voted by the Board of Control to pay the expenses of 200 men from Toronto motor industries to Ottawa as part of the Oshawa mass deputation. Aubrey Fond introduced 75 men from local factories who declared that they would lose their jobs if all that most of them will move to the United States if Canadian factories are closed down.

REPRESENT 12,000

"I hope men represent 12,000 men in the automobile industries, as well as innumerable others in allied industries affected by the new tariff on motors, all in Toronto. The industry in Toronto is a giant one. Last year $167,584,000 worth of cars were produced in Toronto. With accessories production here amounted to $193,766,000. Local manufacturers exported 75,411 cars last year. The average weekly wage is $35 to $40 a week," said Mr. Bond.

Leaside and Mount Dennis are paying for their own deputations.

HIGHER PRICES ON WALL STREET

New York, N.Y., April 8.—Constructive forces were at work in today's stock market which again moved upward under the leadership of railroad shares. The advance in prices was an orderly one with breadth in demand suggesting increased public participation. Foods were again active in a number of specialties but it was noticeably that they were concentrating their activities on shares of companies reporting large current earnings, particularly those with promising prospects for higher dividends. Oils were rather slow in joining the upward procession but trade news continued bullish and talk of higher commodity prices was again heard.

KIWANIS TAKES ON JUNE 3RD CELEBRATION

The Kiwanis club will take on the June 3rd celebration here. This was announced today by Secretary Harry Greenlee of the Parks Board, following the joint meeting last evening of the Board and a committee of the Kiwanis organization. Mr. G. E. Hench is one of the prime movers among the Kiwanians with respect to the proposed celebration. The nature and details of the programme has yet to be decided. Most likely it was said there would be house races and a baseball game. Special attractions for the evening are proposed to wind up with a dance.

REJUVENATION COMPLETE IN HANDS OF YOUNGSTERS "AUNT MARY" ENJOYED

Presented by the Young People of Holloway United Church, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" at the City Hall last evening under direction of Miss Jessie Tuke rejuvenated every adult and delighted every child who saw the clever farce. The young people taking part were both talented and well trained and the story they chose, one of the best, which resulted in an evening of complete success. Each of the cast showed real intelligence in the handling of the lines and brought out the fine points of humor most effectively.

Those taking part were:

"Aunt Mary Watkins" — Gladys Parry, John Watkins Denham (Jack), Jack Andrews; Jack's Chums—Burnett (Bob); Gerald Woodley; Mitchell, Walter Harden; Clover, Leslie Woodley; Mr. Stebbins—Aunt Mary's Lawyer, Tom Emmons; Joshu—Aunt Mary's hired man, Arthur Herity; James—Burnett's butler, Lyle Mason; Betty Burnett, Bob's Sister and Aunt Mary's maid —Bessie Vandewater; The Girl from Kalamazoo, Myrtle Gunn; Lucinda—Aunt Mary's property, body and soul, Irene Woodley; Daisy Mullins, Miss Anna Conroy.

As stage managers Harry Jones and Alex Miller did some good work and the music by Johnston's five piece orchestra proved a great asset to the success of the evening.

THIS CONTINENT FAR AHEAD

The fact that North America has twice as many telephones as all the rest of the world (the latest figures are 17,207,000 to 8,740,000) accounts for the unusual use, on this side of the Atlantic, of that ever-ready volume—the telephone directory! Everybody looks in the telephone book, and everybody is doing it not occasionally, but continuously! Constant revision and correction keeps the directory filled with nothing but reliable information. The title "Community's Most Used, Most Useful Book"—has been fairly earned by the telephone directory.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bottum, 94 Bridge Street East, yesterday afternoon, Minerva Chapter 128 O.E.S., Order of the Eastern Star, were hostesses of a very bright and delightful tea which was attended by about one hundred and seventy-five persons. H. Nugent, Worthy Matron of the Chapter, received the guests who were taken to the tea room by Mrs. Norman Kerr, past Worthy Matron. The tea table was very lovely, glistening with silver and centred by a huge silver basket of pink roses which completed the pink and white color scheme of the room. Mrs. W. C. Mikel and Mrs. W. O. Adams presided and were assisted by Mrs. Harold Bateman, Mrs. H. J. Clarke and Miss Helen Clarke. Mrs. W. J. Boyes replenished the tea tables. During the afternoon piano selections by Mrs. Earl McQueen were very much enjoyed. Mrs. Charles E. Gurnett acted as treasurer for the afternoon and Miss Grace Arnott looked after the doors.

FRANCE'S PLIGHT

Notwithstanding the drastic measures taken by the French government to restore the financial situation, the franc has fallen to new low levels. Former Finance Minister Caillaux thinks that, bad as things are, they are destined to get even worse before France's economic equilibrium is reached. It cannot be said that the French people are unwilling to face their obligations, for the response to the voluntary contributions scheme of the government is said to be most gratifying. This is an interesting experiment. A "Save France" fund has been established, to which donations in money or in kind are invited. Wealthy Frenchmen have presented gifts of handsome proportions and some of the poorest have cheerfully given what they could for the benefit of their beloved France. A waggish and chain from a peasant, a few sous from a child's savings bank, such gifts as these come in with the large monetary contributions. Workmen are contributing a day's pay to the cause, and there is no doubt that this voluntary scheme is being taken seriously. Yet the franc continues to fall. It is a pathetic evidence of the cruel exactions of the war, continued eight years after its termination. It is hard to believe that the French nation still remains militaristic.

ADVERTISING CANADA

Hon. C. P. Beaubien has a novel idea of advertising the Dominion in the Mother Country by means of an "exhibition train" which would travel the highways and byways of England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland, showing the people just what Canada could offer in the way of natural resources, manufactured products, scenic attractions, etc. The plan is not altogether novel, though, as it has already been tried out between France and Canada. It will be remembered that about five years ago this country was visited by a French train, accompanied by distinguished representatives of various branches of France's industries, which toured the Dominion and undoubtedly created a great deal of popular enthusiasm, resulting in increased business between the two countries. Not only the manufacturers, but intellectual occupations, were represented in the exhibition, one section being devoted to the arts and sciences. Senator Beaubien was mainly responsible for this successful demonstration and, later on, a return visit was paid to France by a Canadian exhibition train, also under the direction of Mr. Beaubien, which brought a knowledge of the Dominion to the French people. Many speeches were made and more cordial relations cemented. The expense of the French exhibition was defrayed by our government and the railways, and reciprocal arrangements were made for the Canadian party on its visit to France. In the case of the proposed British exhibition, expenses might be jointly shared by the Canadian and British authorities

One feature of the former travelling exhibition which was very effective was the moving picture, and this is a part of Mr. Beaubien's scheme. He thinks that pictures are an effective means of advertising as the printed word; moreover, the exhibition would lead to hundreds of columns of free advertising in the British press, and so go far towards defraying its cost. It is a project which has much to commend it, and would undoubtedly serve the purpose of stimulating emigration and increasing the interest of British investors. Canada needs additional population and desires that newcomers should be well informed on conditions. There is no better way of imparting the essential information than by giving practical object lessons of the kind suggested.

THE CASE OF CASA LOMA

Toronto Star:

Special circumstances may arise to justify the location of a many-family dwelling even in a district where the homes are still entirely one-family in their character. A case in point is the proposal to convert Casa Loma into a huge apartment hotel. It can hardly be contended with success that this great building, which no one in Toronto will occupy as a family house, should be idle on the hillside, and the profitable investment be lost, when it can be turned to profitable use without being made ugly or objectionable. That it should be altered with the minimum loss of character is a reasonable demand. But it stands by itself in a block by itself, and subject to certain architectural limitations, its conversion into an apartment hotel should be sanctioned.

POVERTY ENTHRONED

Montreal.—When they crashed down the doors of a dwelling house at 11 Charlotte Lane last night, police revealed a tragedy due to poverty, and averted another. The body of Eugene Fleau, seventy-four, was found and is thought to have been lifeless for several hours. In another room Jeanne Dupuis, forty-eight on the verge of unconsciousness was suffering form grippe.

...DYNAMITE ACTIVE

Ingersoll.—Fifty pounds of dynamite accidentally exploded at the quarry of the Beachville White Lime company when sawdust in a shelter in which the case had been placed was ignited by a falling spark from a steam engine.

ANNA GLADYS REID

(Contributed)

A large concourse of friends and relatives were on Sunday afternoon in attendance at the obsequies of the late Anna Gladys Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore M. Reid of Harold, who passed peacefully into rest on Friday, April 16th. Deceased, who was twenty-four years of age, was well and favorably known both in Bowdon and the Campbellford district. Deceased was in poor health for some time, having never fully recovered from an attack of diphtheria which she contracted while nursing during the epidemic at Cobourg. The comforting and impressive service was conducted in the home by her pastor, Rev. F. O. Joblin, assisted by Rev. B. F. Byers. Interment took place at Wellmans'. She leaves to mourn the loss of a loving daughter and sister, her parents, and four sisters, Mrs. Arthur Burkitt, Bonar Law; Mrs. Louis R. Green, Harold; Mrs. Harry Grills, Campbellford, and Miss Genevieve at home. Bearers were Messrs. Fred Tinsa, Bogart Lane, Jos. Cotton, Fred Hay, Wm. and Richard Morton. Floral tributes were many and beautiful.

FRENCH AND SPANISH DO NOT TRUST RIFFS

Oudjda, Morocco, April 22.—Preliminary peace negotiations between French and Spanish and Riffian delegates have reached a serious deadlock. The Riffians are said to have agreed to make concessions to the French and Spanish with regard to the demand for exchange of war prisoners and it is believed that the rock upon which the conference split was the refusal of Riffians to accept the Franco-Spanish demand to be permitted to advance their military forces in the fighting zone as a guarantee against bad faith on the part of Ab del Krim, the Riffian War Lord.

THE KERR-BRYSON LOW COST TOUR TO ALASKA AND THE PACIFIC COAST MADE EASY THIS SUMMER

The special low cost, personally conducted tour to Alaska and the West, offered by Canadian National Railways, is so reasonable that the trip is within reach of everyone.

Those who have never before viewed the grandeur of the world-famous Canadian Rockies, or thrilled to the gigantic scenery of the Pacific Coast and Alaska can easily afford to take this extensive tour while the low rates are in force. The tour starts July 8th and finishes August 2nd—twenty-five days of unalloyed pleasure.

Imagine the wonderful sights in store for you—that you cannot see elsewhere in America. At Wainwright Park in Alberta is the biggest herd of buffalo in the world. At Jasper National Park to the coast are hundreds of the miles of the most magnificent scenery in the world. There is beautiful Vancouver, and Victoria, the pride of the Pacific.

There is a wonderful thousand mile boat trip through the Scenic Seas of the North Pacific to Alaska, to Wrangel or Skagway. You see Prince Rupert and Kitwanga with its famous totem poles.

On the way back the glorious trip on the Great Lakes from Port Arthur to Sarnia is taken.

But best of all is the unusually low cost of the trip.

Ask any Agent of the Canadian National Railways for descriptive literature, costs and all other information you require. s23,27

Soft ball tonight at the Armouries at 7.45—Alemite vs C.N.R. and High School vs Ciscos. These will be two good games. The Alemites have won three straight and should beat the C. N.R. but the railroaders upset the dope on the Juniors a week ago.

The Ciscos are trotting out an entirely new team and will make things interesting for the High School. The fans are still talking about the brand of ball played in the softball league as displayed by the Juniors and Point Anne teams last Tuesday night.

An all-star game is being planned at the tail-end of the season.

A few days like yesterday and the track lots will be in good shape, for the kids to pasture. A gang of fifteen or twenty congregated in one section of the city to open the season and apparently they weren't worrying about "throwing out their arms" judging from the way they were flinging the pill around. The public school league starts shortly. The games on the campus each night.

Golfers were noted toting the well-known clubs to the well-known links on Sunday afternoon and could be seen chasing the little white sphere around, but no "holes in one" have been reported as yet. Friend wife has had a couple of weeks of bobbie's company since the Carling season closed but will don the sweater and a golf widow like the rest of the summer. By the way ye editor is wearing a brighter smile this morning, probably he's one of those bags too—

The Trunks have several youngsters and newcomers who will be given a trial this spring. "Boot" Gibson comes high ly, recommended from Cobourg and will try for the outfield. Four or five of those Juniors looked rather promising last season and will be given the once-over by Manager Gerow. Gilly Coyer will receive a trial in the box.

Sport critics all over the Dominion are lauding the feat of John Miles, youthful Nova Scotian who won the Boston Marathon. The lad is being lined up for the Canadian Olympic team in 1928 when the events will be held in Holland! Victories such as Miles scored will do much to hasten the return of the ancient Greek sport. How many Canadians do not remember the days when Tom Longboat, Billy Sherring and Kerr were prominent in track and field sports

Reports of the breaking-up of the strong Grimsby Peach Kings, intermediate O.B.A. champions of 1924-25 and runners-up to New Hamburg last season, are current. It is said that Harry Reid, their regular center-ice player, has moved to Brantford; that "Bud" Fisher, goaler, is in Niagara Falls, and that two or three other members of the team are planning to change their place of residence. Lack of positions is given as the reason for the puckchasers' decision to move out.

Recreation Alleys

Getting the jump in the first game the Alemite won three points from the Shamrocks in the ladies' junior league at the Recreation Alleys last night, although the Alemite were up 105 pins in the first game they lost the second by 184 pins, but won the third and also on the total. Miss Flagler for the Alemite and Mrs. Tracey for the Shamrocks were the two leading bowlers.

In the men's junior league the Rovers won three points and the National Castings won one, the Castings having to roll a 933 score to count their lone point; the Rovers rolled up a total score of 2722, and playing a man short. High bowlers were Johns 671; and E. Foster 649.

STEVE DONOHUE WINS IN FEATURE AT EPSOM

Epsom, England, April 22.—Lord Lonsdale's Warden of the Marches, by Phalaris, out of Mary Warden, won the City and Schurban handicap, the feature of Epsom programme. The race was at 1 1-4 miles, for £1,000 with extras. W. M. G. Singer's Sparus was second and H. Shaw's Nalders, third. Twelve ran.

Warden of the Marches won by two lengths, while a length separated the second and third. The betting against the winner was 100 to 15, against Sparus 100 to 8 and against Nalders 100 to 15.

Lord Lonsdale's four-year-old was installed favorite last evening, and he was ridden by the veteran Steve Donoghue. He carried top weight of 126 pounds. Warden of the Marches is looked to be prominent in this year's four-year-old fields. He had a brilliant record as a three-year-old topped by the capture of third place in the classic St. Leger at Doncaster last autumn.

FAR-SIGHT IN CHILDREN

—is very likely to be overlooked. Nothing but a careful examination can detect this error in children. A far-sighted person soon will, maybe too well, in the distance, and a far-sighted child may be able to read perfectly, but the strain in doing so is often excessive. To overcome this strain glasses are needed. This is a duty that I render with satisfaction almost every day.

40,000 LOOKED ON AS YANKEES BEAT BOSTON RED SOX

New York, April 22.—The rejuvenated Yankees, who have ambitions to climb back into the higher social strata of the American League this season, made a stylish beginning at the Stadium yesterday by polishing off the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 5. This met with the complete approval of 40,000 spectators.

The Yanks tore up the field with the Red Sox and forged to replace their circle. Earl Combs and Bob Meusel hit home runs, and the Yanks got six runs in the fourth inning, two neither of these events could make up for the fact that Babe Ruth failed to step the ball into the bleachers.

Loyal on by beautiful spring weather, the fans came early and enjoyed an hilarious comfort, except when the Red Sox scored runs in the first two innings and threatened to become obnoxious on a day when the visiting team should be seen and not heard.

After gaining intensity at mid-season row for the better part of two hours, the jury of 40,000 decided that the team which beats them out of the pennant will have to get up early and work late.

ROTARIANS ARE EASY FOR OFFICERS' TEAM

Burlesque indoor baseball of the one-hundred percent variety resulted when the officers' team of the Argyle played a crowd from the Rotary club last evening. The score hardly matters; it was perhaps enough on the part of the service club to win had two first class teams been playing while the infantry men ran up a total that reads like a cricket score after three days of play.

It was one continuous round of pleasure for the most splashers and the whole side battled during several innings. Their team consisted of Major Meeker and Capt. Ketcheson as battery; Major Alford, Capts. Abrams and Gilmour, Lieuts. Jones, George Faulkner, McQueen Fraserton. While their opponents included Major Graham and Adj. Wilmot both of whom took a turn in the box, Adj. Walker, O. H. Scott (catcher), C. D. Reid, R. Sutherland, E. Bernstein, George Graham and Howard Clarke. Mr. W. E. Scott umpired.

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH IN NORTHERN B.C. MUD SAYS SURPRISING TALE

Victoria, B.C., April 22. (By C.P.) Ponce de Leon, looking around for the fountain of youth, might have found what he sought had he come to the Pacific Northwest instead of confining his wanderings to the Florida marshes.

A deposit of peculiar clay which is said to produce the vitality of young manhood in the oldest and most feeble has been discovered near Vanderhoof, in northern British Columbia, by Albert Hayman, pioneer settler of that district.

Hayman has sent a sample of the wonder product to his friend, Hon. E. D. Barrow, minister of agriculture, who has promised to try it out.

"A small amount of the stuff dissolved in a bath makes an old man feel like a youngster," Hayman wrote to Mr. Barrow. After a clay bath I feel like 24 instead of 64 years—in other words forty years younger."

NURSE PRAISED FOR FINE WORK IN LONELY POST

Miss Margaret Litton Overcame Obstacles to Save a Life

Toronto, Ont., April 22. (Canadian Press).—The work of the nurse in the lonely outposts of the Canadian Red Cross Society—posts in raw and sparsely settled country— is usually lonely and often beset with difficulties. A story, typical of many feats of heroism by these nurses, is taken from the annual report of the society, presented at its meeting in Toronto last week.

When death threatened Clarence Jefferson, 7-year-old youth in the Fraser Branch, and an operation was imperative, with no hospital closer than Winnipeg, 100 miles away, Miss Margaret Litton, nurse in charge of the Red Cross station there decided that she would have to take her patient to the city in a gas jigger, since that was Saturday evening and there would be no Winnipeg train until the Tuesday following. So Miss Litton, assisted by a section hand, started for Winnipeg with her patient. Four miles north of Inwood the gas container sprang a leak and the nurse and her helper had to push their hand car four miles in darkness in 20 below zero weather to Inwood, where the station agent gave them hot tea and food. They were provided with another gas jigger, and arrived in Winnipeg early on Sunday. "Undoubtedly," hospital authorities declared, "the patient owes his life to the devotion of Nurse Litton, who was undaunted by the distance of 100 miles over block corroded and prairie land in mid-winter with the thermometer at 30 below zero."

SAILED FROM GLASGOW

A party of 28 youths, between the ages of 14 and 19 years, sailed from Glasgow on Friday for Quebec enroute to Brockville under the auspices of the Orphans' Home of Scotland. The party is in charge of Mr. Young, superintendent of City Homes, and upon arrival at Quebec they will go directly to Fairknow House. After a few days in Brockville they will proceed to their foster homes.

Cecil B. DeMille supervised production of "The Coming of Amos" now here at the Belle Theatre with Rod La Rocque in the starring role.

This release has melodramatic comedy for its theme, reviving the exciting actions of the hero, the heroine and the villain, plentifully garnished with humor.

Opposite Rod La Rocque in the hero's role, Reita Goudal portrays the role of the heroine in a manner worthy of her as the screen's most fascinating personality". Noah Beery, as the villiads, adds life and color to this featured role. s

AT GRIFFIN'S

"Irene," presented in picture form by John McCormick and released by First National, remains for three days more at Griffin's Theatre, with its sparkling Colleen Moore in the title role.

"Alice Blue Gown" and a dozen other songs that have been whistled and hummed by the thousands who have seen "Irene" on the stage are heard again when the angelical story at the musical comedy flashes on the screen. Countless other thousands who have not had the opportunity of seeing the delightful version are becoming acquainted for the first time with the adorable Irene when Miss Moore introduces her new characterization on the screen.

WAS FINED $200.00

A young blacksmith residing at Latta in Thurlow Township pleaded guilty to selling liquor contrary to Section 40 of the Ontario Temperance Act, in police court this morning. Mr. R. D. Ponton, counsel for the accused spoke of his previous good record and asked that the lightest sentence possible be given. Magistrate Mason imposed the minimum penalty of $200 and costs in default of three months in jail and one month besides paying the costs of the Court. It is an unfortunate circumstance as the defendant is regarded as being highly respected in the community in which he resides. The corridor was crowded with relatives and friends of the young man.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"Well, Arol," he said, "coming for a ride this afternoon?"

"I wish I could!" said Arol, with a sigh. "I'm getting awfully tired of lying here."

This remark rather suggested, you perhaps remember, that the marquis, had nothing at Constance, who had drawn away from the bed, and almost behind the curtains, as she always did when he was present.

"You know that I don't mean that, don't you, Constance, dear?" said Arol, putting out his thin hand, and feeling for her. "When I go out Constance will go with me, or she I won't go."

"Spoken like a Briton!" said the marquis, approvingly. "I'm sure you have plenty of courage."

"Yes. Where's Lord Elliot, Uncle Wolfe?" he asked.

It was the first time Constance had heard his name mentioned since her return.

"Oh, he's away, still scouring the continent, I suppose. He'd have been back if he had known you wanted him, but you see, he doesn't even know you have been ill. Anything you fancy to-day, my lad?"

"I should like a chop," said Arol promptly.

The marquis laughed shortly.

"You'll be clamoring for a whole sheep presently. May he have a chop, Miss Grahame, please?"

Constance shook her head as she crossed the tiny hand.

"Not until to-morrow, my lord," she replied.

"We are getting on," he said. "Well, I've brought another visitor, Arol. What have you say to this?" and he put his hand in the pocket of his loose Norfolk jacket and brought out a guinea pig.

Constance started, and Arol uttered a feeble yell of delight.

"Boys always crave for a live pet," said the marquis, almost apologetically to Constance.

"Give him to me! Oh, what a dear little thing! May I keep him, Constance? Oh, I hope I may. What funny little eyes. Isn't Uncle Wolfe kind, Constance?"

"I'm having a cage made for him, and you must keep him on the balcony. I thought of bringing the pony up, but I was afraid Miss Grahame wouldn't permit it."

His is beauty! exclaimed Arol. "You take him and look at him, Constance. He won't bite, will he, Uncle Wolfe?"

"Not the man at Bevington, where I got him, took his fiddle to that effect; but don't squeeze him to death. Give him to me."

He took the guinea pig and placed it in the hands which Constance held out smilingly, and with all a girl's love for animals she pressed it up against her cheek.

"Take care," he said, with an anxiety out of all proportion to the occasion. "It might bite, especially as it rather strange and probably frightened."

"Yes, take care, Constance, dear," exclaimed Arol

He had scarcely spoken when Constance uttered a little cry.

and then with a laugh whipped her hand behind her.

The marquis sprang up and went round the bed to her.

"The little beast has bitten you!" he said, "Let me see."

She still held her hand behind her.

"It is nothing my lord, indeed it is nothing. I don't think it has made a mark even, but"—and she laughed again "it startled me rather."

"Let me see," he said peremptorily, and he took hold her arm.

Deeming it better to comply than to make a fuss, Constance held out her hand. He took it and held it in his, examining it closely.

"We shall want Arol's microscope, she said, feeling the blood mount to her face. "There is not even a mark."

"Yes, there is," he said. "See here," and he held up one taper finger. "The little brute. Give him to me please."

"No, no," said Constance. "He will not do it again, and it is nothing," and tried to draw her hand away, but still he held it, looking down at it with tight lip-compressed lips and a look of self-denial in his dark eyes.

"Let me see," exclaimed Arol, leaning on his elbow and stretching forward at the risk of tumbling out of bed.

Constance got her hand away form the firm grasp, and extended it to Arol, the color still in her face and her heart beating quickly.

"There, satisfy yourself, and let the pinger go scot-free," she said, laughing but there was a nervous ring in that laugh.

Arol took her hand as the marquis had done.

"Oh, I see!" he said. "I'm so sorry. Does it hurt much?"

"Not the very least. I don't know which finger it is on," she answered, cheerily.

"I'll kiss it and make it quite well, Constance dear," he said; and he raised her hand and lovingly kissed the finger two or three times.

"I think you ought to kiss it too, Uncle Wolfe," he said, with a grave nod. "You brought the guinea pig."

Constance's face burned like a flame, and her eyes fell.

A flush rose to the marquis' face, and he looked at her for a moment with an indescribable expression.

"Too many doctors might do the patient more harm than good, Arol," he said, smiling constantly. "Give me the animal, Miss Grahame, and I'll send the cage round this afternoon."

She rendered with an aching heart, and the color soon vanished and left her pale—so pale that when she marchioness came in presently she noticed it.

"My dear," she said, gently but firmly, "you are looking tired and pale, Wolfe," she often dropped his title when speaking to Constance, as if she were one of the family—"Wolfe is right, I am afraid and we have been cruelly selfish. He was quite angry this morning, and said that he was sure you would be ill.

Constance, pale no longer, shook her head.

"I am quite, quite well, Lady Brakespeare," she said.

The marchioness put her hand upon her shoulder.

"Now my dear be a good girl and do as I ask you, unless you want me to get into trouble with Lord Wolfe. You have never seen him angry, but he can be—very— when he is thwarted too much. You smile?" for Constance had smiled.

"Ah, you don't know him. He has so changed since he came back, so good and gentle with us all. But I don't want to see him angry, and so, for my sake, if not for your own, go out for a little while. Go into the terrace if you are aweary. And see, if I want you I can call you from the hall window."

Constance still hesitated.

"Do, go, now; it is beautiful out and then when Lord Wolfe comes back, I can tell him you have been out."

Constance rose, though still reluctantly. She had intended remaining up stairs until the hour of her departure.

"Put on a shawl or something over your shoulders, my dear," said the marchioness, as Constance, re-

Constance got her hand away form the firm grasp, and extended it to Arol, the color still in her face and her heart beating quickly.

"There, satisfy yourself, and let the pinger go scot-free," she said, laughing but there was a nervous ring in that laugh.

Arol took her hand as the marquis had done.

"Oh, I see!" he said. "I'm so sorry. Does it hurt much?"

"Not the very least. I don't know which finger it is on," she answered, cheerily.

MONSTER DEPUTATION REBUFFED BY LIBERAL LEADERS

SPECIAL TRAINS STOPPED HERE NO ONE GOT ON

Oshawa Men Serious in Quest For Relief From Tariff Cuts

Six special trains passed through the city last night carrying the monster delegation from various western points to Ottawa where they presented their case to Premier King this morning.

The first train pulled in at the Upper Station at 1.45 a.m. and stopped here ten minutes to change engines.

An Intelligencer reporter was on hand and talked with several of the delegates. There was not a trace of tendon excitement displayed and the crowd of seven hundred seemed deeply concerned and an air of determination pervaded the fourteen coaches. The people realized the tremendous issue before them and went about the situation in a business-like manner.

Several of the delegates voiced considerable dispersal when nobobby board ed the special at Belleville.

The first train carried practically all employes of the General Motors at Oshawa, many of whom were to be seen wearing the insignia marking their over seas service.

There appeared to be an optimistic feeling that the government will at least modify the tariff rates as they stand in the recent budget.

Two months will clean up all of the present stock on hand at the General Motors plant, it was said. Already many Canadians have applied for passports in U. S. and a great exodus of Canadians will inevitably take place if the tariff rates are not reduced.

It was fully expected that over five thousand delegates would make the trip to the Capital.

The second section pulled in a few minutes later with the crowd from Leaside, Toronto. These did not seem to share in all enthusiasm the same feeling as the Oshawa crowd. Many of these expered about the station platform as though on a "joy ride". "Have our homes", "No to Ottawa" and various other slogans adorned the lapels of the Leaders.

Three trains went through on the C. P.R. but did not stop here. Many journeyed to the Capital by motor car.

Mayor Preston, of Oshawa, was the prime mover in arranging the pilgrimage.

Ottawa Invaded by 3,000 Men and Women Who Sought To Impress King Government With Havoc Wrought by Tariff Changes

PEOPLE OF CAPITAL TURNED OUT EN MASSE TO SEE SEVERAL TRAIN-LOADS, MOSTLY FROM OSHAWA DISEMBARK AND GET BREAKFAST —TEXT OF MEMORIAL TO CABINET

Ottawa, April 23.—"So far as the government is concerned we intend to abide by the decisions of parliament on this question." This, in brief, was the reply of Premier King to the great automobile delegation which invaded Ottawa to-day. Premier King's statement was made in the railway committee room of the House of Commons following the preliminary meeting at which the Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance declared that so far as he was concerned, "We intend to stand by our guns." In the railway committee room, Premier King touched on Mr. Robb's phrase. It was a term, Premier King said, used by men who would not be moved by demonstrations. But it did not mean that the government would not be prepared to give earnest considerations to the representations made.

Ottawa, April 23.—No one ever saw the Parliament buildings invaded as by representatives of Ontario business interests that came to protest to-day against the tariff changes proposed in the recent budget statement. The deputation numbered about 3000 and filled all the space in the corridors and lobbies where they were not held in check by ropes, and overflowed over the lawns.

Mayor Balharrie of Ottawa who introduced the visitors to Cabinet in the railway committee room, said it was the largest delegation that had ever come to Ottawa.

Premier King and all the Cabinet ministers were present. A memorial from the Ontario communities protesting against the tariff reduction at once was read by W. C. Smith of Oshawa, Mayor Mitchell of Windsor then spoke.

He said that the tariff changes of this kind were bound to injure the Border Cities. Speaking for the largest manufacturers of trucks in Canada, he said the factory would most certainly close down and go to Detroit if the reduction was allowed to stand.

J. A. Woodward, representing Mayor Horsefall of Leaside, said this reduction would not only throw men out of employment, who were formerly in the motor factories but it would throw those employed in the accessories plants on the streets. Merchants and farmer would be adversely affected.

"I want it thoroughly understood that were this an appeal for motor manufacturers, I would not be here." Mr. Woodward said.

Mayor Preston of Oshawa said the size of the delegation should indicate to the Government the tremendous importance of the matter. Manufacturers in Oshawa were not bluffers. He thought they were sincere in their statement that the automobile factories would close their doors if the reduction were maintained. Reductions in duty were not going to make the prices of motor cars much lower. If motor cars were necessity the sales tax should be removed.

THE DELEGATION ARRIVES

Ottawa, April 23.—The people of this city turned out to greet the "On to Ottawa" delegation which, nearly 3000 strong poured into the capital in the early hours of this morning.

The visitors are here to urge upon the Federal Government that the customs tariff on automobiles be not reduced as proposed by the budget introduced in the House of Commons last week.

The largest portion of the delegation came from Oshawa. Four special trains brought the representatives. The trains began to arrive at Central Station shortly after six o'clock and very soon the streets were conspicuous with the visitors, from the coats of whom fluttered badges of various types bearing the "On to Ottawa" slogan and "Save Our Homes".

In addition to these from Oshawa, there is claimed to be over 700 from Toronto and it was stated that some 45 other municipalities were represented.

The first search of the visitors was for breakfast and hotels and restaurants were soon thronged with considerable addition to their regular patronage.

At 10.30 the visitors assembled in a local theatre where arrangements were made to wait upon the government.

The deputation interviewed the government soon after noon.

"I wish to impress upon the public that this deputation is no bluff," said Mayor Preston of Oshawa, on his arrival this morning. "We ask that the tariff changes be left out of the budget and decided on by the new tariff board. We think we are entitled to that".

He pointed out that the deputation from his city was entirely a civic-one. In the delegation are 100 women and they

PREMIER ON HAND TO SEE DELEGATES MET BY SHOUTS

Ottawa, April 23.—When the great deputation which came to Ottawa this morning to protest to the Government against tariff changes as applied to motor cars, was meeting in a local theatre just before noon to organize the advance on Parliament Hill, Premier King and the Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, unexpectedly appeared on the stage.

The Premier explained that he had come to welcome the delegates and to find out the size of the delegation. The railway committee room in which the meeting would be held, he said, would hold only 500, so he advised that representatives to be selected to attend, be ready with all their arguments, because the Government would stand to its guns so far as it was concerned, refusing to the proposed tariff changes.

The statement started an uproar and there was shouts of "go we will we stand by our guns," and "You never had to work for a living." The Ministers soon left and the organization continued with its organization work.

PURPLE MARTINS

A flock of Purple Martins struck town yesterday. They are the noisiest of the swallows and when they first arrive they make as much racket as when a Circus comes to town. Their first move is to examine their summer cottages and nesting places to see if they have been pillaged during their absence and if they find a sparrow or other bird in possession they do some loud talking. They are very assertive and will not allow other birds to bother them.

BRISTOL STORE ENTERED BY PAIR WHO ROBBED SAFE

Leading Store in Picton Loses Days' Receipts and Some Bonds

SOON DISCOVERED

The robbery was discovered at eight o'clock this morning, by some of the employees when they reported for the day's work. On entering the store they first noticed a small hole in the wall about six inches square, below the vault which is built into the brick wall. Further investigation proved that one of the thieves had inserted his hand in this aperture and had loosened the cap on the back of the safe's combination—a process including the making of the hole, which must have occupied a good deal of time. The opening was made by picking away the bricks along side the vault.

CLIMBED A SHED

The employees immediately summoned the police force who upon investigation, found proof, that the robbers must have gained an entry by climbing a shed at the rear of the store, upon to the roof of which they erected ladders and finally reached the roof of the store. From the roof they made a comparatively easy entry through the skylight.

It is assumed from the systematic method in which the robbery was perpetrated, the thieves must have been familiar with the lay out of the store. Eluding an outside night watchman who did not learn of the robbery until this morning, the bandits left no clues, but the police are very actively engaged, in endeavoring to secure some trace of the thieves. Bristol's, which is the largest dry goods store in Picton, was the scene

JUDGE AND MRS. DEROCHE ARE BACK FROM FLORIDA

Enthusiastic about the health-giving propensities of Florida, Judge and Mrs. Deroche and Mrs. Deroche, 49 Campbell street, have returned from Florida to Belleville.

Chatting with The Intelligencer this afternoon, His Honor spoke in glowing terms of what salt sea bathing and sun baths have done for him, observing that during most of the weeks he spent in Miami, the thermometer registered from 70 to 80 degrees.

Speaking of the land boom His Honor stated that he believed real estate has at last settled down to normal. One cannot walk four blocks without seeing great buildings in the course of construction which looks as if things are now on a sound foundation.

While in Florida, Judge and Mrs. Deroche saw but one Belleville person, Mrs. Rev. W. C. Springer, whom he saw in one of the gorgeous parks at St. Augusta.

JURY DISCOVERS NONE TO BLAME IN DEATH OF 2

Timothy O'Ray and Percy Milligan Killed by C.N.R. Train

ENGINE CREW HEARD

Evidence Showed That Men Were Unfamiliar With Crossing

We, the jury empanelled, do find Timothy O'Ray and Percy Milligan came to their death at 11.30 a.m. on April 17, by being struck by Canadian National train number 27, and instantly killed at private crossing on Michelle's farm, lot 23, second concession, of Thurlow. We find that they were accidentally killed and no blame can be attached to any railway employees.

This was the verdict, rendered by the jury at the inquest held at the police court last night before Coroner Dr. W. W. Boyce to determine where, how and by what means these two men came to their untimely end. It required but half an hour for the witnesses to submit their evidence as there were no eye-witnesses to the deplorable affair. E. C. Donnan appeared for the Crown and M. C. Mills of the local department of the Canadian National was present in the interests of the railroad.

SERGT. RAE

Sergt. Rae of the Provincial forces was the first witness called. He produced six pictures taken of the wrecked car and the location of the crossing. These were examined by Crown Attorney Donnan.

OFFICER MACLACHLAN

Officer Maclachlan recently appointed to the local district of the Provincial police was next sworn. He investigated the case. He said the track could be viewed for a distance of one mile on each side of the crossing.

FREDERICK WALSH

Frederick Walsh, Brockville, engineer of train number 27 which hit the ill-fated car was called. He said he had been in the service as an engine driver for seven years. He stated that no provision was made as to a warning whistle at this crossing. He did not see the car approaching the right of way as he was watching from the north side of the cab. Mr. Walsh said he did not realize an accident had occurred until he felt the impact of the crash. He estimated the speed of the train as forty-five to fifty miles an hour. The wind was blowing from the southwesterly direction and this might have been in a small sense responsible for the accident." He said he applied the brakes as soon as he heard the crash. When he first saw the bodies they lay within thirty feet of the crossing.

EDMUND BOLTON

Edmund Bolton, fireman, of Brockville, on number 27, testified he was in the cab with Walsh at the time of the accident and saw nothing whatever of what took place. He has been fourteen years on the road. Engine brakes are maintained at public crossings but not at private ones.

MRS. A. MITCHELL

Mrs. A. Mitchell who resides at the place where the men were killed, said she saw them a few minutes previous to the occurrence. The men were not familiar with the crossing to her knowledge. Could not testify as to whether car had side curtains attached or not. The gates at either side of the tracks had not been kept closed all winter.

Arthur Buxton, a farm hand in the employ of the Mitchell's, did not see the actual happening but heard the whistle of the train three or four minutes previous. This completed the evidence.

S.S. CONVENTION HEAR ADDRESSES ELECT OFFICERS

Next Year's Meeting at Rednersville—Report Contributed

The annual convention of the Ameliasburg S. S. Association was held on Friday, April 9, 1926, at Centre Church. A good crowd was in attendance. The opening song service was led by Rev. M. E. Wilson of Ameliasburg. The hymns that were sung were No. 133,418,113—which all joined in very heartily. It was moved by Mr. J. E. Glenn and seconded by Mr. N. G. Stafford that Miss Audra Brickman act as press reporter. Following this was an address of welcome by Mr. N. G. Stafford. Mr. Stafford on behalf of the people of Centre, extended a hearty welcome to everyone. Responded to by Mr. Lorne Brickman. Following this were two selections by the Orchestra.

The address was given by the President, Mr. Eldon Wall. He spoke particularly to the boys and girls, saying each one has a part to do in the Sunday School. He also emphasized the Temperance question and the force of habit and building of character. We need to be very careful and not build one-sided. Following this was the minutes of the last convention given by the Secretary, Mr. J. E. Glenn. Following this was a solo by Miss Audra Brickman.

A talk on the Ten Point Standard was very ably given by Mrs. Alfred Hillman. The ten point standard starts with the little ones in the home. Then the home department. Those two departments should go hand in hand because when the babies are put on the cradle roll the mothers should be put on the home department. Organized classes and teacher training is one great necessity to train teachers for the great work which is ahead of all to do. Then the Missionary Department teaches the children about the missionaries and the wonderful work they are doing and it trains them to give to everyone.

WAGER IS NOW IN STATE PRISON

Had Long Career in Crime Since He Was Discharged From C.E.F.

Lowville, N.Y., April 23.—Seven times arrested and accused of crime, three times convicted of grand larceny in the United States, an unfortunate veteran of the World War, debonair Duane Wagar, 24, of Enterprise, Ont., was taken Monday afternoon by Sheriff Schell to the state prison at Auburn, where the bleak gray walls will surround him for the next five years, as the result of his having entered five business places in Glengarry and Beaver Falls, taking a considerable amount of money and clothing less the three weeks ago.

To newspaper men here since his arrest Wagar has told much of his early life, how he served with a Canadian battalion in France where he contracted heart trouble and was invalided home.

HIGH WINDS BLOW OUT NEWLY SEEDED GRAIN

Mid-Summer Heat Also Plays Havoc With Western Fields.

Winnipeg, Man., April 22.—Winds of hurricane velocity have prevailed for two days over Manitoba and Saskatchewan blowing out much newly-seeded grain. Eighty in the shade has added to the havoc wrought in the newly-seeded fields. Forecasts of rain through the West promise some relief. Seeding in many sections was rendered impossible.

GOVERNMENT IS READY TO MEET AUTO PROTESTS

Grooms Itself to Meet Huge Delegation From Ontario Towns

Ottawa, April 23.—With the Government grooming itself to meet the motor delegation from the towns and cities where automobiles are manufactured, and with the Progressive group continuing to offer vigorous opposition to any change in the tariff reductions, the budget debate continued steadily in the House of Commons. General J. C. Clark, of Burrard, and Hon. Edmund Bristol, of Toronto, emphasized the Conservative position, and maintained in well-reasoned speeches that a considered and adequate tariff was the only policy under which Canada could prosper.

General Clark, in addition to clearly outlining the position of the automobile industry, as a result of the most recent tariff cuts, threw new light upon the effect of the reductions in the income tax. General Clark dealt with the income tax from the viewpoint of industry and investors and clearly showed that the change while reducing the tax on the smaller incomes would tend to discourage investment in Canadian enterprises.

The new tax, he declared, would concentrate the burden upon corporations and upon the wealthy, with the result that a further hesitancy would be displayed in providing money for necessary developments. The change in the method of taxation, would, he believed, prove a bad thing for the country as a whole.

The position of the Government with regard to war taxes was another point to which General Clark had apparently given a degree of study. He emphasized that the Government was collecting in war taxes far more money than was required to meet the interest on that part of the national debt directly due to the war.

The excess was, he said, often vitals of the power of the Government to collect, and he wondered why interested parties had not challenged the right of the Government to enforce the collection.

MORE LIGHT ON SILK SEIZURE AND ITS EFFECT

Hon. J. Bureau Can Tell Why R.C.M.P. Were Withdrawn

Ottawa, April 23.—Senator Jacques Bureau, former Minister of Customs, is the man who can tell the Stevens Committee why seizure of Parisian silk gowns worth $6,791, smuggled into Quebec in the fall of 1923 by Mlle. Denise Larde, constituted the occasion for withdrawing the Royal Canadian Mounted Police from surveillance of anti-smuggling operations in the port and district of Quebec.

This much the committee established in trying to unravel the efforts to shatter the mystery. The Larde seizure and arrest, made in a perfectly regular manner by Sergeant F. W. Ellsworth, so far as W. F. Wilson, chief of the customs preventive service could see, was the subject of a talk between the minister and the preventive chief, it was learned. And from that talk arose a letter written by Mr. Wilson to the commissioner of the R.C.M.P. ordering "arrests are not to be made by officers without instructions from me." That command was attached specifically to circumstances similar to the Denise Lardé seizure," not to silk smuggling from the United States or Iran running.

So far has the committee progressed. How, to throw more light on what may have passed in the Customs Department councils of the great, R. F. Farrow, Deputy Minister of Customs, is being summoned to appear.

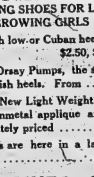

On Monday three witnesses from Quebec, whose names were not announced at the probe, will be heard to try and assist the committee in finding out if really Mlle. Larde received on board the liner a letter from a Quebec resident which she was to deliver to Michael Bolger, senior examining officer, who is charged with having ordered her trunks passed unopened, but who says he got no such letter and opened the baggage examined.

NEW COLLEGIATE TO COST COUNCIL ABOUT $225,000

Delegation From Board of Education Before Civic Committees

WOULD BEGIN AT ONCE

Aim is To Have Building Closed in by Next Winter

A majority of the members of the Board of Education last evening appeared before the members of the City Council at the Executive meeting in reference to the proposed new collegiate.

Mr. John Elliott, chairman of the Board introduced the delegation to the city fathers and he explained the object of the conference. That it was essential to build a collegiate there could be no doubt, and it was desirable to commence the work as soon as possible in order that the building might be closed in before next winter.

This would also mean considerable work for Belleville mechanics and workmen. The speaker also referred to the fact that while it was estimated that the proposed new building according to sketch plans prepared would cost approximately $400,000 the City Council would by no means be compelled to provide that sum as from 40 to 45 per cent of the cost would be provided by the Provincial Government. It was also said that the city's share of the cost would be about $225,000.

Messrs. H. W. Ackerman, A. McGill, J. Bone, Col. W. N. Ponton and others of the delegation who were present endorsed the remarks of the chairman.

After hearing the deputation and thanking the members of the Board for the information imparted, it was decided that an executive committee meeting would be held on Monday evening. Next preceding the Council meeting when the matter in question will be duly considered and some definite action taken.

"Let there be harmony in things essential—liberty in things not essential—Charity in all."

WHEN PEOPLE SUFFER

By a count of heads, it would probably be found that the reduction in the duties on motor vehicles pleases more people than it offends. Everybody who had intended to buy a car, everyone who hopes to be able soon to buy one, is naturally pleased that he won't have to pay as much as he would have had to pay if the tariff had remained unchanged. It can safely be said that the change is popular.

But not suffering has been relieved by the reduction—no great hardship has been removed. The man who could afford to pay six or eight hundred dollars for a car, but wouldn't get one because he objected to paying nine hundred or a thousand dollars, was hardly a subject for consideration. He could do without a car and yet manage to get a fair degree of happiness out of life.

While those who will be adversely affected by the reduction in duty may not be so numerous as those who will be benefitted, the former class will actually suffer. Some three score of them will be deprived of their means of livelihood. Many of them will probably be compelled to leave the country in search of work—in fact not a few have left already. And the wives and children of these men will of course share their suffering.

One wonders whether many of the class to which the government catered—the users of motor cars and those who want to use them—are not unselfish enough to wish that these thousands of honest, hard-working Canadians who are to be deprived of employment might be kept at their jobs, even though the cars were to cost a few dollars more.

The fact that the minister undertook to make the drastic tariff cut off his own bat, without waiting for advice from the new tariff board, is good ground for criticism. It is the weak point in the budget program. This is perceived by the opposition: The amendment moved by Hon. Dr. Manion is not aimed at the tariff changes themselves, but at the precipitate manner of their introduction; and very pertinently the admendment makes the government the chief witness against itself by quoting from the speech from the throne, "Changes in the tariff", the governor-general was made to say, "should be made only after the fullest examination of their bearing upon both primary and manufacturing industries, and representations requesting increase or decrease of duties should be made the subject of the most careful investigation and report by a body possessing the necessary qualifications to advise the ministry with respect thereto. A tariff advisory board will accordingly be appointed forthwith."

If the services of the tariff board are needed at all, they must surely be needed in the case of tariff changes with such wide ramifications and involving such important effects as the changes in the schedule of duties on motor vehicles. The action of the government in ignoring the body which it had just called into existence for the reason that it is necessary must be regarded as strange—by inconsistent.

MR. TASCHEREAU'S DEMAND

Quebec province has a censorship board which censors picture films more strictly than do the authorities in the other provinces. So active has it been recently in blue-pencilling American films as being unfit for Quebec people to see, that the American film producers have given notice that unless the censorship is relaxed no more movies will go to Quebec. Inasmuch as almost all the moving pictures shown on this continent are American, the threatened boycott would, if put into effect, mean the ruining of all the picture houses in Quebec.

But Premier Taschereau is not daunted by the threat from over the border. He thinks he has in his hands a weapon with which to fight back most effectively. "If it is possible to boycott the province of Quebec for a moral reason," he says, "we will take up with the federal government the question of not permitting the other provinces to have the films which cannot enter our province, and I believe that Ottawa will grant our request."

Mr. Taschereau has a large faith in the dominating power of the Quebec group in the Dominion parliament, constituting as it does the bulk of the King government's supporters. He is confident that if they present an ultimatum to Mr. King to the effect that unless all American pictures films are barred from this country, despite the wishes of the people of the other eight provinces, until the American film producers will submit to the censorship of the Quebec authorities, the federal premier will yield to their demand.

Perhaps his confidence is justified But if the Quebec contingent were unwise enough to make such a demand and Mr. King were to yield to it, such a pitiable exhibition of weakness would do more to bring about the downfall of the government than would the commission of more serious sins. The concession would mean that the governments of eight provinces are incompetent to arrange for the proper censorship of picture films exhibited to their own people—that therefore it is right to have the public taste and sense of propriety of the people of eight provinces conform to the standards fixed by the Quebec censors, the Quebec government and its officials being the only Canadian provincial government and officials worthy to be trusted to safeguard the morals and taste of the Canadian people.

We do not think that the people of this province, even the King government's most ardent supporters, would subscribe to this assumption. Nor would the people of the western or the Maritime provinces.

One can admit that there is much in the average film which jars on good taste, and sometimes suggestive matter is introduced which were better omitted; but the offences are not so serious as to cause any general protest in Ontario and demands for more rigorous censorship. Should the need arise, however, the people of Ontario will claim the right to have their amusements regulated by their own officials, and not by the officials of Quebec or any other province.

THE JUDGE KNOWS

Judge Marcus Kavanagh of the Superior Court in Chicago says there is no mystery regarding the prevalence of lawlessness in the United States.

He quoted figures showing that there were at large in the United States "118,000 crimson-handed women and men who have unlawfully taken human life."

The judge went further to state that "evil-minded men in the United States have no respect for the law because their experience has shown that they need have little fear of its penalties."

Judge Kavanagh has stated the case so fearlessly and accurately that there is nothing that can be added.

"WE STAND BY GUNS" CRY OF BOTH SIDES AT OTTAWA

met Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P. in Room 605 of the main building at one o'clock.

THE MEMORIAL

The memorial presented to Premier King and the cabinet in opposition to the proposed tariff changes, by the deputation, declared that the tariff reductions, if carried out would have a disastrous effect on the various communities. It was pointed out that the 35% duty on motor cars was imposed nearly 25 years ago by the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and up to the present had been disturbed by no succeeding government.

Under this protection millions of dollars had been invested in the motor car industry in Ontario. It was held that before such drastic action as the budget proposed, should become law, a thorough investigation into conditions surrounding the industry should be made.

The memorial continued, "After the most mature consideration, it is the settled conviction of our respective communities entirely independent of party affiliations, that should such a drastic reduction become effective in the manner at present proposed, a staggering blow will be dealt our communities, a grievous wrong inflicted upon thousands of workingmen and a great injustice done to millions of invested capital throughout the Dominion.

"We therefore humbly pray that before the blow falls your government will refer this entire matter to the tariff board."

Reference was made in the memorial to the Prime Minister's speech delivered in Oshawa before the last election in which the statement was made that if the Liberal Government were returned to power no act of theirs would injure any industry in Oshawa, and to subsequent speech of the Premier's when he declared that the only way to deal with the tariff was through a tariff advisory board. The deputation submitted that if that was the only way to handle the question before the last election it was the only way to handle it now.

"Permanent" Civic Holiday Recommended to Council 1st Monday of Aug. Favored

Belleville is to have the first Monday in August as civic holiday as a permanent annual fixture if Council passes a recommendation going forward to it from the Executive committees passed at last night's meeting.

There is evidently quite a large volume of public support for such a move and the Council is expected to O.K. the bylaw. Recommendations were:

That His Worship the Mayor, Ald. Wilmot and the City Solicitor be a committee to meet representatives from the Kingston General Hospital re the account against the city for the maintenance of Mrs. Nellie Payne.

That the Boy Scout organization be allowed the use of the city hall free of charge for a recent entertainment.

That the request of the Salvation Army for the privilege of holding a tag day on May 22nd in connection with their annual self-denial campaign be granted.

That F. M. Clarke and W. A. Woodley be the nominees of the City Council for reappointment on the Mothers' Allowance Commission.

That the petition for a sanitary sewer on Murray street from Pinnacle street to West Moira street be complied with and a bylaw be prepared authorizing construction of same.

That the City Engineer accept the lowest prices on tenders for castings, cement, gravel and sewer pipe supplies for the year 1926.

That the application of J. Rigby for permission to establish a gas tank on his property on Bleecker Avenue be referred to the City Engineer for a report as to the location of the pump.

That the City Clerk write the City Solicitor and instruct him to defer action in the matter of Batty and Dolan re a lien fence.

That the City Engineer be instructed to make the necessary arrangements for surfacing and treating of the macadam roadways suitable for such work with such flooring to those authorized by the road officials and bylaw in force.

That the prayer of a petition for a concrete sidewalk on west side of Dufferin Avenue be complied with.

That the city engineer and chairman of Public Works interview the Council of the Township of Thurlow regarding their paying part of the cost of the construction of a sanitary sewer on College street from East Moira to St. Charles streets.

THIRD BY-LAW

That a bylaw be prepared appointing the first Monday in August in each year and every year the annual civic holiday for the city of Belleville.

That the police department be instructed to make a complete survey of all the license holders under the city bylaws respecting such licenses and order all defaulters to take out their proper licenses forthwith and also see that all other parties which should have a local license under any of the city bylaws forthwith make application for such licenses.

That Aldermen Collins and Duff be a committee to meet the committee of the Parks Board to draw up a recommendation as to employment by the Parks Board of the City Engineer and the City Solicitor.

WHAT IS SPORT

Motion, emotion and drama...
Something at last that is real;
Tragedy, comedy, glory,
With a tingle from head down to heel;
Action, excitement and color,
Real ache and sorrow and pain,
Built from the human equipment,
Carved from the heart, nerve or brain.

Here comes a kid out of nowhere;
Millions soon leap to his name;
There goes a star who is fading,
Hurled from his zenith of fame;
Going and coming they travel,
Like the ships that pass in the dark,
One who is failing to ashes,
One who has just caught the spark.

"Hail and Farewell!" is the slogan,
There is no anchor or rest;
Kings earn their thrones in the kingdom.
Princes are put to the test;
There is no place for the failure
Here in the world's hardest school;
"The old king is dying," you whisper.
There cheers for the next one to rule!

GRANTLAND RICE

Tex Richard's decision as a promoter may be revoked and his garden with be declared null and void for boxing if he matches up Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney.

The New York boxing commission has been handing the involved heavyweight case on the cheery that a writ rant would be sufficient to prevent Rickard from arranging a match in which Harry Wills was not the challenger, but soon seven punishment has been decided on now.

The new and more definite turn in the situation, developed on the announcement that Rickard was in Fort Worth to sign Dempsey for a bout against the former Marine.

It is altogether likely that the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds will play again this winter under Detroit colors, but no definite word of this has been forthcoming. Lack of facilities and support at the Soo necessitated the change, it is said and Detroit promoters are willing to take the team over and carry along.

Recreation Alleys

In the mixed competition at the Recreation Alleys Miss M. Lynch and D. Doran are again in the lead with a total high score of 1182 followed by Miss E. Whalen and G. Anderson with 1112. This competition lasts until May 1st and no doubt will be raided a good many times before the competition closes.

Only one league game was played at the Recreation Alleys last night the Pontiacs and the Hardware breaking even on the night's play with two wins each. The Hardware won the first two games and had a comfortable lead going into the final game, but the Ponies not to be outdone came back strong and not only won the last game but counted in other point on the total. High bowlers were Mitchell 627 and D. Tobe 577.

PONIES—Holland 486; Drumm 540; Mitchell 627; Cummins 441; Leagull 655; total 2749.

BATSTONE WILL PLAY IN KINGSTON

Star Third Baseman Not to Be With Hillcrests This Summer

Kingston, April 23.—Absolute denial to the story emanating from Toronto to the effect that Manager Lee Bateson would play baseball this summer for the Toronto Hillcrests, was given by the baseball star here, who stated that he will be here this summer and will play for the local C. O. B. L. team.

Batstone has finished his examinations at Queens, and is going to Toronto to spend a week at his home. He will return after that and will be back on the job as third base for the C.O.B.L. team.

Batstone last year was the leading batter in the C.O.B.L. and held the third base in fine style. He is a valuable member of the team, and while Hillcrests maintain that they will have him this summer, there is no truth to the story. It apparently is a case of the wish being father to the thought.

TODT'S TWO HOMERS BEAT YANKEES 9-8
IN TEN HOT INNINGS

New York, April 23.—Phil Todt, first baseman of the Boston Red Sox, fanned at the Yankee Stadium Thursday and began swinging homers right and left. The first one staggered the Yanks and the second knocked them out of first place with a dull thud that could be heard all over the house. The Red Sox won in the tenth inning, 9 to 8, and all

ALEMITE TEAMS WALLOP C. N. R. BY 22-6 SCORE

Lubricators Sitting Pretty With Four Wins, No Losses

A new light was shed on the indoor league last night when the Alemites took the Canadian National team into camp by the overwhelming score of 22 to 6. The lubricators have won four straight games and are now in an excellent position to go into the finals with the Point Anne team. This game will be played next Tuesday night and should be closer than the Junior-Point Anne game of last Tuesday night.

In Johnny Kerr they have a nice little pitcher who has good control and a fairly fast ball.

"Scotty" Knox on the receiving end is one of the best catchers in the league. He is a real hard worker and handles Kerr's pitching in real style.

Built around these two is a fast infield who gobble up everything in sight.

The outfield is mediocre but makes few errors. They are exceptionally good with the willow as evidenced last night when they batted Hurley to all corners of the lot and the unfortunate never threatened to overtake them.

Page of the Alemites managed to get on the paths five times and was responsible for a quartette of tallies.

The Alemites struck the first strong team last night and certainly made a good job of it. If they win over Point Anne Tuesday night they will be right in line for the championship.

Kerr kept the bits of the losers well scattered throughout the piece. A good crowd watched the game from the gallery.

High School 19; Ciacos 6

The Ciacos trotted out a new team but were not strong enough to down the High School. Napkin had the Corbyville bunch hitting at the high pace all evening. The students started off strong and five tallies crossed the plate in the initial frame. However when the Ciacos got their bearings they played a steadier brand of ball and held the scholars to a quintette of runs during the remaining six innings.

Napkin pitched fair ball but his infield were fast behind him and nothing went by.

Barriage was inclined to be erratic at times but did fairly well.

Lapcentie provided the fielding features by grabbing two hot liners at his shoe strings.

Both teams are out of the running and as a consequence interest in this game was exceedingly low.

Nothing much was the matter of it when Phillip faced a homer into the right field bleachers in the sixth, but the 10,000 cash customers became very indignant when he did the same thing in the tenth, because that meant that the Indians were idle, passed he Yankees and went into the lead.

Just a few minutes before Babe Ruth had tied the score personally and unaided by making a wild dash around the base paths. Mr. Ruth hammered a long fl y in left centre and tore around to third, where he arrived in a cloud of glory and dust when Haney dropped the ball.

Picking himself up and brushing off his hair after a headlong slide, the Bambino set himself for another thrilling upeint when Bob Meusel raised a short fly to Flagstead. It looked suicidal to try to score, but Ruth flew down the third base line and took another nose dive. He hit Alex Gaston with so much force that Alex also dropped the ball while the Babe was scrambling over the plate on his nose and right ear.

All this good work, however, went for Sox won in the tenth, 9 to 8, and all naught. At the Red Sox opened their

GEROW'S HURLERS ARE WARMING UP IN FINE STYLE

Oulette, Gerow and Other Players Busy on B.H.S. Campus

Walter Gerow along with three other players were warming up on the High School campus last night.

Gillie Goyer was the one and only surfer on hand, Oulette failed to put in an appearance. Goyer appears to be in excellent shape and looks real good. He spent about three quarters of an hour practicing with Walt Gerow acting as catcher. Goyer lost some tough games last season but with a stronger team behind him will no doubt do much better this year.

"Hoot" Gibson along with Goodfellow a new comer completed the squad. Manager Gerow will hold nightly workouts on the High School ground till the exhibition ground dries up which will probably be at least a week as it is in rather bad shape at present.

Manager Gerow and the officers of the club are optimistic over the season's prospects and local fans should witness some good baseball. A number of enthusiasts were on hand to watch the players go through their motions.

Letters To The Editor

TO BELLEVILLE INTERESTED!
To the Editor of the Intelligencer:
Is Belleville interested in the success of the Canadian auto vehicle manufacturing industry? Yes.
We may not be directly interested but no doubt the products of Belleville industries are used to some extent in the auto industry. At any rate the people who are employed in the auto industry in Canada use locks, cement, abrasive, figure, shirts, spectacles, electric irons and toasters and other products made here and our railway employees all the time. It may be difficult to tell us what is adequate protection in the auto industry but it is claimed that the Budget proposal is not, and all the auto industry asks is to refer the matter to the Government's special Tariff Board for full consideration. This seems a reasonable request. The Conservatives and the Liberals approve of adequate protection to Canadian industries. The so called Progressives are undoubtedly opposed to protection. Their method is to attack each industry separately, as old and economical foes of welfare. When they attack some of the Belleville industries we cannot consistently call for help from others if we have not rallied to the help of others. If we do not cooperate we may wake up some day to find that this tireless little group of so called Progressives have killed protection in spite of the fact that they represent only a small minority.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT GRIFFIN'S

At last she is just a kid.

Beneath the veneer of fame and fortune thrust upon her the flame of youth burns. Life to her is no different today than it was yesterday. Her veins are filled with young blood. It is doubtful if she will ever grow old, for at heart she's just a youngster, the youngster she used to be.

That you may believe, is the reason why Colleen Moore enjoys such a wonderful time in her latest First National picture, "Irene," at Griffin's.

Laid in the tenement district of New York, where kids are kids, the opening scenes of "Irene" are enlivened by a group of twenty-five youngsters who play Miss Moore's role in the ringleader.

And, oh, the fun they have—in the streets. But that isn't the sory. Go and see it.

AT THE BELLE

Because the jester's costume in the stage presentation of "In the Palace of the King" fitted nicely both Arthur Hoyt and William Norris, the former re ceived his start on the road to fame and fame, which has brought him to a featured part in "The Coming of Amos" filmed at the DeMille Studio, starring Rod La Rocque, and which opens today for a 2 run at the Belle Theatre.

Norris was playing the jester's role with sensational success some fifteen years ago when he became ill in Chicago, and Hoyt, who was then in the secure part in the same play, was hurried by put into his costume and his character. His excellent portrayal of the jester attracted a stage aficonado established him as a talented actor, and he has maintained this reputation since leaving the stage for he screen.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"I'll bring you some flowers, Arol, she said, nodding at him.

"Bring some roses on your own cheeks, my dear," said the old lady.

Constance went down the great stairs.

The sun was sinking in the west, and purging a crimson stream of light upon the lawn and flower beds, and warming with a rose tint the marble balustrade.

Constance walked slowly up and down for a few minutes, drinking in the air and the beauty of the scene. How familiar it had grown, and how lovable! It would be harder to leave it now, even than it had been before for she had been treated more as a guest and a relative than as a dependent, and Arol had twined himself more closely than ever about her heart.

With a feeling of sadness and melancholy, she leaned upon the balustrade, and nestling her head upon her hand, looked dreamily across the lawn, so lost in thought that she did not hear a step near her until it was close behind her. Then she turned her head with a little start and saw the marquis.

"This is a glad night," he said, coming and standing beside her.

She thought he meant the sunset, but looking up at him, saw that his eyes were fixed on her, and she turned her head aside.

"You have come out at last," he said. "This afternoon I had intended insisting upon your coming down stairs and into the garden. Did you think we had grown quite heartless?"

"Oh, no, my lord," she said, with a smile; "but I did not want to come. How beautiful it is! I—I must go back now."

"Because I have come?" he said in a low voice. "Ah, Constance, why do you avoid me?"

She could not turn and leave him, for that would have been assenting to his speech.

"I—do not avoid you, my lord."

"Yes," he said, slowly, and as if he were trying to master his emotion and speak quite naturally and quietly, "Yes, you do. Do you think I do not know it—and feel it? When I come into the room you shrink be hind that curtain. You avoid any conversation with me. Once or twice you have got up and left the room that you might not be forced to speak to me."

Constance tried to speak now, but she could not.

"Are you so afraid of me, or is it that you—dislike me?"

Constance's heart beat painfully.

"My lord—" she faltered.

"It is that you have not forgiven me for the words I spoke that night in the drawing-room? Have they made you distrust—hate me?"

He had drawn nearer to her, and laid his clinched hand on the balustrade, his face pale and almost haggard in its intensity, his voice deep and anxious, and thrilling her through and through with its suppressed emotion.

"Constance, this cannot go on—I can not endure it any longer. For days past I have been trying to find courage to get away from the place, but I can't while you are here; and I feel, I know, that if you were to go I must follow. Yes, for I cannot live without you! Do you hear me, Constance?"

He put his hand upon hers, and imprisoned it, throbbing and quivering.

"I cannot live without you. Dearest, dearest, I love you better with each succeeding day. I count the hours that creep along till I shall see you next. The moment I spend with you are the only happy ones in my day. Ah, Constance, I thought I could give you up, but—she drew a long breath—"I cannot! You are to me as the very breath I draw. Why, dearest, think of it! You know I loved you, and in my need there, an angel of mercy and succor, be side that child's bed—to see your sweet face with its loving smile day after day, how could it be other wise than that my love should grow? Constance if I had not already loved you I should love you now."

Constance hid her face in her hands and listened. No word could have left her lips if her life had depended on it.

"And now the moment has come when I must cast the die. Ah, dearest, if you knew how great the stake is at risk Constance, do you remember what passed between us that night I told you of my love?"

Her silence answered him.

"I held you in my arms then, I had spoken the words that showed you my heart, and yet I—I let you go without an answer. Ah, if you knew what it cost me!"

He drew a long breath, and his hand tightened on hers.

"I thought I was strong enough to let you go—I am not now. My love has made me weak—yes, weak! Constance, I am going to trust you, I am going to try you. Listen, dearest, for let your answer be what it will, you will always be the dearest woman in the world to me, Dearest," he made a music of the word that rang in every chord of her heart, "if by great good fortune, too good for my deserts, I had won your love, could you trust me? Knowing nothing of the past, the past that hangs over me like a shadow, a shadow that will never leave me, though in the sunlight of your presence it sometimes almost fades away and is lost—knowing nothing of this, would you be content to ask nothing respecting it, to remain in ignorance?"

He paused a moment, and she listened still in silence.

"The shadow may grow into a cloud that may fall and overwhelm me. If you will give me your love I will your love—dislike me!"

Constance's heart beat painfully.

"My lord—" she faltered.

"It is that you have not forgiven me for the words I spoke that night in the drawing-room? Have they made you distrust—hate me?"

He had drawn nearer to her, and laid his clinched hand on the balustrade, his face pale and almost haggard in its intensity, his voice deep and anxious, and thrilling her through and through with its suppressed emotion.

"Constance, this cannot go on—I can not endure it any longer. For days past I have been trying to find courage to get away from the place, but I can't while you are here; and I feel, I know, that if you were to go I must follow. Yes, for I cannot live without you! Do you hear me, Constance?"

"I cannot live without you. Dearest, dearest, I love you better with each succeeding day. I count the hours that creep along till I shall see you next. The moment I spend with you are the only happy ones in my day. Ah, Constance, I thought I could give you up, but"

OTTAWA FLOODS STILL DANGEROUS ONE LIFE LOST

Cottages Along "Bank" of Rideau Buried Six Feet in Water

Ottawa, Ont., April 24.—Floods of the Rideau River, about Ottawa had receded a few inches this morning according to word received from Billings Bridge which is the center of the flooded area.

Civic and Rideau Canal officials are keeping a close watch on the situation as there is a big ice jam at a log boom across Mooney's Bay a few miles west of the city and should it break it is feared flood conditions about Ottawa would be aggravated by the rush of water and ice which would follow.

Meanwhile conditions at Billings Bridge, Ottawa South, Hardman's Bridge and Eastview (suburbs of the capital) remain unchanged with hundreds of cellars flooded. In many cases the water is over the second floors of buildings. Cottages along what was formerly the river bank are in some cases in water six feet deep. DROWNED IN RIDEAU

Smith's Falls, Ont., April 24.—The swollen waters of the Rideau River claimed a victim yesterday, Arthur Waddell, a retired baker of the town was drowned when the boat from which he was sporting fish, capsized near Poonahmee three miles from Smith's Falls. His body, lying in four feet of water and only ten feet from shore was recovered by Indians at 7 o'clock last evening.

CANADA SHOULD FORGE TO FRONT BY AGRICULTURE

Municipal Bankers Corporation Officials Here For Banquet

Canada is on the eve of a great era of prosperity and only with the co-operation of the Agriculturists and the Government can it succeed. This was the keynote of the various addresses delivered last night at the Quinte at the first banquet and get together of the Municipal Bankers Corporation ever held here.

Canada with its many natural resources and unlimited possibilities should take its place with the leading nations of the world.

Agriculturists of this district were the chief guests of the association.

Sir William Hearst K.C.M.G., K. C., L.L.D.; former Premier of Ontario and an officer of the Association was expected to be present but illness at the last minute prevented him being here.

Sir John Williams, President of the corporation, was recently married and is honeymooning in the States.

Hon. Dr. Jamieson, Chairman of Agriculture in the legislature, T. A. Neely member of the executive committee of the Corporation and John Elliot, manager of the Belleville branch of the Standard Bank were the speakers.

Colonel Ponton brilliantly and complimentarily presided as toastmaster of the evening. In his opening remarks he said we must look forward to the time when Canada will become a great centre of the world, where poets and philosophers and leaders will be found. He alluded to the significance of St. George's day, April 23rd, an anniversary of those stirring days of 1914 when the Canadians saved the day at St. Julien and Lanercost and showed their mettle, in the greatest of battles.

He welcomed the visitors from Toronto, Picton, Deseronto, Napanee and other points.

H. W. Ackerman proposed the first toast to the "Legislature of the Province of Ontario."

This was responded to by W. H. Ireland member for West Hastings and J. P. Hill representative of East Hastings. Mr. Ireland in his remarks said, "We must educate our young men to go back, instead of to the City." He dealt with its great fertile farming lands presents great possibilities and that we must "Preach in greater thunder" success." "In the Hydro Electric we have the greatest system in the world with the development of the St. Lawrence when the power can be diverted to the farmers who really need it."

J. T. Hill eulogized the work of the Municipal Bankers Corporation and said it was through their assistance that the great bisher and rail terminal in Toronto was financed.

Colonel Ponton, referred to the great development of minerals in Hastings county which produces talc, feldspar and asbestos in unlimited quantities.

E. E. Argue, of Deseronto, proposed a toast to the Association. He said he had been connected for one year with the institution and it had been one of the most profitable years of his life. He vouched for the high character and sound investment of the whole institution.

T. A. Neely, f Toronto, a member of the executive committee, told of his experiences with the Municipal Bankers Corporation. The officers have worked to retain the confidence

BOLTON DEFEATS MANCHESTER CITY IN FINAL FOR CUP

Scored Only Goal in Great Match Before 90,000 People

Wembley, Eng., April 24.—Several men were hurt today in fist fights which resulted from attacks by the enraged crowds of football fans on the gentlemanly ticket speculators selling tickets for the final game of the English Cup. Police were forced to come to the rescue of the spectators several times. It was estimated that there were ninety thousand people present in Wembley Stadium, when the Manchester City and Bolton Wanderers teams came on the field. The King had the play, ers introduced to him and shook hands with them amidst a roar of applause.

London, April 24.—Bolton Wanderers won the English Football Association Cup, emblematic of the soccer champion ship of England today at Wembley Stadium defeating Manchester city by one goal to nothing.

This game had a special interest for Canadian soccer fans this year, from the fact that two players on the Bolton Wanderers' team are on the all-star team which comes to Canada next month. They are Joe Smith and David Jack. Both players are deadly shots at the net, as shown by the fact that out of the 18 goals scored by Bolton in this particular series Smith has tallied six times, and Jack four times. This was the first time in many years for two Lan cashire teams to meet in the final game.

The road to Wembley is a long and laborious one, full of pitfalls, and the result is the unexpected often happens. The unexpected happened in the case of Manchester City, struggling to avoid relegation at the foot of the league table. A few months ago few would have found to predict that Manchester City would reach the final, so erratic were the Blue Skirts performing.

Nor was Bolton's league form impressive. They, too, gave their supporters cause for worry at various times, especially in the present series, when Bournemouth and Notts Forest held the more famous Lancashire outfit to tie scores, making replays necessary.

The English cup competition stands supreme as a drawing power. Not including today's crowd of 90,000, the entire up to date—a total of 153 games—has attracted an aggregate attendance of 3,003,264, and receipts have been £206,2114. They take their football seriously in the British Isles

CHAIR SEEKS REFUGE

Mr. Mercier Invokes Bourinot — Sharp Struggle Begins Monday

Ottawa, April 23.—Reeling under the merciless pounding the Conservatives have given the Government all this week throwin linking smuggling with political influence, Liberal forces on the Stevens committee launched a desperate counter-attack by announcing they will throw back the probe to the days of 1919 and 1920 with the hope of barring evils within Conservative administration of the customs Department.

STRANGE HANDWRITING

Dugald Donaghy, late Liberal battler from North Vancouver, led the Liberal procession. A pile of thirty-seven motions, couched in strange handwriting and set forth on paper from which the letterhead had been torn away, he called for departmental files covering seizures in the pre-Liberal Government days. He struck gold with the days of 1919 and 1920 when the hope of barring evils within Conservative administration of the customs Department.

KING ATTACKED FOR BREAKING HIS PROMISES

Had Given Assurance There Would Be No Big Tariff Cuts

OTTAWA, April 24.—Reduction in the tariff duties on motor cars continues to be the feature of the budget debate, the House of Commons occupying itself largely with a consideration of the proposal against this reduction made by the representatives of communities affected and the Government's reply thereto. Western Liberals and Progressives are taking to themselves at the present stage of the debate the ask of supporting the reduction; while Conservatives are condemning the action of the Government on the ground that the question of the automobile tariff should have been referred to the new advisory tariff board. Opposition members are alleging that the course of the ministry was dictated by the Progressives.

John Millar, Progressive member for Qu'Appelle, argued that the former duty on motor cars had been obviously too high and he declined to be impressed by the protests of the delegation that had invaded the capital. Mr. Miller's statements were productive of a series of interruptions from Conservative members, who regarded them as an admission that the Progressives were responsible for the tariff reductions.

"We have not taken action hastily," declared the Progressive member, when upon J. H. Chaplin, Conservative of Lincoln, wanted to know if it was not the Government that had taken action.

"This is for government" suggested an other opposition member, pointing in the direction of the third party.

PREMIER KINGS PROMISE

C. B. Nicholson, of Algoma, was the principal speaker for the opposition. He maintained that there was no argument for the Government's treatment of the motor car industry. That industry had relied, he had others, on the assurance of the Prime Minister that there would be no further drastic tariff reductions before the Government had secured the advice of its tariff board. What industry, Mr. Nicholson asked, could consider itself safe? Canadian enterprise was discouraged by the uncertainty as to where the Government would strike the next time.

MR. JOHN ELLIOTT

In proposing the toast to agriculture Mr. John Elliott observed that in his heart agriculture is next to the Church. Agriculturists are taking a foremost place in the upbuilding of the Dominion. We have today in Britain an unlimited demand for Bay of Quinte cheese and are now exporting forty percent of this product from the Dominion to the Motherland. If eighty percent could be shipped it would find a ready market. He urged farmers to increase their stock of cows as at present enough milk to keep the cheese factories busy cannot be produced. In 1923 the shipments of cheese exceeded that of 1924 by 300,000 boxes and this resulted in an increase in revenue of $4,000,000. The speaker catalogued agriculture as the foremost industry of the country. We have in Toronto at the present time a better set of agriculturists than ever before declared Mr. Elliott.

HON. DR. JAMIESON

Hon. Dr. Jamieson, Chairman of Agriculture for the Province of Ontario, in opening said he had advocated a Board of Trade for Toronto, namely, the telephone, rural mail delivery and good roads. These should become a part of the farmer's interest.

He spoke of the high price and poor quality of feed in the stock-yards. The price has been cut from $40 to $32 a ton which meant a saving of $60,000 a year which eventually goes into the pockets of the farmer.

He pointed out the decided need of lime on the soil. Limestone fertilizes the soil and is especially required in the raising of peas and corn. Freight rates on lime have been reduced and it can now be put on the land at a cost of $5.00 a ton to the farmer.

CATTLE EXPORTS

He dwelt on the improvement of conditions as to the cattle trade. For thirty years an embargo was placed on lattle trade between Great Britain and Canada. This has now been lifted and Canada exports a large percentage of cattle to the Mother Country.

He quoted figures to show the increased exportation of beef. In 1924, 53,000 hundred weight were placed on the British market while 1925 statistics showed that over 100,000 hundred weight had been shipped.

Canadians are now producing a better bread of bacon and a better brand of hog which is gradually replacing the product of foreign countries. The European Countries are getting back to normal after the hectic years of the world war and the products of Russia and Balkan countries must be contended with. Investigations as to cattle exportation was held and now a new trans-Atlantic line has been organized and with better facilities and experienced men on the job, trade is increasing. A toast to the Press was proposed by Mr. Grange of Napanee, and was replied to by Messrs. Fitzsimmons and Cameron of Toronto.

Major R. D. Ponton proposed a toast to the ladies and Miss McCrae of the staff of the Bankers' Municipal Corporation replied in an especially capable manner.

Prof. Wheatley, A.R.C.O., presided at the piano and James Bankier delighted the guests with three solos.

Over fifty men were seated about the festive board.

A Blemished Skin

Cannot be Relieved by Salves and Ointments.

Irritating sores, pimples, eczema, salt rheums and other skin disorders are all signs of distress, telling that your blood is weak or impure. You cannot get rid of eczema and other skin troubles with ointments and outward applications, because the trouble is rooted in the blood and can only be removed by purifying and enriching the blood. This has been proved over and over again. Among those who have thus benefited is Mrs. Chris. P. Hummel, Castor, Alta., who says:—"I was troubled with eczema for years and although I tried many remedies I did not find permanent relief until I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When over I did a little work my hands inflamed me greatly, especially my fingers and joints which were swollen and cracked, so that I could scarcely move them. Finally as the result of a statement I read, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I had not been taking them very long when I found they were helping me. I then got a dozen boxes and before they were all gone every trace of the trouble had disappeared. Had I known of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills earlier I might have been spared the suffering I endured, and saved the money spent for other treatments that did not relieve me. I hope some other sufferer will benefit by my experience."

If your blood is out of order be, like taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to-day and note their speedy beneficial results. Sold by medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

POTATOES BRING $4.00 AND $4.50 AND ARE SCARCE

Big Market Sees Tubers a Feature — Eggs and Butter Lower

Saturday's market was one of the largest held here for some time; the farmers and buyers were very numerous and in consequence considerable farm and garden products was disposed of.

The feature of the market was the scarcity of potatoes and with consequent high prices. One vendor alone had three bags obtained $13 for his load, equivalent to $4 a bag. As high as $4.50 a bag was asked and a few were sold for $4.25, which is the highest price obtained for the past year.

LOTS OF EGGS

Eggs were plentiful and reasonable in price at 26c for specials and 22c and 24c for new laid.

Dairy butter showed a slight decline in price, dropping to 35c and 40c a pound. Basket lots were procured for slightly lower prices. Cream sold at 36c a pint.

AS TO CHICKENS

Dressed chickens still command a good price, selling from $1.50 to $2.50 a pair, according to quality and size. A few ducks offered for sale sold at $1.40 each.

Honey in the comb and strained was sold at 50c for the comb and 50c for a small pail of strained.

There were no changes to note in the prices of vegetables, carrots, beets and large radishes selling at 40c a pack, and turnips 30c a pack. Cabbage 10c and 15c each, lettuce 10c a bunch or 3 bunches for 25c, rhubarb same price.

THE MEAT STALLS

Meat vendors did a good trade. Beef sold from 10c to 18c per pound according to cuts, and pork from 15c to 37c a pound. Fish was also plentiful and reasonable in price.

CHEESE AT 19½

At the cheese board today four factories boarded 153 boxes of cheese all of which were sold at 19½c. Buyers being Messrs. C. F. Ostrom and W. H. Morton. The factories boarding were as follows: Sidney 70, Sidney Town Hall 53; Selby 60 and Albert 30.

Splendid Program By C.G.I.T. Girls Of John St. Church

A programme of unusual excellence was presented last evening by the C.G.I.T. at John St. Methodist Church and long before the curtain rose upon the opening scene "A camp fire sing-song", the lecture room in which the entertainment was held was filled to capacity.

In the camp fire sing-song, when about twenty girls, clothed by Miss D. Nicholson grouped about a realistic imitation of an open air blaze, bright and breezy songs were sung by the enthusiastic girls. This was followed by several clever little playlets for which the girls were trained by Mrs. Youdale and Miss Sylvia Read.

JOCK OF HAZELDEAN

Jock of Hazeldean was cleverly presented with Miss Jean Boulter in the title role. Miss Mary Drummond as the father, Miss Jean Givens as Lady Mine, Jean Catcher and Helen Findlay as the bridesmaids and Miss Helen Denike as the flower girl.

Why the Fuschs Hangs Her

Then another playlet "for which the girls were trained by Miss Sylvia Ross, was most charming and in this Miss Jean Givens, Ruby Kiser, Helen Findlay, Helen Denike, Mabelle Robinson, Rita Symons, Mary Gray, Ruth Gray and Gertrude Boulter took part.

"Little Miss Muffett" was very pleasing and in this Miss Mabelle Robinson played the title role, Miss Monica Robinson the Father and Miss Mina Grant, Jane.

In "Bo Peep and Boy Blue" Miss Jean Givens played Bo Peep, and Miss Bobbie Kiser, the Boy Blue.

SARA CREWE

Dramatized by Mrs. Youdale, "Sara Crewe" was a very pretty play and in this Miss Francis Hill played the title role, Miss Susie Denike the Bake woman, Miss Monica Robinson the Beggar Child, Misses Helen Kiser, Jean Catcher, Grace Givens, Mina Grant, Pat Hill the school girls.

Yesterday afternoon the Choral Club of Tabernacle Church were hosts of a very delightful and successful tea given in the Church Parlors. The rooms were very lovely with the small tables decorated with flowers and candles emphasizing the coral shade which predominated all appointments in the room, while ferns were placed artistically about the parlors. The tea table at which Mrs. Charles Hanna presided was very tastefully finished with flowers, cut glass and silver. The guests were received by Miss Rocela Hanna and Miss Leona Walmsley while the Misses Gladys Emerson, Margaret Steffers, Grace Emery, Hazel Blakely, Mabel and Agnes Charlton, Eileen and Bernice Baker, assisted in the tea room. Misses Mabel and Ruth Bell replenished the table. The musical programme of which Miss Muriel Wardner was in charge was a delightful feature of the entertainment and to this Misses Muriel Greenleaf and J. Rose contributed vocal solos, Mrs. M. P. Duff, Muriel Wardner, Florence Davis and Leona Walmsley piano solos.

Mrs. George Gulliver and Mrs. Saunders were in charge of the dainty Aid homecookiey booth at which most tempting and delicious cakes were quickly sold. The patronesses were Mrs. Lennox, Mrs. Savage and Mrs. Folwell. During the evening a classic dance by Miss Ida Folwell was very much appreciated.

DUMBELL'S

When Captain Plunkett came here some time ago with "Lucky 7" the question was asked, "Where do you get the material, the songs, sketches and wonderful entities?" The answer was "All over the world." The Captain further explained that while there was an old adage to the effect that there was nothing new under the sun, and nothing original in song writing, one Cain killed Abel—nevertheless some of the ideas of his entertainments had not been overworked for possibly six thousand years. In other words they are quite new to any except ancient archaeologists.

The Dumbells' current offering, which comes to Griffins, "Three Bags Full," contains more purely English songs than any of its predecessors.

"There is harmony in things essential—liberty in things not essential—Charity in all."

MARVELS OF RADIO

Great are the marvels of the radio and not the least of them is the new stunt of sending a check for $1,000 through the ether to New York from London in twenty minutes. But with all due reverence for the scientists, one must note that this will not interest the average radio fan. What he wants is not the privilege of sending $1,000 to some one in twenty minutes, but a device for receiving seven-tenths of that amount as the need arises. This thing of making it easy to spend money quickly can be run into the ground.

"ON TO OTTAWA"

Ottawa at least must have been vastly impressed by the physical size of the delegation which went down from Oshawa and from Toronto to protest against the tariff changes as affecting motors. Parliament Hill. The despatches referred to the great influx of people detraining and getting their breakfasts, a problem in rationing for Ottawa restaurants and hotels sorely, and it seems to have passed off, in a civil and orderly manner.

What did the delegation expect in reply to its demands?

Had its leaders studied the process of parliamentary practices in "passing the buck" and in promising consideration they surely could have expected not more than they received.

But it seems plain that the delegation of about three thousand persons male and female, were likely to impress the powers that be at the Capital that they "meant what they said"—an unfortunate phrase ascribed to the Ottawa Citizen in reference to the closing of the Oshawa shops some days ago—and the sequel will be seen in the ensuing budget debate. Ammunition for both sides will have been stored up following this greatest of all demonstrations against a law enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

Of course the whole thing is plain. As has been said elsewhere Quebec is not affected and Ontario has to pay for its almost solid vote against Mackenzie King, the most unpractical man who ever occupied the post of Prime Minister of Canada. Mr. King dreams in democracy and speaks and writes about its "beauties" but he cares nothing that men and women are workless because of those dreams.

EASY COMPLACENCY.

It was not hard for Hon. Charles Marcil, M.P. for Bonaventure, to give his blessing to the tariff changes in the Robb budget. He was quite sure that the reduction in the duties on automobiles would be a good thing for the country, because it will lower the prices of automobiles and so, increase the sales of those necessities of life, thus adding to the country's prosperity. Mr. Marcil is not affected in the least by the prospect of diminished profits on his automobiles in this country and the resultant lessening of employment for Canadian workmen. He views the situation with complacency because Quebec is not particularly interested in the automobile industry, and only Ontario is hit by the reduction in the duties. Not only so, but there is in the tariff changes proposed by Mr. Robb nothing to which any loyal Quebecer has cause to object.

And we may be sure that so long as the King government is in power Quebec industrial interests will not suffer at its hands. Its sixty Que-bec supporters will see to that. Nor will the Progressives insist upon any changes which are distasteful to their faithful allies, the Quebec Liberals. It will continue to be the pleasure of both groups to take it out of Ontario—to squeeze this unfortunate province and watch it squirm.

MR. RANEY'S TESTIMONY.

Last week the "dry" forces had a star witness to testify before the U.S. senate committee which is investigating the operation of prohibitory law. The witness was W. E. Raney, former attorney-general of Ontario. Mr. Raney had prepared a statement which he read to the committee, and he also submitted to a searching cross-examination at the hands of Senator Reed of Missouri. He came through the ordeal pretty well. However, he was allowed to pose as an authority on the effects of prohibition and of government control throughout Canada—which he is not. He has a right to speak with authority about the working of the O.T.A. in this province; but he is not a first-hand authority on the working of governmental control in the western provinces and in Quebec.

Of the O.T.A. Mr. Raney said: "During my tenure of the office of attorney-general I found no great difficulty in enforcement of the law so far as the open sale of liquor was concerned, and the efforts to suppress the clandestine sale were reasonably successful and gave general satisfaction to the friends of the act." And he was generous enough to admit that the law of enforcement of the act under Mr. Nickle. But is it quite true that the O.T.A. has been enforced during the past six or seven years to the satisfaction of its friends? If so, its friends are either not hard to satisfy or they are strangely ignorant of what is and has been going on in the way of illicit liquor traffic.

And Mr. Raney failed to offer a satisfactory explanation of the fact that the majority in favor of prohibition in this province, as expressed at the polls in referendums, gradually declined from about 400,000 to 36,000. Such an explanation would have been more to the purpose than theorizing about the results of the resolution was equally outspoken, calling for drastic impositions on legacies "left to people who in the main had done nothing to en title them to claim succession." An amendment was moved, declining to support the motion, which, "if effectual, would tend to impoverish the community." An interesting discussion ensued, during which it was pointed out that large fortunes were not necessarily an evil, but indispensable to the maintenance of civilization. Moreover, it should be remembered that the investments of small investors stood at over £8,-000,000,000. Wealth is the product of thrift, and the wealth of the rich constitutes a communal fund. The position in the United States was referred to, where there were more millionaires than anywhere else, and where the working people were, nevertheless, very well off. The present death duties were very heavy, and to make them heavier would be a discouragement of saving. To these arguments the Labor members came back with considerable vehemence. The comments of the press were likewise unrestrained with the consequence that the whole question was handled in a sympathetic, broad minded way which could not fail to be helpful t othe cause of democratic government.

FREE SPEECH

The famous open-air debating ground at Marble Arch, Hyde park, London, England, has been enlarged Far from seeking to curb the orators who regard themselves as messengers sent from heaven to reform a demoralized society, the government actually encourages them by enlarging the existing accommodation. "Let them get it off their chest," seems to sum up the general sentiment with regard to these Hyde park spouters; but it would be a mistake to suppose that the authorities are contemptuous in their attitude. There is a genuine desire to hear all sides and an honest effort to remove social injustice. It is not to make a laughing-stock of the political speakers that they are allotted special territory in Hyde park. Those discussions turn large ly on economic questions and there is no disposition to deny that improvement of the present system is badly needed. With the strong Labor representation in the house of commons, these discussions are carried on in parliament itself, with just as much candor as in the open air forum.

A striking example of the freedom with which social problems are debated in the British house is found in the resolution of Mr. Griffiths, Labor M.P. who invited parliament to "condemn the legal and social arrangements whereby large fortunes are inherited by a very small minority of the community." The motion called for the appointment of a select committee to inquire into the merits of certain suggested reforms which amount practically to confiscation. The existing system, declared the speaker, which permitted so glaring an inequality of wealth was a "blot on our civilization." The seconder

WHEN

When I am young as dreams are,
Then I'll go dreaming, too;
And, oh, to be your lover
As when the world was new!

Down green glades of the morning
Up sweet hills of the night,
In dreaming dusks of memory
On rims of youth to light!

Thes, ancients, they are foolish,
Who call dreams old as men;
There is no age of morning,
And no dreams lives again:

For all dreams are creations
Fresh-foamed on tips fo morn
'Mid dews of exaltation
Where youth and love are born.

Ah, faith, what winey presence
Is in this April flower

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT GRIFFIN'S—

Action and excitement mark the Griffin theatre offering, "The Girl From Montmartre," scheduled to open next Monday to Wednesday.

Barbara La Marr, more beautiful than ever, with charming Lewis Stone, famous stage players in this new First National attraction.

Sun-bathed Spain, land of romance, forms the background of "The Girl From Montmartre." Enchanting scenes to beguile the eye are promised while a story of mounting interest enfolds itself.

The supporting cast includes such fine character actors as William Eugene, Robert Ellis, Marie Curtis, H. D. Calvert, Matilde Comont, Nicholas deRuiz, Robert Mack and Hector Sarno.

AT THE BELLE—

Two well known comedians, formerly seen in the slapstick variety of comedy have combined their talents in some of the best of the new featured-length comedy films which are being made for the delight of the moviegoers.

Eddie Gibbon and Tom Wilson are the pair who make up a comedy team in the latest Al Christie special feature "Seven Days", which has been filmed from the Mary Roberts Rinehart—Avery Hopwood stage farce which had a hit several years ago throughout America, and which is showing Monday at the Belle Theatre.

"Shoot into your bloc uniform. Tom" was Scott, Sidney's first instruction when Wilson appeared in answer to the call, and throughout the feature Gibbon delivers a mean, "locust." Don't miss it.

MARTIN-HARVEY

Judging from the following review of "The Corsican Brothers", in the Winnipeg Tribune of February 9th, the romantic drama still has a strong appeal to the theatre-going public of the present day:

"The acting of Sir John Martin-Harvey and his London company in Alexander Dumas' old drama "The Corsican Brothers", one marvels, first, at the excellence of the production, and, second, at the boldness of the older dramatists. With an audience few later playwrights would dare to give rein to, Dumas has in this play rushed into the realm of melodrama, and has got away with it in a manner which must cause modern dramatists in this more analytical age to turn green with envy. Thought-transmission, communication with the dead, pre-ordination, all are combined in the "Corsican Brothers" impart a real old fashioned thrill from start to finish.

Sir John gives a striking performance in the dual parts of the brothers. Fabrien and Louis, and lifted the play to heights which few other actors could hope to attain.

The play is beautifully staged. The many rich and extremely ingenuity colorful scenes which are a feast to the eye as well as a stimulation to the senses.

GOING WITHOUT GLASSES

When they should be worn, especially when the person KNOWS they should be worn, cannot be too strongly condemned. Every day of such neglect adds its quota of unnecessary distress to be borne. TENNIS CLUB A LIVE GROUP

Hold Annual Meeting and See Prospects of Tennis League

A. ARMSTRONG PREXY

Four Courts Available With 75 Members Likely To Play

The Argyll Tennis Club held their annual meeting in the Y.M.C.A. parlours on Thursday evening. Officers were elected for the coming season. The meeting opened with the President, Mr. Parker, acting as chairman.

After the minutes had been read and adopted, a financial report was presented by the Secretary-Treasurer, showing that the Club was quite sound in that respect. Some discussion took place as to whether the present fee of $3.00 per member should be raised. It was argued that much more work might be done on the courts if more money was available; on the other hand there are a great many who only want to play for a few weeks, to whom a five dollar fee might seem rather high. It was finally decided to leave the fee at three dollars in order that everyone should find no difficulty in joining. So that as the chairman jocularly remarked "the Argyll Club has the lowest fee of any tennis club in the world." It is expected that there will be four courts available for players, with accommodation for seventy-five members.

The Secretary was instructed to write Tweed, Madoc, Napanee, Point Anne, Trenton, and Stirling, with a view to the organization of a league, who would play for a challenge cup to be presented by the local Member of Parliament. It was felt that such competition would make things interesting all through the season. Exhibition games will also be played with Cobourg, Port Hope and others.

Bill Pinkerton of the Tournament Committee, has promised to keep things going in the matter of tournament play. Prizes are to be awarded the winners of each division of play.

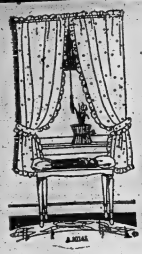

It was also decided to hold a get-together dance in the armouries in a week's time. This was left in the hands of Mr. A. Armstrong, the new president, and Miss Merry, to carry through. There is bound to be a good turnout for this affair. The date will be announced in a few days.

Babe Dye made an auspicious start with the Toronto Leafs when he crashed out two doubles and drove in four runs. The sharpshooter of hockey fame will prove a valuable acquisition to the Leafs this season. He has been complaining of a strained back during the spring training.

"Red" Batstone and "Babe" Britton two of the prominent members of Queen's football team will live up with Kingston in the Central League according to advices from there.

Hillcrest were camping on the trail of Batstone but he has established himself as a prime favorite with Kingston fans and will do his stuff with the Ponies again this season. Batstone was the leading hitter of the C. O. B. L. last year.

Owner Robson of the Toronto Club is making elaborate plans to open the International season at the new stadium next Wednesday. Pass from all parts of the province will be on deck to witness the opener. Judge Landis Czar of baseball, John Conway Toole, President of the International league and President Navin of the Detroit Club have promised to attend.

DENVER MEN BACK FROM EXPEDITION TO PYGMY LAND

Told of Studies of Lowest Type of Human Life Existing

New York, April 24.—Members of the Denver-African expedition, who pushed 3,000 miles into the interior of Southern Africa and penetrated "mystery lands"—the home of the African bushman—returned today on the White Star liner Majestic and told of their studies of the lowest type of human life. The three members of the expedition said they were the first to live among the primitive negroid pygmies.

Gifts of food and trinkets won a genuine welcome from the natives of the three explorers—Dr. C. E. Cadle, Grant H. John and Paul Haefler, all of Denver, who sailed from New York for Cape Town on the steamship Belgenland on August 1, 1925. The trip to Cape Town took ninety-nine days, and from Cape Town the explorers travelled 4,000 miles by motor truck to the Kasseyr River and the border of Angola.

"By route we went through the Kovo Desert," said Dr. Cadle. "Although they call it a desert, we went through 500 miles of flower beds and the flowers were all in bloom. We went through the mystery land of Africa—Kokovelt. There were no houses within 500 miles.

"We went to study the bushmen because they are a nomadic people who are rapidly passing from existence. They were the primitives of South Africa, and they have been gradually annihilated by more warlike people, disease and starvation. They are more stealthful than wolflike. We found the last tribe in the Kalahari desert. They are the lowest anthropological types in every respect."

Dr. Cadle said the pygmies varied in height from 4 to 4½ feet. Their language is a series of sounds described by the scientists as a "click." It is like the click of the Estonian when he has twenty-four different click sounds, while the bushman of South Africa has a greater variety of clicks, they said.

The bushmen have no houses or huts. Dr. John, the medical member of the party, said the result was that few of the infants could survive the cold weather.

Because of the scarcity of food, the bushmen were accustomed to go without food for long intervals, Dr. Cadle said, and when they did find something to eat they consumed enough to satisfy their appetites for several days.

"Their abdomens are developed with several folds of skin which expand to an enormous size when the pygmies eat, and contract when they are empty," said Dr. Cadle. "The bushmen's stomachs are telescopic."

Waving and Curling Dries Life from Hair

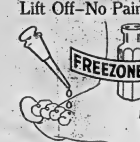

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, and full of dandruff; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

Since girls just must curl and wave the hair to appear their prettiest, try "Danderine" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life that healthy, youthful lustre, become incomparably soft, wavy and appear as thick and abundant. Kill ing hair stops and dandruff appears.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing "Danderine" from any drug store or toilet counter will do wonders for any girl's hair. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

HAS SERUM FOR REDUCING HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Prof. Legiardi Laura Says Tests Made Have Proved Very Successful

New York, April 24.—Discovery of a serum effective in reducing high blood pressure, and in some instances restoring it to normal, it claimed by Professor Legiadri Laura, former assistant to Cesare Lombroso, noted psychologist.

The serum which he calls "Hypotensyn" was described by Professor Laura in an address last night at a meeting of the Medical Association of New York. The serum is extracted from horses.

Used In Experiments

All animals used in his experiments were more than 60 years old and all pertained to high blood pressure, and were suffering from diseases prevalent among the aged. The same serum, he asserted can be safely used as frequently as necessary and no change in the diet, exercise or habits of patients is necessary.

Support His Claims

Statistics of insurance companies show that approximately 2,000,000 persons in the United States are suffering from high blood pressure, an affliction that has troubled mankind for centuries. Two doctors of the Seaview Hospital made statements supporting the discoverer's claims for the serum.

Sleep is Nature's Nerve Restorer

"THAT may be very true," you say, "but that is just the trouble I cannot sleep."

And that is just why we are going to tell you about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which is generally conceded to be the greatest of nerve restoratives.

It is not a sleep producer in the sense of being a narcotic. But it does naturally and gradually restore the wornout nervous system and in a few days you find yourself enjoying sound, restful sleep.

Sleeplessness is, perhaps, the most outstanding symptom of nervous exhaustion. Without sleep there is no chance of replacing at night the nerve force used up during the day in the activities of life.

Without such aid as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food affords you are doomed to physical bankruptcy.

By using this treatment and taking as much rest as possible you will very soon find yourself on the highway to health. But a little patience is necessary. A condition which has been years in developing cannot be overcome in a day. Of one thing you can be certain and that is that with each dose of the nerve food you are supplying to the blood and nerves the elements of nature which are essential for the restoration of the human system. FANCY POULTRY OWNERS TO GET CHANCE OF LIFE

World Poultry Congress in Ottawa Next Year—Prepare Now

Mr. George Robertson, Assistant Dominion Poultry Husbandman, and internationally known poultry judge, has been named as the chairman of the committee in charge of the World's Poultry Congress live bird exhibits. Mr. Robertson wishes to point out that this section of the Congress exhibition provides Canadian poultrymen with a medium through which they can further demonstrate to the world that they breed and are in a position to sell, registered, record of performance and exhibition stock, to breeders in any part of the world. To Canadian poultry, men is given the privilege of exhibiting live birds outside of the national exhibits.

The exhibits in which Canadian poultrymen can enter live poultry are:

1. The National exhibit—where Canada may exhibit two trios of each variety.

2. The International exhibits—such as the American Poultry Association exhibit in which Canadian breeders should be willing to have their best birds appear if called upon to furnish them.

3. Commercial exhibits which will include exhibits from the following:—

a. The Canadian National Poultry Record Association, registration exhibit.

b. Record of Performance Associations—e.g. exhibit.

c. Breed Associations.

d. Provincial organizations.

e. Private breeders.

f. Other commercial organizations not specified.

This makes it possible for any individual, association, or firm to exhibit live poultry at the World's Poultry Congress which will be held at Ottawa, July 27th to August 4th, 1927, and as already stated this is a privilege enjoyed only by Canada and Canadian breeders. The only limit to these exhibits will be the space available.

The specimens shown will necessarily be adult birds, and new is the time to arrange for these exhibits. Young chicks may be included in the exhibit classed by the American Baby Chick Association.

This is Canada's greatest opportunity. The showing of live poultry at the World's Poultry Congress in Spain may be described as incidental and preliminary to the great showing it is intended to make in 1927. Canadian poultrymen are being provided with a splendid chance to secure further international renown, but it will require the united efforts of all poultrymen in Canada in order to secure a full measure of success.

Further information on these live poultry exhibits will be supplied from time to time the medium of the Provincial World's Poultry Congress committees.

KITCHENER'S DEATH STILL EXCITES MOB DESPITE ALL DENIALS

London, April 24.—(Canadian Press Despatch)—Ever since the wreck of the Hampshire in 1916 there have been wild rumors about Kitchener's death. A popular newspaper, copies of which had been publicly burnt for attacks on Kitchener, raised the cry that he had been betrayed by spies, and during the war many people firmly believed that he was a prisoner in Germany.

It was startling at the big meeting in the London Opera House, says the Manchester Guardian, to find that there are still many people who are convinced that there was foul play of one kind or another. Recently this strange emotionalism has become concentrated upon a demand for a public inquiry, backed by broad hints that the Admiralty has concealed the truth. The movement has been stimulated by a series of articles in a fun day newspaper, whose author has delivered an extraordinary speech full of wild and sensational statements.

All these stories have been most explicitly denied in the House of Commons by Mr. Bridgeman, Secretary of the Admiralty. It is, of course, one new thing for rumors to get abroad that some celebrity who has died under sensational circumstances is still living. There were repeated tales after General Hector Macdonald's tragic end in Paris that he had really gone secretly to Japan to train the Japanese Army.

LITTLE HOPE OF PAYMENT

Atlanta, Ga., April 24.—Indications that holders of bonds issued by various states while composing the confederate states of America will have little more chance of collecting on them than would the present-day holders of confederate day from capitals of many of the states paper money, are given in despatches today from capitals of many of the states that made up the southern confederacy from 1861 to 1865.

HUDSON BAY RAILWAY

Sum of $6,250,000 Needed to Put It In Shape

Ottawa, April 24—The Hudson Bay Railway will cost $2,000,000 to complete and a further $4,250,000 to put into operation. This is the opinion of officers of the Canadian National Railway, transmitted through Sir Henry Thornton's office in reply to a question in the House of Commons and tabled in that chamber today.

A certain amount of work was done in the last three years to maintain the right-of-way already built.

"Grading was completed some years ago, but by now requires considerable repairs," is one of the notations on the file.

BRITONS PRESS OLD WAR CLAIMS

Chambers of Commerce Ask U.S. Government Help Obtain Hearing

London, April 24.—The Association of British Chambers of Commerce has adopted a resolution requesting the United States Government to assist in obtaining a hearing before the Supreme Court for British subjects having claims, said to total about $75,000,000, against eight of the southern states for moneys loaned prior to the end of the Civil War.

TIME MIXUP

Welland.—This city promises to be in another daylight-saving mixup this year. The schools and plants will operate on fast time, as will the police and other city departments. The high school, however, it is expected, will go on slow time as last year. The N.S. & T. railway will be on fast time, but the C.N.R. and M.C.R. lines will continue on standard time schedule. Some of the Saturday afternoon sports games will start on fast time, while others will be an hour behind. Present indications are that the city hall clock will alone register the old time.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Deseronto.—A serious accident occurred on the highway between Desoronto and Napanee, when a west-bound motor car drove into a buggy, which was owned and driven by Mr. Cecil Wales of Napanee, causing the horse to run away, breaking the vehicle so as to render it useless, and throwing the three occupants and dragging them for a considerable distance.

INCREASED CAPACITY

With the opening of the new clinical wing of the Kingston General Hospital, the number of public ward patients to receive treatment has increased from an average of fifty per day to an average of about seventy-five per day for the first three months of the year.

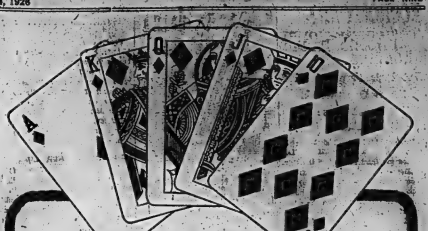

P. E. COUNTY E. OF T.

Picton.—The annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Board of Trade was held in the Public Library, President Newman presiding. Between twenty-five and thirty members were present. Officers were all re-elected with the addition of two names to the Executive Committee. President, Fred Newman; Vice-President, J. E. Baxter; Secretary-treasurer, J. L. Ashley; Executive Committee, H. S. Collver, M.P.P., W. J. Carter, W. H. Benson, I. F. Fraser, O. M. Hicks, A. E. Calnan, H. S. Miller and E. B. Purtelle.

"Boiling Over" means nothing to SPEEDIRON

IN the days of old-fashioned "open" elements, boiling over was a serious matter. Liquids dripping over the sides of the cooking pot and into the exposed wires and grooves frequently caused coils to burn out—a source of much inconvenience and expense.

NOW all that is changed. McClary's wonderful, new Speediron element enables you to cook with your mind at complete ease because you know nothing can injure the element. Your preserves, your soups, your kettle—they may boil over a dozen or a hundred times without doing the slightest damage. The coils in McClary's Speediron are protected by a smooth, cast-iron surface—a surface so durable that hard knocks, falling pots, leaks and drips cannot possibly harm it.

Coils Easily Renewed and Repaired

If a coil burns out you simply lift out McClary's Speediron Element. With little effort and expense you can have the coil replaced by your dealer—while you wait. It is just as easy and simple to replace the unit as it is to plug in your iron or toaster.

Lasts as Long as the Range Itself

That's the amazing thing about McClary's Speediron. It lasts for years and years. And you have a range that looks at great speed and saves current. The contact heat principle on which the Speediron operates eliminates waste by radiation—the heat goes into the pot, not into the kitchen. This means increased speed and exceptional economy.

Complete muscular relaxation essential for healthful sleep

At "rising time" comes the test as to whether your night's sleep has given you the renewed vigor and vitality so necessary to the busy activities of this modern age.

If certain muscles of the body remain tense for lack of resting support no amount of sleep will renew their energy. For instance—if the muscles enclosing the vital abdominal organs are allowed to sag and assume unnatural positions due to improper mattress support, they are under a strain, and cannot relax. Sleep therefore, doesn't rest this part of the body as well or healthfully as it would if proper support relieved the strain and allowed the tense muscles to relax.

The Marshall Spring Mattress, built with many hundreds of highly resilient, independently working springs, fits the natural contour of the body, giving even, gentle support to every muscle. This kind of body support ensures true muscular relaxation and health-building sleep. It is this Marshall principal of new sleeping comfort that is changing the sleeping habits of thousands.

ECONOMY BILL PASSES HOUSE

Voted in Face of Most Severe Opposition in British House

London, April 24.—The House of Commons, by a vote of 328 to 138, passed the third reading of the Government's economy bill, which has been fought at every stage by the opposition parties. Their resistance forced the Government to the adoption of exceptional measures, such as limiting the Government forces into two sections to maintain all-night vittings, and the severest application of closure.

There were many heated scenes and on one occasion thirteen Labor members were suspended. The impartiality of the chairman was attacked and a motion of censure is now pending before the House against him in the name of the Labor leaders. This will be met by a counter motion of confidence in behalf of the Government.

SAY BOXER "SLAIN" BECAUSE INCORRUPTIBLE

Chicago, Ill., April 24.—Andre Anderson, a heavyweight boxer, who was shot and killed at Cicero, a suburb on March 21, was slain because he refused to "throw" his bout with Wayne "Big" Munn, the police have been informed. No testimony in support of this theory was given at the coroner's inquest, however, and the police of Chicago and Cicero have been asked to re-open their investigation.

OTTAWA FLOODED AS THE RIDEAU O'ERFLOWS BANKS

Efforts to Relieve Situation Not Success—Rumors Baseless

Ottawa, April 23.—The flood situation along the Rideau River where it swings around the south of the city and then cuts north to fall into Ottawa River, is unchanged his forenoon and great areas are under water.

Many cellars are flooded and a number of houses are more or less marooned.

The greatest damage is in Ottawa South, Billing's Bridge, and in East View, because there are the most thickly settled.

It was thought that by removing the stop logs at Rideau Falls, where the river takes the jump into the Ottawa, the situation would be relieved and late last night the city engineering department dynamited those logs away.

For a time it looked as if this would prove successful and the river dropped two inches. However it stopped after that and this morning is within a few inches of the highest point it has reached.

FINE DEMONSTRATION OF COOKING MOFFATT WAY WITH ELECTRIC STOVES

Very few shoppers, especially those of the fair sex, have been able this week to resist the lures of the Hydro store, Bridge Street, where the window is loaded with cakes, pies, cream puffs and all varieties of delicacies a good stove can cook. But commanding still more interest is the article responsible for the delicious offerings a Moffat Electric stove.

The great rapidity with which the level of the river rose gave rise to a rumor at first that a dam on the River near Perth had gone out but this rumor proved later to be unfounded and although enquiries were instituted at different points along the river, and at the locks, it was ascertained that nothing untowered had occurred to account for the flood.

OWEN SOUND DAM BREAKS

Owen Sound, April 23.—Hundreds of dollars damage was done when the Harrison dam on the Sydenham river went out today. It had been menaced since yesterday when the sudden warm weather brought the greatest rush of water in fourteen years. In the flood that followed a saw frame barn was carried away and Ninth Street Bridge practically wrecked. Woollen and Grist mills operated from the dam are tied up for lack of power.

It is the Flavor that Counts

"SALADA" TEA

has the largest sale in North America.

Inside the Hydro store Mrs. MacLean, demonstrator for the Moffat stoves is a very busy woman, showing the many visitors the wonders of modern cooking which when done by the Moffat stoves cannot go wrong. With little effort, remaining as cool as the proverbial cucumber, Mrs. MacLean in a few moments, having brought the ovens to the required temperature, takes from the oven cakes, pies, bread, buns each absolutely uniformly cooked and adds them to the many other tempting articles.

The demonstrator carefully explains and illustrates the perfection of the stoves and ovens, showing the wonderful heat conservation powers of the stoves and the many enviable features of the one piece, dustless, porcelain plated ovens. Not a rivit exists in the ovens of the Moffat not a space to rust. PORCELAIN TOPS

The porcelain tops of the stoves are an added feature of interest. The entire stove top, outside of the burners is of one slab of porcelain which is planed quite as easily as the proverbial plate with one sweep of a damp cloth and having no crevices, the dirt has not to be hunted for.

Exposed burners are a feature of the stoves which tend to great economy and speed.

Coil jacket heaters, Moffats' make, are also displayed and their efficiency guaranteed.

The interest which has already been shown in the Moffat stoves indicates a large addition to the seventy thousand women who are now enjoying the delights of Moffats Electric Stoves.

ENDURANCE

THE quaking shocks from Battering Rams and the smashing blows of huge stones flung from catapults were used in ancient warfare to break down the walls of cities under seige. Sometimes these walls withstood the battering of the enemy for years. The Greeks gave up the Siege of Troy after ten years and only got inside by strategy. The Walls of Jerusalem stood the Roman Siege for 143 days and the city only capitulated when actual starvation had made them too weak to resist. Like ancient fortifications, the powerful sidewalls and tread construction of a "Gutta Percha" Tire ENDURE the bombarding enemies of the road.

WHY did they make city walls so Enduringly strong? To protect their lives, their property, their liberty and their happiness. There is war to-day between the motor tire and the destroying enemies of the road. Why do we build the "Gutta Percha" Tires so ENDURINGLY strong? To give our customers protection against accident, to give them economy in service, to make them free from anxiety and worry when motoring. It is the wonderful ENDURANCE built into "Gutta Percha" Tires that makes their resistance to the warfare of the road the longest and most difficult siege in modern times.

DOES anything have a rougher life than a Tire? You can't match it for an existence of constant warfare against fearful odds. From the day a tire goes on, it is skidded and bumped; bearing a ton's weight, it is pressed upon sharp obstacles that would cut any other substance to shreds; it is subjected to side strains that call for thousands of pounds of resistance. It is exposed to the hot sun of summer, the snow and ice of winter, and with all its pounding and hard work, is expected to give long and uninterrupted service. There's no other tire so remarkable for ENDURANCE as a "Gutta Percha" Tire.

On some cars you save in the end.

It has long been conceded that Dodge Brothers Motor Cars belong to that small group of dependably built vehicles that prove their superior economy by long life and low cost of upkeep . . . vehicles that are more economical in the end.

Now it can truthfully be added that they are also more economical in the beginning—unbelievably so when you consider the high and uncompromising standards of Dodge Brothers quality.

A magnificent array of labor-saving, quality-increasing equipment has been introduced by Dodge Brothers into motor car manufacture.

And the result is the finest product in Dodge Brothers history at the lowest cost.

A product with fashionable new lines, smartly finished in attractive colors, smoothly and quietly powered, quicker in response, sturdier, and providing wider and safer vision for the driver.

In a word, the most impressive value ever offered by Dodge Brothers to the automobile public.

BRITISH BUDGET ALLOWS NO DECREASE IN TAXATION

PARTY LEADERS ABSTAIN FROM BUDGET DEBATE

Attack and Defence So Far in Hands of Back Benchers

Ottawa, April 26.—The manner in which the debate on the budget has developed so far has occasioned some surprise. For the most part it has been left to members of the rear benches, the leading figures of the two principal parties evidently preferring to, withhold their contributions until after others had conveyed their views on Mr. Robb's legislation. The Government has left the defence of the budget up to the premier, the Progressives and some of the Western Liberals who share Progressive views regarding the tariff. The Opposition speeches in criticism of the production in the protection for the motor car industry have been vigorous, but grim, one or two exceptions they have not come from the more influential section of the party in the House.

It may be that members of the Government and leading Opposition members whose speeches are usually taken as party announcements are waiting for the questions of the budget to be threshed out by minor members before entering themselves upon defensive or critical analysis of the budget legislation. Pursuit of the present course will not tend to shorten the debate if, as assumed, most of the front benchers intend to take part at one stage or another. In fact early suggestions that the discussion would not be protracted are being abandoned, and it is now believed that it will last for another two weeks. A division on May 8 is possible.

The debate will be resumed today, Grote Stirling, British Columbia will continue every day until the conclusion. Private members will not have a chance to discuss their resolutions until Mr. Robb's resolutions are out of the way, after which Premier King has promised they will have one or two more Mondays.

WOMEN OF HULL, ENGLAND, ANGRY AT BEING IGNORED

Hull, Eng., April 26.—Only a few women have been officially invited by the corporation of Hull to attend the formal opening of the Art Gallery by the Prince of Wales and there is much indignation among the women in consequence. Lack of accommodation is professedly the sole reason why the City Council has not issued more invitations to women.

GERMAN DIVERS RESUME BATTLE TO SEEK FORTUNE IF SETTLEMENT IN SUNKEN GOLD UNREADY JUNE 1

To Recover Part of Riches on British Liner Off French Coast

Paris Shows Considerable Impatience With Delay By Riffians

Paris, April 26.—German divers will begin on May 15, close to the French coast, the task of recovering part of the riches swallowed up by the tireless ocean. The operations will be directed toward the recovery of the fortune confided by the Rothschilds and Oriental liner Egypte, which sank on May 20, 1922, after collision with a French freighter, the Seine. The British vessel went down so quickly that 102 lives were lost.

The Egypte, which was carrying £1,089,000 in gold bars being shipped to Egyptian banks by the Bank of England, is now submerged 400 feet, twenty-two miles off the French lighthouse at Armeu, in a spot where currents are particularly violent and work is possible only in clear weather.

It is probable that the salvage efforts will be marked with many perilous episodes because of the depth and location. It is unknown whether the vessel lies straight or upside down. In the latter case it would be far more difficult to handle.

A Swedish captain, who located the wreck three years ago, will direct the work. Two Swedish divers will wear new diving suits already tested out at Scapa Flow and in the Thames and will be aided by powerful searchlights.

All of the undersea apparatus permits work at a depth of 150 metres and will be handled from three tugboats tightly hooked to the Egypte's wreck.

Uncertainty In Rubber Prices Removed By New Regulations

London, April 26.—Element of uncertainty which has existed in the out-look for the crude rubber market and rubber shares has been removed. Announcement says it has been decided that the percentage of standard production of rubber which may be exported at the minimum rate of duty from Ceylon and Malaya during the months beginning May 1, shall be 100 and that the maximum limit of 500 pounds an acre, provided under regulations applicable to assessment of estates of more than 25 acres in Malaya's shall be abolished.

QUIZ DISCLOSES HOW POLITICIAN IS LOOKED AFTER

Man Friendly to Liberals Got Himself Let Down "Easy"

Ottawa, Ont., April 26th.—Moses Aziz came cane up in the customs probe again today. The Hon. George Boivin, Minister of customs admitted that he order ed a stay of committal a few hours after he took office last September without knowing much about the facts of the case, and he now thought he had exercised his authority in interfering in the judgment of the courts. Aziz was charged last August in the New Brunswick Courts with contravention of the liquor laws and was committed to prison. The committal order of courts had not been put into effect and the Minister of J. G. Robichaud, M.P. for Gloucester, N.B., had been invoked on Aziz' behalf. The latter was described by Mr. Robichaud as a valuable aid in the election campaign then beginning.

MR. GRAHAM ON RECENT JOURNEY

Called on Moroccan Port, at Gibraltar and Visited Italy

Mr. R. J. Graham was the speaker this afternoon at the Rotary Club giving his fellow members a word picture of a number of the places he and Mrs. Graham visited in the one hundred and ten days they were abroad this winter. They travelled on an Italian boat which called at Morocco ports and they were enabled to see part of this interesting country and its customs. They also stopped over at Gibraltar and saw the giant Rock at close quarters. Mr. Graham caution ing his friends never to attempt to walk through the galleries (tunnels) because the effort was more than the compensating view. Stops at Marseilles, at Genoa, at Milan where he attended Rotary, side trips to Venice where they found ice and snow instead of "sunny" Italy, and at other points were described with great interest to the club members. Mr. Graham is expected to give his talks on Spain and on his trip over the battlefields.

President Dolan announced that Chairman Chas. Brown of the Crippled Children's committee has been invited by the North Bay Rotary Club to go there to address a dinner on the work as it is conducted here.

ROBT J. SYMONS DIES SUDDENLY

Robert J. Symons, 17 Octavia Street, died suddenly on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock just as he alighted from his car at Brock's Garage, Coleman Street.

Mr. Symons with his son and relatives were about to motor to Stirling and stopped at the garage to secure a supply of gasoline to carry them over the trip. He had been in the best of health up to the time of his death, put using his truck as well as his car and stone mason during the past week.

He was born in Belleville in 1860 and had resided here all his life, being always engaged as bricklayer and stone mason. He served for many years as a volunteer on the No. 1 Co. and the city fire department. He was a member of Lydford lodge S. O. E. and in religion an Anglican, a member of Christ Church.

He is survived by two sons—Harry Embrey Symons, of Belleville; James Butler Symons, of Belleville; one daughter, Mrs. W. F. Bennett, of Detroit, and one sister Miss Bessie Symons, of Belleville.

MILITARY PLANS ENGAGING ITALY

Chisano, April 26.—The report that military preparations are in full progress in the Italian War Office are confirmed by a message from "an authoritative source in Milan."

It is significant that the Italian official news agency, Stefani, confines its denial of militarists' reports to "altered military operations" rumors. It says nothing of military preparations.

According to the usually trustworthy Milan informant, the Italian War Office has posted notices urging and a more speedy working out of troop concentration plans and mobilization order. The notice stresses the instruction that everything is to be ready before June, that army divisions stationed on the Adriatic coast have been kept feverishly busy.

CHURCHILL TALKS PLAINLY NO RELIEF IS YET IN SIGHT TAX ON BETTING ANNOUNCED

London, April 26.—Introducing the budget in the House of Commons today, the Right Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, estimated that the cost of running the British Government for the coming financial year would be £812,641,000. This figure includes nearly £19,000,000 for new expenditures, including cruisers, Empire marketing and other necessary expenditures. The dead weight debt on March 31, he reported, was £7,616,000,000. The floating debt was reduced by nearly £38,000,000 during the past year.

RICHER THAN YEAR AGO

The Chancellor told the House that during the past year the attempt to place the coal industry on an economic basis had overshadowed all other questions. The coal subsidy he said had turned a possible surplus of £5,000,000 into a deficit of nearly £14,000,000. He declared that the nation was richer than a year ago, that general trade was improving but that basic industries were depressed. Mr. Churchill stated that consumption of beer and spirits had decreased during the year because of high taxation.

REVENUE STEADY; EXPENSES UP

Under the budget as presented the existing rate of taxation for 1926-27 would be continual. The Chancellor said that further reduction in expenditures was imperative and that the cabinet committee on economy would continue its work. He asserted that all estimates of the three branches of military services would be considered jointly. This statement was taken by observers as foreshadowing creation of a ministry of defence which would combine the fighting services. He said that revenue in the permanent branches of the government was barely holding its own with a strong and swelling tide of expenditure and that therefore the outlook for them was somewhat bleak.

TAX ON BETTING COMES

The Chancellor announced that a tax would be imposed on betting.

FRANCE WILL BEGIN PAYMENTS ON DEBT

London, April 26.—France will begin to pay her war debt to Great Britain during the present British fiscal year. This was the one outstanding announcement made by the Right Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer today in presenting the budget to the House of Commons. France's initial payment would be £4,000,000, he said.

France May Abrogate Statute That Bans Monarchist Chiefs

Paris, April 26.—French Republicans are proposing to repeal the law exiling the chiefs of France's former reigning families, and there seems to be good reason to believe Parliament will do so.

The Chamber of Deputies is now about to discuss the case of Philip, John III. of France," as French Royalists officially call the Due De Guise. Until the death of his cousin, the Due d'Orleans, at Naples a few weeks ago, "King John" was a quiet country gentleman, living luxuriously on his estate utterly aloof from all political intrigue. The most rabid Republican never dreamed of connecting him with any desire to conspire against the present regime.

During the war, although forbidden by law from serving in the army, he rendered such splendid service in the ambulance corps that he was awarded the Croix de Guerre He was recognized thus officially as a true patriot.

Now he is an exile just because the maintenance of Royalist tradition demands that he be considered the pretender to the French throne.

The pretty fiction is without the slightest practical significance, for the Republican regime is firmly established and the Monarchists are a very unimportant minority who like to believe themselves the champions of a principle long dead in France.

This is what the Chamber will be told during the forthcoming debate when the perfectly good Republican Deputy Soulier will ask abrogation of the law of June 22, 1886, which exiles the heads of former reigning families.

TRIED TO KILL HAMILTON COP

Man About to be Arrested Pulled Trigger of Pisol Four times

A weak spring in all that prevented the live shells from being discharged, for the pressure on the driving pin was not sufficient. Howard Stanley Glover, Niagara Falls, N.Y., who made the attack, is in the East End cells charged with attempted murder, carrying a loaded revolver and also forgery. Before being locked up Glover was taken to the General Hospital, where three stitches were required to close the wound in his head inflicted by Detective Buckett, who was with Detective Sparkman. The prisoner is about 26 years of age.

FUNERAL IS HELD OF LITTLE LADS FOUND IN BAY

Bernard Brown and Eugene Ellsworth Borne to Grave

SERVICE AT CITADEL

Officers of Salvation Army From Other Cities Take Charge

Through the aisles of the Citadel, crowded with a congregation not one of whom but showed tearful emotion, the little bodies of Bernard Brown and Eugene Ellsworth, drowned on December 13th and recovered from their icy grave last Saturday, were carried this afternoon at 2 o'clock when the funeral service was conducted by Commandant H. A. Hurd of London, Ont., financial representative of the West for the Salvation Army assisted by Ensign and Mrs. Palin of Kingston and Adjutant Cavender of Ingersoll.

THE SERVICE

Drums muffled, colors draped, and masses of flowers on the platform, bore a sorrowful significance when the service opened by the singing of the hymn, "Shall We Gather at the River," led by Commandant Hurd, who was followed by a prayer by Captain Naples, a hymn by the Junnors, scripture reading by Adjutant Cavender, song, "There is a Home Eternal" by Mrs. Young People, a selection by the Belleville Silver Band, an address by Commandant H. A. Hurd, a duet by Bridge and Mrs. Palin, and the closing prayer.

THE ADDRESS

In his address, Commandant Hurd, who has known Commandant Ellsworth, father of Eugene Ellsworth, since he entered the Army in Newfoundland many years ago, said as his text, "There is but a step between death and me." He compared human existence to that of the candle whose doom is sealed directly it is lighted. Youth, he said, is no barrier to sudden snuffing out of life; neither does God respect any person. Only life is like a man walking on high cliffs edged on both sides with steep precipices; one step carries us over. If it is true, the speaker said, that death is only a step away, then surely there is need at all times for preparation.

Concluding, he quoted the dying words of Staff Captain (Mrs.) Minto as she left this world murmured: "I have conquered by God," and of Mrs., Walter Bullock, who when asked how it was with her soul, answered "All is well, there is not a cloud."

THE CORTEGE

At the conclusion of the service, which was floral tributes expressing the sympathy of the entire city and many towns of the Province, the two tiny white coffins were borne down the aisles by three fellow boarders, Reggie Wardle, Stanley Lessels and Irwin Pike, and Fred Leak. The bereaved parents tearfully followed and the cortege proceeded to the Belleville cemetery where the committal service was read and Adjutant Cavender of Ingersoll, formerly of the Naval Corps and a relative of Sergt.-Major Brown, pronounced the benediction.

The hymn, "There's a Land That is Fairer Than Day," was sung.

ROBERT JOHN BOYLE

Robert John Boyle, a well-known resident of Belleville, passed away at his late home, 21 Dunbar street, after an illness of some months. Mr. Boyle who was in his 71th year had spent the greater part of his life in this city, having moved from Prescott, Ont., the place of his birth, at the age of fourteen years. Up until a few years ago, Mr. Boyle had pursued his trade as a mason, Mr. Boyle was an Anglican in religion, being a member of Christ Church. He was also a member of Belleville Lodge A.F. & A.M. He is survived by a widow, two sons, Clive Frederick of

NOT TO CONTINUE SUBSIDY ON COAL CRISIS REMAINS

Premier Baldwin Has Called Succession of Conferences for Week

London, April 26.—The coal crisis has put down Prime Minister Baldwin's week-end holiday in the country similar to nothing. He delayed his departure for Chequers, his country seat, several hours in order to confer with Colonel Lane-Fox, secretary of the department of mines, and he was back in London before noon in order to start another series of conferences in the hope of bringing about an agreement between the coal owners and miners.

Mr. Baldwin and his Government colleagues realize they have only a short time in which to find a panacea for the coal industry before the termination of the subsidy on May 1. Therefore the greater part of the week is being set aside by them for special work in aiding the negotiations between the coal rivals. So far three important meetings have been scheduled. Besides a meeting between the Premier and the negotiating committees of both sides for today there will be a conference of miners' delegates on Wednesday and an assembly on Thursday of the executives of the various labor unions, representing five million workers, to determine what stand they will take concerning the coal conflict.

It was denied in official quarters that the Government in at present contemplating a state loan to the coal industry. And it is emphatically declared that the coal subsidy will be withdrawn on May 1). But there is still talk of the possibility that the Government may help the industry in some form between the date of the termination of the subsidy and the reorganization of the industry—which might be construed as a subsidy in another form and under another name.

"It is quite clear that the only outlook the coal owners have, so far as reorganizing the industry is concerned, is one of reduced wages and longer hours. This attitude of the employers will be the means of uniting the whole movement politically and industrially in supporting the miners in their struggle."

Mr. Lloyd George, in a speech at Bridgerton, attacked the coal subsidy. He said:

"Our trade was hoisted up in July with a golden suspender under the name of a subsidy. Now that is going to be cut down and trade will come down with a bump and that will not settle it. The difficulty will still be there."

ILLEGAL, SAYS CHURCH OF HARBOR BD. ACTION

Toronto, April 26.—The election of a new chairman by three of five commissioners of the Toronto Harbor Board, after the former chairman, T. L. Church, M.P., and the other commissioner had left the meeting in protest, was characterized as "illegal" by Mr. Church. Mr. Church stoutly declared that he was still chairman and as such performing the functions of his office. On the other hand the three commissioners of the opposite view—A. O. Hogg, Major A. A. Mulholland, the new chairman, and Col. W. G. McKendrick—maintain that under the act empowering the board to appoint a chairmen from "time to time" the election was legal in order.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 24 per cent and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with suicide application. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McKeown's drug store today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

DUNCAN REPORT OVER SMUGGLING NAMES THREE MEN

Wholesale Dealings in Liquor Stolen From Government Are Alleged

Ottawa, April 26.—Names of high Government officials in Montreal and Ottawa, alleged to have had wholesale dealings in liquor from the Government, will be laid before the Stevens committee this week, when, one way or another, the sensation-brimming report of Walter Duncan on customs conditions in Montreal comes out.

Much of the report—already produced but or filed, has furnished the basis for telling witnesses who have testified on Montreal matters. The liquor allegations remain. As a result of his investigation, the Government investigator has concluded that considerable liquor, emanating either from seizures not reported or from seizures partially reported, got out of the customs warehouses at Montreal and was shipped mainly to Ottawa. Shipments were made possible, it is asserted, through connivance of officials at Montreal, and it is further reported that the beverages reached high by placed officials in Ottawa, either directly or through less important servants.

FLOODED AREAS GIVEN RELIEF BY COLD SPELL

Rideau Waters Recede — Householders Suffer With Furnaces Out

Ottawa, April 26.—With the flood waters receded, twelve inches and the ice cleared out of the river, the scene of the floods cowed in Ottawa and district by the overflowing of the Rideau River, is considered over. The log booms in Mooney's Bay and Black Rapids broke Saturday night and released the ice which, however, passed down the river without causing the expected damage.

Ottawa householders in the low-lying districts on the bank of the river continued to suffer from the floods. The sudden drop in temperature increased the hardship of the householders, who, with furnaces under water have had to coal into play electric heaters and portable heaters to furnish them with heat.

The floods this year are considered the worst in years. The waters of the Rideau rose nine feet over their average.

Why do motor cars cost more in Canada than in the United States?

Here is one of the big reasons accounting for the difference:

Last year manufacturers of motor vehicles and parts in Canada paid the Canadian Government—

In customs duties on parts and materials	$10,000,000
In sales, excise and stamp taxes	7,400,000
Total	$17,400,000

Meanwhile, the number of motor vehicles they made and sold in Canada was — 84,000

Dividing one into the other it is obvious that on each such car the Canadian Government collected in taxes — $207.14

Therefore, every person who buys a made-in-Canada motor car has to pay a price that includes an average of $207.14 which the manufacturer has had to collect for payment to the Canadian Government!

So don't lay the blame for this on the Canadian manufacturer!

Efforts were made to effect a reconciliation between the two but to no avail and Magistrate Masson decided to enlarge the case until Wednesday and allow the parties a chance to settle their troubles. E. D. O'Flynn acted as counsel for the accused and Mr. Donnan for the Crown.

FLORIDA'S TIP TO CANADA

Mr. W. R. Givens, proprietor and editor of the Kingston Standard, has returned home after spending the winter at his Florida cottage, with a garden of which in February he raises roses and other perfumed flowers and plucks oranges and grapefruit. Discussing the Florida real estate boom he differentiates between riotous speculation and the judicious investment of moneys founded on Florida's superb climate and its potentialities as the "great winter playground of the nation."

Mr. Givens closes a most interesting interview with this advice, to the people of Kingston:

"Just the same, we in Kingston take a leaf out of the book of some of these Florida cities. Kingston has as great beauty and as many natural advantages as most of these cities, and my own opinion is that we might with profit and advantage seek to make this a great summer tourist centre just as these southern cities are great winter tourist centres. We have spent much time and energy vainly endeavoring to make this an industrial city. My belief is that we would be better employed developing it as a tourist city and an educational centre."

It is true and many places in Canada, by attempting to become manufacturing centres, observes the Ottawa Journal, are missing the opportunity—and destroying the scenic assets they have—for development of a much more profitable industry. Canada is only now beginning to realize the value of its assets as a tourist resort. True, this awakening may be in part due to liquor; but good roads and, what is just as important, good hotels assure a permanence for the tourist trade that in the aggregate means fabulous wealth.

Florida is just waking up from a long sleep and finds itself in possession of a magic wand. Some day Canada, too, will become wide awake to the fact that among its riches are scenic beauties as unrivalled as they are accessible to millions willing to pay for the privilege of enjoying them.

The tourist trade involves employment in many avenues that nevertheless at a home market for farmers. It should be gone after with a vigor that hitherto has been lacking. Here in Hastings we have made a start. Might we not do more?

A HAPPY MARTYR

The impression one gets from the syndicated articles appearing in the American press under the signature of Colonel Mitchell, deposed head of the United States' aviation service, is that he welcomes the role of Martyr—and would have been actually disappointed of the court-martial had resulted in his being cleared. Colonel Mitchell may be sincere; there have been occasional instances that might be accepted as proof of it, but he has a keen appreciation of the value of publicity. Commenting upon the developments in the Mitchell case recently, Mr. Charles P. Stewart, an observer at Washington, said: "Mitchell expected and wanted to be court martialed all the time. He expected and wanted to be convicted. He wanted a severe sentence, too. That was the one part of the program that worried him at first. What he feared was that his brother officers would say: 'Well, you're guilty of insubordination, but you don't amount to enough as to matters much. When they did not adopt that attitude they played right into the colonel's hands and now he's got them to toast, just as he hoped to do." Mitchell unquestionably will make life extremely miserable for army and navy men of the otherdox school for a long time to come. Those who know him intimately declare that except to folks he is attacking he has an engaging personality. He speaks and writes forcefully, picturesquely and convincingly. He seems to have tremendous energy. Besides angering the old-timers and keeping them in a ferment, he may make it hard for them to get appropriations for their old-time purposes if he convinced enough people in the United States that armies and navies are obsolete. He stands a chance of doing some good, providing he doesn't overdo it. In any event, it's going to be entertaining to listen to him. He's a new type of martyr.

INSANITY PLEAS

A woman was being tried for murder in an Ohio city a few months ago and in the middle of the trial her lawyer received word that she had a possible claim to a large estate left by a man who had just died in the far west. Counsel for the defense moved that the trial be delayed, pointing out that if the woman did prove to be heiress to the estate she would have enough money to afford to present an insanity defense and pay alienists to come and testify for her." It is not often that such a splendid illustration of the glaring weakness of the United States' criminal court procedure comes to hand. That a hopeless muddle our cousines have made of the law! The accused, if he or she is in funds, hires alienists to testify to insanity and the state hires other alienists to prove that the accused is shamming. The decision is then left to a dozen jurors, not one of whom—and prosecuting attorney and counsel for the defense make certain of this—knows a single, solitary thing about psychology or mental pathology. Some day, perhaps, it will occur to the law-makers of the United States that it will be wise er to have expert alienists in the employ of the state, just as legal experts—the judges—are kept in the employ of the state; so that any person accused of crime would be examined at once to see if he were of sound mind. Wouldn't something like that be better than the idiotic course they now pursue? It would place rich and poor on a more equal footing, keep guilty rascals from escaping punishment and, perhaps, keep some poor half-witted youngster from being hanged for something he couldn't help.

JUNGLE MARRIAGE

Marriage in the jungle, among the Bush-Negroes of Suriname, is not an elaborate performance, says John W. Vandercook in an account of his last visit to the northern coast of South America, in the May Harper's Magazine. He writes:

"Bush-Negro girls usually marry for the first time when they are 15 or 16, but this first love is by no means the last. The Bush-Negroes consider women as the fickle sex and have patiently provided for their inevitable changes by the matriarchs themselves created the system. A woman may leave her husband at any time if she has what public opinion admits to be a fair excuse. If the husband is lazy, a poor provider, or simply dull, that is ample reason for him to be deserted. This last reason is quite seriously balanced and allowed. If the woman fails in love with another man public opinion does not except that as a sound reason for her to quit her lawful groom, unless maybap, the lover is obviously more attractive than the husband. That is a different matter, the village readily grants.

"The divorce is quite simple. The lady either locks her front door or moves. In the first case the husband officially receives notice that he is no longer welcome. In the second he finds his clothes and personal belongings piled in front of the door. Then he knows."

THE PRIMROSE

London Daily Express:

What is the loveliest word in the English language? At this time of the year it is surely "primroses." There are other fairy names: for fairy flowers, and it is hard to reject the claims of violet, daffodil, honeysuckle and eglantine. But the primrose is the one word that stabs our heart away. It is a wistful and virginal word. English in every syllable and fresh with dew. There is more magical grace in primroses than in any other flower. They are the emblems of girlhood. They melt the heart with their wondering frailty and innocent tenderness. If only we could all recapture the fresh primrose glee and joy of life!

A RAILWAY WITH A SOUL

The Kingston Whig:

Sir Henry Thornton, warmly exclaims The Kingston Whig, has a heart and, as a result, an intense concern for the men under him in the Canadian National Railways service. Our contemporary proceeds to relate an inspiring story to illustrate this fact. In August, 1924, George Cornish, a yard foreman at Belleville, risked his life to save a child from drowning at the Sandbanks. After full inquiry the Royal Canadian Humane Association recently decided to present a parchment testimonial to Mr. Cornish for his courageous act. Sir Henry heard of it, and at once expressed a desire to attend the presentation. In a letter to former Mayor Mikel, he wrote:

"I am happy to know that one of our employees performed a fine and noble act. If it is not procrastinating matters too long I think I could find a day within the next two weeks to, stop off at Belleville and assist in the presentation of the testimonial. I always like to know when any of our men do anything outstanding in order that they may receive the congratulations and good wishes of the company. It tends to make us all a little more human; then we forget that they are working for a soulless (?) company, and the company remembers that, after all, men are men."

It is just what one would expect from Sir Henry, and from The Whig just what one would expect from a big-hearted, sympathetic, generous man. This act will add greatly to his popularity among all classes of railwaymen, and among all Canadians who appreciate his kindly, whole hearted regard for all whose work is making the C.N.R. a real Canadian enterprise.

WHEN A DRIVER HELPS THE POLICE

Toronto Star:

A citizen whose car is commandeered by the police, and who is forced to drive it in the pursuit of escaping criminals, risks both his vehicle and his life. If the pursuit results in injury to either vehicle or person, prompt and adequate compensation should be forthcoming.

The car of a Toronto citizen was recently smashed up in such an adventure. It transpires that there is no provision in the law for presenting the owner with a new car, or repairing the old one. It is an omission which should be rectified.

In the meantime the police commissioners should take it upon themselves to vote a sufficient compensation, law or no law. Chief Dickson is right when he suggests that no citizen should lose through having helped the police as the law requires.

Princes of Church To Attend Congress

PAPAL SECRETARY AND TEN CARDINALS WILL PARTICIPATE IN GREAT GATHERING

For the first time in history the International Eucharistic Congress will be held in the United States. The last Congress was held in Montreal but with this one exception all former congresses have been held in the capitals of European cities. Chicago will be the scene of this year's cosmopolitan assemblage June 20 to 24 and the proximity of Toronto, and through Toronto practically the whole of Ontario, to this city will enable many thousands of Canadians to participate in the inspiring ceremonies and witness what will be the greatest religious demonstration in the history of the continent.

Organization of the prospective visitors to the Congress from the district of Ontario is in the hands of the officers of the Holy Name Society. Joseph Smith, secretary of the Archdiocesan Holy Name Union has already circularized the societies of the diocese inviting them to attend the Congress and arranged with the Canadian Pacific Railway for special train accommodation. Special trains originating in Toronto will leave on the night of June 19, arriving in Chicago in time for the opening. Through line same-agency arrangements have also been made for suitable accomodation for the Ontario visitors in Chicago, and Mr. Smith anticipates that having assured of ample train and hotel accommodation, the Ontario party will number many hundreds.

Featuring the opening of Congress will be the reception of Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of state for the Vatican, who will attend, with ten cardinals and a retinue of the most important ecclesiastics of the Church, as the official Delegate of His Holiness Pope Pius XI. Cardinal Gasparri will carry the message of His Holiness. Special services will be held this day in all churches of the city with a million confessions and communions as a Spiritual Bouquet to His Holiness the Pope. Daily and sectional meetings will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and will be addressed by prominent church men and laymen from foreign capitals. In the case of the sectional meetings the audiences will be addressed in their native tongues. Fifty-thousand school children will sing the Mass of the Angels at the general meeting on Monday.

The Twenty-eighth International Eucharistic Congress will be brought to an end by a Eucharistic Procession at Mundelein, twenty-six miles from Chicago.

A Famous Man

The originator of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood, as well as the "Favorite Prescription" for women, was Dr. Ray V. Pierce, a practising physician in Western Pennsylvania. He early moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established The Invalids' Hotel, then he put up his home remedies in the World's Dispensary, where they were carefully prepared from roots, barks and herbs, and placed them with druggists all over the U. S. and Canada.

For over half a century, Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold in larger quantities by druggists than any other medicine. It is a tonic in its effect on the stomach and digestive apparatus; an alterative in its action on the blood, liver and skin. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and can live.

FINE DISCOURSE TO ODDFELLOWS BY REV. WIGHT

Friendship, Love and Truth Principles of Order Basis for Sermon

Friendship, love and truth, the three cardinal principles of the Independent Order of Oddfellows were the basis of a discourse delivered Sunday morning in Holloway Street United Church by the pastor, Rev. L. S. Wight, B.A., B.D. The occasion was the annual parade of the members of Belleville and Mizpah Lodges of the I.O.O.F. Society, also members of Canton Belleville No. 2, and Rebekahs of Quinte Lodge to commemorate the 107th anniversary of the founding of the Order. Despite the inclement weather there was a good turnout and visiting brethren were present from Trenton and other places. The parade to and from the sacred edifice was preceded by the A.L.I. band under the leadership of Lieut. R. Hinchey.

After the usual devotional exercises and previous to delivering his discourse, Rev. Mr. Wight gave an interesting historical sketch of the Order, also its aims and object. He also extended a hearty welcome to the members on behalf of the officials of the church and himself. The object of Oddfellowship is for the aid and protection of brothers when in sickness and on travel and benevolence and charity are its command. Oddfellowship neither supercedes nor supplants creeds, nor ordinances in matters of religion. It assumes no perogative of the spiritual. It interferes with no duties which we owe to God, to families or ourselves. It seeks but to ameliorate the sorrow of mankind, relieve the poor, the sick, the blind, lift up the drooping heart, cheer the widow and wipe away the helpless orphan's tear. It is one common brotherhood linked only in the bonds of doing good.

In Ecclesiastes 4th chapter and a portion of the 12th verse are these words: "A three fold cord is not easily broken." What is Friendship, the first principle in the three links. It is the esteem, respect and affection one entertains for another. Friendship is indispensable. It is a necessity of our human nature. Every rightly constituted human being needs the touch, uplift and inspiration of social sympathy. Jesus did and he visited the home of Mary and Martha and other homes in Bethany for it. We are so constituted that we need someone with whom we can share our joys, commit our secrets, open our hearts, and can go to in dark and cloudy days for counsel and sunshine. If we have such a friend as that our greatest darkness will have light, our blackest day a sun. The best friend we can have is Jesus. What is it to be a friend of Jesus? Occupied with similar interests, animated by similar ideals longing for His companionship and delighting to hear and heed His voice.

The central link in the chain of Oddfellowship is love and this is exemplified in mutual assistance. Fraternity, unless embodied in acts of humanity, is but an empty name. He who witnesses suffering and does not hasten to relieve it is ignorant of the lesson that it is more blessed to give than to receive. He is an enemy to his race who does not care for its welfare and is wedded to selfishness and greed.

The third link in the trinity of virtues is truth. Are we endeavoring to foster these splendid principles in our every day life? Truth is the spontaneous result of genuine constant love. If love is the fundamental element of all morality, truth is the imperial virtue. It is the sanction of every appeal that is made for good and the right. The man of truth is the best and the strongest man; his soul like a spring of clear water reflects the light of heaven and is full of life.

Is it possible to realize such a friendship? A brotherhood animated by love and based upon truth. Friendship, love and truth are three great lights blended into one luminary. God is love and thou shalt love the Lord with all thy strength and thy neighbor as thyself. If we have become an Oddfellow or a member of any other praise worthy society we seek to improve and elevate the character of man to imbue him with the proper conception of his capabilities for good to enlighten his mind; to enlarge the sphere of his affections; in a word our aim should be to lead man to the cultivation of the true fraternal relation designed by the great Author of his being.

During the service Bro. A. L. Shillman rendered an appropriate solo and a chorus of Rebekahs and Oddfellows rendered the hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds." The band also gave a religious selection in fine style.

Leads in sales because it leads in value

Canadian buyers are careful and conservative. Hence, such overwhelming success can mean only one thing: superior comfort and value. Investigate now the bedspring that is breaking sales records throughout the Dominion—the Slumber King.

It is the finest steel fabric spring built in Canada. Its four rows of coil ties allow the 26 ribbon steel strips to shape to your body. You never get cramped down in the centre. Extra wide border strips and cables prevent sagging edges. Nothing can catch and tear the bedclothes. It is easiest to keep clean.

Only huge production could make its price $12, surprisingly little, especially when your sleep and health are at stake. See it at any furniture store today. While there, complete your comfort with the Ostermoor, for more than 30 years Canada's finest white cotton felt mattress, regardless of price. An unrivalled value at $25. Look for the Ostermoor label.

SPORTOGRAMS

By "The Observer"

Thursday night's soft ball game should attract the largest crowd of the season. The Alumites are keyed up to the highest pitch in anticipation of the toughest game in the schedule. Manager Jack Anne places every confidence in his team to down the league leading Point Anne team. The Juniors were expected to be the child prizes of the Suburbans but they were eliminated last Tuesday night. The Alemite took the C. N. R. team into camp the other evening by a 15-4 score.

The Point Anne team were only able to dispose of the railroaders by a 7—2 score. On this contention the Alemites boast their supremacy.

The Alemites are mostly all young players with the exception of "Scotty" Knott who does the catching and the ever reliable Jimmy McKenna at the initial sack.

Johnny Kerr, the youngster who has thus far gained considerable reputation as a soft-ball pitcher will face in Point Anne, a clever aggregation and he will need to employ every trick in the bag. "Soup" Coyer who handles the point men looks forward to a win. If the smiling "Sunny" Green is in good trim the Alemites will need to don their hit ting togs. The Indian had the Juniors whiffing the air the other night with his up shot and a boy who can fan eleven batters ins soft-ball game is a real pitcher.

Which ever way it goes the game will be worth a walk to the armouries.

Over 100,000 fans viewed the Bolton-Manchester City soccer game in London last Saturday in which the former nosed out the Manchester by 1 to 0.

The King presented a cup emblematic of the English Football Association to the Captain of the Wanderers.

The girls of Belleville, Madoc, Sterling and Trenton High Schools have formed a soft-ball league. The games will be played on Saturday afternoons. This is indeed a real project, it will not only stimulate interest in athletics but will build up a friendlier spirit between the girls of the different schools. Athletics among the fair sex are rapidly gaining in popularity all over the province. In the recent basket-ball game between Toronto Ladwides and Kingston Grads over 2,000 people jammed the arena to watch the game and were astounded by the way the girls enter the contests. No more of this mandy-pamby stuff but real fast play and the girls take their bumps in real style.

The boys of the Public School should form a similar league with neighboring town teams.

ORIOLES BEATEN 19 TO 6 TO END WINNING STREAK

Toronto Split Even—Yanks on Top — Other Scores

Sundays' baseball in the States was responsible for the end of Baltimore's string of wins, for seeing the Yanks regain the top of the American League and for various other things. Some of the high lights follow:

ORIOLES WALLOPED

At Baltimore, Md., Buffalo replied in kind to the unmerciful beating administered by Jack Dunn's Orioles and spoiled Baltimore's straight victory record of nine, with a seven-inning debacle ending 19 to 6 in favor of the Bisons. Baltimore won the first full time session, 2 to 1.

Buffol	1	6
Baltimore	2	7

Batteries: Koupal and Lake; Earnshaw and McKee.

Second game—

Buffalo	19	16
Baltimore	6	9

(7 innings by agreement).

Batteries: Proffit, Aner and Pond; Ogden, Myers, Hardwood, Carlton and Cobb.

YANKEES ON TOP

At New York the Athletics came to town and, as far as the Yankees are concerned, they can make themselves right at home and stay as long as they want to. The Mackmen are the most accommodating visitors seen thus far in the metropolis. They lost at the Stadium 7 to 2 and the Yanks were not even breathing hard at the finish.

Although Cornelius McGillicuddy stood in the dugout and exhorted his mahons to do valorous deeds, and minions fielded up like a rumble seat before the grade "A" pitching of Waite Hoyt. The Macks harvested only seven hits, whereas the Yanks ran their total up to 12 when Sammy Gray had three bad innings. In spots Hoyt himself was very good and in spots he was very bad, but the Texas righthander has one distinction anyway. He now enjoys the proud honor of being the only American League pitcher who has lasted a full game against the homicide squad of Miller Huggins.

BROOKLYN SUPREME!

At New York anything might have happened at Ebbett's Field where the Giants and Robins finished their International borough battles. With home runs being knocked around with miscellaneous abandon, pitchers being driven from the box and sleuf of a run or two meaning about as much as a grand opera pass at the world's series, there was doubt as to the outcome until Rabbit Maranville scampered into left centre field and hauled down a looping fly that would have tied the score had it fallen safe.

Until then no one knew what the outcome would be, but that catch, made in the Rabbit's own peculiar manner ended the ding-dong riot and left the Robins with a winning margin of two runs. The final score was 8 to 6 and the victory gave the Flatbush flock an even break in the series with the league-leading New Yorkers.

The Robins opened a barrage in the first that put a two run lead behind Jess Alfrose, who lasted the full nine innings for Brooklyn, although he was found for 14 hits before the afternoon was over.

TORONTO SPLITS EVEN

At Jersey City—Jersey City and Toronto split a double-header here, the locals winning the first game by a score of 3 to 2, and dropping the second 8 to 2. Ownie Carroll pitched the second game for Toronto and won his third start in the International League.

NATIONAL HOCKEY LOOP MAY HAVE TEN TEAMS

Boston, Mass., April 21.—Plans for the protection of territory suitable to the expansion of the National Hockey League through the formation of a second group of teams were announced today by Chas. F. Adams, President of the Boston Bruins. The plans are contingent upon the action of the league at the May 1st meeting in Montreal on the question of expanding the league to ten teams from the present seven team circuit.

GOING WITHOUT GLASSES

When they should be worn, especially when the person KNOWS they should be worn, cannot be too strongly condemned. Every day of such neglect adds its quota of unnecessary distress to the brow. And when the proper glasses are sure to bring quick and lasting relief it is every unwise for a person to go for even a day without them. The care of your eyes is my chief concern.

A GREAT RELIGIOUS FUNCTION

28th International World's Eucharistic Congress

The first Eucharistic Congress owed its inspiration to a pious lady who led a strict and unreverful life during the latter part of the last century. Her name was Marie Tamisier. She was born at Tours, (France), November 1st, 1834, and died June 20th, 1910. At her urgent and repeated request, Monsignor de Segur appealed to Mr. Phillibert Vrau, "The Holy Man of Lille" and the first Eucharistic Congress was held at Lille, France, June 21st, 1881. Only on one previous occasion has the Congress been held in America, that being in 1910, when it was held in Montreal. This year it is being held in the City of Chicago, June 20th to 24th.

The original idea of holding such a Congress was merely local, but year after year it has grown to the result that the coming event promises to be one of the greatest religious gatherings ever held in the world and it may be many years before the Canadian Catholic people will again have the opportunity of attending such a Congress.

Many of the great dignitaries of the Church, including the Papal Secretary and ten Cardinals from all parts of the world will be present and take part in the services. Cardinal Garparri, Secretary of State for the Vatican, will represent the Pope.

A pilgrimage to attend the Congress has been authorized by the State Council of the Knights of Columbus with the approbation of the Catholic bishops of the Province of Ontario a splendid opportunity to attend the Congress under most favorable conditions.

Plans have been perfected for the operation of personally conducted trains and in addition to house and entertain all pilgrims desiring this service, in fact to look after their every need and comfort during the whole pilgrimage.

Any agent of the Canadian National Railways will be glad to furnish full information and intending pilgrims would do well to make early reservations as due to the countless thousands that will attend, accommodation will be at a premium long before the Congress opens.

RUSSO-GERMAN TREATY

Berlin, April 24.—Russian German amity treaty was signed today. Although terms of the agreement have not been made public, authoritative quarters in Germany represent it as an important step in safe guarding the peace of Europe. They maintain that it does not establish an alliance between the two countries but rather parallels and compliments the Locarno Pact.

VANCOUVER MAN WINS

New Westminster, B. B., April 24.—In the Canadian Championships here last night, George Ainsworth, Vancouver captured the bantam-weight belong title, defeating George Leitham, Montreal, in the second round on a foul.

ALL STAR CAST LIKE A BASEBALL NINE IN FILM

"I doubt if the team spirit was ever shown in the making of a film any more than it has been with "Three Days," was the remark of director Scott Sidney, as he laid down his megaphone after the last day of shooting the new Al Christie featurecomedy. "They worked just like a well-oiled baseball machine such as John McGraw has developed, and that's something when you've got nine or ten personalities all working for laughs in the same picture."

"They" referred to by Scott Sidney means the nine featured players of the Producers Distributing Corporation release, "Seven Days" starring Charley Ray, Vera Reynolds and including in the cast Lilian Rich, Creighton Hale, Lyn Tashman, Eddie Gribbon, Mabel Julienne Scott, Otto Hoffman, Rosa Gore, Hallam Cooley and William Austin.

"There was no petty jealousy here," said Sidney, congratulating himself on getting such a happy lot of fareers to work with. In fact yoh seldom find "temperament" and petty bickering breaking out in a comedy studio. They are all out like a team to get the laughs and that makes it lovely for everybody, including the audiences who will see their work later. Don't miss this one.

VOLLEY BALL TEAM PLAYED IN TORONTO AT BIG TOURNAMENT

Early Saturday morning a group from the local Y.Business Mens section journeyed to Toronto by car, to attend the annual International Volley ball tournament. Central Y.M.C.A. on College St. was again the scene of the tournament which commenced at 9 o'clock after two o'clock in the afternoon and continued until early night o'clock in the evening, with games going on in all Central's both gymsiums at the same time.

Eight teams in all entered the tournament and it remained for Niagara Falls, N.Y., who were the only entry from across the border, to give the tournament its international aspect. The other teams present were: Galt, Broadview, Montreal, Toronto, Central Y (3 teams) and Belleville. Each team play every other team two eleven point games and the team winning the most games was awarded the championship. Galt's team of younger men proved champions of the tournament, winning from Central Y last team, with whom they were tied at the conclusion of the regular schedule. Had Central 1st team not lost a game to their own second team, they would have been champions of the tournament without having to play off with any other teams, it was Central had to dispose of the Niagara Falls team before they got into the final test with Galt, Niagara Y.M.C.A. having up to that stage won all their games, which gave them a good chance for the title.

The Belleville entry represented by the following players, Messrs. Brown, Morton, Mitchelhe, Sidney, Armstrong and Munnings, was drawn against two of the stronger teams, at the very first of the schedule r

OULETTE, GIBSON GET CERTIFICATES DAINTY DOES NOT

Toronto, April 26.—The Initial meeting of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association executive, held at the Carls-Hits Hotel on Saturday afternoon last, was the biggest and most important in years, and should be a long way in promoting and encouraging the true amateur spirit in baseball circles throughout the province.

After many warnings during past years that the O.B.A.A. would endeavor to stop the class of athletes who under different pretexts, such as employment, suddenly changed their place of residence, the executive finally took action in positively refusing twelve players O.B.A.A. certificates for the 1926 season. Others will be granted certificates on July 1, and the players who neglected or did not consider it worth while to notify the association prior to Feb. 15, as required by the constitution and bylaws, will be forced to remain inactive, as far as baseball is concerned, for the entire season.

CERTIFICATES GRANTED

Certificates for the following players were ratified for this years, but a further year will be closely scrutinized and the result may be a refusal:

George Beatty from Toronto to Guelph; C. E. West, from Port Dover to Galt; J. Duncan, from Sudbury to Galt; Alex. Scott, from Port Dover to Galt; W. Nicholl, from Galt to Preston; K. K. Parkins, from Stratford to St. Catharines; C. Dismore, from Brantford to St. Catharines; G. L. Ada, from Kingston to Kitchener; John Bow, from Flesherton to Kitchener; H. Gibson, from Cobourg to Belleville; John Oulette, from Lindsay to Belleville; Wm. Ralph, from Renfrew to Delora; John Bond, from Toronto to Delora; J. W. Thorburn, from Owen Sound to Newburn; H. C. Tupholme, from London to St. Catharines; T. Pascoe, from Woodstock to St. Thomas.

Certificates will be granted on July 1 to C. W. Pullen, who moved from Stratford to Preston and C. J. Ward, who moved from Oshawa to Preston.

The following players' certificates were held over pending further evidence:—P. A. Trapnell, from St. Catharines to Preston; W. L. Brown, from Bridgeburg to Preston; Geo. Burling, from Stratford to St. Catharines; H. W. Call, from Bridgeburg to Kitchener; L. Lasovoy, from Peterbro to Kitchener; Anderson, from Toledo to Kitchener; Wilder, from Toledo to Kitchener; S. G. Wilson, from Owen Sound to Barrie; N. W. Geddes, from Clinton to Stratford; Charles Green, Oscar Johnston and L. Chapman, who moved to Strathroy.

TWENTY-TWO REFUSED

The following players were refused certificates for the 1926 season: Ernest Bowman, Toronto to Guelph; W. Rimmer, from Toronto to Guelph; L. Tyson, from Oshawa to Galt; Jack Young, from Stratford to St. Catharines; O. McDermott, from Hamilton to Kitchener; James Hill, from Hamilton to Kitchener; G. A. GERMANY READY IN CASE OF WAR WITH BIG ARMY

Nearly Two Millions of Semi-trained Men Well Officered In Present National Organizations—Well Armed.

Berlin—In the event of war Germany could throw into the field an army of practically the same numerical strength as of the war-strength of the old German army. The activity of the Steel Helms and kindred military organizations under the direction of officers of the German army is creating alarm among the sincere and earnest opponents of militarism in this country. Dr. Carl Mertens has pointed out that Germany can muster an army of 2,053,000 men; even if the members of the Republican organizations fail to answer the summons. Here are his figures:

Regular army	100,000
Security police	130,000
National military organizations	1,835,000
Total	2,065,000

WAR SHORTLY

If the Reichsbanner, the greatest of the Republican organizations of young men, should throw in its lot with the Nationalists, then on the second day of mobilization the war strength of the old German army would be reached. Prof. F.W. Forster, dealing with the same facts, is alarmed because he sees the danger at hand of within a short time. He says:

"All that the British General Morgan made known two years ago—that is to say, the reorganization of the German pre-war army like a gigantic shed over behind the visible regular army—has developed during last year under the form of so-called Home Defence organizations. There is not a most intimate co-operation between the regular and the patriotic organizations, above all with the Steel Helms. The army helps in the military training of the civilian organizations, provides weapons, provends persons with private stores of arms and provides, if necessary, the chief military command.

"Everything in this great system of co-operation is arranged to the smallest detail; the assembly points at which the men if necessity arises, are to be armed and welded into one body, the vicinities, and the private financing."

Forster, a searching survey of the position Prof. Forster states: "It follows that in two years at the latest there will be an out break of war, arising from the systematic campaign of hatred against Poland, in the east of Germany."

He holds that the outbreak of war will mean the destruction of Prussian power in Germany: "For all those on whose help our warmakers count as free east, Russia and England, will absolutely refuse to be allies and will wish nothing less than that the spirit of 1914, which cost Europe 10,000,000 men, should still triumph in Middle Europe.

HIDDEN IN FOREST

The attitude of the Nationalist and the Republican organizations of young men in the case of war was actually discussed in the Reichstag last month.

Dr. Carl Mertens stated that the estates of Count Ed. Bohlen are near the Polish frontier and the count is leader of the eastern district of the Steel Helms maintaining an officer to link up the various groups and attend to the training of the young men. "On the count's estate," asserted Dr. Mertens, "are in mense store of arms and munitions. I know the places in the forests where they lie. There are thousands of rifles, machine guns, mine-throwers, a battery of field guns, hand grenades and munitions."

ALLIES TO OBJECT

According to Dr. Mertens, the Steel Helms are armed with rifles and machine guns. There are 150 rifles, nine machine guns and four light machine guns on the Pieske estate. The owner was afraid of a search and received through the county a document certifying that "the arms stored on the Pieske estate belong to the regular army commando of the fortress of Kruetin."

It is being stated in semi-official circles here that the allies who signed the Versailles Treaty with Britain are to bring the question of Germany's secret army to the notice of the Council of the League of Nations.

Fine Plaits Animate the Straight-Line Silhouette

BUTTERICK 6794

These were straight lines and two-piece dresses yesterday and the same styles persist to-day, but with a difference. The silhouette is eased and animated by fine plaits that hold the frock close to the figure in repose but give it the essential fluttering motion when one walks ❖ The blouse is a trifle longer, the sleeve is fuller, the bonnet front is new. This is an excellent type of dress to combine with a cape for an ensemble. Make it of flat crepe with the cape to match and the blouse, in a lighter or darker shade. Striped shantung with the stripes turned two ways is very smart. ❖

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"Love has many languages, dearest. Do you want a man to knock you down with a direct I love you, madam? before you learn the state of his heart, Poor Elliot." The tears gathered in her eyes. "Ah, forgive me!" he said, penitently. "My trauma and happiness have made me hard-hearted. Don't look so unhappy, dearest! He is not the first man those eyes, that face of yours, that gentle heart has conquered!"

Constance's face grew pale suddenly, and she trembled, for his words had brought to her remembrance the existence of—Rawson Fegton.

She must tell him, this man who loved her so passionately, the history of her past! And yet how hard it was that now, in this moment of exquisite happiness, she should call up a shadow to dim it!

He, watching her face, and reading it by the light love lends, saw the coming cloud.

"Wolfe," she whispered, drawing a little closer to him, "you do not think you don't ask me anything about my past life my history—"

She felt his hand tighten round her waist.

"What are you going to say?" he ask ed. "What is it you want to tell me? Stop a moment dearest. I am so happy—my happiness makes me a coward! Are you going to tell me that I am not the first man you have loved — that there was some one before me?"

And his brows darkened apprehensively.

Her face grew warm with a flush of joy.

"No!" she murmured, almost inaudibly "There is no one, there has never been any one but you—Wolfe!"

He pressed her to him, and kissed her with passionate relief.

"My angel!" he said, his voice quivering with emotion. "What else do I care about! Constance, don't tell me anything more! The past! Great Heaven! we have buried it! Don't you see dearest," and his voice grew graver, "if you were to tell me I should have to tell you, and——" He stopped, and his face darkened again. "Ah, let it all go, my love! Some day, say when we have been married twenty years, and we feel particularly happy and enfolding, we will exchange experiences.

"Till then let this suffice; that you and I love each other, and that we have neither of us lived until we met!"

What could she say or do but cling to him with infinite devotion, with the infinite of love?

"But, dearest, I have no more of this nonsense about rank and all that," he said, after a pause. "You are worthy of a better man than I am, let my rank be what it may, and my mother will be the first to acknowledge that; as for any one else—when were you thinking of, dearest, by the way?"

"Lady Ruth, for one," was Constances lips but she remained silent.

"Ah! that is not true, it is a mistake Lord Elliot—oh, Wolfe, I should be so unhappy if I could believe what you say!

"All right," he said with the cheerfulness of the man who wins. "I'm sorry I spoke of it. But it's true. Why, dearest, he fled the place because he could not endure it after you had gone But we won't say any more about it. Elliot is the best fellow in the world—you ought to have shown him, you fool lish young woman!—and he will bear me no ill will!"

"Oh, no," she murmured.

"Not he! And we'll find a nice wife for him, Constance. He'll marry any woman you asked him to. But I must talk about even dear old Elliot to-by. I am too full of my own happiness, Constance, how soon will you marry me he asked in her ear.

Constance drew back with a look of dismay.

"Marry you?" she panted, her face aflame.

He looked down at her with loving mockery.

"That idea hasn't occured to you, yet hapy?"

"Oh, no, no," she said, falteringly, "not for—for a long long time," and her breath came and went in little gasps as she hid her face against his breast.

"Oh, thank you; that's rather indefinite. Shall we say this day month?"

"This day two years!" she answered, almost inaudibly.

"In-deed, and how am I to continue to live all that time, if you please? Will you say this day six weeks?"

"I will say nothing," she responded, "except that I have stayed too long, and suddenly darting back her head. "I must go now. Have you forgotten dear Arol?"

"I have forgotten everything; I am perfectly willing to forget everything but the dearest girl in all the world!" he said, passionately. "Give me one kiss of your own free will before you go if you must go, Constance."

She stood for a moment motionless then raised herself on tiptoe and laid her lips on his. The next moment she had broken from him, and flitted along the terrace and in at the window.

She ran to her own room, and as she stood before the glass smoothing the hair which his kisses and caresses had ruffled, she looked at the face reflected there, and it seemed to her almost as that of a stranger. What had come to it? Was it really beautiful? She had never thought of it before, never asked herself the question. If it was beautiful his love had made it so, as it had transformed her whole being.

Before her stretched the wide expanse of lawn and park; for miles beyond she knew the lands of Brikespeare extend ed. Rank, position, immense wealth all were at her and touching her cheek; "for would all be hers as the wife of the man quis, as the future Marchioness of Brake spear; but she did not give on thought to the worldly side of the matter.

Love, infinite love for him filled her heart, and if he had been one of the lab orers about the place, her joy, her unspeakable joy and happiness, would have been the same.

She bathed her face, still flushed with his kisses, and went back to the sick-room.

Arol looked up as she entered, and his face brightened, and at the sight of his smile she thought with ineffable delight that now she need not leave him.

"How long you have been, Constance dear," he said.

Constance took him in her arms, and pressed him to her heart, which seem ed overflowing with love.

"Have I, dear?" she murmured.

"Yes, but I don't mind," he said, look

DUNCAN'S REPORT INVOLVES BUREAU AND FARROW

CANADA IS GIVEN ONE ADVANTAGE VIA THE BUDGET

Wrapping Paper Duty and Motor Cars Preference Announced

London, April 27.—The chief interest in the Churchill budget, so far as Canada is concerned, centres in new duties on wrapping paper and commercial motor cars and a ten-year guarantee given for the continuation of all Empire preferences.

The duty on wrapping paper is 15 2-3 per cent. ad valorem, and the Empire preference is one-third per cent. Canada will be the only Dominion to benefit under this rebate. The imposition of a 33 1-3 per cent. duty on commercial motor cars will help every where in the Imperial preference. Canadian-made motor trucks were one of the features of Canada's exhibit at the British Empire Exhibition. A guarantee for ten years of preference on motor cars may be an inducement for Canadian automobile plants to continue operations despite the reduction in Canadian protective duties on their products. A very large proportion of motor cars of the American type, imported into Great, Britain, come from Canadian factories.

The Chancellor noted as a fact the fact that the country during the past six years had cut its floating debt in half, the debt in that period having been reduced by £700,000,000. He contended that the return to the gold standard was amply justified; dollar exchange had been maintained at parity which on the debt to the United States had saved the country £750,000,000.

The bank rate was no higher than before the war and there had been no substantial exodus of gold.

"Our prices now are in favorable relation to those in the United States," said the Chancellor. "Most important of all, we stand on a basis of reliability. We may not be soaring in the clouds but there is solid ground under our feet."

With reference to the coal dispute and its effect on the country's finances, he said the school on the site

COLLEGIATE IS STEP NEARER COUNCIL AUTHORIZED BY-LAW SUBJECT TO ONE SUGGESTION

Sum of $400,000, Almost Half Later to be Returned Provided for in By-Law with Suggestion that Board of Education Consider Possibility of East Belleville Playgrounds as Possible Site — Board to Get Department's O.K. on Final Selection.

The position of the new Collegiate at the moment is this: The Belleville City Council have authorized the City Clerk to prepare a by-law providing the money necessary to erect and complete the structure. This calls for the expenditure of $400,000. The Council has made public the suggestion that the Board of Education consider as a site for the Collegiate the East Belleville Playgrounds on Bridge Street East, instead of the site of the present High School. But the final selection of the site rests with the Board of Education and the Department of Education, Queen's Park, Toronto. And according to statements made some time ago in the Board of Education the Department has twice made the declaration that the site of the Present High School is the logical one for the new Collegiate. What is necessary is that the Board now get a further declaration from the Department as to the proper ground on which to erect the building. It is most probable that this detail—one of great importance—can be satisfactorily arranged to the satisfaction of all concerned by the time the next meeting of the City Council takes place two weeks hence.

And this being so the by-law will be passed and the way will then have been cleared for the erection of the building, subject to final selection of plans and the letting of contracts and so forth.

It is recognized of course as a fact that the building will not ultimately cost the city $400,000 but approximately $225,000 after departmental grants have been made.

Belleville's City Council held a committee meeting for three hours and the regular council meeting for the better part of an hour last evening, as a result of which they laid down two very important pieces of civic legislation.

A SUGGESTION

One was that they would raise the money needed for the new Collegiate Institute but they coupled with this the suggestion that the Board of Education build the school on the site of the East Belleville playgrounds, Bridge street east, providing the Department of Education okd that location as a proper site.

The other was a new gas agreement and on the face of this agreement it looks as though the City Council has tied down the Belleville Gas and Fuel Co. and Hubly and Co. the brokers who handle the pro-

OTTAWA UNITED PRESBYTERY SPLIT OVER CADETS; SUPPORTS O.T.A.

Ottawa, April 27.—The Ottawa Presbytery of the United Church is undecided on the question of favoring cadet training in public schools. The question has been submitted to all Presbyteries by the General Council. A Presbytery committee investigating the subject turned in a majority report favoring the retention of the school cadet system and a minority report favoring its abolition. The Presbytery went on record as recommending electors only to support candidates for public office who declared themselves in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act which, in its opinion was, when well enforced, the best method of dealing with liquor traffic.

JUDGE MACAULAY EXTOLLS BEAUTY OF THE YUKON

His Lordship Gives an Address to Kiwanis — 25 Years There

Not in a long time have members of the local Kiwanis Club listened to a more interesting and at the same time educational address than they were privileged to listen to today when His Lordship, Mr. Justice Macaulay, for the past twenty-five years Justice of the Yukon Territory, entertained the Club with a talk on the Yukon, its early history and rapid development, as a great mining center, its agricultural possibilities, and many other interesting sidelights gathered in a quarter century on personal experiences and woven into a story made doubly enjoyable because related by a speaker of great merit and rare personality.

YUKON HISTORY RETOLD

In brief the speaker took the club members back to 1820 when the Hudson's Bay Company was first granted a charter to trade with the Indians in the Yukon District; the same was shifted to 1833 which date marked the first discovery of gold in small quantities. It was not until 1873 that mining operations began in earnest with an annual gold output of about $300,000. Then came the famous rush of '98, when, as a gold miner, after the discovery near Dawson, and from all parts of the world came prospectors making their fortune in this new field of endeavour, scarcely hotels hardships to wrest wealth from a cold and almost inaccessible country.

1901 TO THE PRESENT

It was in 1901 that the speaker first went to the Yukon Territory, to administer justice in the early golden days of the district had of course increased enormously with a production in 1901 of twenty-two millions—and this was all

Toronto, Ont., April 27.—Development of the British Empire, its relations with the United States and the maintenance of peace in Europe, are undoubted by the three greatest political questions of the war future, declared Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, in an address at luncheon today to the Canadian, Empire and Rotary clubs of Toronto which met jointly.

"I look to Canada in the future to play a very great part in all questions affecting the Empire at large" declared Sir Esme, "above all in the all-important question of maintaining Anglo-American relations on a sound, healthy and friendly footing."

FORMER CUSTOMS CHIEF WITH DEPUTY MINISTER NAMED AS LAW BREAKERS

INSPECTOR DUNCAN'S REPORT ALLEGES THAT THEY WITH MEMBER OF CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION RECEIVED IN OTTAWA LIQUOR THEY KNEW WAS SHIPPED FROM GOVERNMENT WAREHOUSE IN MONTREAL — OTHER ALLEGATIONS.

Ottawa, April 27.—The confidential report of Inspector Walter Duncan which has been before the Customs probe for some weeks, was made public this morning. Chairman Mercier announced at the outset of this morning's proceedings that the Committee had decided unanimously that the report be read.

The report states that evidence taken by Inspector Duncan shows that the Hon. Jacques Bureau, ex-Minister of Customs and Excise; R. R. Farrow, Deputy Minister, and M. J. Larochelle, member of the Civil Service Commission, "received liquor that they knew was being shipped from a Government warehouse in the Province of Quebec, City of Montreal", also that they contravened the Canada Temperance Act and the Ontario Temperance Act in transporting liquor through the Province of Quebec into Ontario.

The report includes a complaint from H. Provencher to the Deputy Minister of Customs that R. P. Clerk, Inspector of Customs for the Port of Montreal, was "shipping out of the Province of Quebec a large quantity of liquor through M. F. Wilson, Chief Preventive Officer, to the Hon. Jacques Bureau, former Minister of Customs, R. R. Farrow, Deputy Minister of Customs, and M. J. Larochelle, member of the Civil Service Commission.

The evidence discloses, Inspector Duncan states, that R. P. Clerk has received wholesale quantities of liquor from the Customs House for a number of years and large quantities of sugar and molasses. It reveals, says Inspector Duncan, that Inspector Clerk used a smuggled and stolen car and illegally removed liquor from a car under seizure, that had been sold by tender to H. Provencher.

J. E. A. Bisaillon, former Chief Preventive Officer at the Port of Montreal, figures in the report at length.

Eleven alleged offences are enumerated against him including the following: Procuring Customs Excise Officer Ralph Garceau to commit forgery on September 12, 1924. Garceau under oath, admits that he did commit forgery. Uttering a forged document on the Customs Department, Ottawa, so as to mislead and cover up the disposition of a sedan automobile and the theft from an automobile under seizure of a large number of parts of that automobile.

In his final report Inspector Duncan states the evidence discloses a number of other offences committed by J. E. A. Bisaillon.

MANY ALLEGATIONS

They include: Theft of five automobile tires from a seized car; wrongfully removing from a port seizure, two barrels of whiskey, and during the period that they were in Bisaillon's custody there was stolen from these two barrels of whiskey, some forty-two gallons; wrongfully being engaged in trafficking of liquor for at least two years while in the Government service as customs officer, and neglecting his duties during that period as such an officer.

Offences of A. E. Giroux, Superintendent of Customs Examiners, Port of Montreal, as outlined in the report include: releasing dutiable goods without collecting Customs duties thereon; making a false entry re shipment of coal and stealing in collusion with his son; receiving large quantities of liquor from the Customs House.

SOLD STOLEN WHISKEY

Inspector Duncan states that evidence shows that J. A. Bernier, inspector of out ports, port of Montreal, received liquor knowing that

LESS WHISKEY IN AUSTRALIA

Increase in Duty Results in Reduction of Imports and Consumption

Sydney, N.S.W., March 25 (By The Canadian Press Australian Correspondent).—Last night the Federal Parliament sat up late and talked about whiskey and this morning Australia discovered that it would have to pay an extra five shillings a gallon to the Customs. Boiled down it means a penny a nip for the man in the street.

Mr. Pratten, Minister for Trade and Customs, said that in 1912, when the duty on whiskey was 14/— a gallon, importations were 2,251,000 gallons. The duty in subsequent years was increased to 17/—, 22/—, 25/—, 27/—, and 30/—, and the imports in 1924-25 were 1,200,000 gallons. The local manufacture of whiskey in 1915-16 totalled 119,000 gallons, and in the peak year—1918-20—501,000 gallons. Last year sales from bond or payment of excise duty were made on 127,000 gallons only.

These figures showed that the higher the duty the lower was the consumption, and although there had been a difference of 4/— a gallon between the excise and import duties, it had not enabled local production to get a footing. There had been practically no increase in the manufacture of Australian whiskey during the last 10 years.

FURTHER INCREASE PROPOSED

The Government now proposed to increase the duty on imported whis. key by 5/— a gallon, and to allow the present excise of 25/— to remain. The total of imported and Australian whiskey cleared from bond last year was 1,374,000 gallons, and the total revenue was 1,587,000 pounds. Assuming that the same amount of whiskey would be consumed this year, but that there would be a considerable increase in Australian whiskey, and the estimated revenue would be an increase in imported of 500,000 gallons, the effect upon the revenue would be an increase of 117,000 pounds. If the committee decided to leave the duty as it stood, and to decrease the excise so as to give the Australian manufacturer the same advantage as was proposed, the Government would lose 291,000 pounds in revenue. He would remind members however that the tariff proposals already provided for a decrease of 750,000 a year in revenue. That fact should not be lost sight of, and the Government did not wish to lose any considerable amount of revenue in view of the heavy debt contracted during the war.

There was no purer in the world than Australian whiskey and the proposed increase of 5/— a gallon in duty would mean only an increase of a half-penny a nobbler. During the last few months the proposed increase had spurred local manufacturers and some hundreds of additional hands had been employed, while contracts had been made for the purchase of 50,000 bushels of Australian-grown barley. The proposed increases would not inflict hardship on anybody.

FURNESS WITHY BUYS 33 SHIPS FROM U.S. FIRM

Tentative Agreemena With Price About $36,460,000

New York, April 27.—P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine Company, has signed a tentative agreement in London, calling for the sale of the company's White Star Line, to Furness Withy & Company, Limited, of England according to official announcement. Numerous details are still to be arranged in connection with the sale, but it is understood that the deal will be closed on the basis of £7,500,000 or $36,460,000 at the present basis of exchange, against $7,000,000 or $33,020,000 offered by the British interests.

The sale of the White Star Line, according to information obtained in responsible quarters today, is looked upon as a forerunner of a bid by the International Mercantile Marine for the United States Lines, which operates the Leviathan and other large vessels, thus building up a new merchant marine line, with all ships sailing under the American flag. Following completion of the sale of the White Star Line, which is expected daily, the company is expected to negotiate for the sale of other subsidiaries, with ships flying under the British flag, and with the proceeds from the sale of these properties, ships under the American flag will be added to the company's chain.

FORGOT TO BRING WEDDING PAPERS ON CROSSING LINE

Immigration Officer Was Unwanted Chaperon to Newlyweds

Montreal, Que., April. (Canadian Press).—In these days of strict inspection of one's personal appearance when crossing the border it does not do for a honeymoon couple not to have sufficient baggage with them. On the arrival of the New York train one day recently, a bride still clasped a wedding bouquet and the groom wore his marriage raiment. But an unwanted chaperon had pricked their little bubble of romance, and marred a perfect day. Two's company; but three is a crowd. And when an embarrassed officer of His Majesty's Immigration Service decided that it was his duty to accompany the couple to Montreal it would be hard to say who was more unhappy, he or the young people. The reason that he travelled with them, and that as soon as they reached this city they were straightway marched under guard to the Dominion detention office on St. Antoine street, is that the couple came over here to cook a turkey and eight of cradles tion that they forgot to bring with them any means of identification, and had no baggage but a hand bag. Their oversight was more serious in official eyes because when asked how long they were going to remain here they said three or four months. On arriving in Windsor Station John and Mary found themselves greeted by showers of confetti which rained their misery. No less than 20 couples had received a right royal send-off from friends decked in their best who completely filled the concourse. Through this gay and hilarious mob they sorrowfully wended their way—not to the shopping district and the rest—but to the black doors of the Detention Home. There they spent the morning while officers investigated the truth of their statement.

ject, to a document (which they must either sign and carry out or refuse) stating the whole business by which means business anyway.

PAY UP OR QUIT

Failure of the Company to this agreement must pay to the city $5,000 within fourteen days as a guarantee that they will pay the remainder of the bank overdraft (something around $45,000) and this must be paid by June 21 next.

One month after June 21 a contractor must be engaged and within two months after that date work must be started by the contractor Within six months thereafter the new gas holder must be completed. Within one year the Carbonization plant must be complete and within one year from June 21 a survey of the city with respect to meters and repairs must be complete.

If the five thousand is not paid of course—weaken. If it is paid and the remainder is paid, but if the rest of the agreement is not carried out the cash is forfeited.

Mr. Otto Holby, who was in conference with the executive committee last evening, undertook to have the agreement signed and the gas business goes on with without delay.

With reference to the Collegiate the council has only made a suggestion and the matter is put squarely up to the Board of Education with whom of course the final decision rests as to the site of the school.

The executive committee of the council in the meeting took the ground (on a seventy-five percent vote or nine of the council) that the present high school building site not suitable for a high school still is building that might be useful for something else, an art gallery and museum or municipal offices and that it might be decided not to tear it down. The East Belleville playgrounds were considered at one time as a site for a collegiate and this fact the council decided was worthy of careful consideration.

However they themselves cannot decide as to the site which is purely the duty and responsibility of the Board of Education.

The text of the recommendation passed by Council says:

"Resolved that the request of the Board of Education for $400,000 for the purpose of erecting a new Collegiate Institute be granted and this council suggests that the said building be erected on the grounds acquired for that purpose on Bridge St. East, providing the Provincial Department of Education agree to such site and that the clerk be authorized to have the necessary bylaw prepared."

GAS

The text of the new gas agreement is:

Recommended: THAT the Belle Gas & Fuel Co., Limited, pay $5,000 to the City Treasurer within 14 days as a guarantee that the overdraft shall be paid not later than 21st day of June, 1926, provided that in case balance of overdraft is paid, the $5,000 shall apply on account.

THAT the balance of the overdraft be paid not later than 21st day of June, 1926.

THAT within one month of the 21st day of June, 1926, the Belleville Gas & Fuel Company, Limited shall proceed to engage a contractor for the purpose of effecting repairs to the present gas plant and equipment in accordance with terms of the franchise agreement, said work to be commenced within two months from 21st June, 1926.

THAT Belleville Gas & Fuel Company, Limited, shall within six months of the 21st day of June, 1926, erect a new 200,000 cubic feet gas holder.

THAT the new Low Temperature Coal Carbonizing plant completely erected and ready for operation be completed within twelve months from 21st day of June, 1926.

THAT provisions in the original agreement covering survey and replacement of meters be completed within one year from 21st day of June, 1926.

THAT in event of any default, that the $5,000 or such further sum as has been paid on the overdraft, shall be forfeited to and retained by City of Belleville as liquidated damages.

THAT in event the $5,000 is not paid as provided, Belleville Gas & Fuel Company, Limited, shall have no further rights under the Franchise agreement between J. Handley Yates and the City of Belleville.

U. S. MAY DEPORT ALIEN OFFENDERS

Holiday Bill Aimed at Foreigners Engaged in Bootlegging

HABITUAL CRIMINALS

Test to be Sentence to Imprisonment for One Year or More

Washington, April 27.—The vague and uncertain test of moral turpitude, in the present Deportation Act is eliminated and provisions inserted almost primarily to aliens engaged in bootlegging, in the Holaday Deportation bill which was reported to the House today by Representative Johnson, chairman of the Immigration Committee.

Chairman Johnson said that for the moral turpitude clause is substituted the test of a sentence to imprisonment for a term of one year or more."

The bill provides for the deportation of the "habitual criminal" who has escaped with sentences of less than one year under the existing law. Any alien, who had been convicted more than once for minor infractions and had received terms aggregating 12 months or more is to be deported under the new measure.

Members of the Immigration Committee explained that Section 3, of the Immigration Act prohibits the entrance into the United States of any alien who has been guilty of or admits moral turpitude. That was the provision under which Countess Catherni was held at Ellis Island. The Holaday bill does not effect that section.

There is a new provision in the bill that would make possible deportation of aliens who once their entry have become insane or afflicted with chronic alcoholism."

the result of the pick and shovel method.

Came the introduction of more modern mining machinery and the use of steam and a little later the cold water method of thawing the soil and the use of dredges in the creeks—all of which gradually effected a decrease in the population—until today Dawson City has dwindled to a mere village of some 800 or 900 people.

SILVER AND GRAIN

His Lordship pointed out that silver deposits had been discovered in many places in the district some 200 miles from Dawson city—as valuable a deposit as any in the world; the cost of mining and shipping is however prohibitive but in spite of that there has been about 5 million dollars worth of silver shipped out in the last five years. Lead too, has been discovered in enormous quantities and many concerns have staked claims pending a practical shipping in present sources.

Essentially a mining country, the territory was suitable for agricultural work the soil being excellent and capable of producing wheat and oats though the chief difficulty lies in the absence of a market.

CANCER CAUSE FORM OF MILDEW

Claim Made by Professor Tissot of Paris Natural History Museum

CULTURES PRODUCED

Thinks Mildew Cell From Which All Life on Earth Developed

Paris, April 27.—That cancer is caused by an abnormal form of mildew is the claim set up in a paper written by Professor J. Tissot, of the Paris Natural History Museum and read before the Academy of Science tonight by Professor J. A. D'Arsonval.

Mildew, Dr. Tissot declared, is the original cell from which all life on earth developed and animal and vegetable organisms are nothing but highly developed organized mildew.

Proceeding along lines based on this, Dr. Tissot says he succeeded in taking healthy human tissue, changing its form and transforming it so that cultures developed cancerous elements, and these elements could be reproduced as easily as cultures of microbes.

The culture so obtained also contained bacterial elements, which together with the other elements form what Dr. Tissot describes as the "cancer virus" and as akin to the viris of tuberculosis.

He claims that he found he could easily transfer bacterial cultures into mildew. Having treated in this manner cultures of typhoid, cholera, diphtheria, plague, tuberculosis, Malta fever and tetanus, and having at the same time isolated and photographed the basic mildew of numerous animal and vegetable organisms he found that the mildew which caused typhoid was identical with that of the mildew of maise malta fever and that of the orange; diphtheria and that of barley and cholera and that of poisoned mushrooms.

Port Hoper Catches 800 Suckers Sets New Record In Those Parts

Catching nearly eight hundred fish, aggregating over eleven hundred pounds in weight, with his bare hands, Mr. Marvin King, Fort Hope, has established somewhat of a record as a fisherman.

Mr. King was a member of a party of disciples of Izaak Walton, who visited the flats in the Ganaska river, east of the McCarthy Lake factory observers the Port Hope Times, and in a little over seven hours, had landed his extraordinary catch, of eight hundred wily "sucker" averaging about one and one half pounds in weight.

These fish are extremely numerous at this time of the year, and swelm up the creeks along the shores of the lake in huge schools, to spawn. In shallow places in the river, they may be seen lying densely on the creek bottom where they are picked up in dozens by fishermans.

A certain amount of skill is require er as a "sucker" fisherman and an amateur is apt to frighten away an entire school by clumsy fishing. The usual procedure adopted is for the fisherman to wade into the water and stand perfectly still until a "sucker" halts within reach. A hand is then cautiously placed in the water behind the fish and rapidly run up the "sucker's" back. The fish is then skilfully grasped behind the gills and jerked from the water.

It was in this manner that Mr. King caught his record catch. Dozens of other fishermen who frequent the shoals report good catches, but Mr. King's bag is much greater than any other's.

"Suckers", usually course and soft are very firm and clean in the cold creek water during the Spring, and make very tasty eating. Thousands of pounds of this fish are shipped to the larger centres yearly, demanding a good price.

Citizens Association Tells Why Figures Were Avoided

Oshawa, Ont., April 27.—The reason why no arguments of a statistical nature were presented to Premier King and his Cabinet by ratepayers for the monster delegation that went to Ottawa Friday, to urge reconsideration of the reductions in duty on imported motor cars, was made in a statement issued by the citizen's committee today, which is as follows:

The Premier seemed to expect the speakers for the deputation to base their statements entirely on facts and figures. Before meeting the Prime Minister and the Cabinet, it was the unanimous decision of the speakers that it was impossible and undesirable to attempt to present the case for the deputation in such a way as this, as a matter requiring expert knowledge of the automobile industry and of the tariff, and, furthermore, the time at our disposal would not permit. It was the purpose of the deputation to impress the Government with the seriousness of the situation from the standpoint of the workingmen, merchants, bankers and other citizens of the cities involved, in the hope that they would, through the tariff board, or by some other competent means, make a thorough and exhaustive examination of the situation."

Canada Is Given One Advantage

ces. Mr. Churchill declared that if a certain of industry was retained in the country through a coal strike he would be obliged to propose substantial increases in taxation, both direct and indirect.

TAX ON BETTING

Coming to the details of his plans, a large part of his statement turned on the betting tax on which his Government is likely to meet with very strong criticism.

Justifying adoption of the taxes he contended in advance of objections that it was "recognized in Scotland, that the country had already benefitted by this so-called vice, inasmuch as it imposed an income tax and a 'super-tax' on bookmakers. On the general question of the legality of betting and whether it ought to be taxed, he contended "I am not looking for trouble—I am looking for revenue."

The tax would only be applied in legal forms of betting, which he had been informed covered nine-tenths of the money staked. The tax on race courses would be collected in part by means of a system of tickets. He provoked laughter by a wry admission of his regret that he could impose the tax last night after the coming fat racing season.

Betting was certainly an optional luxury, and therefore a fit object for taxation. He did not propose to alter the law on the subject of betting, since his desire was merely to secure revenue.

"But," he remarked, "there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. Credit and race course betting are legal while street betting is illegal though in practice everyone can bet with impunity."

It was his intention to levy a five per cent tax on the amount of the stakes, and he did not doubt that the bookmaker would pass it on to his client with a shortening of odds.

AN INTERIM REPORT

The Canadian customs scandal, as revealed at Ottawa, under the probe of a parliamentary committee, stands fully unmasked as a dimension of striking proportions. An interim report therefore, would be of public interest, and in the public interest it has been called for by many papers among them the Winnipeg Tribune which says: "Even now the revelations deserve a chapter, or place, in the public records; in an exemplary sense of deserved publicity, and as a deserved condemnation of the administrative capacity of a government whose expedients in order to hold power should arouse wide spread condemnation and indignation."

That a New Brunswick member, as shown in evidence, should have implored the minister to release a smuggler under indictment, so that the accused might render "valuable" services in the last general election campaign, at what was the exercise of the franchise on a par with what is on record in Peace River and Athabaska in vote manipulation. We get a glimpse at the manner and methods of political business which offend and outrage the sacred recitudes of decent citizenship and the safeguards which have grown up about it.

An interim report is necessary, also because it would enable the machinery of justice to establish its potency. The laws have been broken; the evidence is clear; delay is dangerous as punitive measures are considered. In this aspect the editors of Canada have a well established ed interest; so, too, have the politicians apparently. But the purpose appear to be crossed. The interim report would establish the major —the paramount—inertia of truth-spreading against truth-dosing.

There should be without delay efforts toward the preparation of this report.

JUSTICE FOR JARVIS

A somewhat belated petition has been presented to the minister of justice at Ottawa, praying for the remission of the fine imposed on Aemilius Jarvis, Toronto broker, who was convicted of conspiring to defraud the province in connection with the purchase of tax-free bonds in behalf of the government, sentenced to six months' imprisonment, and fined $300,000.

From the first it was the belief of many persons competent to judge that the conviction and punishment of Mr. Jarvis was an outrage against justice—that he was made a scapegoat to satisfy an aroused public opinion, irritated over the Home Bank disclosures. Since the trial of Andrew H. Pepall, supposed to be one of the parties to the alleged conspiracy, the belief in Mr. Jarvis' innocence has deepened into certainty. Pepall was acquitted. But if he was innocent Jarvis could not have been guilty. Moreover, the evidence taken in the Pepall trial —evidence not available in the trial of Jarvis—proved conclusively that Mr. Jarvis' transactions, alleged to have been fraudulent, were bona fide transactions carried on in pursuance of a business agreement between him and the Drury government.

That Mr. Jarvis was unjustly convicted and punished being now certain, the only proper and honorable thing to do is to remit his punishment so far as it can be remitted. The imprisonment cannot be remitted; that has been suffered; nor can the humiliation and the ruin of his business be remitted. But his fine can be, and simple justice demands that this be done. In so far as it is possible for this justice department to right the wrong which has been done him, the wrong should be righted.

IN GREAT BRITAIN

They are large figures in which Mr. Winston Churchill deals. Eight hundred and twelve million pounds sterling to run the British Isles for the next twelve months, a tidy sum!

The deadweight debt of the "tight little Isle" is seven and a half billion pounds, multiplied by five roughly speaking to bring it to dollars—astonishing amount with which to have to juggle. Yet they are doing it and they manage to retire one hundred and fifty million dollars or more of the floating debt during the year. They are marvellous people in the Old Land.

The tax on betting which automatically legalizes the practice is the most advanced sort of legislation Britain has seen. There was much criticism of the idea. But it has gone through.

There is to be no decrease (but no increase for that matter) in the existing rate of taxation. Despite the best efforts of the committee on economy there seems according to Mr. Churchill to be a "strong and willing" tide of expenditures and this is causing a certain amount of anxiety if not disturbance among the men responsible for the conduct of affairs.

But they are holding their own, which after all is an astonishing fine piece of work when compared to conditions in other European countries, and they are to be trusted to carry on and see Great Britain through her difficult period.

HEROES ALL

That sailors stretch the truth is a frequent accusation. And not an unjust one—for listen to Captain Goodriche of the Shirvan, which rescued the crew of the Lalaham:

As fast as the Lalehem's crew lowered lifeboats they were swamped or smashed against the steamer's side. We had a terrible job picking up the scattered men, smashing several of our small boats, for the sea played with them and broke the cranks. When we got the crew of the Lalehem on board we resumed our course for Bordeaux. That's the story, gentlemen. There was nothing heroic about it.

But just remark it is clearly a regrettable misstatement.

When the Doctor said an operation was the only hope, I began to prepare for one, when I remembered reading about Dr. Chase's Ointment. I resolved to try it, and after using two boxes I had no trace of the piles. It was the greatest relief I ever got, and I only hope other sufferers who read the letter will lose no time in purchasing a box, and see for themselves the miracles it works. It will be the best investment they ever put their money in."

CROP REPORTS

The following extracts are from weekly reports of Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

BRANT—There is a demand for farm help that apparently cannot be filled. This county could use quite a number of men but very few are available.

BRUCE—Roads are practically impassable in most sections. With half of the roads bare and up to five feet of snow on the remainder there is neither wheeling or sleighing.

The syrup season has been very disappointing to date, with no heavy runs of sap so far. The sap is, however of exceptional quality. Jas. Garland of Cargill, syrup king of Bruce, has made some 300 gals to date. There is very keen demand for this at $2.50 per gal.

CARLETON—Livestock of all kinds is in excellent condition. There is a ready demand for heavy horses and dairy cattle. At a recent dispersal sale pure bred Holstein cows sold from $100 to $200; grades from $100 to $150. Spring litters of pigs are large but the mortality is heavy. Lamb crop is exceptionally good.

DUFFERIN—The township of Mono have purchased 50 acres of rough land and intend planting out 25000 trees this spring. Generally reforestation work is meeting with great favor throughout the district. Trees received from the government nurseries have given excellent satisfaction in the past. It has been remarked from several sources that practically every tree planted out has grown.

DUNDAS—Continued backward weather is causing even the oldest inhabitants to state that not within their memory has so much snow been seen at this time of year. The ground is covered with snow the depth of a foot and is disappearing very slowly. Seeding operations were in full swing in this county a year ago at this date.

HALDIMAND—The maple syrup season is turning out better than expected due to the lateness of the spring and the frosty evenings. The run during the past week has been good and a fair amount of syrup has been made. Prices locally, $2.50 per gallon. Some farmers are rolling their meadows and occasionally a man is seen working on the land.

HURON—Fall wheat is exposed to the weather during the past week of cold, freezing nights appear to be very hard on it. Much of the wheat went into the winter with little top and it appears from present indications that there will be a good deal of thin fall wheat. Clover seems to be in a little better condition.

Labor condition is getting more acute every day. We have on our desk fifteen applications for help with little in sight for any of them.

LAMBTON—Fall wheat fields are rather dry and burned looking. The weather is backward being cold and dry. The wheat is not injured but requires a warm rain. The fruit growers are busy applying the dormant spray. Work on the land, cultivating and seeding will begin the first of the week on well-drained clay land. The late spring is drawing heavy on the feed supply. Considerable alfalfa hay is being purchased by some farmers.

LANARK—Winter conditions are

BEAVERBROOK ON POWER OF PRESS

Throws Light on Kitchener-Northcliffe War-Time Controversy

FANCY

London, April 27.—Lord Beaverbrook in a lecture at Liverpool, maintained that the press today is more powerful than ever it has been, but its actual influence depends upon the ability with which it is directed. He gave an interesting story of Lord Kitchener (mainly over the shortage of shells at the front) in the early stage of the war. Lord Beaverbrook was in Lord Rothermere's room at the Ritz Hotel, when Lord Northcliffe came in.

Lord Rothermere shared Lord North cliffe's opinions, and encouraged him to make the attack," Lord Beaverbrook told his Liverpool audience. "Finally Northcliffe turned to me and said: 'Can not you do something to persuade the Daily Express to support me?' Lord Northcliffe came away that although I had no journalistic connection with the Daily Express I had less money to it. He must have known this, because I had task on his advice in the matter—and he had at the time vigorously dissuaded me from buying the newspaper. I replied that I did not see so clearly or feel so strongly as he did on the necessity for removing Lord Kitchener from the War Office. He then said: 'Well could you not suggest that he should be sent to Ireland as Lord Lieutenant?' This was ultimately done by the Daily Express.

Whereupon, the Evening News proclaimed that even Mr. Bonar Law's Daily Express was in favor of the dismissal of Lord Kitchener—a method of interpretation which caused a quarrel between Northcliffe and myself. Without going into the Kitchener-Northcliffe controversy—which must be painful when both the distinguished protagonist are dead—I may add that, roughly, Lord Northcliffe was right. He did a great service in setting himself to fight the most tremendous legend of the twentieth century, and proved that in matters of patriotism he was no popular hunter."

LENNOX & ADDINGTON—

The past week with alternate freezing and thawing has been hard on fall wheat and new meadows, but it is too early to say how serious the damage will be. Frost is still in the ground and there has not been much heaving of plants. The cold weather has greatly affected the hatching of eggs. It is only lately that reports of over 50 per cent. hatch have come in.

News And Views From Ottawa

Customs Probe And Politics Cannot Very Well Be Separated

Ottawa, (By Mail)—If the special Parliamentary committee which is investigating the administration of the Customs Department were to disconcert its work somewhat it would have reached at a state of affairs almost unparalleled in the history of any British country. It has been amply demonstrated that a most important department of administration is wholly permeated, not merely with a spirit of inefficiency and laxity, but with a deep-seated corruption extending beyond mere connivance at irregulars of the law. Unquestionably the Customs department contains many honest officials, but there is now a substantial contingent whose probity and value as public servants must come under serious suspicion. Some of these are merely the tacit accomplices who connived at the misdeeds of the liquor and narcotic smuggling subcontractors, while others and other types of rascals who have been making a mockery of the laws of Canada, but others, even although in high positions, were active co-operators in the rascalities. Now Customs Officials, like other Civil Servants, are no more fundamentally dishonest than the average of mankind but they happen to be in positions which are greatly exposed to temptation, and there is increasing evidence that since 1921 evil political influences have come into play to accentuate the temptations and to subject to the interest of certain individuals to violate customs laws and while under supervision of military efficiency and integrity the violators are soon detected and punished, under the regime of the King Government many of the worst offenders have apparently found it possible to free license for their malpractices because their interests and the fortunes of influential Liberal politicians were in substantial harmony.

There is abundant proof that long ago Mr. Bureau, the late Minister of Customs, was made cognizant of the enormous scale on which the smuggling industry was being conducted, and of the fact that important officials in the Department were active abettors of it. His particular attention was drawn to the activities of Mr. J. E. Bernier, but he scoffed at any suggestion against his integrity, shielded him from further blame and actually promoted him in the Parliament. Any categorical information about the serious rottenness of the Customs Department was conveyed directly to the Premier himself who gave a formal assurance that the complaints would be investigated, but took no effective steps in this direction. Nobody knew as the Commercial Protective Association brought pressure to bear on the Government for months to undertake a housecleaning, but nothing was done until the Hon. H. H. Stevens made definite charges on the floor of the House of Commons and the Conservative Party got behind a demand for an exhaustive investigation!

It is superfluous to submit to review all the evidence tendered to the special committee; its Liberal members have made very strenuous efforts to block each testimony as might be damaging to the Government, but they great is the mass of damning evidence that their efforts to avert disturbing revelations have been completely futile. Clear evidence has been led that smuggling is no longer confined to alcoholic liquors, but that each year millions of dollars worth of other commodities, silks, laces, rubber goods, cigarettes, etc., evade the customs barriers and pour into Canada to confront our manufacturers and merchants with grossly unfair competition. Estimates vary about the value of these smuggled goods, but the annual aggregate in recent years has approximated a sum far short of fifty million dollars, and the annual revenue loss has been at least ten million dollars for only highly dutiable goods are worth smuggling. There has also been an enormous illicit traffic in motor cars which had been stolen in the United States, and the Customs officials have apparently regarded the Customs Office at Montreal as a very convenient clearing house for stolen goods. The thieves had arrangements which freed them from all apprehensions and they actually profited by submitting the stolen cars to the process of clearance by the Department of Customs. Favoured customers could call with the money at the customs office in Montreal and make arrangements to buy a smuggled car as soon as one could be supplied, and the connivance of Customs officials was secured by presenting them with smuggled cars for their own use. Canada is not without grievances against the United States, but the American public he has reasons for entertaining an acute grievance against the King Government for facilitating the theft of motor cars in the United States.

But the case of the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs is even more scandalous. Before the Committee two officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who had been investigating this line of criminality exhibited a tale which would provide the material for a new romance by Phillips Oppenheim. They gave a detailed account of the operations of a gang of international drug smugglers who had European bases of operations at Basle and Antwerp and made connections with their North American confederates via Montreal. The drugs chiefly cocaine, morphine and heroine, were usually smuggled in under the guise of patent medicinals. There were always six large tins in each consignment; three of them, which were innocuous, filled with an almost incredible blue crose, were always opened and found to contain what they profess to be, and the others which contained drugs of great value went safely through without detection. One consignment was actually captured but otherwise was also secured but many others such worth thousands of dollars, success fully evaded detection. Now it is a reasonable presumption that the smugglers would not have exposed drug shipments of enormous value to the risk of capture unless they had confidence among their confederates in the Customs Department that such risk was negligible. The growing prevalence of the drug-taking habit and its evil effect upon the morals of the community give most serious, but the King Government and its officials, instead of heading all its efforts to check the sale of such drugs in Canada has been offering easy facilities for their sale. What is the use of party legislation against the sale of narcotic drugs and affixing heavy penalties when the Customs Department connives at at their entry in vast quantities?

The sum of the matter is that the state of affairs revealed before the committee is not merely a negation of decent administration, but a disgrace to the good name of Canada. Yet is not exotic no surprise among people who have had opportunities to study at close quarters the career and record of the King Government. Even since it took office, its leader and his colleagues have been preoccupied with one object, the retention of the power of office, and the very difficult task has absorbed all their resource talents and energies. Ministers have had no time for their primary duty—the administration of the nation's business; neglecting it they have dissipated their energies with intrigue and manoeuvers, with bartering ill-set vised legislation for political support and with pleasing this or that section that is clamant with special favours. The inevitable result is that the administration of the nation's business has descended to depths of inefficiency and laxity previously unknown in our history. Honest officials have lacked the incentive to be efficient and vigilant, and dishonest officials have had full scope for their unprincipled tendencies. And by the nature of its composition and its support the King Government can offer no hope whatsoever to any honest person so long as with which it is now encased, and the boundless patronage of the public service cannot be restored until it has been protected from office by an indignant public opinion whose interests are grievously suffering in its hands.

BIG JOB TO HANDLE ISSUE OF "MONITOR" 500,000 COPIES MAILED

Toronto, April 26.—The post office officials in Canada have a mimeographed Christmas mail to handle in connection with the All-Canadian Suplement of the Christian Science Monitor, the distribution of which has required them to put on extra help.

The circulation of this issue will be close to half a million copies, Toronto and Montreal deliveries approximating 75,000 for each city. Not only in Canada but throughout the United States, Great Britain and the continents of Africa, India, Australia and South America will this international daily newspaper, the Christian Science Monitor, carry its 64 pages issue. It is claimed that the publicity thus given to Canada's potential greatness in natural resources, in material, ethical and spiritual progress has never before been so admirably treated in a single publication of this character.

This All-Canada Supplement contains articles on Canada written largely by prominent Canadians, among whom are: Bliss Carman, several of the provincial premiers, Charles G. B. Roberts, Sir Robert Falconer, president of Toronto University, Rev. Dr. George C. Pidgeon moderator of the United Church of Canada, Charles A. Magrath, chairman Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, Sir John Willison, Sir Henry Thornton and E. W. Beatty, presidents of the two railways, and others.

Diving Diva Remains Sylph-Like by Daily Dips in Swimming Tank

Chicago.—Margery Maxwell of the Ravinia and Chicago Opera company, a red-blooded young American girl, who was brought up on a Montana ranch, can ride a cow pony or swim as well as she can sing.

And swimming, according to Miss Maxwell, is the best reducing exercise in the world. Any woman, she says, who isn't afraid of the water and who doesn't care whether or not she spoils her bathing suit, can have an Annette Kellerman figure if she really wants.

Of course, Miss Maxwell agrees that the question of dieting likewise has an big part in the maintaining of Venus-like proportions and health.

"A balanced diet is perhaps more essential to health than exercise," says Miss Maxwell. "I watch my calories and the things I eat and drink with as much care as I watch my high notes. My favorite drink is orange juice mixed with rich whipped cream, which is especially valuable because of the high ash and alkaline acid content of the orange and for the reason that evaporated milk is germfree and is more easily digested than ordinary market milk. I also see to it that the lady vegetables, salads, eggs, nuts and other essentials to a balanced diet occupy a prominent place on my daily menu.

"The public is demanding sylph-like figures in grand opera as much as in the 'Follies.' The old-fashioned bulky opera singer is a creature of the past and will soon be seen only in caricatures."

BALDWIN AT THE BAT

(From The Baltimore Sun)

Recently, Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Great Britain, quoted Socrates to the effect that the strongest of a strong man with his fair in sight for the gods to witness. It also is a rare sight for the eyes of men who can see. And it is about to be presented in London where Mr. Baldwin has assumed the responsibility of finding an answer to the almost insoluble problem caused by the coal crisis.

The coal situation has gone almost exactly back to the status of last July. The coal commission, making numerous recommendations in line with the miners' demands and antagonistic to the operators' contentions, also noted that while necessary reforms were being effected some reduction in the wages of the workers might be necessary. The operators promise to do that by abolishing the national wage agreement and substituting district agreements, under which the poorer districts would determine wages in accordance with "economic necessity"—which is to say, the operators in those districts would be free to make cuts without danger of bringing down upon them the full power of the whole miners' organization.

The miners say "Not" as they said last summer when the coal owners insisted that reductions were the sole alternative to bankruptcy of the industry. The miners admit that the industry as a whole is not self-sustaining. But they direct attention to the fact that, taken as a body, their present wages are barely above the subsistance level. And they declare that nothing that has intervened since last summer is competent to change their decision to fight before going below the present pitiful level. More, as their case last summer won the support of all labor, including the conservative railway men, so it now seems to have the same support. And that assures, apparently, that a miners' strike will become a general strike, with consequences no man may calculate.

What is Mr. Baldwin to do? Last summer he offered a temporarily subsidy, while the coal commission sought a remedy. The subsidy has cost England, already distressed financially, $100,000,000. The commission said it should be stopped. Obviously, if it is continued there will be a hurricane of condemnation and a mountainous accumulation of economic evils. If Mr. Baldwin does not offer continuance of the subsidy, what then? Will he invite a miners' strike, leading to a general strike, costing more than a subsidy for a single year and sending England's political and social fabric as well? Perhaps. But if not that, what then? Will he propose nationalization of the mines, as is already being urged in London? That would wreck the Conservative party, move England leagues forward on the road to Socialism, and throw her whole industrial future into doubt.

Possibly he will find another and simpler escape. But the chance is very strong that he must choose one of several drastic courses. Watch him. He is a big man, a courageous man, an honest man. He is a conservative by principles and training, and a humanitarian by nature. And he has a problem that inevitably will pull him, within his own inner nature, first this way and then that, and upon the creation of which his whole public country's future may depend. Again we say, watch him work! There are few such spectacles in the drama of daily life.

WOMEN WORE BLACK, MEN THEIR DECORATIONS

London, Eng., April 27 (Canadian Press Dispatch).—The annual meeting of Catholic Archbishops and Bishops of England and Wales has just been held, at Archbishop's House, Westminster. There was the usual reception in the evening, to which ladies were also invited. It was officially intimated that while there was no restriction as to the color of women's dresses which should not be decolletee black was more suitable, and a mantilla, or veil, was usual. For men, evening dress or undress uniform was suitable, though not obligatory. It was requested that decorations should be worn.

FIND PEDIGREE OF FAMOUS PEER A RANK FORGERY

Second Finest House in Peerage Sprang From a Farmer and Not From Exalted Knight, as the Documents Purport

London.—After four hundred years the astounding revelation is made that the pedigree of one of the famous families in the British Peerage begins with a forgery. This concerns the pedigree of Lord de L'Isle and Dudley, the head of the Sidney family, at which Sir Philip Sidney was an illustrious member. The Sidney family, it is now discovered, sprang from a Surrey yeoman, not from a knight, who proves to have been the invention of a pedigree expert 400 years ago. The discovery was brought to light by the investigation of ancient manuscripts preserved at Penshurst Place, Kent, the seat of Lord de L'Isle and Dudley.

Robert Cooke was the pedigree expert who forged the documents purporting to prove the descent of the Sidneys from a knight. An ancestor of Lord de L'Isle entrusted him with the task of tracing the history of the Sidney family. Cooke, doubtless longing to flatter so distinguished a family, forged a pedigree, naming an apparently fictitious knight as the family founder. For four hundred years the forgery has gone undetected, and has been accepted by the experts. It has been left to C. L. Kings ford, F.S.A., to reveal it and to establish the true origin of the family. He was appointed to carry out the investigation by the Historical Manuscripts Commission.

The story centres on Sir Henry Sidney, father of the first Earl of Leicester, "the ancestor of the rest of the Sidneys or Sydneys," writes Mr. Kingsford, "was a farm which still bears their name, in the parish of Aldford, about ten miles south of Guildford. The first member of the family of whom we have any knowledge is a certain Sir Sydney, who was Surrey yeoman in the reign of Edward I. Whon, however, Sir Henry Sidney entrusted the discovery of his pedigree to Robert Cooke, such an origin of so distinguished a family did not appear sufficient.

"Cooke produced an elaborate pedigree. Part of his original document is still preserved in a small roll at Penshurst; the parchment is very brittle, and the ink discolored, and the appearance of the roll rather suggests that it may have been treated to give it a false appearance of antiquity. Cooke traced the family back to a William de Sidne, knight, whom he represented as having been in the service of Edward III and Richard Chamberlain. There is, however, no evidence that any such person as William de Sidne ever existed. Cooke, nevertheless, made him ancestor of a long line of knights."

The forged documents were found by the investigator. He was struck by the fact that the writing was clearly forged. The documents were of considerable length, and contained many mistakes in grammar and "dubious lists of witnesses." The discovery that a yeoman farmer founded the Sidney family does not detract from its wonderful name. Kings and queens have been entertained at Penhurst Place, which has been described as the second finest in England, and is known all over the world as the "famous home of the Sidneys."

ARE BRITISH PUBLIC COMPLYING IN REQUEST

London, Eng., April 27 (Canadian Press Despatch).—In opening a new public breathing space at Ken Wood, near London, last summer, Lord Lee appealed to the public who would use it not to desecrate what was after all their own property by throwing about litter and by other ways destroying much of the beauty of such places.

Some of the Press here has been taking him to other task in this particular appeals, as shown by the assertion which public spaces presented after the Easter holidaymaking. The Daily Mail comes to the conclusion that the public are taking to heart the King's appeal. The Daily Telegraph, however, finds that the hope for better things has been breathed in vain, although it acknowledges that the baskets provided for litter were full to overflowing. The Manchester Guardian also deplores the universal untidiness, but declares that in most other ways the behavior of the holiday crowds was better than ever before.

SICK ABED EIGHT MONTHS

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Could Do All Her Work and Gained in Weight

Melfort, Saskatchewan. — "I had inward troubles, headaches and backache so bad I could hardly get up and down. I was told by doctors generally that I could not live and I was in bed most of the time for eight months. An aunt told me to visit and help me as I was unable to attend to my baby and could not do my work. She told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking two bottles I could get up and dress myself. I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and Sanative Wash. First took the medicine I only weighed seventy-eight pounds. Now I weigh twice as much. If I get out of sorts or weary and can't sleep I always take another bottle of the Vegetable Compound. I find it wonderfully good for Inflammation and Sore Throat. I recommended it to my neighbors. I will be only too glad to answer any letters I receive asking about it."—Mrs. Nellie Williams, P. O. SHOCK FOR GIANTS

At Philadelphia.—The Phils made their contribution to the city's sesquicentennial festivities by beating the Giants 10 to 6, in an entertaining game. The celebration proper does not open until June 1st, but by that time the Phils may not be able to celebrate, as this up can may be counted as their contribution to the city's greatness.

The occasion was a painful shock to the Giants. Going into the eighth inning the Giants were leading 6 to 3, and apparently they had the game safely in hand. Scott walked Huber and Jimmy Wilson smashed the ball over the fence and tied the score. In the ninth the Phils Hocked Scott out of the box and Chick Davies came in and checked the disaster.

In the eleventh Clarence Mitchell, who had become pretty wobbly in the beforehanded pitching, opened on Davies for a single and Sand singled, putting Clarence on second. Williams turned his attempted sacrifice bunt into a hit and filled the bases. Out came Davies and in went Luther McQuillan. Wright came, a pinch-hitter, chipped a sacrifice fly to left and Mitchell raced home with the duck spoils.

GOING WITHOUT GLASSES

When they should be worn especially when they should be worn, KNOWN they should be worn, cannot be too strongly condemned. Every day of such neglect adds its quota of unnecessary distress to be borne. And when the proper glasses are sure to bring quick and lasting relief it is very unwise for a person to go for even a day without them. The care of your eyes is my chief concern.

Tonight's soft ball games brings together the league leading Point Anne team and Chris Church in the first game at 7.45. The Pointers should beat the Church boys handily if they play true to form.

The High School—Junior game will probably be the tit-bit of the evening. The students have been playing soft ball and here's one that wouldn't be surprised if the Juniors were forced to accept the short end of the score. Collings boys were badly beaten by the Point Anne team last week. O'Donohoe and Naphin will oppose each other in the pitching box.

Thursday nights game is being looked forward to with much interest by the fans. The Alemites with four victories tucked under their belts are going in with all good intentions of lowering the colors of the Shekter Soft Drinks. Green when he is in good form is a hard man to best but the Alemite lines up as being strong with the willow. Manager Jack Allen of the Lubricators is looking forward to a win. He will send Johnny Kerr to the box in an effort to stop the villagers. "Soup" Guyer who handles the leaders can see nothing but another win. This should be just as good as the Point Anne-Junior game

Kingston's hopes of repeating last year's performance of winning the Central League were rudely jolted when the officials of the O.B.A.A. refused to give a card to that old south paw Dainty who migrated to Kingston following last season. The Ponies were relying on Dainty's good left wing to carry them through. But they had not figured that the O.B.A.A. would throw a wrench into the cogs as they have. The Association are out to rid these tourist players of the province. They surely made a spring house cleaning at Saturday's meeting. No less than twelve players were refused certificates outright while eleven more are under surveillance and will be noted cards on the 1st of July if their amateur standing has not been impaired. Al Ty son who moved from Oshawa to Galt was also flatly refused. Tyson was among the premier catchers of the Central League.

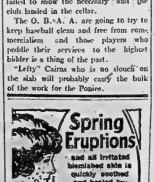

Peterboro were hit by the storm when Leanes formerly of Oshawa and Knapp of the Brockville Intermediates, failed to secure their cards.

The O.B.A.A. have been warning the clubs that tourist trade would not be tolerated any longer and they took the necessary step on Saturday.

Both Oulette and Gibson who came up for consideration were given the O. K. This pill be welcome news to Belleville fans as Belleville without a good bonnum would be like a ship with out a rudder. Last year the pitchers failed to show the necessary and the club landed in the cellar.

The O. B. A. A. are going to try to keep baseball clean and free from commercialism and those players who peddle their services to the highest bidder is a thing of the past.

"Lefty" Cairns who is no slouch on the ball will probably "carry" the bulk of the work for the Ponies.

MISS WETHERED NOT TO PLAY

Greatest Woman Golfer Decides on Respite from Stress of Play

London, April 27.—The British woman's golf championship draw announced today, shows that Miss Joyce Wethered, the present champion and undisputed as the world's finest woman's golfer, had held to her decision to take a respite from the stress and strain of competitive golf, and has not entered for the championship tournament this year. Miss Cecil Leitch, three British champion, is playing.

Foreign invaders for this most important of all championships for women golfers, are headed by Miss Glenna Collett, the American champion, who proved no match for Miss Wethered this year. Shortly before leaving England, Miss Collett admitted that she considered the British lady supreme golfer of her sex, and stated that she had no hope of ever defeating her. The withdrawal of Miss Wethered ought to increase the American chance of capturing the championship, although this is admitted to be'a very remote possibility.

Turf Enthusiasts Gathering at Headquarters for Grea Classic Events

Newmarket, Eng., April 27.—Interest of all England is centering on Newmarket during this week, and today turf roadsheats from all parts of the country and from the Continent were gathering at turf headquarters for the first great flat racing meeting of the season, with the two thousand guineas and the one thousand guineas the chief attractions. For the two thousand guineas, to be run on Wednesday, over the Rowley mile, the outstanding nominees are Lord Glanely's Tenacity, Lord Derby's Columbia, Sir Abe Bailey's Ira, Sir George Bullough's Harpagon winner of the Craven stakes and Lord Woolavington's strong filly Pogrom. Wm. Tom Bowling and Coronach, the latter the Derby favorite.

The fillies' classic, the one thousand guineas on Friday, is a revival of a dominating candidate as is the entire race.

NEWS OF MOVIES

AT GRIFFIN'S

The time to go to the movies is when you are assured of seeing a perfectly entertaining film. This sort of assurance we feel secure in giving as far as regards "The Girl From Montmartre," which started at the Griffin Theatre last night.

Based on Anthony Pryde's best seller, "Spanish Sunlight," the picture is animated with more of the precious breath of life than even the book. It is a vibrant, fragrant, and tender recital of love in the Balearic Isles of old Spain.

Charming Barbara La Marr, cast as a dancing girl who has found the most bitterest Gregs in the weird shadows of Montmartre, brings to her impersonation the intense ardor of age-old love. Lewis Stone's performance as her lover is impeccable. The support ing cast is exceptionally capable.

"The Girl From Montmartre" must succeed. It would be a crime against the best ideals in the films to give this picture anything but unstinted encouragement.

AT THE BELLE

Lingerie, gowns, wraps and furs to an aggregated value $70,000 were used in one of the big scenes in "Fifth Avenue Models," Universal-Jewel starring Mary Philbin, which will be screened in the Belle theatre commencing tomorrow.

The scene in question portrays a style show in the salon of a modiste who caters only to the most exclusive patronage, and the wearing apparel was displayed by some of the most beautiful young women obtainable from the "atmosphere" cycles of Hollywood.

The picture is a romance-drama dealing with the experiences of a little Montmartre who misjudges the attentions of a rich young man and the first scen her when she is forced against her desires to become a mannequin. The picture was made from the adaptation of "The Rest in Pillow," a best seller by Muriel Hine.

Mary Philbin plays the part of the little seamstress. Her father is an unsuccessful artist and she is the sole support of the little family of two.

The supporting cast includes Norman Kerry, Josef Swickard, William Conklin, Rosemary Theby, Betty Francisco, Ruth Stonehouse, Rose Dione, Helen Lynch, Jean Hersholt, Stuart Brower, Gertrude Williams, Mits Donlin, Bob McKenzie and Lee Moran, under Svend Gade's direction.

Canada is one of the great nations of the world, coming 7th in wealth. Wealth of Dominion doubled in 10 years and increased more than seven-fold between 1870 and 1922, a record equaled only by the United States.

BOTH PREMIERS TO TALK POWER

Ontario and Quebec Will Later Get Together at Ottawa

Quebec, Que., April 27.—An interprovincial conference, the date of which has not yet been set, will be called shortly in Ottawa according to reliable information here.

It was also learned that, previous to the meeting Premier Ferguson of Ontario and the Quebec Premier will meet this week to discuss questions of interest to the two provinces. The main question to be taken up will likely be the possibility of an understanding in regard to some power and water developments on interprovincial rivers.

As to the inter-provincial conference. It is thought that it will take place some time in June in the federal capital. Each province will make a series of resolutions to present to the prove its status, but it is not thought that any additional federal subsidy will be sought.

ON WALL STREET

New York, N.Y., April 27.—Frequent shifting of speculative activity from buying to the selling side brought about considerable irregularity in to-day's stock market which was largely a professional affair. Large operators appeared to be awaiting exact figures on U. S. Steel earnings to be made public after the market closed for further light on the business situation in general. Prices sold off at the opening when selling pressure was revealed against some of the speculative industrials, but they rallied briskly later when a good demand developed for some of the railroad shares.

CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, Ills., April 27.—Wheat jumped up quickly today after an early decline. Persistent adverse weather conditions including freezing and freezing temperatures, acted as more than a counter-balance for initial declines that were due to unexpected weakness in quotations at Liverpool. Opening 1-8 to 1 1-8 lower was followed by gains with May closing 1 1-8 to 1 1-4 higher at $1.45. Corn and oats were swayed by fluctuations of wheat. After opening 5-8 off to 1-8 up, July 77 1-4 to 77 1-2c corn sagged all around but then recovered, going in some cases to above yesterday's finish. In the Sydney farmhouse near Pelley, Sask.

BUD FISHER

The other day a couple of citizens were discussing the incomes of the "comic strip" men, and they appealed to a newspaper man to give an estimate say of the earnings of Bud Fisher, the man credited with invent ing the "comic strip."

One who is familiar with the subject, by way of the newspaper syndicate system, gives chapter and verse in support of his assertion that Bud Fisher, parent of the perennial "Mutt and Jeff", pays an income tax on revenues exceeding $200,000 a year. This witness John W. Wheeler, says Mr. Fisher is "the highest paid cartoonist in the world." His comics have appeared regularly in the United States and Canada, and they appear in England and Ireland, South America, Japan, and the Scandinavian countries.

Mutt and Jeff, says Mr. Wheeler, was the first comic strip to appear regularly in a London newspaper, "and some of the English readers have not recovered from the shock yet." In addition to the annual proceeds of that popular "strip", estimated above, Mr. Fisher "gets a good-sized income from animated cartoons, books, plays and other by-products." How he would has gone up in the financial scale since its earliest days may be judged from this:

When Bud Fisher made his first cartoon of Mutt, for there was no Jeff in the strip in 1907, he was getting $22 a week. Then he was on the Chronicle, earning $40 a week in a month or so they raised him to $28, and a short time later he jumped to the San Francisco Examiner for $35.

BARON STUART DIES SUDDENLY

Had Long and Distinguished Career in British House of Commons

London, April 27.—Lord Stuart, of Wortley, who, after a long and distinguished career in the House of Commons was created a baron in 1916, died today at his home in Chelsea.

Charles Beilby Stuart-Wortley was born on September 13, 1851, a son of Rt.-Hon. James Stuart-Wortley, Q.C., and was educated at Rugby and Balliol College, Oxford. He became a barrister in 1876 and a Queen's Counsel in 1892. From 1880 to 1885 he represented the Borough of Sheffield in the House of Commons and after the borough's divisions he represented the Hallam division from 1885 to 1916. He was parliamentary under-secretary of state for the Home Department from 1885 to 1892. He was a director of the Underground Electric Railways Co., Ltd.

Lord Stuart, of Wortley, was twice married, first in 1880, to Miss Emma Tadlope, who died the following year. In 1886 he was married to Alice, the third daughter of the late Sir John Maclaid. By each marriage he had one daughter.

The English-sprigged patterns with pinkish-red rosebuds on a white or black ground, lemon-yellow flowers on flesh pink and tiny flowers of reddish-brown term extra closely spaced on sulfur yellow are very smart. The frock illustrated was made of a cream-colored print with the flowers of rose, lavender and old blue and the girdle front and cuffs of plain flesh color. The skirt is straight, so that the dress is easy to launder, and the short sleeve is very practical for warm weather.

SECOND BLAZE HITS ELK LAKE

Hundred Thousand Dollars Loss Caused by Overheated Pipes

Elk Lake, Ont., April 27.—Following close upon the heels of a fire week ago Saturday when three buildings were totally destroyed with a loss of $25,000 Elk Lake about eleven o'clock last night was visited by a second disastrous blaze in which approximately $100,000 damage was done and one business block, a garage, three houses and several other smaller buildings were totally destroyed. Fire started in the Cole residence, it is believed from overheated pipes. From there, fanned by a high wind, it spread to the homes of Mr. McKee, Mr. Holburn, the Harcourt Block tenanted by the Imperial Bank which opened its branch in Elk Lake only about ten days ago and McKinley's garage. Some of the furniture in the Cole home and most of the other residences were saved. The Harcourt block with the exception of the Imperial bank offices was untenanted.

NEIGHBORS HELPED AFTER HOME BURNED

On Saturday evening at Roslin neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Luffman gathered at their home to present them with several very valuable gifts, tokens of their sympathy for their host and hostess in the loss they recently sustained when their entire home and furniture was destroyed by fire. LOST ALL

Three weeks ago, while Mrs. Luff man was visiting an uncle learning Mr. Luffman who is a brother of Mr. W. H. Luffman of Belleville, to keep "bach", through some unknown cause the roof of the Luffman home two miles from Roslin became ignited and by the time Mr. Luffman attracted by the smell of smoke, returned from the barn, the entire building was so densely filled with smoke it was impossible to save even the smallest amount of furniture and all was reduced to ashes.

THE ADDRESS

During the entertainment given for Mr. and Mrs. Luffman on Saturday evening, which was spent in games, music and dancing, the following address was read:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Luffman.

Hearing of your loss by fire and knowing that a kindly word or deed helps to smooth life's rugged pathways, we have gathered here this evening to express in some tangible way our sympathy.

We have always found you and Mrs. Luffman to be of genial dispositions. As neighbors you have always been ready to lend a helping hand in time of need. We now present you with these gifts and hope they may prove acceptable.

Signed on behalf of the community.

J. H. Kerr and Wm. Cross.

PRESCRIPTIONS POPULAR NUMBER STEADILY GROW

Toronto, April 27.—Prescriptions and requisitions received by Ontario Government vendors during 1925 totalled 630,111, an increase of 17,611 over the number in 1924, it is shown in the annual report of the Ontario Board of Licence Commissioners for 1925. The dispensaries spent $1,211,341 for liquor during the year, but paid $2,285,815 to the Federal Government in excise duties, sales tax, etc., directly, or indirectly, through Canadian distillers, brewers and wine makers, out of the dispensary's aggregated $5,055,997, of $37,350 more than the preceding year. The dispensaries paid $600,000 to the provincial treasurer. Gross profits of the dispensaries were reduced during the year to 26.10, compared with more than forty per cent. in 1920.

The board favorably reported 252 appeals out of a total of 681 made from convictions for breaches of the Ontario Temperance Act. Convictions for intoxication numbered 5,374 in 1925, compared with 8,848 in 1924.

"There are few complaints about the prices charged for liquor by the Ontario Government dispensaries," the report notes.

S. OF E. DANCE

While the actual amount realized has not as yet been made public, the dance given on Friday evening by the Sons of England was a complete financial success and the committee in charge Messrs H. A. Lennox, chairman, W. E. Armitage, secretary, S. Lennox T. Dodd A. Jenkinson and Reinolf and Mrs. H. A. Lennox, W. E. Armitage, Mrs. E. J. Folwell and Mrs. Bragg are most than satisfied by the entire results.

W.C.T.U. NOTES

In 1925 the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario sent out three sets of questions—one to manufacturers, one to inspectors of schools, and one to clergymen. Replies were received from 1450 manufacturers, 172 inspectors and teachers, and over 1500 clergymen. And on Page 17 of the Report of the License Commissioners we read:

"It appears, therefore, that about 75 per cent of the manufacturers are of the opinion that Prohibition under the Ontario Temperance Act makes for increased production of goods, increases the workers' regularity of attendance after pay day, improves their capacity for work, results in more comfortable homes and better supplies of food and clothing for wives and children, and helps to reduce drunkenness and poverty; and that from 76 to 94 per cent of the inspectors of schools believe that the Act has made an appreciable improvement in school attendance, has improved the home surrounding of the children, has improved their opportunities for obtaining an education, and has resulted in their better education, and that a return to license is not desirable. It also appears that from 91 to 85 per cent. of the clergymen of the Province believe that Prohibition under the Act is on the whole beneficial; that it has caused improvement in conditions in homes in which liquor was previously used as a beverage, is respect to the social condition of the families, their material condition, and in the housing, feeding and clothing of the children, and that in the process of nation building it is an efficient factor."

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Constance's face crimsoned.

"Uncle Wolfe always notices your face so," he went on. "I heard him telling grandma that he knew what you were going to say even before you opened your lips."

"That's because Uncle Wolfe is so clever," said Constance, hiding her face against his.

"No, that's not it. It's because he likes you so much, I think. Don't you think so grandma?" he asked the marchioness, who came into the room at the moment. "Don't you think Uncle Wolfe likes Constance very much?"

"He would be very ungrateful if he did not, Arol," said the old lady. "You are looking all the better for the fresh air, my dear," she said as Constance gave her her cheek; "Wolfe will be pleased when he comes back. He has been so anxious about you."

Constance sat with downcast eyes and blushing face.

"Don't you think you could come down to dinner to-day?"

"Oh, no," said Constance; "I—I would rather not."

"What's that she would rather not?" said the deep musical voice of the marquis.

"You startled me, Wolfe," said the marchioness. "I was just saying that Miss Grahame might stretch a point and come down to dinner with us to-day. But she says she will not. Really I think you can reason with her, should not, Arol is quite well enough to be left. Ask her ,Wolfe."

and he went around to where she sat. "I'll do more—command her," he said behind the curtains and put his arm round her.

"Stand up," he said, "and say that you are ready to obey your future husband, Constance."

Constance looked at them speechlessly; Arol's eyes dilated with wonder and a dawning delight.

"Mother," said the marquis, gently, but with a passionate triumph in his eyes, "here is my future wife and your daughter. What do you say to her?"

The marchioness turned pale, and stood for a moment overwhelmed with surprise; then she held out her arms to Constance.

"Oh, my dear," she said, brokenly, "come to me!" and she sank on the bed.

The marquis led Constance to her, and she fell on her knees.

The marchioness laid her trembling hands on Constance's head.

"God bless you, my dear! and make you both happy," she murmured.

Constance took her hands in her and kissed them, but the old lady drew her up to her bosom and embraced her lovingly.

"And I never thought of it," she said with a smile; "had no idea!"

You thought that you and Arol were the only eligible people in the house, eh mother?" said the marquis, looking on with happiness beaming in his eyes. "Did you think I had no heart, or that I was invulnerable?"

"—I never thought of it at all!" responded the marchioness; "and yet, sometimes— But—oh my dear, I am so glad, so happy!"

"What are you all doing and talking about?" exclaimed Arol, with not unnatural impatience. "Why are you so happy? What are kissing Constance for grandma? What's she been doing?"

"Something very foolish my boy," said the marquis. "What do you say to having a new aunt, Arol?"

Arol stared, then he uttered a shrill cry of delight.

"Do you mean that you are going to marry Constance, Uncle Wolfe?" he exclaimed.

"You have guessed it at once, my boy."

"Oh, I'm so glad! so, very glad!" he cried; "though," and his face fell for a moment, "I always thought I should like to marry her myself."

Constance put her arms round him and pressed him to her.

"Never mind," he said, "so long as one of us marries you, it's all right. You'll never, never leave me now, will you, Constance, dear?"

"No, Arol," she murmured.

"For the best of reasons," said the marquis; "she won't be able to," and with a laugh he left the room.

The marchioness beckoned Constance to come and sit beside her.

"I am all in a flutter, my dear," she said; "I as so surprised! But the news has made me very happy."

"That seems an excuse," said Constance in a low voice. "I thought—" She paused.

"Well ,my dear?" and the old lady patted the soft, warm hand.

"I thought you would be angry and disappointed," continued Constance, looking down.

"Why, my dear?"

Constance was silent for a moment, the she said, not without a touch of dignity:

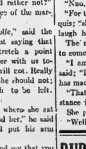

"Persons of Lord Berkespeare's rank do not often marry so far beneath them. The marchioness shook her head and smiled.

"My dear, you don't think yourself so far beneath him," she remarked shrewdly, "and you are

LIBERAL ATTEMPT TO LINK TORIES WITH GRAFT IS DUD

CAN BRING COAL BUT NOT UNDER PRESENT RATES

Premier Ferguson Desires to Co-operate With Alberta People

Toronto, April 28.—"I am convinced that it is not impossible to bring coal from Alberta at a reasonable rate, but we cannot pay the prices we now pay, and pay the high transportation cost," Premier G. Howard Ferguson declared during the conference here at which Premier Brownlee, of Alberta, Mayor Foster, of Toronto, representatives of almost thirty Ontario municipalities and of the railways, were present, to consider the possibilities of a permanent arrange ment for shipping coal eastward from Alberta.

"I feel that the railways are willing to co-operate," Premier Ferguson continued. "We shall be glad to co-operate with Alberta or any other province interested, for Ontario cannot afford to be put on outside sources for her coal supply."

Premier Ferguson suggested that it would be to the benefit of the railways and Canada if the rolling stock could be used during the slack season to carry coal east. He added, however, that the transportation systems should not be crushed with too heavy burdens.

Premier Brownlee, of Alberta said the chief problem was one of transportation. The great distance could only be overcome with the help of the railways. "My only purpose in coming here at this time is to seek for some arrangement to solve the transportation problem," he said.

"We have a national problem and if the representatives of our transportation companies will join with the provinces to solve the question Ontario should have goodly quantities of coal by the fall."

Mayor Foster, of Toronto, set forth the importance to Canada of buying her own coal in her own country, and pointed out that in the Dominion some $150,000,000 a year which would otherwise go to the United States.

Good Houses Everywhere But Calgary Where They Have "Oil"

Speaking of the drama, Sir John said that in all Canada he had played to excellent houses, with the exception of Calgary where the people have no time to think of anything but oil.

FRENCH WOMAN IS SENTENCED TO THE GUILLOTINE

Paris Says She Will Not Likely Pay Extreme Penalty

Nimes, France, April 28.—Convicted of setting her lover and eleven other persons whom she had been called upon to nurse during illness, Antoinette Sicard, thirty-five years old has been sentenced to die on the guillotine.

It is not probable however that the woman will pay the extreme penalty for her crimes, as in all cases since the war the president of the Republic has committed to life imprisonment death sentences passed upon women.

Circumstances surrounding crimes for which Sicicard was convicted were especially brutal. It was charged that on the night of her lover's death she watched him die and then engaged in a drunken orgy. Robbery was believed to have been the motive for the acts of the murderers.

SMUGGLING QUIZ BOMB EXPLODED BY MONTREALER

Received Gift of Liquor From R. P. Clerk, But Poured Down Sewer

COMPLIED WITH LAW

Member for Mount Royal Also Answers Statement Re. Samples

Ottawa, April 28.—It fell to the lot of R. H. White, M. P., for Mount Royal division and for 21 years collector of customs at the port of Montreal, to explode the first sensation consequent upon production before the Liberal committee of the much-heralded report of Walter Duncan, government investigator, upon customs department administration.

Brandeet in the report as shipper of customs analysis liquor samples to the Hon. Jacques Bureau, former Minister of Customs, R. R. Farrow, deputy minister, Clarence Jameson and Michael La Rochelle, civil service commissioners, R. P. Clerk, inspector of Customs at Montreal, had scarcely opened his testimony when he alleged that years ago, he shipped around 20 gallons of whiskey in a cask to Mr. White, then collector under the Conservative regime.

MRS. RIPLEY

Mr. White countered. He did receive the liquor, as he thought, from the examining warehousekeeper. But, when he learned that the cask of Scotch should by law have been destroyed, he had the entire 25 or 30 gallons poured down the sewer via a laundry tub in the basement of his own home. "So far as I was concerned the law had been complied with," he said, and later grouped from various sections of the audience which apparently included connoisseurs who visualized the sad demise of a large consignment of precious liquor. Mr. White also dealt with a statement made as to his receiving samples from the chief gauger's card. And he had done so, conscientiously believing in the departmental practice which had made liquor samples the chief gauger's perquisites. He knew now that a departmental memorandum of 1901 had directed that liquor samples from the wood should be restored to the casks; he was not sure that he had seen the notice at the time. But he was aware that liquor importers had refused to accept return of the samples, and during his tenure of office he had not received a single complaint from importers that the consumption of the liquor samples taken by the customs gaugers.

EVIDENCE

Evidence all day was what might be termed for the defence. Out of the report came only one feature that had not been touched upon previously by the probers. That was the allegation as to the liquor sent by Mr. Clerk to Hightower in the Customs Department or to the Civil Service Commissioners.

Mr. Clerk's testimony was free admission of the charge. He had received from the chief gauger samples which every one considered the chief gauger's by virtue of departmental practice. Then he had distributed them to his friends "to be agreeable." The liquor had gone to his home, had been bottled, repacked, and shipped to Hull and to Three Rivers. And Mr. Clerk had paid all charges. He agreed virtuously any suggestion that the shipments had any sinister motive. "I esteem too highly those gentlemen to think they could be influenced by a few bottles of liquor," he said, even when it was pointed out to him that between July, 1923, and June, 1925, he had shipped some thirty-seven cases of whiskey, gin, brandy, rum and wine to the minister, the deputy, and the two commissioners.

MARTIN-HARVEY SUPREME ACTOR

"The Corsican Brothers" a Daring Piece of Work Beautifully Done

Sir John Martin-Harvey in the humble opinion of this inspector of plays is the greatest actor on the stage today. His presentation of the wonderfully and even amazingly conceived piece of writing of Dumas as Griffin's Opera last evening was one that is bound to linger in the memory as a delightful experience.

Sir John himself is a masterful person; his equipment includes the possession of a mobile face capable of the utmost extreme in expression of which Sir John of course knows the full use. His eyes are very fine and and his smile ravishing.

The dual role he essayed in the Corsican Brothers—twins—one of whom is killed by professional duelists, whom the other brother later kills, seemed to suit his especial faculties no less completely than even his great role in The Only Way.

Supported by an adequate company in clothing a very competent villian (his name's McLeod in private life) Sir John was of course immeasurably superior to them all.

The great final scene, the duel in Fontainbleu, was a masterpiece of stage-craft, with its relentless snow and realistic impression of coldness and hate.

Belleville will remember the Corsican Brothers as among the most impressive things evergdone on the boat stage.

PRESS' FUTURE CALLED BRIGHT BY ITS LEADER

J. H. Woods, Pres. of Canadian News Asso. is Optomistic

Toronto, April 28.— An optimistic note was struck today by J. H. Woods, of the Calgary Herald, at the annual meeting of the Canadian Press Association over which he presided. "After surveying", he said, "with such care and ability as he could the general situation throughout Canada I believe we may look forward with good hope and eagerness to the future of our country and the business and the profession in which we are engaged. I think that many of the troubles which have afflicted us are on a way to solution and that a brighter and better day than we have seen for quite a while is now dawning for the people and press of Canada."

In the closing reference to the work of the staff, Mr. Woods said, "I wish to express my warm appreciation of the really splendid work that has been done during past year by your General Manager, J. F. B. Livesay and by his district superintendents, traffic officials and staff.

MEIGHEN NOT TO SUCCEED TO POST AT RIDEAU HALL

Ottawa, April 28.—The House Commons was diverted for a few moments Tuesday when Mr. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberi) asked the Government if the press rumor was true that Right, Hon. Arthur Meighen was to be Canada's next Governor-General.

Mr. Neill, in rising to ask the question, announced that it was "a matter of gravest public importance," upon which he might move the adjournment of the House for a special debate. Mr. Neill then read from a London despatch appearing in The Montreal Gazette of Saturday, in which it was stated that Mr. Meighen's name was one of those which had been suggested in London.

"Is the Mr. Meighen referred to the right hon. leader of the Opposed Mr. Neill.

"If there is any truth in the rumor will it have the sympathetic support of the Government?" asked Mr. Neill.

Premier King, in replying, said he had always understood that the leader of the Opposition had had other ambitions.

Mr. Meighen replied briefly saying "this country spoke its mind on October 29 last and assigned me to another task."

AMERICAN IS JAILED

INSULT TO MUSSOLINI

Rome, April 28.—John Adams Abbott, twenty-four, of Boston, Mass., was arrested today on a charge of assailing Salvatore Antrobus, a Roman guide, and insulting Premier Mussolini.

Abbott and Antrobus engaged in an argument after the guide is said to have usurped the American's place in a line of tourists awaiting entrance to the Vatican Museum. Fists were brought into play and Abbott landed with such effect that Antrobus was taken to the hospital. The guide accused Abbott of having uttered insulting remarks about Mussolini and Fascism.

HOUSTON ESTATE MAY BE FORCED TO PAY BIG DUES

Churchill Indicates Channel Islands May No Longer Save Tax Dodgers

London, April 28.—Judging by the answer given by Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to a question in the House of Commons, the late Sir Robert Houston, ex-M. P., Liverpool, ship owner, underwent a fruitless task if, as suspected, he made the Channel Islands his place of residence with a view to avoiding the imposition of duties on his estate after his death, April 14, were stated to reach the value of about £7,000,000 sterling assessable in this country.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer stated that he considered there was a good prospect of securing death duties on the wealth of Sir Robert Houston's estate, including the portion of it in the Channel Islands.

The whole question of the evasion of British taxation by the residents of the Channel Islands has now come up for fresh consideration by the British treasury, and also the question of those wealthy British people who seek to avoid taxation by combining their residence in both countries, spending hemisphere with five months' residence in England and two months' travel.

With regard to the question of the Channel Islands contributing to the British Exchequer a committee of the Privy Council some months ago inquired into the matter and suggested that contributions could be obtained from the Channel Islands on the taxpayers in the islands of burdens greater than those with which the taxpayers of Great Britain were faced. Jersey made no response to the invitation to contribute and the contribution offered by Guernsey was considered as unsatisfactory.

At present neither Jersey nor Guernsey makes a direct contribution to Imperial expenses and neither island is subjected to taxation imposed by the British Parliament.

The residents of the Channel Islands pay no income tax and their taxes generally are exceedingly light, compared with the taxes in other parts of the British Empire.

Two of his companions also were killed. They were, James G. Doherty, retired leader of beer runners of Cicero, Suburb, and Thomas Duffy, owner of a saloon. The hail of lead came from an automobile which drew up beside the car in which McSwiggin and his companions were driving on the boundary line between Chicago and Cicero. PRINCE OF WALES HAS COCKNEY ACCENT

London, April 28.—The Prince of Wales has a marked cockney, accent according to dramatist St. John Greer Ervine who publicly debated the question, "Do we know how to pronounce English?" with actor-manager Nigel Playfair last night.

Mr. Ervine grew hot over "the vile habit of pronouncing the letter 'R' when speaking although King George and Queen Mary do. The prince, he added, says "Hewy" when he means "Hoary" and that one of his brothers recently referred in a speech to the "Dook of Yawk".

PROHIBITION INEVITABLE IN BRITAIN SAYS BOOTH

New York, April 28.—General Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army throughout the world, declared that prohibition is inevitable in Great Britain, whether it succeeds or fails here.

"The British, being a law-abiding people have every expectation that prohibition in America will ultimately be a success" he declared in an interview.

General Booth reiterated the Salvation Army's traditional stand against the bar and said he looked on prohibition as political experiment and would not presume to say with authority that it had been either good or bad. He had found, however, that 1,200 centres of the Salvation Army service in the United States had been unanimous in reporting the "immense advatage" of prohibition. Homes had appeared to be better and children happier.

"One of the most important results, from the viewpoint of our organization, is that prohibition has opened the way for more moral and spiritual teaching," the General averred.

FARMERS SEEM OPTIMISTIC IN CANADIAN WEST

Prairies Enjoyed Perfect Winter and Conditions Very Favorable

Winnipeg, Man., April 28.—Spring opened on the 1926 season after one of the finest winters ever experienced in western Canada finds conditions generally favorable, according to a crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Weather during the winter months was exceptional in that there was considerably less than the normal amount of snow and severely cold spells were conspicuous by their absence.

CATTLE FARE WELL

Under such favorable auspices live stock fared well. Feed was plentiful in the absence of more moderate climatic conditions, the winter loss was less than usual. Prospects for the coming season are considered quite good. While there were fairly ample rains over the snowfall during the winter was light west during the fall months which frozen to the ground and assured satisfactory supply for spring requirements.

The attitude of the farmers generally is one more hopeful of the future, so common heretofore in agricultural communities had decidedly waned, find ing expression in their financial transactions for farmers. There is a strong demand for new machinery. Also collections on the business is reported to be coming with awakened activity in sale of farm lands and in demand for farms to rent. Apparently the same acreage is prepared for cropping as this work being better done than usual. With the present reasonably good moisture conditions, crops are getting away to a good start.

INCREASE IN MANITOBA

An estimate of acreage prepared in Manitoba shows 2,295,700 acres this year as against 2,534,000 acres in 1925, an increase of 26.5 per cent. Saskatchewan, 7,646,653 as against 6,918 acres last year, a decrease of 13 per cent.; Alberta, 3,013,681 acres this year and 2,721,682 acres in 1925, an increase of 10.8 per cent. Winter wheat and rye hyper to have come through therwinter well although it is too early yet to determine with exact effect alternating periods of freezing and thawing have had upon these crops. Plenty of seed is available in each province and in districts where doubt exists as to the fitness of local seed owing to low-germinating power, a plentiful supply of good grown quality is available nearby.

MOUNTIE PATROL DID 850 MILES TO GET SLAYER

Eskimos Will be Tried For Murder of a Compatriot

Edmonton, Alta., Apr. 28.—(By C.P.) Details of the murder of an Eskimo known as Ukhuk, in the summer of 1924, have just been disclosed in a report issued, relating to the activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in the far Arctic. The report, which was submitted by Sergeant F. A. Barnes who is in charge of the Tree River post, was three months in transit.

According to the report the murder ed Eskimo had given considerable trouble prior to his death, being convicted of slaying two missionary priests in 1915, for which he served a term of imprisonment. Following his release he had adopted a bullying attitude toward the natives, Sgt. Barnes writes. The crime was committed at the Tree river settlement, east of King Penrhudt and Bathurst Inlet. The man who is being held for the crime is a native known as Ikayena.

The prisoner probably will be tried at Aklavik next June, according to local officers of the R. C. M. P.

Although the murder was committed during the summer of 1924, it was not until a Hudson's Bay company party visited the Tree River detachment of the force on January 9th, 1925 that any statement concerning it had reached the ears of the police. Sgt. Barnes, accompanied by Constable Brockie and two natives, immediately set out for the distant settlement.

On their trip north, the investigators encountered blizzards and extremely cold weather. Four of the dogs died on trail and Sgt. Barnes was lost for some time while the supplies ran short. They survived the hazardous trip through strict economy in allotting the available food.

The quarrel between the two natives Sgt. Barnes relates, started when Ikayena shot one of Ukuhuk's dogs. Such an action, according to the report, in the circumstances of the Arctic is regarded as highly unfriendly.

When Ukuhuk approached him, Ikayena declared he had sensed danger and when the former sought to recover his rifle, he shot him twice.

The report points out that Ukuhuk had been under surveillance for some time. He had sold his wife and six-year-old son to another Eskimo for a .22 rifle. He had stolen the boy on two occasions. Ukuhuk had two other wives at the time of his death, the report says.

Sgt. Barnes and his party travelled 850 miles under the most trying conditions to apprehend Ikayena. In quest of another murderer a patrol despatched from the post covered 1,350 miles. They got their man.

SOUTH AFRICAN DEFENCE SCHEME KEEN AIR FORCE

Strong and Speedy Flying Corps and 25,000 Field Men Involved.

Cape Town, South Africa, April 28.—(Via Reuter's.) — Proposed changes in the defence force of the Union of South Africa, aiming at the creation of an air force capable of striking any enemy force anywhere within the Union, were outlined by Col. F. H. P. Creswell, Minister of Defence and Labor, in the House of Assembly today.

Col. Creswell stated that furthermore when the Government's military plans were carried out there would be the certainty of mobilizing 10,000 men and concentrating them within from 72 hours to 96 hours within a measurable distance of an enemy, and there would be an additional force that would bring the total up to 25,000 men, properly equipped and able to take the field.

As the conception of an active citizen force was not united to the country districts, the Minister continued, there would be a development of the commando system in the direction of a more disciplined organization.

Redlake Living Memorial To Sacrifice Of Brave Men Winner Of V.C. Never Returned

Winnipeg, Manz April 28. (By C.P.) —While every day prospectors are pressing eagerly forward from Hudson, Ont., the mining camp at Red Lake has become a bustling hive of industry—a living memorial to the courage and endurance of three men who lost their lives on the gold trail dog before the present "rush" started.

About thirty years ago a party of prospectors, well equipped with canoes and supplies, set known, Ont., at that time Hat Portage to search for gold in the district surrounding Red Lake.

They struck North, probably to Sandy Lake, by canoe and portage, into the vast wooded wilderness, past French man's lake, Lac Seule and Matewan river. From that time nothing was heard of them until months later meagre details reached J. R. Bunn, dominion government Indian inspector, who at the time was manager of the Hudson's ay post at Hat Portage.

The Inspector learned that the leader of the trio of adventures had accidentally shot and killed himself while cleaning his rifle. The other two had disappeared mysteriously.

According to Mr. Bunn, they were well bred men. The one who was shot was a graduate of an English university; one was an artist, connected with a London illustrated paper, while the third was an adventurer, in search of a fortune.

"They evidently had financial backing," Mr. Bunn declared, "for they were supplied with the best outfits, and I really believe they were returning for more supplies when misfortune overtook them. I firmly believe they found gold.

"About this time," Mr. Bunn said, "reports of discovery of gold in the Red Lake area were bruited as 'wild cat' and the bottom gradually fell out of the embryonic rush."

Two other prospectors believed to have lost their lives in the Red Lake district were Chris O'Kelly V. C., and his guide. No trace was ever found of O'Kelly but the canoe which the pair had taken north was found overturned in a small stream. The body of the guide was later recovered.

WILL FOLLOW UP FOREST 'SAFETY' REST OF SEASON

"Week" Just Passed to be Forerunner of Full Year Service

Ottawa, Ont. April. 27—(By Canadian Press) "Have the Forest Week" which was in progress from April 18 to 24, will be followed by an extensive at week campaign by the Canadian Forestry Association, ramified into almost every area of the Dominion of Canada Lecture parties, under the Association's flag are already at work in the Lake St. John area of Quebec travelling by sleigh or car and gathering together an average of five hundred citizens nightly. Graphic motion pictures are displayed identifying the personal interests of every citizen with the blocking of forest fire menace. Last year more than a thousand mass meetings were held by Association workers locally in the more remote regions where forest fires commonly start, and it is the intention this year to have at least 1500 public meetings.

Ten thousand elementary schools from coast to coast are also in the Association's care, the teachers undertaking to use illustrated manuscripts every forenight to instruct hundreds of thousands of pupils in the common sense facts of the nation's forest evatinas.

In British Columbia, the Canadian Forestry Association's agents travel by boat and motor car to the camps and organize against forest destruction through every avenue of public influence. Within a few weeks, other officers will be covering the Gaspe coast of Quebec and the newly settled North Shore of the St. Lawrence, covering their routes often by primitive and difficult modes of travel.

Within the past ten years, the Association, which has no identification with governments or commercial bodies, has pushed forward its educational campaign into eight provinces and made necessary a travel milesge totalling over fifty thousand. The goal towards which it is working is the reduction of Canada's forest fire loss by at least sixty per cent.

Group of American financiers will invest fifty millions in building apartment houses in Paris.

Montreal City Council by a vote of 21 to 13 decided to adopt daylight saving May 2 to September 26.

TERHUNE, DOG FANCIER FINDS HIS COLLIE DOG HE LIKES IN SCOTLAND

New York, N.Y., April, 28—Albert Payson Terhune, author, has returned to the United States with the story of a rain six-weeks, search for a good Scotch collie.

"I couldn't find a Scotch collie in Scotland that could measure up to the best grade of Scotch collies in the United States," he said. Mr. Terhune is a decided judge for the American Kennel Club. "I looked at the collies brought to me with the eye and impartiality of a judge. We beat them all on points; our collies have better coats and better heads.

"Most of the collies, which were pointed to with pride as the finest breed, would take second prizes in a small town American dog show. They are too thin and lank. They haven't the hair which our dogs have. In all surprised me for I naturally thought the best collies are to be found over there."

SEND MORE BUFFALO INTO FARTHEST NORTH

Edmonton, Alta., April 28.—(C.P.) Transhipment of 2,000 buffalo from Wainwright Alta, to the park near Fort Fitzgrald, will commence about June 15 and continue until the contract has been filled, according to Col. J. H. Cornell who recently returned from an official visit to Ottawa.

The shipment will include 1,000 yearlings and 500 add two year olds and more than 100 three year olds, the distribution being on the basis of two females to one bull. These animals will be unloaded 20 miles further north this year while the manner of transportation will be the same as that followed in 1928.

Reports have reported that the shipments now in the Northern park are in good condition and thinned well.

The Automobile Industry has never had 35% protection---only 14½%

The duty on the finished motor car has significance only when considered in relation to the duties applicable upon the parts and materials which it is necessary for Canadian manufacturers to import.

Certain parts are themselves dutiable at 35 per cent. A great many parts and materials are dutiable at rates in excess of 20 per cent.

These figures reveal the facts:

Canadian manufacturers made and sold in Canada, during 1925, 84,000 motor cars whose wholesale value was -	$67,500,000
If these 84,000 cars had not been made in Canada, but had been imported from the United States at prices which, after payment of 35 per cent duty, would have represented a wholesale value in Canada of $67,500,000 the duty collected would have been - - - -	$17,000,000
After deducting all drawbacks, Canadian Manufacturers in 1925 actually paid in customs duties on parts and materials used in the cars made and sold in Canada -	$10,000,000
Their actual protection therefore was only - - -	$ 7,000,000
Thus a protection of 35 per cent is actually a protection of only $7,000,000 against $17,000,000, leaving a NET protection of 7-17 of 35 per cent, or less than -	14½ per cent

Under the proposed Customs tariff, the majority of Canadian-made cars will have no protection whatsoever!

Robert Forke, Prog. Leader Claims To Have The Secret Of Long Life And Happiness

Winnipeg, Man., April 28.—(By C.P.) Contributing a special article to the Manitoba Free Press, Robert Forke, leader of the federal Progressive party, sets forth the following code which he says to a consumer has served as a chart to guide his course of life:

Fidelity.
Fairdealings.
Honesty.
Tolerance and justice in dealings with others.
Cheerfulness.
Belief in a power that marketh for righteousness.
Play the game.
"Happiness," Mr. Forke writes, "is said to be the most elusive of human possessions—often sought difficult to find—perhaps more often found in the circumstances of the home surrounding, than in more ambitious social strides.

"I like to think of my early boyhood days in the Zimmerwoor hills of Scotland. It was during those days of extreme youth that I honestly believed that the Liberal party had a monopoly on all the virtues. The years pass and the knowledge grows, and no more do we believe in the absolute goodness of individuals or parties that was ours in the fateful days.

"Scotland was my birthplace and to memory ever dear—but Canada is my country, and my home." Mr. Forke continues.

"Coming to Western Canada in 1882, the first summer found me on a homestead with a very meagre supply of worldly possessions but with youth and plenty of optimism life was well worth living. This was for experience never to be forgotten. There were disappointments, hardships, sometimes privation, but they were such unsteppy days.

Referring to his philosophy of life Mr. Forke declares that he believes in a spiritual reality behind the events of the ordinary of everyday life; that there are deep springs from which religion rises in the human heart and that notwithstanding all the ignorance and cruelty in the world today, the human heart is wonderfully kind.

"Tolerance of other people's opinions is something well worth cultivating. I believe, the Progressive leader continued "That it is absolutely necessary, if we are to have a good government, that the people have a real interest in public affairs. I think there is just as much harm done by casting subject reflections upon the actions of public men as there is in condoning wrongdoings in office.

"I believe that money is more than justice. Cultivate cheerfulness as one of the virtues. The world owes a lot to people who have a sunny presence, lighting up the dark places. I have said to my closest friend: 'I have a philosophy of life to live by.'—I wonder if I really have found something to keep me from being unduly elated with success and cast down when failure is my portion. Alas! I would not like to say.

"I like to think of my early boyhood days in the Zimmerwoor hills of Scotland." It was during those days of extreme youth that I honestly believed that the Liberal party had a monopoly on all the virtues. The years pass and the knowledge grows, and no more do we believe in the absolute goodness of individuals or parties that was ours in the fateful days.

Letters To The Editor

A COMPLAINT

To the Editor of The Daily Intelligencer:

Permit me, in hopes this letter reaches the eyes of the several offenders of whom I wish to complain, a few lines in your paper. Last evening I attended that remarkably fine play "The Corsican Brothers" but being a man of very moderate means as to the less expensive tests, an economy for which I paid very dearly due to the half-witted attempts at being funny, on the part of a couple of youths who sat direct ly in front of me. In an apparent attempt at appearing sophisticated and tired of pleasures such as the play offers, these idiots kept up a continual hum of attempted humor directed at impressing the surrounding auditors with their wit. As the play proceeded they became more of a nuisance until at the climax in the wonderful scene in Fontainbleu forest—their chatter became so intolerable a neighbor of mine left the seat he occupied in the hope of escaping the wit's attempted humor. The play was spoilt for him, for me—for every one who came within reach of their inane chatter. I say—it is their credit they looked sheepish when my neighbor left quite apparently to escape their folly.

Coupled with this awful nuisance but not half as distracting, a small boy munched an apple and seemed quite unconscious of the fact that he wished he were in bed and amidst proud giggles from his parents. The child couldn't help it, but those idiots who chattered, knew better. I have no mind to blame the theatre management one way or another. Martin Harvey has gone; but may the next excellent play escape being ruined by half wits.

Yours very gratefully,
One who sat in the gallery.

LOSS FROM FIRE IN U.S.A.
TOTALS $50,000,000 ANNUALLY

Ottawa, Ont.; April 28.—"A most conservative estimate of criminal losses in the United States from fire per annum would be $150,000,000," Chester E. Johnson, of Birmingham, Ala. The Canadian marshall of the State and President of the Fire Marshalls Association of North America said in addressing the annual convention of Canadian Fire Marshalls here today. He added that in his opinion the losses from such sources in Canada would be proportionately as great.

CAPRICIOUS FASHION DECREES NEW STYLES IN NAMING FLOWERS

Since All Of Us Are Learned, Later Names Rage, With Honeysuckle Becoming Lonicera And Other Favorites Passing Under Yoke.

(London Spectator.)

Rebels die unheeded but not unsung—when they are right, and those who rebel against grammar, although they are often hoarse in their wrath, the grammarian is immortalized by several are often right.

Perhaps the best instance of this was his child who, after being taught never to end a sentence with a preposition, shouted out: "Whatever made you choose that grammar to be read to out of from for?"

English is a shameless mongrel. She has so many parents she doesn't know what to do; few of them were "the child of gentlemen only" as the school mistress said; many are of doubtful origin. Slangy English has a short life but a merry one.

A young poet recently began a poem to a tree with the couplet:

"A tree's strange beloved tree
That you should have the bulge on me."

And the lines though not immortal are spontaneous. "Longhays" in art, as in life, is often inextricable from vitamin A, and where there is no roughage there is little but vitamin B.

This is extraordinarily true of the names of flowers which have three very dominating origins — Medicine, Fancy and Proper—in the nominal case. . . .

Of these three classifications the greatest is Fancy, and the greatest enemies of her superbly named flowers are the botanists themselves with their rage for Latin. Flowers must, of course, be given Latin business names by which they can be universally identified. But the rage is common use grows apace.

Woodbine was honeysuckle long before it was Lonicera. Tulips, perennial larkspurs are becoming universally known as Delphiniums; the beautiful Columbine is being dragged down by the squealing Aquilegia. Antirrhinum is killing the snapdragon, Digitalis the foxglove. Indeed, a time is fast approaching when people will refer to the thrifty white lace pink as Aurelia Maritima Alba as they quote the heritage as Canis Dalmatica, the cobweb houseleek as Arachnoideum (God save us!), and final ly, when we are all doomed and damned the small child sent into the garden will return with a "lovely basket of lili ums and hoses, Mummy."

But false fancy is worse than fancy. Rather Narcissus triadous than that "Angels' ears." "Fenus Fingers" and "Madonna's Jewels" are pretty, but they never came to stay like Bachelor's Buttons and Love-in-a-Mist.

Some fancy names are good enough to survive, as, for instance, "Goldilocks" for Helichrysum, "Lady's Laces" for variegated grass, "Pearls of Spain" for the white grape hyacinth, and "Rosaruby" for the red Adonis.

Our business is, obviously, like Mr. Robinson in his English Power Garden, always to use the English names where we can without affectation, and, forgetting that Fashion decides what is effected and what is not.

Capt. Thomas J. J. See Finds Why Earth "Wobbles"

San Francisco, Calif., April 28.—Captain Thomas J. J. See, U.S.N., Manila musician and government astronomer at Mare Island, near here announced yesterday he has discovered the cause of variation of latitude or periodic "wobble" of the earth's axis. Professor See said he had demonstrated mathematically that the phenomena of polar motion or the shift of earth's axis in globe are due to tides in the Pacific Ocean. This discovery was the result of forty years study of tides and findings under his hypothesis and agrees exactly with astronomical observations in any countries over a period of 25 years.

RECREATIONS OF THE GREAT

What do statesmen do with their spare time? A British newspaper has in some way succeeded in discovering the recreation of many of Britain's rulers, the results being intensely interesting.

Mr. Amery, the Secretary for the Dominions, who used to be an amateur boxer, now gets rid of his superfluous energy by climbing mountains, (he once broke a leg in the Rockies). Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, shoots game of all sorts. Viscount Grey is a gardener, a fisherman and a student of bird life.

Premier Baldwin (one wonders where a man with his multiplicity of duties finds time for anything) likes to go for week-ends to his farm to look after his pigs. Also, he says he retires for an hour and a half into cloistered seclusion each day to reflect on the eternal verities of this and the other life.

Lord Oxford, now released from the tight leash of politics, is re-reading the classics; goes to the theatre; spends some time committing his Gibbonesque sentences on Christian duty to paper, and is occasionally seen on the golf links with Sir John Simon.

Lord Balfour, who never took politics as seriously as he took philosophy, has always been a keen sportsman. He plays a good game of golf, and, despite his advanced age wields a constant and effective tennis racquet. Mr. Lloyd George on the other hand, finds a single love in golf, driving a low long ball; while Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, when not tramping through the country, tackles the ancient game with a hand leap of only seven.

Lord Birkenhead plays a skilful game of tennis, and is also a yachtsman. Mr. Churchill mounts a polo pony and is said to take exercise as he does everything else, with a tremendous violence and vigor. He once went in for farming, but the experiment ended disastrously.

Evidently there are no Gladstones among British statesmen to-day. Take this, for example, from that great man's diary:

Hawarden, Jan. 13.—1869 — wrote out a paper on the plan of a measure respecting the Irish Church, intended perhaps for the Queen... Worked on Homer. We felled a lime.

14th—We felled another tree. Worked on Homer but not much.

16th—We felled an ash. Three hours conversation with the Vicercy and the Archdeacon.

It is interesting to compare, the Ottawa Journal observes, the recreations of our own politicians with their British contemporaries. Sir Wilfrid Laurier took no physical exercise, except an occasional walk, but found recreation in his library. It is told how, in the midst of a Cabinet crisis, one of his colleagues found him in his office reading the life of the Empress of China. Sir Robert Borden plays an indifferent game of golf, but plays it frequently. Mr. Meighen is as intense with a putter as he is when drafting an amendment to a fairly bad land measure in bridge, and as his speeches often reveal, reads Shakespeare and Macaulay. Mr. King "substitutes rides and chops down trees and builds stone walls at Kingsmere. Mr. Forke works on his farm.

It is all very interesting. Because no man can be completely judged by his public work. It is from the occupations of his leisure that we obtain that evidence which alone enables us to form a satisfactory estimate of his disposition and his character.

SPEAKING OF HIGHWAY DEVELOPMENT

Mud—and plenty of it—equal in depth and tenacity to that celebrated mud of Flanders Fields was what greeted the motorist who dauntlessly set forth on Saturday to reach Toronto via the Provincial Highway. Unlucky was the one who had made arrangements to arrive in Toronto at a definite time—for it certainly "couldn't be did". Shades of pioneer days were revived and the much abused horse, proclaimed of late decreased from above on the unfortunate motorist sunk to the hubs in mud that simply wouldn't let go.

Perhaps the most impassable spot was one just west of Port Hope where the pavement ends suddenly and the scene that met the eye here was enough almost to make even the most venturesome turn back. Lined on the highway at each end of a sea of mud about two hundred yards in length and extending completely across the road, were about fifteen motor cars patiently awaiting their turn to be assisted by the equines of the Highways Dept. through the slime—and you just had to wait your turn. It might not have been quite so bad at that but for the fact that half a mile further along was another somewhat similar scene that would have to be faced immediately after the ordeal in hand was through with. It didn't matter whether you were driving a Ford, Buick or a Cadillac—they were all there represented—all awaiting the assistance of the despised gee-gees. One intrepid driver undertook to risk it alone and getting up good speed, took a "running dive" into the muck. But alas, his momentum carried him about fifty feet and then he gently oozed down to the running boards—to the accompaniment of the jeers of some twenty or thirty brother motorists who were waiting to be hauled through. He didn't get any sympathy—all the remarks were to the effect that it was fortunate he didn't block a spot through which the others were being pulled and there he sat—to be taken through last!

ASK RECISION OF LOW TARIFF

Manufacturers Meeting at Montreal to Petition Government

HISTORY IS OUTLINED

T. A. Russell Details Expansion of Canadian Motor Trade

Montreal, April 28.—Following an address by T. A. Russell, president of the Automotive Association of Canada, a resolution to petition the Government for a recision of the recently reduced tariff on automobiles was passed by a gathering of manufacturers and others interested in the motor industry here today. It is asked that the matter be referred to the Tariff Advisory Board.

The petition will be laid before the Government at Ottawa.

H. M. Jaques, general manager of the Steel Company of Canada and chairman of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, moved the resolution with S. W. Ewing seconding.

In the course of his address Mr. Russell outlined the history of the motor-car industry in Canada, beginning modestly 25 years ago and developing in a marked manner within the last ten years. The numbers of the Canadian Market had been a deterrent to United States manufacturers in the establishment of Canadian branches to their factories, and also the fact that the Canadian demand was seasonal. Sixty per cent. of the Canadian motor business was done in four months of the year, with the result that in that period a capacity is required three times greater than that required during the balance of the year. The granting of preference to Canadian products by Great Britain and other dominions, however, made it profitable for United States firms to transfer their export business to Canadian plants so that advantage might be taken of these preferences, and also that a steadier production might be maintained in the Canadian plants.

22,000 EMPLOYED

All this had resulted in an expansion of the Canadian motor trade and at the present there was 22,000 people employed in the making of automobiles and other business dependent on it.

Mr. Russell continued:

"The car manufacturers were aware of an agitation for lower duties. They relied on the promise made by the Prime Minister before the last elections and also on the assurances given in the speech from the Throne, that tariff matters would be referred to a Tariff Advisory Board before action was taken. Nevertheless, they prepared the information with regard to their industry and made representations to the Government, asking merely that the industry receive full investigation at the hands of the Board, and offering to lay fullest possible data before that Board either in total or in respect of the individual companies. We were prepared to rest our case on its merits, and urged strongly that no action should be taken without proper investigation, because not only was the industry large and important itself, but giving employment to thousands of people, but it drew on so many other lines of industry for its raw material, that changes will be very far-reaching in effect. Despite these representations, the budget was brought down on April 19th announcing a reduction on cars selling in the country of origin at under $1,200 from 35 to 30 per cent., a reduction of over 42.9 per cent. of the previous duty, and on cars over $1,200 a reduction of 20 per cent. of the existing duty to 27½ per cent.

"Provision was made that a drawback would be paid to the Canadian manufacturer of one of 25 per cent. of the duties he paid on imported materials, provided his car was 50 per cent. produced in Canada. This reduction was standing to the industry and under the present proposals it is the considered opinion of those engaged in the industry, that, outside of perhaps one firm it will not be possible for the industry to survive in Canada.

WRONG IMPRESSION

"The question is at once raised, why run of an industry employ 20 per cent. protection, and then the car costs as much in Canada as they have? There is an impression that the motor car industry is a luxury, so to this date, protected by a duty of 35 per cent. Nothing could have been more mistaken than this impression that 35 per cent duty on motor cars meant a protection to that industry of 35 per cent. The motor car, to an extent perhaps not equalled by any other industry in Canada, uses not only the important raw materials, but the finished products of a wide range of industries. Many of these products are as yet not commercially produced in Canada. In 1925 the domestic production of motor cars amounted to $67,000,000 in value.

"If all of these motor cars had been imported at 35 per cent. duty, the duty so collected would have amounted to $17,000,000. On the other hand, the motor car manufacturers themselves paid in duties $9,000,000 on products received from the cars were exported, over $77,400,000 of parts makers from recent duty paid $1,250,000 more and a conservative estimate entailed duties that the car manufacturers and those supplying materials and parts to them paid to the Government $10,000,000 duties, as compared with a gross duty that would have been collected had the cars been imported of $17,000,000. The protection of the car industry therefore, was not the $17,000,000 afforded by a 35 per cent. tariff, but $7,000,000 which works out at 14 per cent. The other 21 per cent. was actually taken by the Government itself from the manufacturers in the shape of duties they paid on the raw materials they imported. The duty has now been reduced to 30 per cent. on the class of cars which are mainly those which retail at $1,200 and under. No change have been made in the duties of material and parts other than the provision that a drawback of 25 per cent. of the duties will be allowed if the car is 50 per cent. produced in Canada.

"It is obvious from the foregoing that where the production amounted to only 14% per cent. after the car manufacturers and the duty has been reduced 15 per cent., the whole of the protection has been wiped out, and the industry is to-day, under the tariff as proposed in the budget, without protection."

INDUSTRY'S HUGE OUTLAY.

Mr. Russell went on to detail with respect to the nature of the taxes to which the automobile industry contributed and said:

"Last year the industry spent $38,000,000 in purchasing materials in Canada; $7,000,000 in payments to the railways. Much of this would be lost if the parts industries are closed down and if cars are imported complete from subsisting points in the United States. Wages paid amounted to $17,000,000. In all the industry expended in Canada $77,000,000, whereas the sale price of the cars to the automobile dealers in Canada was $10,000,000 more than was received from the wholesale trade of Canada for all the motor cars in Canada."

Science Promises Something New Dunces Of Today Say The Expets May Be Thinkers Of Tomorrow

New York, N.Y., April 28.—Dunces of today may become the bright boys of tomorrow and thinkers of the future may think bigger and better thoughts when modern, modern, modern the electrical design of the human body.

Long hailed by the secret, today rising to piece out the puzzle of the human storage battery. In one lab. body has been caught on 9 wireless recording apparatus, according to scientific data just made public.

Elsewhere the "cells" of the body's battery have been shown to be "dead" unless surrounded by a suitable current-carrier.

Every day has become fish day in another laboratory, where electric fish throw on the human mystery.

Through the new knowledge scientists say it may be ultimately possible to cure or relieve types of mental disorder which are today incurable, be greatly reduced, and mental classifications may be raised.

Dr. S. D. Adrian, fellow of the Royal Society, in London, has reported the analysis of the electrical impulse from a single nerve fibre with wireless recording apparatus.

Shiro Tashiro, a Japanese scientist, demonstrated that the nerve will NOT conduct, unless surrounded by a medium containing an ample supply of oxygen. This suggests a reason why some persons think and react more rapidly than others, whose blood sup-

Avoid Constipation

Remember your baby is helpless, unable to tell you when constipation is making its life miserable. You must be able to recognize the symptoms.

Cowardliness, ill temper, grinding the teeth in sleep, feverishness, restlessness and indigestion that poisons from baby's stagnant bowels are heralding the little body.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without straining.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

AUGUST THYSSEN AMONG PLOTTERS TO GAIN CANADA

Late German Captain of Finance Had Grandiose Scheme on Foot

Berlin.—By the death of August Thyssen, one of the plotters with the Krupps and Krupp, who were to form a syndicate with twenty millions of capital to capture and control all the natural resources of Canada, had passed away. Owning huge iron and steel industries with an output of many millions of tons per year, he was indispensable to the Imperial schemes, and was invited to Berlin to show in the great conspiracy that was to overwhelm the markets and the liberties of the world.

"WASTED" ASSETS

The new-century found these restless spirits leagued a plan for conquering Europe and England, and exploiting all the "wasted" assets of the British Empire. This bold project of universal assimilation originally planned for 1912 was to be based on a code of almost indelible indemnities, and the German manufacturers were to be exempt from taxation for years to come. A syndicate with twenty millions of capital was to be formed for its assistance with 20,000 of the best Aryans in Australia.

EXPOSED WILHELM

Unluckily for the plotters the scheme failed, and instead of raking in profits the trade and industry of the Fatherland were called upon in 1916 to pay up $1,000,000,000 for the expenses of the war. Herr Thyssen's share was to be $1,000,000, as a first instalment, and alone among the victims he denounced the conspiracy as blasphemy. The majority might pay as they liked, and the world might scoff at the mortification of a greedy millionaire who had sold his self-respect for a bargain parcel of land in the far Antipodes.

He was warned that if he broke loose from the compact he would get no more war contracts, or money, or payments of his bill already overdue; but these threats did not deter him. In 1919 he returned to Switzerland and published a remarkable pamphlet which told the whole story, accusing Wilhelm II. of "bamboozling" his subjects and their confreres into a war which could mean nothing but national bankruptcy.

TRIED BY FRENCH

In the struggle which followed the French occupation of the Ruhr the Thyssens figured prominently. August Thyssen was among the German industrialists tried by the French for refusing to obey orders to deliver coal. At the trial at Mainz in January, 1920, Herr August Thyssen made his appearance. At the head of the firm for which he was on occasion his son had assumed responsibility. In the result the son was fined 5,000,000 francs. Since that time Herr August Thyssen made his appearance less prominent, and for some months he had been in failing health.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK

Marvelous beyond conception isaptly describes the glories of Canada's Rockies To be fully appreciated they must be seen To start out on a trip by one's self into the unfamiliar but far-famed paradise-onearth, to many appears quite a task .Recalling this, Dean Sinclair Laird, of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation-car accommodation has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which to gether form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipeg residents; Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain resort; by automobile for 104 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Dunbober country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake, and to Vancouver, thence by steamer To Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific, through the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rockies, affording glimpses such as can be found nowhere else on earth; Yoke Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world; another gem of scenery, Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devils Gap Camp, on the Lake of the Woods,

O.A.C. NO. 144 OAT

NEW VARIETY WHICH IS NOW TAKING THE LEAD.

Now Eligible for Registration In Ontario.—Interesting Notes on Soil and Barley Matters.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Within the past three years the O. A. C. No. 144, which is a new variety originated at Guelph, has made a particularly high record throughout Ontario, as can be seen from the following table:—

VARIETIES	STRAW (TONS) 1925	STRAW (TONS) AVER. 3 YRS.	GRAIN (BUSH.) 1925	GRAIN (BUSH.) AVER. 3 YRS.
O.A.C. No. 144	1.65	1.56	82.30	68.30
O.A.C. No. 72	1.58	1.46	69.54	64.51
O.A.C. No. 3	1.54	1.45	67.54	62.51
Liberty (Hulless)	1.70	1.38	51.06	54.66

Of all the varieties, strains and hybrids of oats grown in the experimental plots in 1926, the O. A. C. No. 144 gave the highest yield per acre as it did in 1924. At the annual meeting of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, which was held last June at Edmonton, Alberta, this new variety of oats was accepted as eligible for registration in Canada. This is the only variety of oats which has been added to the eligible list for several years.

The O. A. C. No. 144 variety of oats was first given a selection taken in 1912 from amongst plants of the O. A. C. No. 72 variety. It is decidedly different, however, from the latter, and seems distinct from any other of three hundred or more named varieties of oats which have been tested for five years or more by us wards at the Ontario Agricultural College.

The O. A. C. No. 144 is a tall, vigorous, mid-season, strong-strawed, stiff-strawed, late variety of oats which produces a spreading head and a long, slightly brownish white grain differing from the Banner oat which produces a heavy yield of both grain and straw, is of good quality and the ripening crop has a beautiful appearance with a golden tinge.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College.

DAIRY NOTES.

Don't Overfill the Churn.

Butter of good quality can be made by separating fresh milk in the cheese factory and churning the cream there with or without pasteurization of the cream.

Skim-milk powder mixed at the rate of one pound of powder to nine pounds of pure water makes a good substitute or starter for ripening cream when it is considered advisable to ripen cream for churning.

Overloaded churns cause a heavy loss of butter and should be avoided. A churn should not be filled over one-half full of cream.

The acid-alcohol test for skim-milk and buttermilk is more than the amount of fat in dairy by-products is much more accurate than is commonly supposed about double that shown by the ordinary Babcock method of testing.

Skim milk and buttermilk may be successfully fed to calves. They may be used for feeding pigs and poultry with good results. The principal disadvantage of this fact is that it reduces the bulk and weight of the substance where it will keep in storage.

Cream may be "neutralized" with bicarbonate of soda and be used for cooking purposes.manufacturers. Preserv" or "ripeners" shorten the time required for ripening the cream without lessening the aroma and without detracting from the quality of the ice cream made by their use.—Dairy Department, O. A. College.

QUALITY AND PRICE.

The Price Reference Is the Stimulus to Improvement.

The market demands quality, every article of food, product or goods he like every other article of food, has its grade or class. Buyers demand this and if they do not get it in their purchases uniformity of grade and quality standards are maintained. Only farms where the production is mixed, the is mustard and oats, potatoes of all colors and shapes, or pigs of various descriptions, etc., quality products are not in evidence. So the first move toward quality products is, either a specialized or diversified type of farming where the standard of production are at least themselves uniform, and capable of producing quality.

Get started right this spring. Use the best grades of the best varieties for seeding, save from the best here for seeding, and live stock of a type that is likely to produce market topers. High quality products are always in demand at fair prices.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College.

LOOP LEADERS BOTH VICTORS RAIN FOR LEAFS

Leafs Are Partly Out of Luck in Opener at Home

Both New York teams won with a considerable amount of excitement thrown in for good measure. So did the Senators and Detroit. Toronto of course, was idle and may be today at home in their shining new park.

DETROIT IS CLIMBING

At Detroit the hitting of Ty Cobb, making his first start of the season, enabled Detroit to beat Chicago, 8 to 7 despite the ineffectiveness of both Holloway and Dauss. Cobb hit a single, a double and a triple in four times at bat, driving in four runs, and scoring two himself.

FAST FOR WASHINGTON

At Washington, Walter Johnson held Boston to four hits while the Senators were pounding out a nine to nine victory. Washington scored four runs in the third, three at them coming on Rosen's homer inside the park.

AH GIANTS PRESS ON

At Philadelphia, Long George Kelly sliced a single to left in the ninth inning and sent Ross Young scooting across the plate with the run which broke an 8 to 8 tie and gave the Giants a 9 to 8 victory over the Phils. The game was fitful and jaggy to tender users. Both Kelly and Jim Shryder added touches of gaiety with useful home runs. Dana also entertained with a homer, but not with his pitching.

ANOTHER ONE DERRICKED

At New York a sudden yet a wiser man, Mr. Eddie Rommel, star pitching ace of the Athletics, trudged sorrowfully from the mound at the Yankee Stadium. It was not the ninth inning, but Mr. Rommel was leaving the pastry for the dugout.

Hari Combs hit one homer in the first and Tony Lazzeri hit another in the fourth and the Yanks scored five more in the fifth. At which point, with only two out, Rommel decamped and is now an active and enthusiastic member of the association of pitchers who haven't gone nine innings against the Yankees.

The Hogmen went on and won, 8 to 2, making it two straight against the fast proud Athletics and nine victories in twelve starts this season.

RUMOR THAT LYNCH IS TO PLAY AT QUEEN'S

Kingston, Ont., April 28.—A rumor current here that Charlie Lynch, of Ottawa, clever quarterback of the Senators' football team. Dominion champions, was considering entering Queen's University this fall and playing on the university football team was finally exploded. The rumor took strong form, but university authorities stated that boy knew nothing about the matter. "It would be a lovely thing," one of the Queen's officials stated, "but we don't know anything about it here."

HIGH SCHOOL, 14 JUNIORS ONLY, 8; PT. ANNE ON TOP

Two Games, One Very Uneven, One a Bit of a Surprise

Christ Church were snowed under by the Point Anne team in the first game at the Armouries in the soft ball league last night.

When the smoke of battle had cleared away the Polsters were on the long end of a 13-3 score. "Sunny" Green sent eight batters back to the bench via the strike-out route. The Point Anne team simply could not be stopped and scored in practically every inning. The Alemites are up against a fast fielding and hard-hitting team on Thursday night when they meet this Point Anne gang. Woodley umpired the first game. J. Allen—scorer. Batting order:

Christ Church (6) Point Anne (13)

HIGH SCHOOL (14); JUNIORS (8)

The High School boys surprised the spectators when they trimmed the good Junior team to a frazzle. Ken Colling's lads made all manner of mistakes and coupled with this they failed to hit Naphan's pitching. The students staged a regular nightmare in the third frame when no less than eight tallies crossed the plate. Cap. Smith pitched for the Juniors and Latchford caught. Naphan and Kerr were in the points for the winners, aspired this game.

WINTER TOO LONG FOR ONTARIO FARMER WITH FEED AT PREMIUM

According to a report of crop and agricultural conditions the spring-like weather of the past week has changed rural conditions remarkably in all parts of Ontario. In the Southwestern bare land work is general, and in Kent a few farmers have completed their seeding of Spring grain. Activities have commenced on the more favorable soils of the Central Counties as far East as Hastings and Prince Edward. In Centra Grey and other districts in the sam belt depths of snow remain and a warm rain would be appreciated. In Rainy River District, however, work on the land has commenced.

Late sown wheat does not look well in the earlier sections, but favorable weather may nurse it along to a satisfactory harvest. Some fields are patchy and bad spots will be seeded to spring grain. It is too early to tell much about the outcome in Central and Eastern Ontario as the snow has just gone from most of the wheat fields. C. H. Marritt, Agricultural Representative in Wentworth reports a fairly heavy clover injury and reports from other Counties in the 1925 area report a shortage owing to killing by drought last summer.

The winter has been too long on farms where there was a shortage of hay and other roughage last fall Many dairy herds were placed on full winter rations early in October Heavy feeding for seven months or longer will empty even the well fill ed mws and bins.

U-BOAT FAILED TO DELIVER LETTER COMES 9 YEARS LATE

New York, N.Y., April 28.—A letter sent from Germany in 1917 on the only German submarine mailboat has just reached New York, exactly nine years after the declaration of war against Germany by the United States.

A letter was sent from Florahelm to a New York newspaper man.

An accompanying letter explained that the communication was on its way to the United States when this country's declaration of war became imminent. The submarine, reached its time by the German Government, was warned of its danger and ordered home to avert seizure upon reaching North American waters. The envelope bears a U-boat mail stamp with the date February 3, 1917, and a picture of the German submarine.

The Intercounty League are up in arms over the recent rulings laid down by the O. B. A. A. in regard to tourist players. The executive are threatening to break away from the Ontario body. It is to be hoped that officials of the circuit will reconsider their decision to withdraw as the Inter County League has been one of the amazing kind of the parent body. They will meet officials of the O. B. A. A. at some later date this week and the matter will be reconsidered. It is thought that the Intercounty received but slight consideration in the wholesale withholding of certificate. Kingston will start playing this week in anticipation of cutting a large figure in the Central League. The old war-horse Del Cleary is being groomed for duty on the mound. Cairns who did so well last year will be the king pin should it be necessary to do the pitching with Purvis, "Bobs" Rosenfeldt, Bastone, Scott, Teepel, Gallagher, Halbert and Daly available for the other positions.

Gallagher has been working in Belleville at the new Albert College practically all winter

Interest in the Alemite—Point Anne game is growing everyday. Fans are talking in favorable terms of Jack Alen's team and the Cement Mixers must tend to their hailing to beat them. The morrow night should see the armouries crowded for this game.

The A. A. U. officials of United States are conducting a thorough investigation of the status of Charles (Hoff) Norwegian pole vaulter who is charged with presenting an exorbitant expense bill in his appearances throughout the country. Hoff is accused of setting exacting prices in various cities. It will be remembered that Pavvo Nurmi the Finnish runner was severely criticized at the close of his cross-hemisphering tour last year. Hoff received $600 for his presence at an athletic meet in Kansas City.

Toronto Leafs arrived home from a successful training camp having won nine and lost four games. With a long try series on their new stamping ground they should get a good tre hold in the International race.

The Brantford Expositor says, the spring lacrosse season will extend to the O. B. A. A. is not footing the fans one bit. They raked over the back yard of the promoters but failed to look at the front yard. Toronto, where clubs swap players at will.

Both New York teams are up in front of the Big League race, but are running into some stiff opposition and may be dislodged from their high perch any day. The Pirates are not playing up to advance notices and are hovering close to the .500 mark. Washington may take a spurt such as they did last year. It is doubtful if the Senators will win a third consecutive American League championship. Old Tris Speaker has his Cleveland team well up front.

Roth Eaton who is running a guessing contest as to the attendance at the opening game who received over 40,000 replies from all parts of the country had these rings in all manner of figures. Roth is popular with Toronto ball fans and his shop in Yonge St. Arcade, it's mecca for ball players.

Why not some one of the Merchants in Belleville run a similar contest as to the attendance at the opener on the 24th of; may. Some prizes for some runs, hits and base stealing would create a great deal of interest.

Is Belleville to be represented by an Intermediate ball team this summer? A meeting of the Bay of Quinte League will be held tonight at the Queen's Hotel. Anybody interested should be on hand.

What Canada Produces.—Though Canada has but a small percentage of the world's population, she produces: 83 per cent. of its asbestos, 35 per cent. of its nickel; 32 per cent. of its pulpwood, 29 per cent. of its furs, 20 per cent. of its cured fish, 18 per cent. of its gold, 13 per cent. of its printings, 11½ per cent. of its wheat, 11 per cent. of its barley.

CHICAGO THREAT OF HOCKEY WAR ENLIVENS SPRING

Harmon Interests, If Unsuccessful in Bid for Franchise, Talk Rival Loop

Montreal, April 28.—Threats of a hockey war are being broadcast from Chicago, where it appears that the interests headed by Tark Hanswick, former Harvard football star and Paddy Harmon, sagacious sports promoter and political leader, of Chicago, are at odds over a possible franchise in the National Hockey League. Whether or not the N. H. L. is incensed from an eight-club circuit is not constitutional following the award of a berth to a second New York team ten days ago, it is certain that the Chicago situation will be discussed when the semi-annual meeting of the N. H. L. is resumed here this week-end.

President Frank Calder, of the N. H. L., and James Strachan, of the world's champion Montreal Maroons, who with Leo Dandurand, of the Canadiens, recently completed a tour of investigation through the principal U. S. cities seeking berths in the major pro hockey loop for 1926-27, will be interesting people in the submission of their report at the meeting of the league Saturday.

BISHOPS LINKED WITH 'BOOKIES' IN OPPOSING TAX

Betting Levy in British Budget Causes Curious Alliance

London, April 28.—The annual tragedy of the British taxpayer as assayed by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill seems certain to have a second act. It will probably be entitled "The revolt of the bookmaker" although curiously enough the bookies, instead of fuming in their opposition to that feature of the budget which imposes a tax on betting, find themselves in alliance with the minsters of the more orthodox creed.

Bishop and bookmaker alike criticize the tax, but from different angles. The bookmakers say it will drive them out of business in favor of illegal street betting. Racing circles claim it will put end to racing and breeders aver it will sound the death knell of the British thoroughbred breeding industry.

The objection of the Church leaders, on the other hand, is that the tax will amount to Government recognition of the legality of betting. In Parliament the Liberals have made it clear they will fight the tax, and Labor is expected to follow suit, while the Conservatives are divided. Some unqualifiedly approve this proposals, others object on moral grounds, while a number are demanding as a corrollary the specific legalization of betting.

The bookmakers are arranging plans for deputations to make it clear to Churchill how much they dislike his tax. The United Council of Christian Churches met today in London to organize demonstrations of a different kind against it. Leading women, especially those whose views have a labor tinge, have expressed themselves in opposition to it.

Hon. T. C. Norris, Liberal leader, was prevented by the Speaker from asking Manitoba Legislature to endorse Robb budget.

SUZANNE TO U.S.A. NOT TO PLAY TENNIS

New York, April 28.—Suzanne Lenglen will not compete in the United States women's tennis championships at Forest Hills in August in connection with her forthcoming trip to this country to fulfil a motion picture contract.

This was disclosed today by Chas. C. Pyle, Chicago promoter, after filing a request with the United States Lawn Tennis Association for sanction of exhibition matches contemplated for the world's women's tennis champion.

TEX SAYS DEMPSEY PREFERS BLACK, FOE

New York, April 28.—Tex Rickard is home with Jack Dempsey's signed contract in his pocket and a dazzling Texas sombrero on his head. The contract, he explained, binds Dempsey to fight under his promotion in defense of his heavyweight title against either Harry Wills or Gene Tunney, some time in September. "somewhere in New York or New Jersey."

Rickard refused to stipulate just who would be Dempsey's opponent.

"I don't know who it will be," said Rickard, "but I'll tell you right now Dempsey would rather fight Wills than Tunney. He figures the negro will be an easier opponent."

Question was asked in British Commons regarding removal to America of stone gateway of Parliament Hall, Suffolk.

YPRES FILM FOR GRIFFINS

Now, old gravel-throttler, you can show the folks what you mean when you say those dumb words, "machine gun," "bomb," "pill box."

"Ypres" is a great motion picture because it points no moral. It is a simple, stark horror of war. It shows us the men almost themselves, but it is not a mere record of this great war picture not to introduce a veiled and mysterious figure to go bounding through these scenes and to make the photoplay an anti-war epic; or to introduce a symbolic and valiant shade that would make it a militaristic fiery ovum.

"Ypres" consists of two kinds of reels. The makers were given access to the official war records files and they were given by the British war office 850 troops of various arms to use on the plains of Aldershot to reconstruct twenty or more undying episodes in the war history of the Ypres Salient which an unimaginative G.H.Q. failed to have filmed on the spot.

"Ypres" has no hero and no plot. It consists of eight reels of disjointed and unconnected story—unconnected except the fact that British, Canadian, Australian, French, Senegalese and Belgian took over one another's trenches for long years of the bloodiest warfare that was waged on any part of the long front.

DEATHLESS STORY

Old soldiers will blush in the darkness of the theatre for some of the gallantry. For example, Sniffles are shown as villain charges across the open in broad daylight, alone and athletic troops, whereas in reality the troops went across in a pitiful crawl in the dim and terrible mist of dawn. But all the makers of this picture explain, for motion picture purposes, they have had to dramatize the greatest drama of the ages, they have had to liven up the greatest drama of the ages, they have had to liven up the greatest drama of the ages, they have had to liven up

DEFENDS YOUTH OF PRESENT DAY

Englishwoman of 79 Knows What Girls Were in "Olden" Days

London, Eng., April, 27.—(Canadian Press Despatch) Dame Millicent Fawcett, who is 79, declares that the manners of young people today are superior to those of 19th century youths and maidens. "They may be more outspoken," she says, "but that can be in connection with good manners. There is much more consideration for others and less class standoffishness nowadays.

"When I went for a walk in Kensington I noticed husbands wheeling the prams and carrying the children while their wives strolled by their sides. In the same district I saw a well-dressed girl go to the aid of a lorry in difficulties and say, 'Can I help you?' The other day when I was on the platform of a bus which was full inside, and I hesitated whether to go on top, a young girl seated near the door insisted that I should take her place. Such politeness as in these cases was not so generally experienced 30 years ago. I attribute the change to boys and girls being educated and brought up together, to the greater liberty enjoyed, to the enfranchisement of women and the respect which women gained for the part they played in the war."

Dame Fawcett is the widow of Rt. Hon. Henry Fawcett, who although blind, was for some time Postmaster-General. Her sister is Mary Garrett Anderson, a Doctor of Medicine, and the first woman in England to be elected Mayor. Her daughter earned honors at Cambridge higher than those of the Senior Wrangler. Dame Fawcett was for some time President of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies.

ROYAL SERVANTS ARE RECRUITED THO' OUT-SPOKEN FROM TENANTRY

Most of Staff of Late Queen Mother Now in Other Posts

London, Eng., April, 27.—(Canadian Press Despatch) Most of the young er members of the domestic staff of the late Queen Alexandra have not been absorbed in other royal establishments or have received an intimation that their services will be continued either at Sandringham or at Marlborough House. Several of her late Majesty's more responsible officials who are well advanced in years have been retired with suitable allowances. Amongst those are Miss Walton, housekeeper, and G. Davis, office-keeper, H. Middleton, tapestry-keeper, and Donald Follait, keeper of the silver. To all these King George and Queen Mary have made personal presentations of jewellery bearing the Royal monogram.

The lower ranks of the domestic staff of the royal palaces in London are mainly recruited from among the tenants on the royal estates at Windsor, Sandringham and Balmoral. For several generations the same clusters of families have supplied the younger end of the staff of all the royal establishments. The discipline in such service is exacting, but scrupulously fair, and while the pay does not equal what might be earned by a competent servant in the entitled establishments there are many advantages which more than compensate. Needless to say any servant who proves competent and trustworthy has no fear for his future, or indeed for the future of all his children who turn out creditably, for one of the ambitions of the more enterprising members of the staff is to be pleased upon the rota for travelling service. This work, while exhausting is full of variety but only those members of the domestic staff who have proven their discretion and readiness in emergency are selected for it.

BISHOP'S FINAL ADDRESS GIVEN

His Lordship Asks For Sympathetic Thoughts For All Clergy

The right Rt. Rev. Dr. E. J. Bidwell Lord Bishop of Ontario, whose decision to resign from this See was recognized as irreproachable by the Provincial House of Bishops some time ago, and whose resignation therefore goes into effect at the end of this month, preached for the last time as bishop of the Diocese in St. George's Cathedral on Sunday occupying the pulpit and addressing large congregations at both the morning and evening service say the Kingston papers.

PRAY FOR THE PREACHER.

"Brethren, I am done," stated Bishop Bidwell in his concluding words, "I can not possibly add to that message and I delight to leave it with you as a last thought.

"I wat you always to think most sympathetically of those who are charged with the interpretation of the Word in this place. Sometimes, when tempted to criticize a preacher, one is apt to forget the responsibilities of those charged to deliver the message, the crushing responsibility so aptly put by St. Paul in the passage that while I preach I myself might be a castaway,' or again as the poet Milton says:

"The hungry sheep look up, and are not fed,
But swoln with wind, and the rank mist they draw,
Rot inwardly, and foul contagion spread.'

"I beg of you always to pray for those charged with the pastorship of this or any other Diocese. It is not so much eloquence we need; we don't want men highly finished in the Arts: but we do pray wholly for that spiritual food which will help us to understand the deep mystery of life.

"And so I leave with you the words of The Master Himself, 'And He said to them all, if any man will come after Me let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow Me."

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

quite right. A pure, true-hearted woman, if she be a lady, is the equal of any man. I think Wolfe has been very wise as well as fortunate. If he had asked me to choose for him—which is the most improbable thing I can think of," and she smiled, "I could not have chosen a wife for him more after my own heart. He was quite right when he said that Arol and I love you. We do, my dear, and you know it."

"And—and yet you know nothing about me," said Constance, tremulous by.

"Well, not very much, perhaps, my dear," responded the old lady; "but then you see, what we do know is so good and lovable that we take all the rest for granted. But we do know something. Dr. Griffin has told me that he knew your father, and that he was one of the best of men."

Constance's eyes filled with tears.

"My dear, if an old woman may offer a word of advice—may she?"

"Yes, oh, yes; say everything, anything; do not keep anything from me!" replied Constance, fervently.

"Well, then; I'd say, put aside all such thoughts as that which was worrying you—it was worrying you a little, wasn't it?"

"Ah, yes, yes" and she stifled a little sigh.

"Well, then, don't think of it any more. It is true that Wolfe might have found a wife among what is called our own class—might have married rank and money; but," and the Brakespeare look came into the old lady's eyes, "we are not, I think, in want of money, and as for the rank—she smiled—well, we are proud enough to think it is of very little consequence."

Constance bent and kissed the sweet placid face.

"Oh, how good, how good you all are to me!" she murmured.

"Are we?" said the matchmaker, laughing; "it is nothing to what we will be. You shall see—you shall see! My dear this is the happiest day I have spent since Wolfe came back to me, and it almost seemed that night as if you had brought him."

"You come together, and it was you who brought me the news of his return. I shall never forget that. And then there is another thing. Who knows how long he would have remained with us but for you?

He was getting restless; he might have gone any day or any moment, but now that he has fallen in love with you he will stay. Yes, he will stay, and it is to you that I owe his presence. So you see, my dear, what good cause I have for loving you."

"It seems like a dream," murmured Constance, softly. "So strange, so impossible."

"That he should have fallen in love with you? Why, the old lady, with a smile. "Well, I think it would have been stranger if he had not. You see, my dear, the first thing you are very pretty; there will be another beautiful lady in the portrait gallery presently," and she looked at Constance's crimson ed face. "Then you have that sweet, mousey little way with you which men find so irresistable, and naturally; and then, my dear, we all know how good you are. But there, I don't want to make you vain and so spoil Wolfe's wife. Happy Wolfe!"

"Happy Constance," murmured Constance, hiding her face on her shoulder.

"And now, my dear," said the matchmaker, "you must tell us exactly what you would like done. You will want your friends to know."

"My friends!" echoed Constance.

"Yes. No doubt you would like some of them to come and see you. Remember that this place will be yours very soon, and that you must consider it as your home. Now, whom shall I ask to come and see you?"

"No one," said Constance, quietly; "there is no one. I do not think I have a relation in the world; at least, there is none that I know of or remember."

"My poor child, how lonely you must have been!" and the tender-hearted old lady stroked her hair.

"No," said Constance, gently, "I have been very happy. I have had dear—"

"But you will be so no longer, my dear," said the matchmaker. "You are among your own people now. Then there is no one whom I can ask? Is there any one to whom I shall write?"

"No," replied Constance, shaking her head. "There is no one excepting Lady Amstead."

"Well, then, I'll write to her at the same time you do, my dear," said the matchmaker. "I suppose the wedding will be very soon."

"Oh, not soon!" murmured Constance, blushing.

"I hope so, my dear. You see, when you are married I shall feel as if I had got Wolfe quite safe and secure. Oh, my dear, I little thought that night when you came and told me that my son had come back to me, that I should gain a daughter as well. I hope, I pray that he may make you happy, and I think he will. The Brakespeares are not half-hearted in their love; with all their faults they are true and constant. God bless you both, my dear!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

The wife of the marquis!

Constance sat beside the window in her own room trying to realize it. Would she wake presently to find that it was all a dream? She the wife of the Marquis of Brakespeare? It seemed too wildly improbable to be true! What had she done to deserve such happiness—for she was thrilling with such happiness as she had never yet dreamed of. She could feel his kisses on her face and hair, hear his voice ringing in her heart. She knew now that she had loved him from the first; she understood now why wherever she thought of him—and when had she ceased to think of him?—her heart had throbbed with a strange mixture of pleasure and pain.

With the unspeakable joy that filled her whole being there came, too, a sense of peace and rest.

She had been alone in the world, at the mercy of every wind that blows, at the mercy of Rawson Fenton, and as she thought of him a faint shudder ran through her. She need fear him no longer; one stood beside her now who could and would protect her from any harm Rawson Fenton might attempt to do her. She would put all remembrance of him away from her. It would have been better if she had told Wolfe about him, it would have been wise and sweeter to have told the whole story of her past life, in which there was nothing for which she should blush, but he had not permitted to do so.

GAME WARDEN HELD FOR SHOOTING SENT UP FOR TRIAL

PICCEON IS SENT TO HIGH COURT PERJURY CHARGE

O.T.A. Enforcement offic ers Gives Testimony— Bail to be Arranged

Nick Picceon, an Italian storekeeper on Station street, appeared this morning and was charged "that he did commit perjury" in connection with the evidence submitted on an O.T.A. charge two weeks ago.

Picceon testified that he was an employe home from Toronto at the time the special officers claimed they had purchased the booze.

After the evidence of several witnesses had been taken, Magistrate Mason decided to commit Picceon for trial to the next court of competent jurisdiction for the County of Hastings. Meanwhile, Picceon was taken to the County jail until bail has been fixed and arranged.

Only preliminary evidence was taken.

The two special officers, Louis Romaschik and Paul Skupek, testified as to visiting Piccon's home on 23rd March at 8.45 p.m., and purchasing a bottle of liquor.

Mr. Mikel, counsel for the accused, in cross-examining both witnesses, was especially specific in determining the exact hour of their visit.

Sergt. R. A. Rae of the Provincial police told of his being in company with Inspector Naphan on the evening in question and saw Picceon in the rear of the store at approximately 5.45 p.m. Inspector Moss of Toronto said he arrived in Belleville on train No. 20 which is due here at 2.40. He did not see Picceon on this trip. This completed the evidence and Piccoon's case was laid over until the next session of High Court.

BOBBY LEACH, NIAGARA HERO, KILLED BY PIECE OF ORANGE PEEL

London, April 29.—A despatch to the Evening News from Christchurch, New Zealand, says that Bobby Leach, who went over Niagara Falls in a steel barrel in 1911, is dead, from injuries received when he slipped on a piece of orange peel in the street. Leach broke a leg which it was found necessary to amputate.

LEACH DID MANY STUNTS WITH FALLS AS BACKGROUND

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 29.—The death of Bobby Leach, the intrepid Fall's thrill seeker, reported from Christ Church, N.Z., today removes one of the most picturesque figures from the Niagara district. Besides going over the Falls in a barrel, Leach many times defied death in sensational stunts with the Falls as a background. He successfully negotiated the Whirlpool rapids in a barrel, dropped with a parachute from the upper arch bridge over the gorge and from an aeroplane over the Falls and performed many other similar feats of daring.

With his wife and young daughter, Leach left this city late in October, 1926, and sailed from Vancouver for a 29 weeks vaudeville tour of Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

According to the best information obtainable, Leach was born in Cornwall, England, 64 years ago. He came to Canada in his youth.

BULLET IN NECK BY STRAY SHOT NEAR KINGSFORD

William Anderson Seriously Wounded in North Woods

William Anderson, 40, a nephew of Mrs. G. W. Casement of the Claremont Hospital, 377 Church street, was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital for X-ray treatment on Tuesday evening following an accidental shooting.

Mr. Anderson who is a farmer, was walking along the highway on his way to Kingsford on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock when, as he stooped to tie his shoe near a small woods, he felt a shock, heard the report of a gun and found blood streaming from a bullet wound in his neck. He was picked up and Dr. O'Malley brought him to Belleville for an X-ray, which however up to this morning had failed to show the position of the bullet. It is thought that the shot may have come away with the profuse bleeding.

Dr. G. J. Forster, 60 Victoria avenue, is the attendant.

Hunters in the woods fired the shot which went astray.

ROBB RUNS CLOSE SECOND AT PT. MAKERS IN DEPUTATION

Says Government Would -Face the Issue in the Country

Ottawa, April 29.—The deputation of Quebec and Ontario manufacturers of automobile accessories were flatly refused any consideration by Finance Minister Hon. James A. Robb. He went further and informed them they did not know their own business, and declared the Government would face the issue both in Parliament and the country.

It was one of the most impressive deputations that has ever come to Ottawa. The delegates represented employers of thousands and production and are employers of at least 50,000 people. There is no doubt their statement before the business will be greatly injured if the proposed tariff goes into effect. Both before and after the meeting they were interviewed and their employees were receiving a "raw" deal. They would have been content with the conditional verdict of the Tariff Advisory Board, but believe Ontario industry and labor has again been betrayed if Honorable Mr. Robb or his tariff advisor have the least conception of the way we are working industry. On the Saturday previous to the presentation of the budget the Government had decided to refer the matter to the Tariff Advisory Board, but between then and Wednesday the policy was changed, so that little consideration was given to the fact on Ontario and Quebec industry.

MODERN ENOCH ARDEN BRANDED AS IMPOSTOR BY WIFE AT PORT HURON

Sarnia, April 29.—A self styled modern Enoch Arden, claiming to be Adelard Lebert, who returned to Port Huron this week, after an absence of four years, is branded by his former wife, now Mrs. Victoria Lebert Manley, as an imposter.

Mrs. Manley last fall identified the body of a suicide whose death was caused by a headlong dive into a furnace in this City, as her missing husband and on a court's order she was permitted to regard Lebert as dead and collect $10,000 insurance on his life.

"He is not my husband", Mrs. Manley declared today, "but he may be one of his four brothers from Stony Point, Ontario, two of whom I have never seen." The woman recently became Mrs. Manley, marrying an aged war veteran.

The story of the return was first heralded as follows:

Port Huron, Mich., April 29.—Return ing after an absence of four years to find he had been officially recorded as dead, his former wife married to another man, and the $10,000 life insurance he had carried used by the former wife to erect an apartment house bearing his name out of respect to his memory, Adelad Lebert, 52 years old, last started an unusual action into one of the most puzzling legal angles in Port Huron's history.

Four years ago Adelard disappeared after a quarrel with his wife, Victoria. On July 28, last year, a ragged stranger walked half a mile into a farmer boarder, in Stonypoint. When the door was opened he stepped in inside and fainted on the doorstep. He was rushed to the hospital where he died.

Adelaid has been identified also by his former friends in Port Huron. Mrs. Manley made a sworn statement today that she believed her husband was dead at the time she collected the $10,000 life insurance.

Lebert's two brothers also told the same story. A coroner's jury then reached the conclusion that the dead man was Lebert, and Adelaid Lebert accordingly was recorded as dead.

Mrs. Lebert had obtained a divorce on the grounds of desertion several months after his disappearance, but she pressed on the proceeds on his $10,000 life insurance. The coroner's verdict regarding collection of the $10,000, which let Autumn she invested in an apartment house here. She was married to Wilson Manley, a 73-year-old Civil War veteran. Mrs. Lebert is about 50 years old.

A week ago Adelaid Lebert rang the door bell at the home of his brother, Lodger

Important Health Agency Throughout The Province Told by Hon. Dr. Godfrey

A large and enthusiastic audience greeted the Honorable Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Public Health in the Ontario Cabinet on his appearance here last evening under the auspices of the Young Men's Conservative Club in the O.W.V. A. Hall.

Dr. Godfrey reviewed the history of the work done by his department since his inauguration.

No intimation was given by the Hon. Dr. Godfrey as the possible date of his party election nor did he say anything in regard to the administration of the O. T. A. Harold Bateman, President of the Club who acted as chairman opened the meeting with a few well chosen remarks.

E. GUS PORTER EX. M. P.

Mr. E. Gus Porter ex. M.P. for West Hastings told of the late administration of public affairs under the administration of the King Government. There are two chief blots on Canadian history namely those of William Lyon Mackenzie King and his grandfather William Lyon MacKenzie.

Canada was never in a more dire state of affairs than at the close of the King regime declared Mr. Porter, people left the country and unemployment was prevalent. The people by their ballots showed their dissatisfaction of the Liberal form of Government but the Premier in his hour of defeat refused to resign.

The constition did not force him to resign so he took affairs into his own hands and with the help of the third party retained the Premiership. The Conservative party at Ottawa have been watching and hoping that an election will take place and stable Government be restored.

Mr. Porter declared it was the obligation of every man and woman who loves his country to get behind the men who are anxious to put Canada in its former position.

The political atmosphere is charged with offences of the King Government and the people must face the situation in a faithful and energetic way and end this sort of thing.

He congratulated the Young's Men's Conservative Club in their efforts and urged the ladies to join and repeat last years's election when the opportunity arrives.

W. H. IRELAND M. P. P.

Mr. W. H. Ireland introduced Dr. Godfrey as being the most efficient Minister of Health Ontario ever had. He voiced Mr. Porter's sentiments and said the Conservatives must face the problem and install a new form of Government.

HON. DR. FORBES GODFREY

Hon. Dr. Godfrey eulogized the work of W. H. Ireland as whip of the house as the best man in this capacity in many years.

He spoke of the unemployment existing in Canada at the present time and the exodus of Canadians to the U.S.

The possibilities of Northern Ontario present a wonderful field for the young people of the Country and ourtival those of the Western Provinces.

Canada as a country of nine million people faces a great crises and the people must face it with vigour. He stat ed that the Provincial Government was withstood the test and is the finest that Ontario has ever had.

In dealing with the work of the department of health he said that it is not a recent idea. In early stages of its inception, it is as old as civilization, and from it earliest beginnings, when men first began to get away from barbarism and adopt more civilized methods of living. Public health has kept step, stride by stride with modern progress. One of the important marks that distinguishes civilization from barbarism is the consideration that men show for their fellows, and we have that demonstrated in our day by the development of hospitals, refuges, and homes for unfortunate es, who are so situated as to be what we call a public charge, and, further, we have it exemplified in the great of organized, modern Public Health.

Diphtheria in the past was a dreaded scourge. Diphtheria,now with the early administration of anti-toxin is not a dangerous disease, but best of all children properly protected with toxoid never need to have diphtheria at all.

In the past fifteen years, the death rate from Tuberculosis in Ontario has dropped over 40 per cent. and why? Sanatorium treatment, which is simply education in health habits.

Now for the financial side: At the present time Ontario is paying one and a half million dollars directly chargeable to Tuberculosis and made up of grants to Sanatoria; payment for patients in Sanatoria, and Mother's Allowance in cases of husbands incapacitated or deceased from Tuberculosis. Were our status with regard to Tuberculosis the same now as it was fifteen years ago, we would be paying at the very least 40 per cent. more namely $600,000. The total Annual appropriation of the Health Department is $670,000.00. Does health pay? And is the Department of Health paying a substantial dividend on the investment the Province is making in connection therewith?

A branch of the Department that has made wonderful progress recently, is the Industrial Hygiene Branch, and in this Branch the Department of Health touches Labour very closely.

Production in a plant is in direct proportion to the efficiency of the staff.

A man in poor health or working under poor conditions cannot possibly turn in a good day's work.

This branch gives the whole attention of its personnel to the investigation of health and disease as related to the industry. They investigate conditions of ill health, specially found in certain occupations, and determine the feature or factor in the occupation that contributes to the condition of ill health, "Nick le Rash", a skin disease in the Nickle plating Industry, this was studied during the years 1923-4-5.

In 1923 forty-seven cases occurred in one plant, of which eighteen were sufficiently severe to call for comparatively heavy compensation. In 1924 seventeen cases occurred, of which seven were compensated. In 1925 only five cases occurred and not any were severe enough to call for compensation. This reduction was entirely accounted for by the intensive study made by the clinical staff of the Department of Industrial Hygiene, and the development, by them, of a plan by which the worker would protect himself and thus keep clear of skin affection. The result is that a considerable group of men, instead of having broken, past-time wages in the Nickle Refining Industry or in Nickle Plating, or having to change to some occupation, are able to carry on at their ow nstrade, earn good money and support their families.

A further important piece of work this branch has done is in investigations in connection with ventilation. This has been largely done at the plant of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, at Iroquois Falls, where the wide-awake management has been extremely anxious to avail itself of the service of our men and where we have found most valuable co-operation.

The service of this division are rendered at the request of the employer and with the goodwill and approval of the employee. No coercion appears anywhere on the programme. Attention is drawn to any defect detected and recommendations are made w ith respect to correction. We are keeping away from legislation.

The Division has done some very important work in the unorganzed territory where we have now succeeded in having established:

1. Standardized sanitary camp buildings.
2. Standardized inspection service for each camp.
3. A standarized medical service for each camp.

The Industries involved are:—

Lumbering, Mining, Pulp and Paper, Road Construction, Railway Construction.

The number of camps:—

Lumbering Camps	800
Saw Mills	63
Paper Mills	4
Road Camps	32

One point which should not be passed at this stage is the important investigation we have been making into a condition known as "SILICOSIS", which effects the Mining Industry of Ontario. It is a condition produced by a certain type of Quartz dust entering the lungs of the miners and which, if allowed to progress, results in permanents disability and death and each case adds one more burden to the compensation charges of the industry involved.

Child Hygiene Division,— employs three Physicians, besides the Director, and twenty Nurses. The efforts of the Dept. have reduced the Infant death rate and maternity conditions have been greatly improved. 8 of these Nurses are doing special work throughout Central and New O ntario where the local community cannot afford such a service. This Division accomplishes a great deal in connection with school health supervision. Education is the most expensive single activity in the Province and one backward pupil may retard a whole class. It is, therefore a good investment to see t hat no pupil las any physical defect that may retard his progress in school.

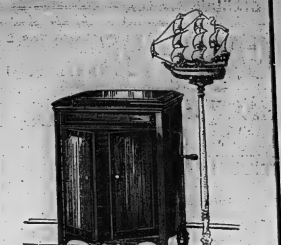

The Department of Health is trying to do its work by education, not by regulation or legislation, and is paying big dividends on the investment.

T. W. Willet that a vote of thanks be extended to Dr. Godfrey, Mr. Porter, and Mr. Ireland.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

LOCAL KNIGHTS CHAMP. BOWLERS PETERBORO FINDS

New K. of C. Club Rooms in Lift-lock Town Opened With Tourney.

Half a dozen of the Knights of Columbus of Belleville were in Peterboro last evening for the grand opening of the new K. of C. clubrooms there, and new K. of C. club rooms there, and catering the bowling contests against four teams from Peterboro's army of bowlers, and teams from Cobourg and Lindsay and Toronto, was eight games in a row cleaning up with a cup and several special prizes.

The local men who were out to the "Liftlock City were Grand Knight A. B. Mellan and Deputy Grand Knight Gerald Berrett who did not bowl but who spoke and sang at the banquet, and Dr. Gus Hepburn, Tom and Leo Harrett, George Lee, Arthur Donoahue and Harry Hurley. The local bowlers ran average high scores and bowled consistently and that broke the hearts of their opponents. Dr. O'Callaghan won the high score prize. The Peterboro Knights have four perfect alleys in their club rooms and very beautiful quarters. The locals beat two Pete'boro teams, and Cobourg and Toronto teams, much to their opponents dismay and won the final pool from Toronto by 892 pins.

They had a banquet banquet and besides the bowling, other athletic items on the programme. It was a great occasion that the locals consider the Peterboro Knights to be excellent hosts.

At the banquet speakers were Rev. Fathers Kelly, McCauley and Daly, of Peterboro; Geo. P. McHugh, Toronto; A. J. Begley, Lindsay; D. E. Fortune, Trenton; and Mr. Collins.

Montreal, April 29.—After firing two shots into the leg and arm of Mrs. Naida Kornejchuk, aged 35, and believing her dead, Alex Scopecz, aged 40 this morning thrust the muzzle of his 22 calibre pistol into his mouth, pulled the trigger and fell to the floor dead. The woman is in a Montreal General Hospital suffering from the two bullet wounds. She will recover. Letters To The Editor

HOW SCOUTS HELP

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Please permit me a small space in your paper to call the attention of the people of Belleville to the good turns done each day by most unbeatable organization, "The Boy Scouts."

Tonight, I, in company with a small lad, was engaged in carrying a large ladder when the Woodpecker Patrol under the leadership of Patrol Leader James Churchill, of the Third Belleville Troop, saw us. Immediately they left their scout games and the boy went up. "We'll give you a lift," which they did.

The people of Belleville should be proud of this organization and should do everything in their power to help make the "Boy Scouts' Movement" a success in Belleville.

Sincerely,
AN OLD SCOUT.

MARKET PRICES ON WALL STREET MUCH STRONGER

On Other Hand Grains Were Easier With Prospects Good

New York, April 29.—Stock prices made a further recovery today but the upward movement showed signs of slowing up during the early afternoon when the calling of loans by banks, in anticipation of heavy month-end demands for funds sent the call money rate up to four percent. Extreme gains of one to nearly six points were scored by a wide range of issues but trading was largely a professions! affair, the so called public demand being confined to high grade investment issues. General Motors crossed 135 to a new high price for the year for a gain of about 2 points, Hudson advanced 3 points and Fisher Body one. Stiffening crude oil and gasoline prices and merger talk brought fresh buying into oil shares but early gains as a rule were small.

RATES OF EXCHANGE

New York, April 29.—Sterling exchange irregular, demand rates in cents, Great Britain 486 1-16. Canadian dollar 5-32 of one percent. premium.

CROPS CALLED FAIR

Chicago, April 29.—Wheat prices underwent an early downturn today, influenced by the weakness of Liverpool quotations and by the opinion current here that the domestic crop situation as a whole remains satisfactory despite various drawbacks. Opening prices ¼ to ⅝ cents lower were followed by a slight further drop and then something of a rally. Corn and oats were easier, sympathizing with wheat.

CHECK TO CHICAGO

Chicago has received a black eye from the U.S. congress. The Chicago politicians, backed as they were by all the states in the Mississippi Valley, have been confident that congress would pass the Rivers and Harbors Bill unamended, thus providing an appropriation for the lakes-to-gulf waterway and declaring in favor or the principle of a permanent diversion of water from Lake Michigan for the purposes of this waterway. But at the last moment a rider was tacked to the bill to the effect that nothing contained in the bill shall change the present status of the diversion of lake water at Chicago. It is understood that the rider was inserted at the instance of President Coolidge who held that courtesy to Canada should prevent congress from taking action in the matter while negotiations with Canada were proceeding in regard to water-diversion.

While this check to Chicago's predatory spirit is satisfactory because it excites feelings of friendliness and fair play on the part of Mr. Coolidge, it should be stated that even if congress had adopted that bill it would not have given Chicago a legal title to the water which it steals from the lakes. Congress has a right to dispose of United States property; it has no right to dispose of Canadian property; and the water of the great lakes is as much Canadian as American property. The adoption of the legislation by congress without amendment would not have settled the question—not by a good deal.

BECOMING A FAD

Is there not a danger that the business of investigating is becoming somewhat of a profession?

That question is prompted after reading an announcement from Washington that it is now desired to have a census of all the storekeepers and jobbers in the United States according to the kinds of goods they sell at wholesale or retail.

It's a fat and limping week that does not see some sort of an investigation started at Washington.

The United States has now built up a staff of 25,000 federal officials and clerks who spend nearly all their time probing something or other—lifting lids only to put them down again in most cases, or busting trusts that go on with their business pretty much the same after the busting has been completed.

It has also been figured out that these investigations, based on the frequency of the 1925 record cost the United States $50,000,000 for a year. That is just about $20,000 for every working hour of the year.

Much of the business, carried on under the guise of investigation must come fairly close to plain, unvarnished snooping.

When it has been demonstrated that $50,000,000 could be spent in that way in 1925, it will not take much urging for congressional investigators that 1926 should provide equally good pickings.

IRON CROSS HERO WITH U. S.

San Francisco Argonaut:

Walter Stocker, once a lieutenant in the Kaiser's flying corps, and a winner of the Iron Cross and other awards for valor, was recently accepted for special dispensation, as a private in the United States Army Air Service. Stocker is now meeting, for the first time on land, the men against whom he pitted his skill and courage during the World War. He was a student at the University of Cologne when the war broke out in 1914. Shortly after he received the Kaiser's commission and remained continuously and actively in the service until hostilities ceased.

CHANGING TIME

San Francisco Argonaut:

In 1900 Do automobile was a dubious luxury. There were less than 8,000 in the United States. There were less than 10 miles of concrete road. There was only one telephone for each 66 people. In 1900 the number of gilt stockings sold in the United States was 12,572 dozen pairs, a pair for one person to each 2,000 of the population; whereas in 1921 the number of pairs was 18,038,841—one for each six of the people—an increase of access to hosiery sufficient in percentages almost invades higher mathematics and destroys the ancient significance of a silk stocking.

WHY PROVINCIAL TREASURERS GROW GRAY

Manitoba Free Press:

On the last day of the Legislature there were demands upon the Provincial Government from various members of the House.

1. For greater assistance from the provincial treasury for secondary education.

2. For a reduction in taxation upon the transfer of land titles.

3. For a lowering in the rates on telephones.

4. For the abolition or reduction of the income tax.

5. For the addition of the municipal levy.

And in the evening one of the lights of the Opposition in a harangue at a political meeting announced the Government's absurd idea that the budget should be balanced.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL

He—And what are those circumstances?

She—Your circumstances.

WHAT IT LOOKED LIKE

Real estate man: How do you like the little stucco bungalow I built for you?

Johnson—It's getting on my nerves! Cars stop every day and ask for gasoline and free air.

JUST AS BAD

She (enthusiastically, after seeing and hearing a new-fangled loud speaker for the first time): Fancy having one of those! It would be like having a jazz band in the room.

He—Yes, just as bad.

NATIVE CALF

Lady—I want a pair of boots for this little boy, please.

Shopkeeper—French kid, Mum?

Lady (indignantly) — Certainly not. He's my son and was born and bred in England.

EARTH SHRINKS ONLY TO SWELL CAUSING QUAKES

Yale Professor Says Expansion and Contraction Occurs at Seismic Activity

Washington, April 29. The earth probably expands and contracts periodically, according to Dr. E. W. Brown, professor of Astronomy at Yale, who spoke today at the annual meeting of the National Academy of Science.

It seems to sink and swell rhythmically in periods of three or four years, in the opinion of the astronomer. According to one calculation, its diameter was 10 inches larger at its maximum bulk. By another way of figuring, its diameter sometimes increases by 12-feet. This would mean that the earth, more or less regularly, reduces its total bulk by somewhere between 10,000 and 1,000,000 cubic miles and then swells up again to its former figure.

The period of shrinking and swelling, according to Dr. Brown, appears to bear some relation to the periods of seismic activity. He showed charts which indicated that the changes in the earth's size seemed to agree roughly with the time of earthquake frequency. The earthquakes may be due, Dr. Brown thought to the failure of the thin, outer crust of the earth to expand and contract in perfect harmony with the inside of the earth.

Dr. Brown's conclusions that the earth probably shrinks and expands were based on investigation of more than thirty years of the motions of the moon, on which he is a leading authority. He and all investigators have been at a loss to account for certain deviations of the moon from its calculated course. Rough by speaking, it is always out-running its schedule or falling behind it.

Professor Brown said that recent study of the orbit of the moon and that of the sun, which also show discrepancies, though very slight once, from its calculated orbit, had suggested that the real source of the trouble existed in some factor in the earth which disturbed the observers.

Every known force that has been suspected of influencing the moon has been studied. The gravitational effects of Jupiter, Venus, sun and planets have been carefully worked out. It has been possible to predict the course of the moon for long periods, with great accuracy. The excess speed, which the moon shows at one time, is counterbalanced by slow pens at another, so that this erratic behavior does not affect the longrange prediction of the moon's motions.

After thirty years of searching for the cause of this apparent acceleration of the moon Professor Brown has concluded that the moon is not responsible for this irregularity at all; that the moon runs strictly true to its calculated course; but that the earth by shrinking and swelling, causes mistakes of observation by the astronomer, who translates his mistakes into errors of the moon.

$27,000 PAID FOR REPLICA.

A price of $27,000 is reported to have been paid for one 74-gun replica, while a Chicago dealer asked $225,000 apiece for a pair of models in his possession.

The ship model originated several centuries ago, when sailors fashioned miniatures of the vessels they sailed with for them in churches or civic halls upon their successful return from a voyage to thank-offerings or memorials.

DECORATE ONE-ROOM HOMES

Although models were not unknown as mantel decorations in earlier centuries, they were not popularized as such until interior decorators began, a decade ago, to put them in large living rooms of wealthy customers.

Since then the fad has become so widespread that many a two-room apartment has its ship model tucked upon a ledge between the in-a-door bed and the disappearing kitchenette.

TORONTO START SET FOR TODAY LANDIS IS THERE

"Wet Grounds" on Wednesday Disappointed Crowd. —Orioles Beaten

The opening of Leaf Stadium postponed from yesterday was set for today to be attended by many notables, including Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, of Chicago, baseball's high commissioner, and will mark a new era in the history of professional baseball in Toronto. Last season, and for many seasons past, the Leafs played at the stadium at Hanlan's Point, which is on the island just across Toronto Bay, reached by ferry. The Leafs finished a close second to Baltimore in the race for the international league pennant last season, and, with perhaps the strongest pitching staff in the league and the incentive of having what is claimed to be the finest ball park in the minor leagues sporting them on, are expected to annex the championship this year. The new stadium accommodates 23,500 persons.

Manager of the team have selected their best pitchers for the inaugural, and Walter Stewart and Steve O'Neil, of Toronto, will oppose Marquis and Lyon, of Reading.

BALTIMORE BEATEN

At Rochester—Rochester defeated Baltimore in the opening of the home season here 7-2. The Tribe knocked Quinn out of the box in the second and continued its attack on Jackson in the following innings.

THESE CRIPPLED GIANTS

At Philadelphia.—The Giants submerged the Phils in a drizzling rain, 3-2. Jack Wisner, of Grand Rapids, took his place among the elite of the regular pitching staff by embarrassing Fletcher's scrappy youths with only five hits. One was a whopper, a home run by Harper in the sixth.

It was as dark as it was on the day of the eclipse, and when the game was over the players were all wet. It was an afternoon for a ball game, being sombre and dismal. It is on such days as this that yeggs sneak into banks after hours and play with the combinations on the safes.

Hal Carlson, who is rated quite a pitcher here, was tickled for ten hits in five innings, when he was invited to retire. Willoughby, who boasts, of a knuckle ball, pitched the last four innings and permitted no liberties on the part of the Giants.

THESE YANKEES!

New York.—The cherished Yankee won their fifth straight game and their tenth victory in thirteen attempts by the simple method of battering Robert Moses Grove, the costly southpaw, beyond recognition in the eighth inning. The Hugmen scored all their runs in their eleventh session and triumphed by 3 to 0 when Squire Samuel Jones al lowed the aliens only three hits.

Grove fanned eleven Yanks in eight innings and ten in six. He was a living contradiction of the new scientific theory that the pitcher does not live who could whitewash the Yanks for seven straight innings. He shot down the Yanks as fast as they came to the plate, but in the eighth he shot down the chute on a one-way journey.

ALEMITE-POINT ANNE GAME ON TONIGHT

All roads lead to the Armouries tonight where the Alemites will attempt to grease the slides and put the skids under the clever Point Anne team in the senior ball league. Tonight's game will settle the supremacy of the two teams and decide the championship for this year.

Both teams have yet to be beaten, the Point Anne team with six wins and the Alemite with five. It is rumored that Alemite will bring out one or two dark horses in this game.

The Alemite are practically all young players with the exception of Monty Smith and Jimmy Stevenson who are veterans in local baseball circles.

The Point Anne crowd are relying on "Sonny" Green to hold the hitherto in check. Soup Goyer will be on the receiving end. Young Johnny Kerr is expected to be sent in to bat for Jack Allen's good team. Around him has been built up a good team who will take some beating. "Peg" Woodley will officiate at the plate and Walter Gerow and Ken Colling on bases.

Teams will probably line up as follows:

Alemite	Point Anne
Flagler, c.f.	J. Marzolin, c.f.
Knott, c.	G. Gaulin, s.s.
Kerr, p.	M. Green 3b.
McKenna, 1b.	N. Goyer, c.
Palmer 3b.	S. Green, p.
Bolnap, 2b.	J. Bonthron, 2b.
Cornell, r.f.	F. Bennet, r.f.
Richy, s.s.	W. Strachan, 1b.

The Kingston team of the O.B.J. will pastime in the George Richardson Memorial Stadium this summer. Arrangements have been completed by the officials of the club and members of the Athletic Board at Queens. Accommodations for fans will be of the finest order and the Kingston club are indeed lucky in securing the stadium.

Many out of town fans were disappointed when the Leafs could not open the season yesterday, owing to the poor condition of the playing field.

A new big six hockey group is in the making with Galt, Preston, Guelph Kitchener, Peterboro and one Toronto team the cornerstone of the loop. It is planned that the new group consist of teams playing on artificial ice. Those interested in the scheme will meet the O.H.A. officials in Toronto next week.

The big game of the Soft Ball League will take place in the armouries tonight If the Point Anne team thru the Alemiteenies will be champions for this year while on the other hand if the Lubricators come through with a win they have but to beat the Juniors and the silverware will rest in their pant for another year. Neither team have lost a game to date and it promises to be a great battle with odds slightly in favor of the older and more experience Point Anne team. "Soup" Goyer pronounced in the best of health and a good many years handles the managerial reins of the Point Anne team. Both are confident of victory and report all their players in the pink of condition. Wood ly will go behind the bat and who will handle the bases has not yet been fully decided. This is a real treat and followers of the soft ball game should be on deck. A larger crowd than that which witnessed the Toronto-Junior game is expected. Silver collection will be taken at the door to defray expenses. A nickel or a dime covers the cost of a real evening's entertainment.

Toronto are looking forward to the time when the Queen City will have a representative in the Big Leagues. The game has many staunch admirers there in the past fifteen years. With a real up-to-date park and a corking good team this looks like a banner season for the game.

Anoslo the peppery little short stop of the Peterboro Century Tweeters was among the athletes who was granted certificates by the O.B.A.A. It will be remembered that he covered short field for the Pries some years ago and was considered one of the best in the circuit. He hails from the State of Massechusette.

Kingston will be under way on Saturday when Manager Daly will give his prospects the once over.

Winchester
CIGARETTES

The inclement weather has considerably interfered with the opening practices of the Trunks. Manager Walter Gerow considers Belleville's chances the brightest in some years. Three boys are out for pitching berths, namely: Oulette, Chumney Gerow, and Gilbert Goyer. With such material as this no worry need be cast in that direction. A host of candidates have signified their intentions of trying for infield positions, Harry Mills Weir, Blakely, Meagher and Gibeon. If Johnny Williams can be signed he will fill a gaping hole at third. The candidates for outfield are expected to be numerous with Ross, Hagerman, Latchford, Palmer and some of the members of last years junior team. "Big" Feeney and Hagerman will handle the catching end.

RECREATION ALLEYS

Some very fine bowling has been witnessed at the Recreation Alleys during the past few days in the rubber deshbus prize competition that has been going on for the past ten days and which closes on Saturday night. Interest has never been so keen for any prizes that the Recreation Alleys have offered as the following scores will show. In the first place when Miss M. Lynch and D. Doran hung up a score on Monday night of 1250 it seemed as if they had practically won the prize, but when Miss E. Whalen and G. Anderson rolled 1252 last night every one thought that a score of that kind would never be raised, but alas, there is nothing certain in the bowling game for along came Miss V. Bland and F. Domenico shortly before closing time last night and rolled a combined total score of 1315. The following are the scores for first and second prize:

Miss V. Bland	157	193	211—561
F. Domenico	333	217	204—754
Total			1315
Miss E. Whalen	215	164	168—547
G. Anderson	238	250	268—756
Total			1303

The following are the bowling results at the Recreation Alleys of Monday night. In the ladies' senior league the Rinky Dinks were the first team to defeat the Orchids one point, the Orchids winning three and losing one, Miss Whalen and Miss Harris bowling the highest bowlers.

In the men's junior league the Wanderers won three points and the Pointers one. Cardwell and Mitchell were the two highest bowlers.

Ladies' Senior League:

Rinky Dinks 1963; Orchids 2257.

Men's Junior League:

Ponies 2279; Wanderers 2293.

In last night's league games at the Recreation Alleys, the Alemite and the Alerts each won two games in the ladies' junior league, the Alemite rolling up enough pins in the first game to give them a point for the total. Miss Holway and Miss Dynan rolled the highest scores for their teams.

In the men's junior league the Hardware and the High School also broke even, each team counting two points. The Hardware got off to a flying start with a 939 score but lost out on the next two games, but the Hardware also counted on the total for their second point. High bowlers were S. Tobe and M. Hall.

Ladies' Junior League:

Alemite 1950; Alerts 1874.

Junior League:

Hardware 2312; High School 2268.

NEWS OF MOVIES

THE DUMBELLS

The Dumbells are billed to play their annual Springtime Engagement at the Griffin Theatre, Thursday, May 6th. Though many patrons consider, old "Lucky 7" their greatest effort and predicted that it was the summit of The Dumbells' endeavour, the same company comes back here with another show, entirely new, and with a programme which more than adheres to its title, "Three Bags Full." It is pressed down and running over. It has no much good stuff in it that it runs all over the place. One turn succeeds another in bewildering and delightful confusion.

Captain Plunkett may not have been in the theatrical business all his life, but he certainly knows what the public wants. There is no shuffling around between acts with him. There is a flash of lights, a dropping of the curtain—swish, more lights and on comes another act.

AT THE BELLE

There has been much discussion as to whether or not a man or woman who has carved a successful career on the stage, or who is planning a career in the profession should forsake it to marry anyone who is not of the theatre. To those who are interested in this problem, for and against, on which there is much to be said, "Pal of Mine," featuring Irene Rich which comes to the Belle Theatre next week will have special weight. For in this photodrama Miss Rich portrays a young woman who forsakes a stage's career to marry a man who has never been of the theatre, and cannot under, stand its ways nor the ways of its people.,

There seems to be an idea lodged in the minds of many people that people of the stage are "bad." When her husband suffers financial loss in which she goes on the stage and he is given ample opportunity to view the theatrical world at close range.

AT GRIFFIN'S

"Tyrone" is a sufficient answer to the faint hearts of the British film industry. The nation that can produce a film like this, which can organize spectacles like the battle of Ypres, too, does not need the assistance of "quotas," "contingents," "tariffs," and other legislative action, in order to win a place in the world's film markets.

This picture which is now playing throughout Canada and will be shown at the Griffin theatre starting tonight is designed to show how the Immortal Battalion was held by Empire soldiers during the Great War. The story of Ypres, because of the number of years

GOING BEYOND LIMIT

Section 24 of part 5 of the Highway Traffic Act states that no motor vehicle shall be driven upon any highway within a city, town or village, at a greater speed than 20 miles per hour. Two parties were today summoned to appear for exceeding the above speed limit, and they pleaded guilty to the offence. A fine of $5 without costs was imposed which was paid. They were also admonished not again to break the law in regard to speeding.

during which the salient was occupied and because of the countless deeds of heroism performed during its occupation, is transparently a record which no one picture could, hope to tell in detail. Therefore the producers have approached their task, in conjunction with the War Office, decided that the best method of treatment would be to follow the outstanding episodes on the lines of which the occupation of the salient from time to time critically depended.

The episodes chosen, according to this plan, are the opening of the first Battle of Ypres, with the loss and recapture of Gheluvelt, the defence of Hill 60, the second Battle, in which the Germans introduced poison gas to the Western Front, and in which the Canadian troops achieved immortality; the launching of the trench raids, which were of vital importance in stopping German morale; the terrific assault of Messines Ridge, with the exploding of nineteen mines which had been eighteen months in construction; and, finally, the attack on Passchendaele.

WERE WED HERE FIFTY YEARS AGO MARK THE EVENT

Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. I. Barlow of Havelock

Havelock, April 29.—A half century ago, in Belleville, the marriage was solemnized of Miss Janet Gray Muir and Isaac Barlow, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Mr. McLean, of St. Andrew's church.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Barlow celebrated the golden anniversary of their happy event surrounded by their children and grandchildren, who presented them with a purse of gold. All of the family were present with the exception of one grandson and his wife. The Rev. and Mrs. M. G. Williams, of Hornings Mills, who were unable to attend on account of pastoral duties. The family children and grand children gathered in the dining room, which was presided over by a local caterer, Mr. D. O. Patterson, after which a reception was held at the family residence, Alexander street.

There were many tangible signs of the high esteem in which the bride and groom were held by their numerous friends, congratulatory telegrams, beautiful gifts appropriate to the golden anniversary, flowers, while about seventy guests were present to convey their good wishes.

Among the guests was the best man of fifty years ago, John Muir, brother of the bride who, along with Mrs. Edward Williams and Mrs. (Rev.) T. H. Stanley, assisted Mr. and Mrs. Barlow in receiving the guests.

The room were prettily decorated for the occasion. Mrs. David McAvoy and Mr. William Vance poured tea. Mrs. E. Muldoon and Mrs. H. Bush assisted in the dining room. The table was very attractive with daffodils, gold candlesticks and a large golden wedding cake in the centre.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the presentation of a gold coin and address to Mrs. Barlow by the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church Mrs. Barlow is honorary president of the society.

The address was as follows:

"Dear Mrs. Barlow,—We the members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church feel we cannot let the occasion pass without offering our congratulations to you and Mr. Barlow, and wishing you just as happy years to each other. The enclosed gift is small, but given as a token of the many happy times we have all spent together in our W.A.

"Signed on behalf of the Order,

Mrs. Bush, Pres. Mrs. Wm. Vance."

In order that in the days to come the happy occasion might be vividly recalled each guest was asked to write a verse in a book and several pictures were taken during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Barlow have six children living. Two daughters, Mrs. S. Cross, of Toronto, and Mrs. E. Williams, of Detroit; four sons, Ward, of North Bay, Reginald, John and William, of Toronto.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs.

PHONE SERVICE OVER ATLANTIC SOON REALIZED

Announcement of Opening on Commercial Basis Is Expected

EXPERIMENTS GO ON

Linking Up of Private Hous es on Both Sides Ocean is Aim

London, April, 29—Announcement of the opening of commercial wireless telephone service across the Atlantic may be expected in the not distant future. As a result of comprehensive experimental work between the Radio Corporation station on Long Island and the Rugby station in England, officials of the British General Post Office now are considering the date at which service may be ready.

This development marks a big step in the use of wireless. There have been for some time isolated instances of telephoning across the Atlantic from one wireless station to another, and American and European broadcasting has been heard well on the other side for many months. But what now is under way is a connection from one private telephone instrument to another private telephone instrument in the other hemisphere.

Plans now being worked out would put every telephone subscriber in New York in communication with every telephone subscriber in London. Tied up with the telephone system in New York would be wireless sending and receiving stations adjusted to work together and a subscriber could be plugged through on a trans-Atlantic wireless current as he call came through. What is intended is to give the international public a come and-go ordinary telephone conversation.

Yesterday afternoon, for example, the telephone bell rang in the apartment of an American on the second floor of the Savoy Hotel. Answering it, he was told that New York was calling him by wireless and he would be notified when the connection was ready.

Twenty minutes later he was talking with his son, who was sitting in his drawing room in his New York home. His wife then took the instrument and for an hour chatted at perfect ease with her American home. It is this service which it is sought to make available for the public.

Experiments have been carried on with a short wave length which have been handled to a manner which promises to eliminate much of summer time radio interferences.

But the "short wave" plans now being studied are said to go further than connecting London and New York telephone systems. It is held that eventually one may telephone from Chicago or any other American city across the Atlantic by hooking up long distance American communication with a wireless telephone station, and it is expected that what interference here would be will come largely from defects in land wire communication. Conversely, it may be possible to telephone from continental cities by long distance to a wireless telephone station on the seaboard and thence across to America.

Experts now who are handling the details do not go so far in any statement for the public, but it is known that is what they are working on. In fact, it had been decided to delay formal announcement of the newly-planned service until after experiments had gone much further. It is not known just when this announcement by the Radio Corporation and the British Post Office will come, but it is expected to be several months before the service will be ready for the public.

CHANGES DRESS' HUE ON BACK

Seattle, Wash., April—29 (A.P.)—A multi-colored electrical impess, invented by Justus C. Zobli, an engineer at the Puget Sound Navy Yard, at Bremerton to print any color on any surface, is to be shown at the National Inventors' Exposition at Portland, Ore., June 17 to 19.

A woman wearing a white dress may step in to a department store and, without removing the dress, have it changed to red for the afternoon and go back and have it made blue for the evening, the inventor promises.

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Well, she would sink it forever. And of him she, for her part, would ask no thing. He had said that there was a secret connected with his past, a secret which might bear bitter fruit in the future. He had bidden her trust him and be brave. Yes, she would trust him fully and entirely, and if the trouble of which he spoke so vaguely should come—well, she would bear it and try and help him to bear it. At any rate, her love should comfort and console him, let what would befall.

Love! Her heart was overflowing with it. No woman that ever lived had loved as she loved him. Day and night as long as she lived she would surround him with her love, rendering his future so happy that he should be forced to forget the past of which he had spoken. He had said that a cloud hovered over him menacing danger and sorrow; her love like a sun should pierce and dispel the cloud and vanquish the sorrow.

"Oh, my love, my love," she murmured, holding out her arms as if he stood before her, "all my life shall be spent in trying to make you happy."

She had promised to go down to dinner, but she had not yet begun to dress, though the fire had died out, and the maid knocking at the door awakened her to a sense of the hour.

From the dressing room she had the girl holding out a lovely bouquet of white blossoms. "And will you please put them in a vase in your room, miss," and she looked and spoke, or Constance fancied she did, with more than her usual respect.

"Oh, thank you, Mary," she said, bidding her face in the flowers. "Yes, I will come down directly. How beautiful they are!"

"Yes, miss, all white this evening."

"Then the flowers that you have put in my room every day were from the marquis?" said Constance.

The girl nodded and smiled.

"His lordship sends them himself every day and gave them to me. I thought you knew it, though he said I was to put them in your room without saying anything. You must let me finish your hair, miss, please," she added, with respectful eagerness. And she finished dressing her, showing even more than her customary alacrity and willingness.

Constance went down a few minutes before the dinner bell rang, and saw the marquis standing in the hall.

He looked up as she came, his handsome face eloquent of love. It seemed to her to have grown younger since the morning.

"What a time you have been!" he said, as she stood on the stair above him. "I can dress in fourteen minutes!" and he drew her arm within his.

He would have kissed her, and his eyes spoke his longing plainly enough, but the butler and the footmen were about the hall.

"So could I, if I cut my hair off," she said.

"Ah, don't do that!" he said, as they entered the drawing-room. "I wanted to see you alone for a few minutes, and mother is discreetly keeping up stairs till the last moment. Do you know what I want?"

"Your dinner?" said Constance.

She was so full of happiness that she, too, had grown younger, and was able to hide the love that dwelled in her under a girlish playfulness that gave her a new charm in his eyes.

"So I do," he replied. "But I want something else; I want to seal our compact."

She looked round apprehensively. The butler or one of the other servants might come in, probably would at any moment.

He laughed and drew something from his waistcoat jocket.

"Hold out your hand."

She did so, wonderingly.

"Let me see, which is the finger?" and he held up a beautiful diamond and ruby ring. "Which is the engaged finger?" he asked.

"I don't know. You see, I was never engaged before," she replied, blushing and laughing.

"I thank God for your ignorance, dear est," he remarked, devoutly, under his breath. "The left hand, then. Now our compact is almost sealed."

"What a pretty ring!" she exclaimed, holding her hand up to the light. "Why where did you get it so——" and she turned her face away.

"So quick!" he finished for her with a smile. "Do you think I carried it about with me on the chance of winning you? You not conceited enough for that. My mother gave it to me just now."

Constance kissed the ring quickly.

"That's for my mother, no doubt," he said; "but what is for me?"

"I thought it was a gift," she said, softly, her lashes and coloring.

"Exactly, but even a gift deserves an acknowledgement, young lady."

She dropped him a curtsey.

"Thank you—Wolfe." With a little sigh of delight in her humor he caught her and kissed her, and Constance shyly awaited the conquest, and had scarcely got free from his arms as the mannikin-pin entered. "Oh, my ring!" said Constance, going to her and holding out her hand, on which the jewels blazed and sparkled. "How kind of you!"

"Do you like it, dear?" said the old lady. "It is old-fashioned, but you won't mind that. You, my son, could not wait, and so I gave him mine. It was the one his father placed on my finger the day we were engaged, my dear," she added, simply.

"Dinner is served, my lady," announced the butler.

"Give me your arms, both of you!" said the marquis and he took them in.

It was the happiest little dinner that three persons ever sat down to.

Good news as well as bad travels fast, and it is probable that the great event had become known to the servants. Per haps Ared had told the nurse that "Uncle Wolfe is going to marry Miss Grahame.' In any case, the butler and his assistlites seemed to pay special attention to Constance that evening, and Mr. Belford hovered about her, looking like a benevolent bishop, and treated her as if she had just been rescued from starvation.

"Champagne, miss," he kept murmuring assiduously in he rear, and Constance felt her continual 'No thank you," ot most ungrateful.

Never had the marquis been in such good humor and spirits, and as he talked in a voice full of quiet and complete joy, the marchioness leaned back and looked at him and at Constance with a face that reflected her beloved son's hap piness.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION FOR MRS. PENN

She Escaped It by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Windsor, Ont.—"After the birth of my first baby I was very much run down in health and the doctor said I must have an operation as I was suffering from a displacement. A friend wanted me to try your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and I took it steadily for a year. During this time I was carrying my second baby and I felt real well all the time and did not have a hard confinement. I feel sure the Vegetable Compound did me a lot of good, and all my people do, too. Our sister in Leamington, Ontario, takes it, and both sisters praise it as a good medicine. I am more than pleased with the result." — Mrs. W. Penn, Windsor, Ontario.

Mrs. Corbin Relieved from Pain

Stewiacke, N. S.—"I had pains across my back and in my side for two years after my first baby was born. My mother had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I read about it in the papers, so I tried it and the pains all left me. I have a family of three children now, and the medicine helped me during the months before they were born. I recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. CARY W. CORBIN, Main Street, Stewiacke, Nova Scotia.

Through efforts of the Commission, 3,500 slaves were released and 34 villages consented to abandon sacrifices. Persuasion appears to have been difficult but payment of £15,000 by the Commission as compensation brought about a conclusion of the deal.

FRANC CONTINUES TUMBLE DEBT SETTLEMENT A PROBLEM

Paris, April 30.—The franc—refusing to re-act favorably to conclusion of Franco-American debt settlement, continued its steady decline through out the day and closed at 30.49 to the dollar, a new low record. Financial quarters said this was partly accounted for by the lack of precise information here regarding the terms of the debt settlement and also by doubt in the minds of some as to where the country was going to obtain money to pay debt instalments to Great Britain and the United States.

BELLEVILLE BRIDGES BOTH ARE MADE SAFE

The Belleville City Council are to be congratulated to say the least, on their foresight in having the upper and lower bridges at last made safe for children. During the past week the Public Works Department have been busy putting what is thought to be both sides of these bridges with the result that what this work is completed within the next few days these buildings will take on a vastly improved appearance as well as being absolutely safe for the smallest child to cross in perfect safety—which was not the case previously.

The netting reaches to the top hand rail on both sides of the bridge and has every appearance of being strong and durable.

It is understood that the report does not satisfy the Civil Service generally as it does not recommend any increases.

Ottawa, April 30.—Tariff protection against American magazine advertising was again urged in the House of Commons by Hon. Horatio Hocken of Toronto. This question has frequently been before Parliament in the past but no alteration has been taken in connection with it. Mr. Hocke appealed to the Minister of Finance to place a tariff duty of from ten to fifteen cents per pound on United States magazine advertising. "Or at least to go as far as to establish the principle of discrimination," he declared. In connection with his proposal Mr. Hocken contended that the flooding of Canada with American magazines was an undesirable character was having the triple effect of injuring Canadian business, breaking down the national spirit of young Canadians, and insidiously attacking the moral fibre of the people of this country.

Stressing the extent to which American magazines and the advertising they carry were influencing Canada, Mr. Hocke estimated that as much as twenty-five million pounds of American advertising matter entered this country annually between the covers of such publications. The effect on business was tremendous, the member argued, as American goods were kept constantly before the attention of Canadians while Canadian products had no such mediums of advertising. It was impossible for Canadian publishers to compete with these United States magazines without protection, and one by one Canadian publications had been driven out of business.

One Robin Sat Upon The Hand Of Town Clock

Apparently realizing that it takes time to build a home, a robin yesterday at 3.30 sat contemplatively on one of the hands of the town clock on the face turning toward the north. After sizing up the situation she apparently thought things were moving too slow on the location she chose, chirped decisively and moved off. The hands of the clock went steadily on never pausing an instant at the hour which had been selected for them. The little drama was viewed with some amusement by several persons who consulted the worthy time piece at the time.

BRITISH FILMS FOR QUEBEC IF CENSORSHIP TO STAND

Quebec, April 30—For from yielding to the threat of the American film firms to buy Quebec from their circuits unless the boards of censors altered its attitude regarding certain pictures, Premier Taschereau got munition from the latest "talk" which reached here this previous decoration that British films would be available in the event of the boycott becoming really effective.

The following cable received from Dr. J. L. Lenileuf, agent-general of the province in London this afternoon was handed out by the Premier, who thought it spoke for itself:

"(London) April 30, 1926.

"Taschereau,

"Prime Minister, Quebec.

"In view of the proposed boycott of distribution of American films in Quebec province, the Stoll Picture Producers of London are ready to furnish to remain of Quebec large quantities of very good modern moving picture films

"(Signed) Lenileux."

"If Dr. Lenileuf who had been for years connected with our board of censors, sends this cable," stated Premier Taschereau, "it means that we can rely that we will get British films if we wish it. I understand that the firm mentioned is a very large one, and that its productions are of the best."

"I think it is time that we meet threats of the kind by saying that we can get equally good products from the Mother Country. I am sure that the appearance of British films on the screens of our Quebec theatres would be well received. I may also add that France will also be interested in supplying us with films if we ever need them."

At present there are two former slaves in Soldiers' and Sailors Home near Sandusky, Ohio.

C.N.R. EXCLUDES CRITIC

Refuses to Allow Newspaper to be Sold on Railway Premises

Moncton, N.B., April 30—Refusal of the C.N.R. to allow copies of the Moncton Times-Star to be sold on its station premises or trains resulted in a hearing before the Dominion Railway Board a few days ago, and an order is expected was promised by Chief Commissioner McKeown.

Counsel for the Times-Star claimed that the exclusion order was issued because of editorial criticism of C.N.R. Maritime policy. He pointed out that the Moncton Transcript, which praised C. N. R. policy, was sold without interference on all parts of the railway property in Moncton. He alleged discrimination, and asked for an order allowing sale of the Times-Star on the grounds that a newspaper was a customary and usual facility for railway passengers.

C.N.R. counsel contended that the railway had a right to regulate its own property as it saw fit, denied the motives ascribed, and questioned the Railway Board's jurisdiction in the matter.

DEBT PAYMENT PLAN SIGNED BY FRANCE AND U.S.

$6,847,6474,104 to be Distributed Over 62 Years —No Safeguard

Washington, April 30.—A tentative proposal for the funding of the French war time debt of about $4,000,000,000 to the United States, under which France undertakes to pay a total of $7,847,647,104 over a period of sixty-two years, was signed by the American Debt Commission and Ambassador Berenger, after President Coolidge had given his approval. The terms already had been endorsed by cable by Premier Briand. To become finally binding, the compact must be ratified by the French and American legislative bodies.

While the terms for the first ten years call for payments less by $35,000,000 than those offered by former Finance Minister Caillaux last October, the total to be paid in sixty-two years is $627,000,000 larger, and there is no safeguard clause, which would make the payments by France dependent upon receipt of German reparations. For this reason it is felt that ratification by the American Congress is assured. By the same token, the leniency of the terms in the early years is expected to result in favorable action by the French Senate and Chamber, despite the absence of the safeguard clause.

Under the agreement, payments are $30,000,000 for the first and second years, $32,500,000 for the third and fourth years, and $35,000,000 for the fifth year. Then the sum increase quite sharply to amaximum of $125,000,000 in the seventeenth year, continue at that level until the sixty-first year, and there is a final payment of $117,-674,104.

MODESTY PREVENTS DUEL

Hungarian Maiden Had Challenged Young Man

Budapest, Hungary, April 30—A maiden's modesty has been the cause for the calling off of a duel with swords between the girl and a man whom she had challenged to mortal combat because he passed what was deemed unjust criticism upon girl fencers in a fencing school.

The girl, 18 years old, and a member of a socially prominent Hungarian family, sent her seconds to the young man. He scorned the challenge. Stripped to the waist, in accordance with the Hungarian dueling code, the man's seconds insisted that she also should comply with the rules. The girl refused on the grounds of propriety and end the man's seconds then declared the duel could not be fought.

On hearing their decision she burst into tears and left the grounds. There was no reconciliation.

TWO MEMBERS OF C. S. BOARD ASKED TO QUIT

Premier Thinks Public Opinion Would Expect That Course

Ottawa, April 30.—Premier King has suggested to Messrs. Jameson and Larochelle, of the Civil Service Commission, the advisability of their asking to be relieved of the duties of their office pending the report of the customs investigating committee to the House.

They have resigned.

Premier King announces his attitude in the matter in the following statement issued in reply to a question by the Canadian Press as to whether the Government had taken any action with respect to the continuance in office of Messrs. Jameson and Larochelle.

"Sub-section 3 of section 3 of the Civil Service Act, 1918, reads in part as follows:

"Each commissioner shall hold office during good behavior, but shall be removable by the Governor-General on address of the Senate and House of Commons."

"From this section it will be apparent that members of the Civil Service Commission have been placed by act of Parliament beyond the control of the Government. As the law stands, assuming it to be desired, except by a resolution of both Houses of Parliament, neither the suspension nor the resignation of any member of the Civil Service Commission can be effected.

"When I learned of the disclosures made before a committee of the House in which two of the civil service commissioners were involved, I thought it my duty to have an interview immediately with the commissioners concerned, and, notwithstanding the provisions of the law, to suggest to them the advisability of their asking to be relieved of the duties of their office pending the report of the committee to Parliament. That interview I had on Tuesday afternoon. I explained to the commissioners that I had no right or power to attempt to control their action in any particular, but that it seemed to be that public opinion would expect the course I was suggesting to be adopted, and that in the circumstances I should so express myself. The commissioners thanked me for the suggestion I have made and replied that it would be given careful consideration."

SUZANNE DENIES TRIP TO AMERICA

Says U. S. Sport Writers Seem to Take Pleasure in Writing Nonsense

Rome, April 30.—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French lawn tennis star, decided she had any intention of going to the United States to play in motion pictures, play exhibition matches and engage in newspaper writing.

The report of her trip scheduled for October, she characterized as "merely another one of the canards launched by the so-called sporting writers in the United States, who seem to take pleasure in inventing all kinds of unpleasant and untrue things about me, cooking up matrimonial prospects and similar nonsense every week.

"Why they do it is a mystery to me," she said.

She said she had not a good "camera face," and would not film well anyway.

The French champion said she intended playing in the British and French championships.

Warehouse and offices of Moots Feed Co., Huntington, W. Va., were burned with loss of $100,000.

Recital At St. Andrew's Was Greatly Enjoyed

The recital in St. Andrew's Church last evening proved to be a very fine event, with the proceeds totalling a considerable amount being swep forward by the W.M.S. to aid the South Porcupine Hospital. Prof. Wheatley's organ numbers, selections by the Radio Four, and by individual members of the quartette, violin numbers by Miss Scott and vocal solo by Miss Price of Brighton, and Mrs. Bell and Mrs. W. Roberts were all very enjoyable and roundly applauded. Dr. Hafner and Mr. Stillman were heard to the pleasure of all. The programme indeed was of exceptional merit throughout.

Canadian Dollars Stay Well Above Par — The Markets

New York, April 30.—Speculators for an advance continued in control of today's stock market despite encouraging bullish enthusiasm. Trading was on a slightly smaller scale than yesterday. Banks called about $30,000,000 additional in loans today to meet heavy month's end demands, resulting in stiffer rates for call money. Oils gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength, although strong spots also developed in motor, food, public utility and rail groups.

CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, April 30.—Reports of rain in the Canadian Northwest, together with a forecast of unsettled cooler weather and possible showers south of the Canadian boundary led to lower prices for wheat today.

MAKE SUMMER COOKING A PLEASURE WITH

Oil and Gasoline Cook Stoves

QUICK, CLEAN, COOL, ECONOMICAL — THE IDEAL TYPES.

The NESCO PERFECT
Oil Stove For Every Purpose

Simplicity is one of the greatest characteristics of Nesco Perfect Oil Cook Stoves. This is because there are no rachets and gears to stick. Turning up and down is done by simply turning the pointer handle from one side to another. This lowers and raises the burner by what is called a toggle joint in which there is simply a pivotal point from which the arm lowers or raises, carrying the burner with it. There are no other movable parts—and these are in plain sight.

The wick is then simply pulled out, cleaned and as easily put back again.

Lighting is accomplished by raising the blue chimney drum by lifting up on the lifter rod to the left of the pointer handle, touch the match, lower the chimney, turn it left and right to seat it, turn pointer handle to burn, and the flame will soon come to cooking height.

Filling of the tank is as easily done. Take the glass tank out and set on table or floor, remove cap, fill, replace cap, and set the tank again in its place. The oil automatically flows as needed.

LET THE GRASS GROW

This is the time of year when it becomes the duty of newspapers to drag out the annual platitudes about walking the sidewalks to let the grass grow on the edges of lawns. Mailmen, milkmen, paper boys, delivery people of all sorts, usually manage in spring—thoughtlessly it is true and never maliciously—to spoil a good deal of grass. When the millenium shall have arrived and not before, perhaps, will these hurrying people not walk on the edges of lawns as well as narrow them by wearing paths where no paths were intended, but not before. One could point with alarm to a dozen streets in Belleville where the beauty of the lawns has been marred by this sad practice. It is a pity that all this pointing—with alarm—does not seem to do any good.

HIGHWAYS PEOPLE DO WELL

The Highways department is earning praise on all hands for the courageous way it is handling the unusually bad conditions of the roads for which it cannot be held to blame. The Ontario Government is in fact right on the job and has teams and men at work on the bad spots, teams even being kept there to assist motorists to get past some bog holes. The unusual season and late coming out of the frost has upset all calculations. There is to be a good deal of paving this summer on the road between here and Toronto so it is said and motorists will have to exercise patience for another year. Then they are to have a perfect roadbed over long distances. In the meantime the department is doing all that can be expected of men to do.

BRITISH COLONIZING PLANS

Germany and Italy are calling for territory in which to expand. But neither of them have been successful as colonising governments. The Watertown, N.Y., Times advises them to pattern after Britain if they can. It knows how to care for its surplus population. The Times urges the British system in this way:

"The Englishman is bred right to become a colonist. He does not become homesick readily, especially as he can look up and see the British flag. He is trained from infancy to boyhood to be away from home. As a boy of 16 he spends as many weeks away at school and so many at home. This continues through his boyhood. The English know not the home which we know with all the children there and looked after as American parents look after their children. There is a consistent policy of hardening to separation of parent and child, and when young manhood is reached it is the particular hardship to be separated by the Seven Seas from the home surroundings. The British colonial system is well planned economically and socially. Therefore, it succeeds.

"Lagged profits by the colonial system by reason of the fact that trade and commerce of the colonies give the homeland the preference. The entire system is arranged in accordance with a plan by which both the parent just as a grown-up family of children put infrequently contributes to the maintenance of the old home. Germany and Italy aspire to some such system. Germany always been too heartless to her colonists. She has tried to establish them according to an automatic system and she has failed. Now Briffolt do well to study the British Colonial system and establish her colonies in a similar manner. But first of all both Germany and Italy must find a way of obtaining suitable districts to colonize and both must understand that there can be no exploitation sites obtained through conquest."

DOWN IN BAWSTON

In order to check hold-ups and automobile thefts Boston has equipped its police force with a special type of riot gun. That it is theoretically effective is shown by the first record of its use, which resulted in a patrolman shooting off several of his own toes while hastening to examine a suspect. In Boston, as elsewhere, what the police force needs is not so much new guns as men who know how to handle those they have.

30 YEARS AGO

The Boys Brigade Amateur Minstrels presented a very fine show at Carman's Opera House last evening, Mr. E. Vanderwater acting as interlocutor. End men were: A. Rodbourne, B. Hambly, T. Roberts, G. Gillum, E. Carre and S. Hambly. Songs were given by A. Putman, W. Sunnington, R. Hudson, R. Simpson, C. Simmons and A. Twining. Master Willie Cunnington gave a splendid song.

According to vital statistics in the town during April there were 6 births, 6 marriages and 8 deaths.

Mr. Corby has received word of the safe arrival in England of Mrs. Fred Lingham and Miss Lingham.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Mrs. McCarthy arrived in Belleville on Saturday to make the city their permanent home.

LIBELS AND HEADLINES

Although the fact that libels may lurk in headlines is ever kept as a guiding principle in the minds of news paper men whose duty it is to edit the news and give it its titles, an unintentional lapse may sometimes allow the pen to slip into error and thus run the risk of a court action in damages. But it is doubtful if journalistic annals reveal an action of this kind more singular than one that has just been successfully fought in the Court of Appeal in London, after a condemnation in damages at the hands of judge and jury in a lower tribunal. Libel was alleged to be contained, not in the report of spoken court case, but in the heading which the Manchester edition of the Daily Sketch printed above it as follows: "Student's Story of Legacy." The plaintiff had been acquitted of a charge of having stolen from a fellow-student two scientific books, after telling the magistrate that he had inherited a legacy and for that reason, as well as moral reasons, he would have no thought of stealing. It was in these circumstances that the above cited headline was chosen to describe the case. The student thereupon sued the proprietors of the Daily Sketch and the Daily Despatch for libel, alleging that the headline would convey to the readers that he was telling a cock-and-bull story to the magistrate about having recently inherited a legacy, and that in making the statement he was guilty of wilful perjury. The trial judge held that the words of the headline were reasonably capable of defamatory meaning, and the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for £10 damages.

The newspaper proprietors entered an appeal and the appeal has been maintained on the ground that the defamatory sought to be attributed to the language alleged to be libellous was not a reasonable, natural or necessary interpretation of its terms. Lord Justice Atkin, in accordance with the finind of Lord Justice Scrutton, said that to treat the word 'story' as one of substantively meaning would seriously restrict the vocabulary of journalists and deprive them of one of their best words. He agreed that the word merely connoted an interesting event worth narrating. The judgment has an added significance to newspaper men in that the Appellate Court maintains that while of course every case of this kind must depend upon the particular language used, it is not sufficient to "suspect" that there might be a defamatory meaning in the word or words complayed of.

FOUR PERISH IN CHICAGO FIRE

Chicago, Ill., April 30.—Four negroes lost their lives and several others were injured in a panic which followed discovery of fire in an eight story apartment early today. A three old child and man were burned to death and two women were killed when they jumped from the seventh story.

Princes of Church To Attend Congress

PAPAL SECRETARY AND TEN CARDINALS WILL PARTICIPATE IN GREAT GATHERING

For the first time in history the International Eucharistic Congress will be held in the United States. In 1910 the Congress was held in Montreal but with this one exception all former congresses have been held in the capitals of Europe. Chicago will be the scene of this vast cosmopolitan assemblage June 20 to 24 and the proximity of Toronto, and through Toronto practically the whole of Ontario, to this city will enable many thousands of Canadians to participate in the inspiring ceremonies and witness what will be the greatest religious demonstration in the history of the continent.

Organization of the prospective visitors in the Congress from the district of Ontario is in the hands of the officers of the Holy Name Society. Joseph Smith, secretary of the Archdiocesan Holy Name Union has already circularized the societies of the diocese inviting them to attend the Congress and arranged with the Canadian Pacific Railway for special train accommodation. Special trains originating in Toronto will leave on the night of June 19, arriving in Chicago in time for the opening. Through the same agency arrangements have also been made for suitable accomodation for the Ontario visitors in Chicago, and Mr. Smith anticipates that being assured of ample train and hotel accommodation, the Ontario party will number many hundreds.

Featuring the opening of Congress will be the reception of Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of State for the Vatican, who will attend, with ten cardinals and a retinue of the most important ecclesiastics of the Church, as the official Delegate of His Holiness Pope Pius XI. Cardinal Gasparri will carry the message of His Holiness. Special services will be held this day in all churches of the city with a million confessions and communions as a Spiritual Bouquet to His Holiness the Pope. General and sectional meetings will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and will be addressed by prominent church men and laymen from foreign capitals. From School Teacher To Great Eminence

A young man who was brought up on a farm in Western Pennsylvania studied diligently and qualified for district school teacher. Further pursuing his studies and teaching, he managed to save enough money to put him thru medical college. After the Civil War, he began the practice of medicine in the new oil section of Pa., and often rode horse-back thru the woods to reach and relieve those who were seriously ill. He was a student of nature, knew and could easily recognize most of the medicinal plants growing in the woods.

Later, he moved to Buffalo, N.Y. where he launched his favorite remedies, and, in a short time, they were sold by every druggist in the land. Today, the name of this man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, is known throughout the world. His Golden Medical Discovery is the best known blood medicine and tonic. More than fifty million bottles have been sold. If your druggist does not sell the Discovery, in liquid or tablets, you can obtain a trial pkg. of the tablets by sending 50 cts. to Dr. Pierce's Branch Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.

TRIP IN SPAIN WELL DESCRIBED BY MR. GRAHAM

Very Religious, Backward Commercially, Scenically Perfect

Had Mr. R. J. Graham been publicity agent for the beauties and romance of the country he could scarcely have interested his audience more in Spain than he did in a remarkably interesting address given by him in John Street United Church last evening.

Introduced by the chairman of the evening, Mr. Mackenzie Robertson, Mr. Graham described his trip from which he recently returned from the time of sailing from New York through to his return.

"We sailed," Mr. Graham said "from New York with the intention of going directly to Spain, but on boarding the liner found it had been chartered by a party of one hundred Americans who had planned a tour of the Mediterranean, so we ultimately found ourselves at Casa Blanca, Morocco. Here we found in the country which the French conquered many years ago, many points of interest.

HAD TEA WITH THE SULTAN

"It was while at Rabat, the capital, that we first enjoyed tea, the guest of a Sultan, which was one of the several unique and interesting experiences we underwent while abroad. From Morocco we proceeded to Gibraltar which we found abounding in interest but we were warned that the season was chilly so proceeded on a week's tour of the Mediterranean returning to Spain to take a motor trip starting from the Straits which alone took one half day to travel. The coast is picturesque lovely, at a distance, all the houses being snowy white and is upon the plan and outline of these houses that building is being done now in Florida."

SPAIN IS RELIGIOUS

Describing Seville, the speaker said that it is, like all Spain, intensely religious. After conquering colonies, the Spanish in days gone by, pillaged the conquered villages and returning to Spain in their religious zeal, turned most of the gold and silver over to the churches. In the Cathedral of Seville the tongues of the chimes are made of silver and gold.

In Spain more than seventy percent of the people are unable to read or write and in all the country there is not a rural school. Consequently child labour is a common thing. The speaker instanced one case of a six year old tot working in a porcelain factory.

Mr. Graham gave a graphic description of the Alhambra which he said inclined of being a building as is most generally thought in America is a collection of buildings. The mosque of Alhambra is a marvellous structure imported by 1200 pillars gathered from all parts of the world and measuring six hundred by four hundred feet. In reference to the mosque Mr. Graham ascribed the Mohammedan religion "as good as ours". They worship God and believe Christ to have been a perfect man.

WONDERFUL ART

Being a man intensely interested in art, the speaker dwelt upon the marvellous works in Madrid, the gallery of which he considers to be the finest in the world. Mr. Graham admitted that his judgment was a little influenced by the many Murillos in the art gallery, Murillo being his favorite artist. From Granada to Malaga was the speaker said, the finest trip he ever experienced, over hills and mountains with an occasional glimpse of the Mediterranean. His and the road-building accomplishments in the country are marvellous.

A DAY IN TOLEDO

The speaker spent a day in Toledo, the ancient capital of Spain and viewed the old city with its Roman buildings still standing after which he returned to Madrid. Describing the Royal Palace he said it is built on the side of a mountain and that there are forty square miles of game preserves used by the Royal household who are intensely fond of hunting. In the palace are eighteen or twenty rooms of Gobelin tapestries. Leaving Madrid Mr. and Mrs. Graham went to Valencia where he witnessed the annual celebration for which the natives prepare for the entire year.

BARCELONA

Barcelona, he said, is the only progressive city in Spain, due to a different form of political influence. There, Mr. Graham met the secretary of the Rotary Club.

SUMMING UP

Taking Spain as a whole, economically, it is the most backward country in the continent of Europe. It is badly oppressed and doesn't seem to have any idea of progressing," the speaker concluded.

At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Archibald and seconded by Mrs. J. W. Kinnear.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME

Preceding the address a musical programme was presented to which Miss Cooper of Montreal contributed a solo, Mr. D. Nicholson a piano solo, Mrs. Duff, a solo, and Mr. Bankier a vocal solo, all of which were very much appreciated and particular stress was laid upon their excellence by the chairman and those moving the vote of thanks.

HEROISM OF WOMEN

It may be the women in your own home who have to smile and make those around them comfortable and happy, while they themselves are racked with pain and misery caused by some woman's ailment about which they keep silent. Few men realize how common such heroism is. The best known remedy for this condition is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs. For over 50 years it has been making sick and ailing women well and strong.

BALTIMORE INTRIGUED OVER RECOVERIES IN OLD SUNKEN VESSEL

Baltimore, M.D., April 29.—A curiously ornate and engraved ax, salvaged by oystermen from the sunken hulk of a 17th century pirate ship off Tangier Island, Chesapeake Bay, has been pronounced by executives of Peabody Institute here to be a remarkable specimen of medievael pole ax.

The ancient pirate ship was a trading among the colonists as early as 30 years ago. The generally accepted version was that the vessel had been chased into the bay by a rival Pirate in 1810, where it was sent to the bottom perhaps after a hand to hand fight. The muddy ooze of the Chesapeake held it firmly and 'not until a recent bathing storm stirred the depths was it ever more than a dim outline, as vague as the tradition itself.

The storm, however, revealed the upper decks of the craft to the Tangier Islanders, who put-out in rowboats and explored the submerged cabin with oyster tongs. Several copper dishes and the medieval ax came up. The dishes were sold to a New York dealer in antiques, but the ax went to a resident of Crisfield Md., for $10. Peabody executives assert it is priceless being in an excellent state of preservation. The Pea body examiners said it was a weapon never used by the British but wielded extensively by warriors of Latin nations. A slender stiletto is imbedded in the handle and the ax blade itself bears the form of a shield, believed to be the hall mark of its maker. It has been sent to New York for examination by experts in an attempt to determine the time and place of its fabrication.

Things might be worse. Fifty years form now there may be broken statues of men in Oxford bags.

Pablo: The man came home; his wife hadn't returned from shopping he wasn't pouting when she came in.

POINT ANNE WON FROM ALEMITE HIGH CLASS BALL

One of Finest Exhibitions Ever Seen—12 Strikeouts for Green

Point Anne are champions of the Industrial League by virtue of their win over the Alemite team last night by a score of 5-0 in one of the fastest games ever pulled off in the community.

The Alemites put up a mighty battle against Doop Green's pets but could not break into the scoring column.

"Sonny" Green by last night's victory maintains his record of being the cleverest pitcher in the loop. He struck out twelve men and allowed but four scratch hits and them were well scattered.

The play was lightning fast all through and coming into the ninth frame neither team had scored and things were waxing hot and in the stands two hits resulted in one run and in the seventh the Point Anne boys came back and scored two more. But these were not earned runs. Eagle failed to pull down Boulbrea's fine drive and Kerr missed up Gilly Goyer's infield hit. Both of those misplays resulted in tallies.

The Alemites in the dying moments made a noble effort to pull the game out of the fire but two runners were left on base in the ninth while "Sonny" Green was fanning two batters.

Johnny Kerr scoring them up for the Alemites pitched a pretty game, striking out seven batters and the Pointers gathered but four safeties off his delivery with two errors proved rather costly.

The Alemites sent Barlow in as pinch-hitter in the last frame but he promptly struck out.

The spectators were treated to some pretty baseball.

Walt Gerow umpired and were right on top of the play every time. Gerow did an all-star team it is to be picked from the rest of the nines who will meet Point Anne game time next week. The select list will be announced later.

It is doubtful whether the last two games will be played. The issue has now been settled and as neither of these have any bearing on the standing they will probably not be played.

Batting order:

Alemite	Point Anne
J. Marcele, c.f.	Flagler, s.f.
O. Gastin, s.s.	Kentz, c.
M. Green, 3. b.	Kerr, p.
F. Goyer, c.	McKenna, l.f.
B. Green, p.	Palmer, 3.b.
J. Brass, 1. f.	Belanger, 2. b.
J. Boothron, 2. b.	Cornell, 1.f.
L. Goyer, r.f.	Rigby, s.s.
W. Strachan, 1. b.	Page, 1.f.

The Canadian Nationals staged a regular dennybrook in the second game and walked away from the Cisco team who have yet to win a game.

The Cisco's used two pitchers, Barrigar and Murray in an effort to stop the avalanche but the C.N.R. used no mercy and hit them to all corners of the diamonders. The final score when totalled up was found to be in the neighborhood of 19-3. The Mogula brought out a "dark horse" who was none other than the one and only "Big Penney."

He sojourned in the out-field and grabbed one or two flies and was prominent with the hickory.

Harvey and Newton were the battery for the winners.

Walt. Gerow and Woodley umpired Batting order:

C. N. R.—Weir, Ann, Young, Gibson, Mills, Newton, Seeley, Hurley Cisco—Goodfellow, Murray, Curry, Boyle Murray, Baldree, Leigh, Borrisge Lapenotte.

How Leafs Do It

Harvey the play in the 5th and 10th frames in which Toronto caught up to and passed Reading for the opener.

NINTH INNING

Carlyle, batted a bunt. Layne singled through short. Miller retired to pitcher, advancing the two runners. Capes tried to sacrifice. Stering Carlyle, Harrington, batting for Schmehl, singled over second, sending Layne over. O'Neill hit safely past third. Stirfield, hitting for Maisy, singled to left, scoring Harrington. Dye's line hit over second and O'Neill in and put the tying run on third. Heathe had bounded to pitcher scored Satterfield with the run that tied it up. Carlyle bounded to short, forcing Heath. 5 runs, 7 hits.

TENTH INNING

Layne walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Miller batted him to third. Capes bunted to pitcher sending Layne in with the winning run. 1 run.

There was some discussion on Murney Green's hit which scored J. Marcele across the plate, Manager Johnny Allen complained that a spectator interfered in the play but Umpire Colling ruled otherwise.

The Point Anne team have repeated their win outs this season against the C.N.R., Christ Church and Alemite They have 7 straight wins under their belts. The Alemites have five victories and one loss.

Over $12.00 was realized from the passing of the hat among the crowd and everybody was satisfied that they got their money's worth.

AUSSIE TEAM UNSTEADY

London, April 30.—The vagaries of the English climate were partially responsible for the disappointing display of the Australian touring cricketers in their match at Maidenhead against an eleven representative of the minor counties of England. In the game which is the first fixture of the Antipodeans' tour rain caused postponement and the encounter ended in a draw after the visitors had been skittled out for 179 runs and their opponents had compiled 115 for the loss of four wickets.

STUFF

I.

You've heard the expression often enough: "That pitcher has got a lot of stuff"

Stuff is the pitcher's magic charm; the stuff in his head and the stuff in his arm.

II.

Some have their stuff in the arm alone; their heads for the most part running to bone.

Many of these have made the grade, and won their share of the games they played.

III.

Some lack the dazzling curves and speed, but their brains control each thought and deed.

Think it out first!" is their only creed, and that is the only stuff they need.

IV.

Some have both mental and physical stuff. For them Life's roadway is never rough.

Some have neither, but wriggle through; writing stuff about stuff for the likes of you!

Now that the soft ball schedule has practically been completed, how about an organization meeting for an outdoor soft ball league? The game has made rapid strides in other cities. It is a wonderful summer game and attracts both young and old alike. The equipment is a small detail and all that is needed is a ball and bat with three sacks for bases and a good pair of arms and legs. Kingston, Oshawa, Peterboro and other cities have organized leagues and derive considerable benefit therefrom. The boys and girls of the High School take keen interest in the game and the girls have organized a High School league.

A representative of the Deseronto Lacrosse Club was in town yesterday and called on the Observer. The movers of the object in that town are anxious that Belleville should be linked up with them and Napanee in a juvenile group. Two youngsters were noticed yesterday with a stick and ball learning the rudiments of the game. If enough sticks can be gathered and with a little financial support the game could be restored. Anyone who is interested or has an old stick lying about are requested to get in touch with the Sporting Editor and efforts will be advanced to place a team in the field. May is the last date for O.A.L.A. grouping.

The Bay of Quinte Baseball league promises to be the best in years if early indications are any signs. The officers are optomistic over the season's prospects. Belleville fans may be well pleased that the Alemite Products have secured a franchise and Intermediate ball may be witnessed The sporting public should get behind Ernie Rowsome, Art Young and Johnny Allen and help to make Intermediate ball go over big in this city. It is regrettable that a sixth team could not be entered and round out a better schedule. However the five teams will endeavor to supply the public with the class of ball they demand.

"Scotty" Knots who is one of the premier catchers of the loop pulled the feature play of the night when he dove to grab a foul tip off the ump.

Johnny Kerr got a hand when he went over the foul line to grab two flies.

Brent pulled down Kerr's line drive in the sixth and saved a run.

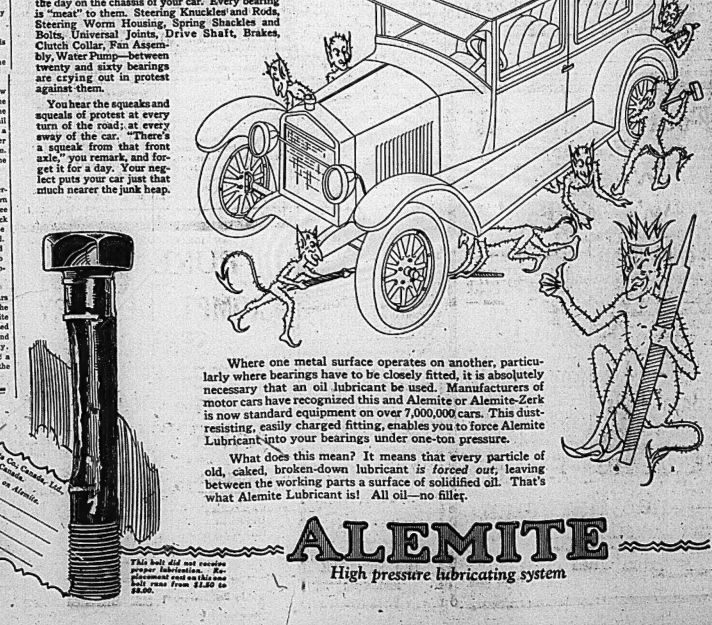

The game was replete with thrills all through.

Soft-ball has surely got under the skin of Belleville fans who were out in droves last night and the greater part of them were rooting for Alemite to come out on top. When they had two men on the paths in the seventh the noise was deafening but Green promptly put an end to the belated rally.

Jean Marcele, Boothron and Lawrence Goyer scored the runs.

Green walked two batters and Kerr issued but one free ticket.

The Capture!

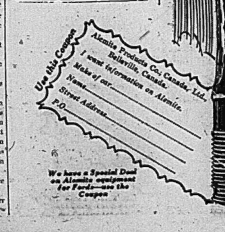

THESE are the little demons that put your car into the hands of the wrecker—the Imps of Friction—and they are working every minute of the day on the chassis of your car. Every bearing is "meat" to them. Steering Knuckles and Rods, Steering Worm Housing, Spring Shackles and Bolts, Universal Joints, Drive Shaft, Brakes, Clutch Collar, Fan Assembly, Water Pump—between twenty and sixty bearings are crying out in protest against them.

You hear the squeaks and squeals of protest at every turn of the road; at every sway of the car. "There's a squeak from that front axle," you remark, and forget it for a day. Your neglect puts your car just that much nearer the junk heap.

Where one metal surface operates on another, particularly where bearings have to be closely fitted, it is absolutely necessary that an oil lubricant be used. Manufacturers of motor cars have recognized this and Alemite or Alemite-Zerk is now standard equipment on over 7,000,000 cars. This dust-resisting, easily charged fitting, enables you to force Alemite Lubricant into your bearings under one-ton pressure.

What does this mean? It means that every particle of old, caked, broken-down lubricant is forced out, leaving between the working parts a surface of solidified oil. That's what Alemite Lubricant is! All oil—no filler.

This bolt did not receive proper lubrication. Replacement cost on this one bolt runs from $1.50 to $6.00.

'WIPERS' FILM THE REAL THING

Official Movies Augmented By Pictures Made by Regular Forces

The story of "Wipers" via the motion picture way at Griffin's is a compelling and sincere production. Not as spectacular as the Navy film on Zeebrugge—it could not very well be so and be true it extolls the Poor Blooming Infantry man and what he did to win the war as nothing preceding it has done or could possibly do. This picture is a combination of official war photographs and clever story worked up shots made by present troops at Aldershot Camp. Our ... is as good as the other. "There is no difference between there cannot be any difference when all the troops employed were either the "Old Contemptibles" (in the earlier scenes marching past the Buckingham Palace) and likes it mostly shelled out of existence) or the men of the new armies, or the men of the present British regular forces employed as "extras" for movie purposes. They were not "acting" but living over again the shock and horror of the war. Of course the business of building the S...lient so far as the Canadians were concerned and other people as well were left out, as much more trying and heart breaking than the picture was able to show, but it suggests something of the difficult times that were to be in there.

One thing the picture does: It names the Regiments that fought and died and held on and finally conquered. At least one knows that County troop s and Guards and Scottish Borderers and Royal Irish Canadians and Royal Fusiliers and Scottish, Australians and French were all there; and something of what they did at certain scenes of the line. The picture takes up certain heroic feats and illustrates how they were done; but let not the dear public forget that there were hundreds if not thousands of brilliant deeds for which no medals were given. Indeed there were hundreds when the Canadian alone who were recommended for decorations who never got them though entirely worthy of the honour.

The picture is so faithful in spots that for instance where people, who have been relieved after an especially trying tour of the trenches, are turned back to reinforce some unit which finds itself in a hole an old hand could tell you what the men grousing; on the other hand in the capture of certain Hun strongpoints, joke just as scarce as the pictures represent, the same old hand could imagine without much trouble the grunts and squeals of the Boche as in ... the jig was up.

War is a most unpleasant business; even the Gunners found it so and this the picture faithfully tells.

AT THE BELLE

Irene Rich gives one of the finest portrayals of her screen career in presenting the role of the young wife in "Pal O' Mine," the new motion picture at the Belle Theatre. Her acting according to the critics is superb, and leaves an impression that is not easily forgotten. This is another triumph to Miss Rich's highly successful career. Her most recent achievements were made in "Beau Brummel" and "Yesterday's Wife."

ALBERTA GETS BUSY

ON SUGAR BEET DEAL

Raymond, Alta., April 19 (By Canadian Press).—Several carloads of sugar beet seed have arrived here for distribution throughout the beet growing districts of southern Alberta.

The shipment of 1,800 bags came from the seed growing districts of Germany at a total laid down cost of $27,000, and was brought through the Panama canal.

General Manager Wood states that precautionary measures were taken up secure seed of high germinating test, in order that growers might be assured normal growth under normal conditions. Samples of the seed were sent to the Dominion Seed Laboratories and after a thorough test, the reported variety was declared to be of the best quality, showing vigorous germinating potentialities. Shipments will be made from Raymond to all points where sugar beets are grown.

GEROW TO PITCH FOR INT. TEAM

Alemite Management Considers They Have Signed Winner

"Chummy" Gerow will pitch for the Alemites in the Bay of Quinte Intermediate league this year.

Ernie Rowsome announced last night that Gerow had affixed his John Henry to a contract. This is a ten strike on the part of the management, as Gerow is considered one of the classiest pitchers around these parts.

He was the main stay of Bobby Collins' Jennings last year and it was expected that he would turn out with the Trunkers. Gerow should go over big in intermediate ball. Mr. Rowsome has his eyes on two or three promising lads about the city and expects to land them.

'INTER COUNTY' QUITS O.B.A.A.

Raw Deal in Matter of Certificates of Players Alleged

Preston, Ont., April 30.—Whereas the O.B.A.A. did on April 24th, last, wilfully and without warning decide to withhold the playing certificates of a great many of the amateur ball players of the province, including a great many belonging to clubs in this league, and whereas at a special meeting of this league on April 26th it was resolved to ask the O. B. A. A. for a hearing regarding these players' certificates and/or an opportunity to show that the certificates should be granted, and whereas the O.B.A.A. has flatly and peremptorily refused such hearing, and whereas all these players whose certificates have been withheld have complied with the regulations of the A.A.U. of C. and with the rules contained in the constitutions and bylaws of the O.B.A.A., and whereas in the opinion of this league these playing certificates have been unfairly unjustly and unreasonably withheld, and whereas this league desires to have been unjust discrimination in connection with the issuing of some certificates and withholding others, and whereas in the opinion of this league the O.B.A.A. has ceased to be a fair judicial governing body for amateur baseball in this province, therefore the executive of the Intercounty Baseball League, here assembled, do now discontinue its affiliation with the O.B.A.A., and does from this time carry on as an independent amateur baseball league."

The above resolution, moved by C. J. Wilkinson, of Kitchener, and seconded by J. J. Richardson, of Guelph, was passed by the Intercounty Baseball League, meeting in an adjourned session here on Thursday afternoon. All clubs of the league were represented in favor of the resolution with the exception of the Stratford Club, who requested the privilege of not voting, as their official representative was not able to be present.

TORONTO WON 6-5 IN TENTH INNING

At Toronto.—Toronto Maple Leafs celebrated the opening of their new $700,000 baseball park here by defeating Reading 6-5. The Keys were leading 5-0 going into the last half of the ninth inning, but the Leafs staged a remarkable rally and scored five runs to tie the score. They then won out in the tenth when Jim Marquis walked Layne, the latter going to second on a wild pitch and reaching third when Miller laid down a perfect sacrifice. Carl Copes also dumped the ball in front of the plate and Layne squeezed home with the winning run. Rain fell continuously during the game, commencing while the opening ceremonies were being held, but over 14,000 people witnessed the blow off of whom 12,781 were paid customers.

TEN ARABS DEAD IN BOAT'S HOLD

Stowaways Crushed to Death by Coal During Rough Crossing

Marseilles, Apr. 30.—Ten Arab stowaways of the 41 who hid in coal holds aboard the steamer Sidi Ferruch met death during a rough crossing from Algiers to Marseilles, it became known today, and it is feared that the death toll may reach twenty.

Ten bodies, bruised and blackened by coughing of the coal as the ship was tossed at sea, were taken from the holds of the Sidi Ferruch today after she had reached port. Workmen have begun a search for the remainder of the forty-one stowaways who, it has been learned, came aboard at Algiers. Several months ago the bunkers, were so terrified that 45 first they refused to leave their hiding places.

TRADE ILLEGAL IN COURT DISCUSSES GRAIN FUTURES

Where Actual Delivery Not Contemplated it is Gambling

Calgary, April 30.—Where people are trading in grain futures and neither party contemplates actual delivery of the grain, such transactions come within the gaming section of the Criminal Code of Canada.

This was the judgment handed down by Mr. Justice Walsh in the action brought by the Topper Grain Company Limited, of Winnipeg, against E. A. Manta, the defendant, Manta, operated a country elevator at Hilda, Alta., and the plaintiff, a grain firm in Winnipeg, arranged to help the defendant financially in operating the elevator and to act as his broker in the purchase and sale of his grain. Heavy financial loses incurred by the defendant in April 1925, rendered him unable to carry on after June of the same year. Upon all the transactions of these parties a balance of $28,870 was due to the plaintiff, and the action was brought to recover the amount, which was admitted by both sides to be correct.

Mr. Justice Walsh gave judgment dismissing the plaintiff's claim and gave judgment for a counter-claim by defendant for $2,190, but dismissed his claim for damages for failure of the plaintiff to obey instructions as to purchase and sale of grain on his speculative buying.

Spring and Summer Coats Keep An Open Mind on Closings

This French dressmakers are treating the Spring coats gently. All of them are exploiting the unlined coat and many of them are showing the rolled-back front with the Chesterfield collar. The straight line is as smart as ever and perhaps a little more generally used just now than the flare, on account of the vogue of the Spring and Summer bordered materials at require a straight lower edge. For the silks, such as taffeta, soft satin or satin crepe, the fronts are gathered to the saddle shoulder instead of being fitted with a dart. If one requires a silk coat with some warmth, a cashmere lining in a harmonizing color is very chic.

CLAIMS CANCER CURE

Lisbon, Portugal, April 30.—Dr. Fort unio Pita, a physician of Funchal, Madeira, who claims to have discovered a cure for cancer, has arrived here at the request of the medical authorities in the Lisbon hospitals.

The process consists of infecting cancerous tissues with pus extracted from a trachoma and provoking an abscess. Dr. Pita claims to have completely cur-

The Marquis

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Every now and then he managed, under the pretense of giving her a flower, or passing her the menu, to touch Constance's hand, and once, utterly regardless of the solemn Belford, he let his hand fall on hers, and held it for a moment or two. Constance's face was a panorama of blushes all through the meal.

When the marchioness, smiling at Constance rose, he flung down his napkin, but as every blush heightened her loveliness in his eyes probably he did not care.

"Never mind the claret, Belford," he said. "Do you think," turning to Constance, "that I am going to sit here alone while you talk me over together in the drawing-room? It is not likely."

He drew their arms within his as he had done when they entered, then looked over his shoulder at the butler.

"Tell the servants I want them in the hall, Belford," he said.

That well-trained individual showed not the faintest sign of surprise as he responded with a calm and dignified:

"Yes, here too long."

"What are you going to do, Wolfe?" asked the marchioness.

"Discharge them all!" he retorted. "Some of them, nearly all of them, have been here too long."

"My dear Wolfe!"

"I will go up to Arol now," said Constance, uneasily.

"Not yet," he said, holding her arm tightly and standing stock still at the entrance to the drawing-room.

The servants, a small army, came trooping from up stairs and down stairs and gathered in the hall in expectant silence.

"Are you all here?" he said, in head ceret, his dark eyes glowing with his new by-born happiness.

"Yes, my lord," and Belford, looking over the crowd.

"Very well then," said the marquis, "I have sent for you because I wish you to know and to share my happiness. Some of you have been in the service of my father—"

"Very much so, my lord," said a tremulous voice, and, an old woman whom Constance had seen about the house, bobbed a courtesy.

"Yes," he nodded, "and my grandfather. You have served us faithfully, and we have tried to prove ourselves your friends."

"Yes, yes, my lord," came the eager response. "God bless your lordship!"

"So I have sent for you to-night to tell you that a great happiness has come to me, the greatest that can come to a man. This lady," and he took Constance's hand, "is my future wife!"

Constance pale and trembling, stood with downcast eyes.

A shout of pleased gratification.

"You were good enough to welcome me when I came back a little while ago, he went on, "and you said you hoped that I should stay. Well, I am going to stay, for if that gives any pleasure, you must thank Miss Grahame," and he raised her hand to his lips and kissed it.

It was not much of a speech, but it went home to them all, especially to those who had grown old in the Brakespeare service, and felt that the place was indeed the home and the people they had served so faithfully their friends.

A cheer rose and echoed again and again amid the timbers of the roof, and "God bless you my lord! God bless you my lady! God bless you, miss!" rang enthusiastically round.

The marquis nodded to Belford, who quite comprehending, went off to the cellar, and the marquis with a pleasant "Good-night!" dismissed the crowd, all buzzing with excitement and gratification at Constance's gentle nature had made her popular with one and all, and they felt that the kindly Brakespeare regime would not be broken by this the future marchioness.

Constance sat for a few minutes in the drawing-room close beside the marchioness, then she got up.

"Where are you going?" he demanded.

"To Arol," she replied and stole away.

The news spread like wildfire and at first people utterly refused to believe it.

That the marquis of Brakespeare, the first man in the county, the representative of one the oldest peerages in the United Kingdom, should marry a governess! It was simply impossible!

But when the next day Constance was seen riding by his side, and those who saw them told how he looked at her when he spoke, and when on the next day she was seen in the carriage beside the marchioness, who was heard to address her as "Constance, dear," people began to believe that there "must be something in it," and to stare aghast.

"Marry the governess! Isn't it really awful!" He must be out of his mind!

But there, we all know what these wild Brakespeares are. But to marry the governess, it is really too dreadful!"

It might be dreadful, but it was true, and being true, had to be accepted. If he had chosen to propose to one of the housemaids the county would have to recognize and accept the fact.

So in a few days carriages began to roll up the avenue, and cards were sent in not only to the marchioness and myself, but to —Miss Grahame. And the county families, which for pride can be matched against Lucifer himself in his proudest moments, were constrained to smile upon the girl who "came from no one knows where, and is absolutely nobody, you know, my dear," but whom the marquis had selected for his future wife, and who must be treated as such.

And Constance went through the ordeal admirably. The marchioness, who knew how cruel the cuts to which she belonged could be to an "outsider," was inwardly rejoiced and gratified by Constance's success, as, calm as self-possessed, she endured all the darts and arrows which, under the cover of pleasant smiles and honeyed words, were shot at her.

"It is her love and happiness make her brave," she said to the marquis one afternoon when Constance's quiet, well-bred manner and sweet voice had been opposed to the barbs of half a dozen disappointed mothers who, while murmuring pleasant things, had tried their hard est to stare her down and freeze her. "They will not be able to resist her for long, you will see."

"Resist her!" he echoed proudly and fondly. "A heart of stone, an unstoned savage would melt under the influence of her. Confound the people of the earth, don't they stay away?"

"No, dear," she said, putting her hand on his arm. "She must go through it. She is the future marchioness and must take her place among them."

"And will soon above the heads of the star soars above its reflection," he said, with his old fire, and tell her to come to me when she is tired of the homage and the beautiful darling, she is queen of such people!"

Constance, who had had a hard time of it this afternoon, and had run up to her room, and had run up to her room, and had run up to her room
